The much talked-of season of hard time and business depression has failed to arrive; the prophecies of the chronic knocker are wanting in the fulfillment and the dire misfortunes predicted by the ever present calamity howler have died in the borning. Alabama, Chilton county and Clanton, instead of going to the bow-wows, as forecasted by would-be wiseacres, has gone steadily onward upon the road of material development that leads to certain success and abundant prosperity

We are enjoying the fruits of our labors as never before; the cry of poverty is hushed throughout this heaven blessed section; on every side is heard the tuneful tones of thrift and prosperity. The frugal farmer will not have to draw upon the store house of the West for his corn supply, for the harvest within our own fields is abundant in the extreme.

The cotton producer is satisfied with the results of his labors, and the shining coin which high prices for his staple enables him to secure and jingle in his jeans not only makes a gladsome sound to his ears, but fills his heart with joyful anticipations of a happy Christmas-tide. All things conspire to make his lot a pleasant one indeed.

The Chilton county farmer is fast assuming that place in the economic relations of life which his avocation predestined him to occupy—the front rank, a leader among the advance guard. Long faces have been succeeded by smiling countenances, and mortgaged homes and farms are soon to become happy firesides and productive fields of pleasure. Hard times have been vanquished and prosperity is victorious.

Contentment, peace and plenty are knocking at every door.

We are now entering upon an era of commercial development never heretofore anticipated; a season of rich rewards for honest toil is now dawning and will soon burst with noon-day splendor upon our people.

The farmers are happy, as they should be, for Mother Earth has yielded them rich trophies for their plucking; prices are soaring amid the radiant beauty of the stars; his products are in demand as never before.

Cotton is again King and Corn is the Prince Imperial.

What more could the planter desire to make his cup of gladness overflow?

Farmers of Chilton county, we greet you as the two-fold keepers and producers of our prosperity. You are they who have produced the wealth of our county, and upon your heads we pour our praises in unstinted measure. You have earned your reward and should enjoy the fruits of your labors.

The merchant who has bought wisely and well rejoices at your success.

The cotton buyer whose heart beats in unison with your own delights in the opportunity afforded him to give you good prices for your staple; he who would withhold from you the best and highest the market affords is neither a friend to the farmer nor a wise man of business.

We want you to succeed, because in your success we also shall share.

We have bought not stingily, but well; we have purchased in keeping with your position and your desires; you want the best, therefore we supplied ourselves with the best, that we might accommodate both your taste and your demands.

Desiring to have you make our place headquarters, we have arranged to pay the very top notch for every pound of the fleecy staple brought to our store.

We want to have a hand in your prosperity; we wish to be remembered in your rejoicing.

Come to us with your samples; we will top the market on every occasion; call upon us for your wants; our large and varied stock enables us to meet your every requirement, and at prices that will make you glad for the visit.

We hate the chronic croaker; we despise the knocked and the pessimist. The old world is bright with hope, buoyant with success, happy in plenteous abundance. We want you to know that we rejoice at your season of success; you deserve it, and we hope you will enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Come to see us; your happy faces make us glad indeed.

Come whether you want to buy or sell, both or either or neither. We will be glad to greet you.

We are going to set the gait this year, and those who would keep up with us must clip it off at a merry chase.

Cordially yours,

W. KANTER & BRO.

Mr. Scott and The Press are as far apart politically as are the two poles, and yet Mr. Scott is chivalrous enough to speak truthfully of an enemy and courageous enough to admit facts enunciated by that enemy. He scorns to fling slime and ooze merely because another chances to hold to a different political faith. In other words, he is a high-toned gentleman, and fears not the truth, from whatsoever source it may come. He cringes not, nor fawns. He told the same truths against the so-called Republican party of this county that have been told by The Press since the first issue of the paper. We do not endorse some of his heresies, nor could we endorse his speech as a whole, but for truth and veracity, for the presentation of wholesome facts as against the tommy-rot of the Thompson element of the Republican party, his address made a nearer approach to real Republicanism than any to which we have listened in many moons. He did not mince words when it came to telling who and what the Thompson aggregation were and are. He openly avowed that Thompson was in their conventions [illegible] delegates to that convention with having put themselves in an attitude of inviting negro dictation. But of this later on. In scathing terms he denounced the trickery of a boss who would override the platform of his party in convention assembled (even though negroes assisted in making that platform), and proclaims himself bigger, wiser and better than those who created him. While he used no invectives, his words were so direct and piercing that even the most ardent Thompson man could not fail to understand their full import.

He literally flayed the black and tan [illegible] Thompson-Washington [illegible]

The Clanton Millinery Company

Perhaps never before in the history of Clanton was a greater number of handsomely designed Hats, Turbans and other adronments for the Ladies put upon display than at this place.

It is so easy to fall in love at this season—says some one. This is especially true with reference to the new styles shown at the Clanton Millinery Company this year. It seems that nothing more beautiful could have been displayed than was the large and varied assortment of handsome Hats shown here. Every variety of trimmed and tailored Hat is to be found among the exhibition of styles and shapes shown at this modern emporium of fashion. Nothing nicer or more becoming was ever designed or originated. Here are the new shaped "Turtle Back," the "High Crowned" Hat, and others which Dame Fashion has decreed that the ultra fashionable shall wear this season.

Among their advanced models is an array of beautiful Hats for children and Bonnets for the wee ones; these are unusually tempting and are displayed with great taste. They will find ready sale because they combine the essential features of popular juvenile headwear; they are pretty, durable and inexpensive.

a few mourners who hunger and thirst for the pie which they hoped to again receive at the hands of their "Marse Jody."

Mr. Scott and Mr. W. F. Aldrich arrived on the 10 o'clock train from Montgomery. Editor Edler was present to meet them. Mr. Edler was once an executive committeeman of this (the lily white) wing of the Republican party. Upon arrival Mr. Scott discovered that he had left his "ready-made" speech at home, so a hurried visit was paid to the telephone exchange and word sent to have his speech forwarded to him at Jemison, where he was to speak at night.

The Chairman.

At the court house a small sprinkling of listeners awaited the speakers. Notwithstanding the fact that circulars announcing the speaking had been forwarded to Clanton some days previous, they were not distributed, and consequently but few knew of the speaking.

Hon. J. Osmond Middleton, one-time candidate for congress from this district, renominated for the same hopeless job, who declined the empty honor and who is now chairman of the county executive committee of the Republican party of the county, and the chairman of the campaign committee of the county candidates, acted as chairman of the Scott speaking assembly and introduced the speakers with his accustomed and becoming grace.

Whether this had any political significance we are unable to say. The head of the county ticket being a cousin of Mr. Thompson, it seemed somewhat strange to see the chairman of the county committee introducing a Scott speaker when it is a well-known fact that these two divisions of the Republican party in Alabama are as wide apart as is hades from heaven.

Mr. Middleton was in the convention which nominated Mr. Thompson for governor, whose candidacy Mr. Scott strenuously opposes, though each belongs to the "Republican" party. If the fact that Mr. Middleton acted as chairman had any sort of political significance, it was altogether too deep for this paper to fathom, though of course it must have meant something, for the two factions are warring one against the other; but be that as it may, Hon. J. Osmond Middleton, a delegate to the convention which nominated J. O. Thompson for governor, a member of the committee which notified him of his nomination, and one of the honored ones in that faction of the party, presided at the Scott meeting and introduced the speakers, who literally tore the hide from the corporosity of Marse Jody Thompson, the black-and-tan candidate for governor.

He was the chairman of the Scott-Aldrich meeting in Clanton last Monday, and every one who knows the A. B. C. of politics knows that these two men, Thompson and Scott, are as far apart politically as are the two poles of the earth.

Tariff Not a Political Question.

The introduction made, Mr. Scott launched immediately into a discussion of political measures and issues. He stated that the tariff was not a political, but a business question—a question upon which business men differed, regardless of political faith, just as they differ upon many other business affairs. This question, said

INFLUENCE OF THE MOTHER

Well to Remember That She Is Ever a Model of Behavior to the Children.

"It is hard for a young mother, who has not yet overcome the wayward tendencies of her own youthful nature, to realize the influence she exerts over her little one. She is constantly surrounded by critical imitators who copy her morals and manners.

As the mother is, so are her sons and daughters. If a family of children are blessed with an intelligent mother, who is dainty and refined in her manner, and does not consider it necessary to be one woman in the drawing room and an entirely different person in her everyday life, but who is a true mother and always a tender, charming woman, she will invariably see her habits of speech and perfect manners repeated in her children.

Great, rough men and noisy, busy boys will always tone down their voices and step quietly and try to be more mannerly when she stops to give them a kind word and a pleasant smile. For a true woman will never fail to say and do all the kind, pleasant things she can that will in any way help to lift up and cheer those whose lives are shaded with care and toil. The mother of today rules the world of tomorrow.

She Has Changed Her Opinion.

"I hear your maiden aunt is visiting you."

"Yes. Came yesterday.

"How long does she expect to stay?"

"Oh, I don't know—probably for some time."

"I feel sorry for your wife. I believe I heard her say not long ago that she despised the old lady."

"She used to, but she has changed her opinion—in fact, has great respect for her now. Aunt Hetty brought three trunks, two of them filled with things she smuggled in from Europe."

A Good Job.

Jacob H. Schiff, at a dinner on the yacht Ramona, condemned a concern that had gone up.

"Straight business methods are the only ones," he said. "There is a moral in the receiver story.

"A man, you know, said one day to a little boy:

"'Well, Tommy, what are you going to be when you grow up?'

"'A receiver, sir,' Tommy answered promptly. 'Ever since pa's been a receiver we've had champagne for dinner and two automobiles.'"

DAME NATURE HINTS
When the Food Is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food. The old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried various kinds of breakfast food, but they were all soft, starchy messes which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating.

"A friend persuaded me to quit the old coffee and the starchy breakfast foods, and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice. I began using them three months ago.

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspeptic symptoms.

he, has absolutely nothing to do with the present campaign, nor can one or ten thousand votes affect the tariff in any respect. It is a question which is settled in the national House of Representatives, and your state and county campaign has no part or parcel in it.

Mr. Scott approves the postal savings bank system, and says it will be a blessing in disguise to those who have small earnings to lay by for an unfortunate day. While this is the child of William Jennings Bryan, he referred lovingly to it as the youngster of Mr. Taft.

Here Mr. Scott paused long enough to tell his audience something about Emblems.

Said he: We progressive Republicans, who stand for the upbuilding of the resources of the State, for advancement on material lines, for the development of the latent resources of the State, do not propose to go under befogged emblems which the people cannot understand, but we have adopted an emblem which all Republicans can appreciate—a spread eagle, with the words, "Progressive, Publicity and Patriotism" emblazoned thereon.

Now, said he, when you go to vote the Republican ticket, be sure that you get under the emblem which opposes the rule of the black-and-tan element.

In the matter of Local Option

Mr. Scott was unequivocal. Strange to say, he never attempted a straddle, as did the Thompson convention in Birmingham; but he did say that while the black-and-tan Republicans had permitted their boss (Joseph Thompson) to plat tempest-tossed with their plank on this question, the Democrats had at last gotten straight on the question and were meeting the demands of the people. He took occasion to say that while the Thompson element were undecided, evasive and undignified, Joe Thompson himself had come to the rescue by saying that he (the boss man) was both bigger and wiser than the convention which nominated him, and, notwithstanding that convention was noncommittal, he, the Big I Am, was going to stand squarely for state-wide prohibition.

He touched the child labor law gingerly, regretting that we had no more effective or stringent laws upon the subject, but he offered no solution to this much discussed question.

He stood for compulsory education, and advocated a term of at least seven months in each year for all white children. He was particular to stress the word WHITE, and wanted it distinctly understood that he was advocating nothing for the negro—that this was the job of Joe Thompson and his crowd.

He wanted two strong white political parties in Alabama, and while he entertained no hope of success at the coming election, he did hope to so route the black-and-tan element of the Republican party that in the future white men would not hesitate to join it, fearing association with negroes. Here he told of a convention held recently in Baldwin county. Said he: There are hundreds of white farmers of the North who have moved into that country and have recently acquired the right to vote because of their continued residence in the county. Just before the Thompson convention met in Birmingham about 150 of these white farmers met in convention, regularly called, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the convention. They did select WHITE delegates, and those delegates went to Birmingham to the convention. The night after the white men met in convention another convention was held in Baldwin county. It was composed of an ex-convict, a postmaster and three negroes. They met in a negro church, used tallow candles stuck in beer bottles for lights, and they nominated a set of delegates. When the two Baldwin county delegations went to the convention the white delegates were asked to which side they belonged, and they immediately replied that they were Republicans, and belonged to no particular side, but stood for the good of the party. The other delegates were questioned, and they responded, "We is for Mr. Jody Thomsun an' his fo'ks, whoeber dey is." The latter delegation was seated and the white men sent home. The same thing, said he, happened in Butler county, and the Thompson men cannot deny it.

This tale, coming from a Republican, tickled the lean meat on the ribs of The Press editor, for he recognized Ben at once, and he knew that for ways that are queer and tricks that are vain Ben Delemos is peculiar. Ben can stampede a convention in less time than it takes the nether regions to scorch a feather, and when it comes to securing delegates he is one man who stands single and alone. He takes the blue ribbon wherever he wanders when it comes to "hurrying up" delegates to a political convention, and in hurdling negroes he is absolutely peerless, even though he did serve time in an Ohio penitentiary.

have none if they could avoid it. He would not dignify the assembly in Birmingham by calling it a convention. It was an association of office-holders—an endorsement aggregation whose motto was, "You endorse me, and I'll endorse you." They wanted no party, because they could not control a party, but they could control office-holders. They belonged horse, foot and dragoons to the postmaster-general, and were his pawns to be placed anywhere at any time and for any purpose.

The speeches of Messrs. Scott and Aldrich put a new phase upon Republican politics in Chilton. It was the first time that The Press man has heard pure Republicanism expounded since he has resided here, and while this paper does not agree the least with the Republican doctrine of government, yet we admit that there are some things about Republicanism—that is, the pure brand of Republicanism—which we admire. The speeches of Mr. Scott and Mr. Aldrich were so different from any that have been delivered in this county heretofore that we have given much space to a review of them, hoping that our Republican friends who have heretofore been fed upon the dry grass of Republican policies will read the speeches of these two gentlemen, who are Republicans from principle, and not for the sake of pie; that if they insist upon being Republicans, they will turn to the party which stands for material development; hoping that they will read the words of one in their own party when he tells them that they have been deceived grossly by officer seekers and political sharks.

Mr. Scott left on the afternoon train for Jamison, where he spoke to an enthusiastic crowd Monday night. Mr. Aldrich went to Montgomery to confer with Judge Stratton about other appointments for the progressive republicans.

Hunting for a Spectacle Pedler or Fakir.

Last Wednesday morning one of Preacher Bowen's sons, from West Chilton, came into Dr. Higgins' office at Clanton, inquiring if he had seen or knew anything of a spectacle pedler whose supposed name was Summerland. Dr. Higgins was unable to give any information as to the whereabouts of the "eye-glass fakir." It is stated by Mr. Bowen that the supposed optician had fitted several pairs of glasses in his section of the country, and that the pedler, in order to fake the people, stated that he would make Clanton his headquarters, and that if any of the glasses which he had fitted failed to give entire satisfaction, he would be in his office at Clanton and would make good all troubles that the glasses might give, etc. Dr. Higgins was unable to give any information, but stated to Mr. Bowen that he had spent several hundred dollars in preparing himself at a reputable college for the work of fitting eye-glasses and other optical work, and had also gone to an expense of several hundred dollars in fitting up a neat optical office in Clanton, and charged only a reasonable amount for the work done by him, the usual charges ranging from $5 to $15, but in some instances as low as $3, and in every instance satisfaction is guaranteed. And he wishes to say, further, that if the people of Chilton and adjoining counties desire to spend their money with spectacle fakirs, besides running the risk of ruining their eyesight, when they have a graduate optician within close call of them, he desires to be excused from all blame in the matter. He further asks that the people of Chilton county be more careful in matters concerning such a delicate organ as the human eye, and when requiring the services of any one, that they will consult with those who have made a special study of that particular branch of science.

Dr. Higgins has had two parties to call recently, one of whom paid $5 and the other $8 for a pair of pedler's glasses, which were absolutely worthless to the purchasers, and tended to do great harm.

We extend our hearty congratulations to Dr. Higgins for his efforts in behalf of those who suffer with their eyes and stand ready at [illegible]

GRAND PRIZE CONTEST

FOR CLANTON PRESS SUBSCRIBERS

Early subscriptions mean early nominations; early nominations mean much to Contestants.

Get into the running early and stay late, thereby taking the best prize ever offered to the people of Chilton County.

The Piano belongs to you if you hustle for it; put your friends to work and rejoice in the possession of a handsome mahogany finish Grand UprightPiano.

Read the plan carefully and get actively into the game; you can win if you try and it's worth the trying.

THE PLAN: READ IT CAREFULLY

The Clanton Press has purchased and now has on display at the Upchurch Drug Company's Store, a handsome Mahogany Finish Grand Upright Piano, warranted by the manufacturers for ten full years.

Call at the Upchurch Drug Company's place and examine its beautiful finish and test its perfect tone and touch—convince yourself.

This handsome instrument is to be given away absolutely free of all cost to contestants, and will be a means of bringing joy into some home in Chilton County—that home may be yours.

With each cash subscription of one dollar to the Clanton Press—the new paper published at Clanton—will be given a ticket entitling the holder to five hundreds votes in the Grand Piano Contest.

The person receiving the largest number of votes at the end of the contest will receive this handsome instrument absolutely FREE.

In addition to the Grand First Prize, we have in our possession a receipt from the manufacturers for One Hundred and Fifty Dollars as part payment on another handsome Piano, which will be offered as a second prize in the contest. This prize goes to the person receiving the next highest vote. This prize represents One Hundred and Fifty Dollars in cash and will be accepted as such payment by the manufacturers.

No citizen of Chilton County, of good character, is debarred from the contest. Every one is invited to participate and will be given every assistance and all information possible to enable them to become the owner of this elegantly finished Piano and receipt for partial payment on another fine Piano.

READ THE PLAN CAREFULLY AND START EARLY; EACH DAY MEANS MUCH IN THE RUNNING.

In addition to the five hundred votes for cash subscriptions to the Clanton Press, the proprietors of the paper will give five votes in the contest for each one cent of cash advertising or cash job work that is brought to the office of the Clanton Press.

These votes are to be cast at the pleasure of the holder for the person nominated by the holder of the ticket.

Each ticket is plainly printed and contains a space for the name of the person for whom you wish to vote to be written thereon.

In case of a tie between contestants receiving the highest and next highest votes the prizes, or an amount equal to the value of the prizes, will be equally divided between them.

In addition to the votes given out by the Clanton Press we have arranged with several merchants to handle these Contest Tickets so that you may receive the benefit of your cash trade with them.

Below will be found the names of the merchants who will distribute Contest Tickets. With each one cent of cash trade done with them you are entitled to receive a ticket for one vote in the contest. Remember, one vote for each one cent of cash trade. If you spend one dollar in cash with them you are entitled to one hundred votes. If you spend ten dollars you are entitled to one thousand votes and so on. To obtain these tickets you will have to trade in Cash as no tickets will be given out for credit purchases. Each ticket will denote the number of votes to which you are entitled. For the convenience of the people two boxes will be used, one will be kept at the Upchurch Drug Company and the other at the office of The Clanton Press. Write on the ticket the name of the party for whom you wish to vote and deposit it in one of these boxes.

From time to time the names of the contestants and the number of votes each has received will be announced in the columns of the Press. Keep your eye on these announcements so that you can put your "best girl"—be she wife, sweetheart or daughter—up at the top of the column.

When you trade with merchants handling the contest ticket be sure to ask for them; you are entitled to them and they will gladly give them to you.

Bear in mind that you are entitled to five hundred votes for each Cash Subscription to The Clanton Press and to five votes for each one cent of Cash Advertising or Job Work done with The Clanton Press and to one vote for each one cent of Cash Trade with the following merchants:

Upchurch Drug Company, Drugs, Seeds, Toilet Articles, Jewelry, Soda Water.

Miss Minnie Muse, Millinery, Laces, Linens, Ladies' Furnishings.

Merchandise, Fancy Groceries. Hadley & Co., Clanton, General

S. E. Davis, Clanten, Fresh Groceries, Country Produce.

J. J. Stanley, Thorsby, General Merchandise, Farmers Supplies.

J. E. Evans, Clanton, Retail Groceries and Fancy Articles, Country Produce.

W. D. Spigener, Clothing, Ladies' Furnishings, Mattings, Dry Goods, Notions.

Gamble Hardware Company, Clanton, Ala., Hardware, Farm Implements, Building Material.

Clanton Furniture Company, Furniture, Crockery, Tinware, House Furnishings.

J. B. Hicks, Clothing, Shoes, Dress Goods, Hats, Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Julius Palmer, Steam and Dry Cleaning and Pressing.

Popwell's Meat Market, Fresh Meats, Fish Vegetables, Country Produce.

Harris Brothers, of Mountain Creek, General Merchandise, Clothing, Shoes, Hats, Hardware, Provisions.

Burns Marsh, Maplesville, Jeweler and WATCH REPAIRER.

Call for Tickets when trading with them and thereby increase your voting strength.

In addition to these votes The Clanton Press will print each week in each paper, a ticket entitling the holder to two votes in the contest. Cut these out carefully, write the name of your favorite in the proper place and deposit the vote in one of the boxes.

Enter early and vote often. You are entitled to vote as often as you please and can obtain as many votes as you wish.

If you do not fully understand the plan ask The Clanton Press and we will gladly furnish you all information and help you.

Its the chance of a life time. Get up a Club of friends to help you in the contest.

Remember that Cash subscriptions get you five hundred votes. Ask your friends to subscribe and give you the Votes. Hustle, hustle, hustle and you may wear diamonds.

It's up to you. Will you work?

Contest Closes Monday, Noon, December 5th, 1910.

Wonder how long the funds will hold out at five dollars per letter?

Five dollars per letter! That's paying some! Have you signed up yet?

You failed to get that man with four sons to sign up, didn't you, Mr. Chairman? Five dollars wasn't any inducement to him.

Governor Hughes, of New York, took the oath on last Monday as an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Wonder how many letters will appear in the weekly "excuse" this week asking that Republicans vote the Republican ticket?

Heard on the streets the other day that those letters cost five dollars per copy. Does that mean five dollars for each paper? Well, it's worth it, to be sure!

Funny, isn't it, that the Thompson Republicans call themselves "loyal and true," and that the Progressive Republicans call them pie-eaters, pie-hunters and Booker-made candidates?

Since he had four sons, that made five voters, and his letter ought to have been worth at least $20. Even that amount, or one ten-times as large, would have been no inducement to that man with four sons.

In another column of this paper will be found a list of speakers and the places and dates on which they will speak. Make a memorandum of these appointments and attend as many as you can.

Senator Bankhead is going to make an address at Mountain Creek soon. The senator is an old-time campaigner, and will make the boys sit up and take notice when he goes after them.

What about that petition which was filed with the old council? Did the new council fall heir to it? Almost every one of the new council signed it. It's up to you, gentlemen, to get busy and do what you asked the other council to do.

We are giving considerable space this week to the speeches of Hon. Charles Scott and W. F. Aldrich. Under ordinary circumstances we would not do this, but the speeches make it so clear that our position, taken some months ago, was correct, that we could not refrain.

Hon. W. F. Aldrich, who was once the Republican congressman from this district, and whom the editor of this paper has fought for years, stated in a public speech made in Clanton on last Monday that the convention in Birmingham which nominated Thompson was a convention of pie-eaters, office-holders and colored delegates. Mr. Aldrich is the campaign manager for the Progressive Republicans of the State.

When a Republican candidate for governor gets upon the platform and states publicly that another Republican candidate was nominated in a convention where there were colored delegates, who is going to deny it? Who is going to call it "a Democratic lie" or "a Democratic trick?"

Mr. Charles Scott, who is a life-long Republican, stated in Clanton last Monday that the Thompson convention in Birmingham on the 27th of July was a Booker Washington-made convention. Mr. Scott has always been a Republican, and he is now a Republican candidate for governor.

Let's see: Five letters at five dollars per letter makes twenty-five dollars, don't it? Five more issues before the election. At that rate it means one hundred and twenty-five dollars for letters. Geewhilikins! but them's costly letters, ain't they? If he had just gotten that gentleman with four sons that would have been worth it—five dollars, we mean.

"Having known ——— for many years, and knowing him to be a good man and an efficient officer, I and my four sons are going to support ———" Stop right there! You need not go any further, for me and my four sons ain't a-going to do any such thing. Now how would you feel if such a thing were to happen to you? But it was funny how he got cut down, wasn't it?

In the next issue of The Press we hope to have a list of appointments from Mr. Blackmon, our next congressman. He is anxious to come over into Chilton and meet our people, and we are going to try to arrange a schedule for him that will enable him to meet our people from every section. Look over the list of speakers announced next week and arrange to go out and hear Mr. Blackmon. You will enjoy it.

Don't forget, Democrats, that there are good men running for all the offices to be filled at the November election. It is important that you get them all in mind and vote for them. We must elect every one of our candidates this time. Get the names—Deason, Jones, Simpson, Curry, Mahan, Retherford and Hayes. Then remember, too, that Fred Blackmon needs your vote. He is going to congress and be your representative. Be sure to locate his name on the ticket.

We have quite a long editorial this week calling attention to Judge Reynold's card with reference to poll taxes and registration. Let no one get the idea that it is an attempt at mud-slinging. When we start that course we will get better ammunition. It is merely a statement of facts, and we doubt not that Judge Reynolds will amend his notice in that particular point. But of course we are not speaking "from the card," for he has given us no intimation that he is or is not going to do so. He has told us, however, in emphatic terms that he is running the probate judge's office, and we presume he will till after the November election.

A card recently appeared in the several papers of Chilton county signed by the probate judge of the county (at least the one appearing in The Press was so signed), which stated a peculiar condition of affairs. We have no desire to criticise the Judge, for so far as we know that official and The Press are on friendly terms. We may differ somewhat in political matters, but The Press entertains a friendly personal feeling for Judge Reynolds; nevertheless, we would make the few remarks which we now propose to make were Judge Reynolds the chief exponent of Democracy in this county rather than that of the Republican party. The condition to which we refer is this: The Judge states: "I have compared the poll list with the list of registered voters as best I could, but I am sure there are some names that ought to be on the list that are not on it."

Now we wish to remark that if there are any names left off the poll list that "ought to be on it" it seems to us that the fault lies with some other official for not having put those names "that ought to be on it" in the book kept for that purpose—the poll tax receipt book. This, we are sure, is not the case. We are confident that every one who has paid a poll tax has his name properly entered upon the poll tax receipt book. This being the case, it would not be a particularly difficult matter, it occurs to us, to secure those names from the poll tax book and put such as "ought to be on it" on the list of qualified voters IF THEY ARE OTHERWISE QUALIFIED. If, on the other hand, there are names omitted from the list of qualified voters that "ought to be on it," then the fault lies with the county registrars, and they are the ones to be censured, and not the Judge. But we do not think that any names that "ought to be on it" are omitted from this book, either. The question, then, resolves itself into this: If all the names that "ought" to be on the poll tax book are on it—and we doubt not that they are—and if all the names that "ought" to be on the registration books are on it—and we doubt not that they are—then why the necessity for the list of qualified voters made out by the probate judge? Section 319 of the Political Code of Alabama gives specific instructions as to how the list of registered voters is to be made and by whom it is to be kept, and what shall be done with it by the probate judge. Section 364 of that same book tells specifically how an alphabetical list of those who have paid poll taxes is to be made and delivered to the probate judge. With these two lists before him, there should be no names omitted that under the law "ought to be on it."

But the Judge goes on to say: "However, if you are not on the poll list, and are challenged on the day of election, as the law requires, you can take the affidavit and vote."

Now, what in all the legal world does this mean? To what point will it lead?

We presume that the Judge intended to say, "However, if your name is not on the poll list, and you are a qualified voter, having registered and paid all your poll taxes, and are challenged on the day of election, as the law requires, you can take the affidavit and vote;" but he does not say this. It may be perfectly plain what he intended to say, and then again it may NOT be.

We are not courting any controversy; we do not care for any, and so long as we can avoid it we are going to refrain from mud-slinging or peanut politics; but, really, we do want to know about this matter. Why was it given? Was it ever done before? To what will such advice, given by a judicial officer, lead? If your name is not on the poll list (the list of qualified voters made out under the law by the probate judge), which is the legal guide, then take the affidavit and vote!

How about the man who is NOT a qualified voter? Will he get himself into trouble? WILL HE? The law says he WILL.

NOTICE.

October 4, 1910.

I have compared the poll list with the list of registered voters as best I could, but I am sure that there are some names that ought to be on the list that are not on it. Hence I make this statement, hoping to get those who are qualified on the list; all who have registered and have paid poll tax in some other beat; all who have paid their poll tax, using sometimes their given name, and sometimes their initials.

In fact, if there is any difference in any of your poll tax receipts, if you will write me or come to my office, I will take pleasure in getting your name on the list if you are entitled to be on it.

If you have paid a poll tax in any other county, the law requires you to get a certificate from the judge of probate in that county and file with the judge of probate here, in order to get on the poll list.

However, if you are not on the poll list, and are challenged on the day of election, as the law requires, you can take the affidavit and vote.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
4t Judge of Probate.

As it is getting near election time I wish to say a few words to the voters of Chilton county, if you will permit me to use your columns for that purpose. Much has been said and written about the negro in politics but I wish to add a word just at this time. I am a Chilton county raised man, have never lived elsewhere but I try to keep myself posted upon the general issues of the day and I strive to be fair minded in all my views. I do not permit prejudice to take charge of reason and I am always ready to listen to those who are able to impart knowledge.

We all know that so long as the present State constitution remains intact the negro will give us no trouble, the State will be under the rule of the white man for it was the white man, the democrats of the State, who disfranchised the negro. This being the case there is no possibility of a negro ever holding office in Alabama except by appointment of the Federal government; he cannot hope to gain office by the votes of the men of the State. For this we are under obligation to the democratic party. But if we vote with and assist the republican party, headed by Mr. J. O. Thompson, to come into power we are directly assisting the negro to become office holders. There are many counties in the State where the negro out numbers the whites three and in some cases eight to one. If these black hordes are permitted to vote they could easily combine and elect any one of their number to office and though we in Chilton need never fear of having such county officers yet there is a possibility of them being in the Legislature from other counties and of their making laws under which we will have to live even here in Chilton.

If Mr. J. O. Thompson should be elected Governor it is his policy to enfranchise the negro for that is one of the planks in his platform. His party is committed to that policy. I wish all the voters of this county would read carefully the platform of the Thompson party and consider well what they are doing when they vote for him. I do not believe that our people will vote a ticket headed by a man who stands for any such theories of government even though in all other respects he may be a clean, pure man.

Hoping these few thoughts will assist someone in solving the election puzzle, which after all is no puzzle at all, and that I may live to see Chilton county align itself with the other counties of the State, I am,

A DEMOCRAT.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank the managers and judges of the Chilton County Fair Association for their kindness in awarding the prize to me and will assure them that they could not have given it to any one who appreciates it more than I do. Respectfully,

MISS NORMA DENTY.

Death of a Good Woman.

On last Saturday at her home in Mountain Creek Mrs. G. W. Cobern breathed her last after a long illness with typhoid fever. All that tender hands and loving hearts could do for this good women was done, yet the Master called and like a faithful servant of the Lord she answered "Here am I." The direct cause of Mrs. Cobern's death was pneumonia, contracted just as loved ones had begun to hope that she would recover from the attack of typhoid fever. Mrs. Cobern, before her marriage, was Miss Fannie Strock, the eldest sister of Miss Judson Strock and Mrs. E. B. Deason.

On Sunday morning she was laid to rest to await the resurrection morning.

To the bereaved husband and other loved ones the Press, together with their hosts of friends, extend deepest sympathy.

Failed to Arrive.

Hon. W. M. Lackey, one of the foremost orators of the State was scheduled to make an address in Clanton last Tuesday in behalf of the democratic ticket but failed to come in time to meet his audience.

Mr. Lackey and Governor Comer made speeches the day before at Wetumpka and Mr. Lackey left on the north bound train for Birmingham intending to return to Clanton on the 10 o'clock train; but that train does not stop at Clanton. It goes high-balling through the city as if Clanton were a mere speck of dust on the road side, consequently Mr. Lackey was unable to make his address.

Buckwheat and Lasses.

Some one is getting ready for the festive buckwheat cake. At least it have that appearment. Mr. Judson Strock had on exhibition at the county fair [illegible] and this evidently become known to some one who loves "his lasses."

Mr. Strock called at the fair grounds Tuesday morning to get his prize winners only to be disappointed. Whoever took the syrup did not have politeness enough to leave the blue ribbon with which the cans were decorated.

The syrup was at the fair grounds building Monday night but was minus on Tuesday morning. Mr. Strock thinks some one might have taken it by mistake and if so he requests that they return the syrup to him. If, however, it was taken purposely he says they had best eat fast for his eagle eye will soon detect the thief, for any one eating that particular brand of syrup must needs wear a broad brimmed smile at all times.

A Beautibul Home Wedding.

On last Wednesday night at the handsomely appointed home of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Mullins was celebrated the nuptials of a prominent young couple in whom all of Clanton is interested.

On this occasion Miss Mabel Hall, one of Clanton's most beautiful young ladies was given in marriage to Dr. Arthur Johnson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. J. said the beautiful service of that Mill, of the Methodist church, who church, thus bonding for life two hearts that for many months have been wedded in love. The home of Mr. Mullins was tastefully decorated for the occasion and the artistic display of potted flowers and ferns added much to the already beautiful scene.

The wedding was a quiet one, but a few of the intimate friends of the couple being present.

Miss Hall is a young lady of rare beauty and added to this she possesses a charm of heart and mind that makes her a queen wherever she goes.

Dr. Johnson is one of Clanton's young physicians; he comes from a family of physicians and that he will soon forge to the front rank is the prediction of all his friends.

Immediately after the ceremony an elaborate wedding dinner was served at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Napoleon Johnson—brother and sister of the groom—and all went as merry as marriage bells.

Dr. Johnson is a noble hearted young gentleman of the old school but noble and manly as he is he has "outmarried" himself in having won so noble a lady for his bride as is Miss Hall.

Miss Hall has made Clanton her home for the past two seasons, the home of her nativity being at Owensville, Indiana, but though she has been here only a short time she has succeeded in winning her way to the hearts of all with whom she has become acquainted.

For the present Dr. and Mrs. Johnson will make their home with Dr. and Mrs. Napoleon Johnson.

The PRESS extends to these young people its sincerest congratulations and wishes for them that all their days may be as happy as was their wedding day.

Happily Married.

Last Sunday night in the city of Birmingham there occurred a wedding which is of more than usual interest to PRESS readers. The circumstances under which the wedding took place bordered somewhat upon the romantic.

On the afternoon train a party of friends went up to Thorsby ostensibly to get "carnations" and to return. Part of the party did return but part did not. There was no especial objection on the part of the parents of the bride, but fearing lest objections should be made, a trip was taken to Birmingham that such objections should not be interposed.

Mr. Tom Woods acted as "rogue" for the happy couple and right admirably did he perform his part. Saturday night he stole the satchel of the bride from her home and secreted it till Sunday afternoon, then he formed a "carnation party" and started with them to Thorsby. Arriving at that place several of the party left the train but Miss Patti Mae Van Derveer continued her journey. At Calera she was met by her future husband, Dr. J. R. Pow, of Malene, and the two went up to Birmingham, where they were happily married. Telegrams were sent to the parents of the bride informing them of the wedding and asking parental blessings. These, of course, were immediately given and perhaps there is no happier woman in all of Alabama than is Mrs. Dr. Pow, of Malene.

Miss Patti was one of Clanton's favorite young ladies; she was handsome in the extreme and talented to a degree and Dr. Pow is to be congratulated upon having won for his life mate a young lady who combines so many charms of heart and mind and body.

New City Clerk.

Last week the new City council met in called session for the purpose of selecting a City Clerk to succeed Mr. E. B. Deason, who is now a candidate for Probate Judge on the democratic ticket. Several names were presented for consideration but [illegible] mess man and we predict that under his administration of the office the affairs of the city will receive prompt and careful attention. Mr. Deason turned the books and effects of the office over to Mr. Robinson last Monday and he has gone diligently to work.

The County Fair.

Last week was County fair week and notwithstanding the inclement weather the managers of the fair managed to pull out even. Rain interferred considerably with the attendance, otherwise the fair would have proven a great success. The exhibits were good—they were more than creditable; they reflected much praise upon the farmers of Chilton county. The corn exhibit was pronounced unusually fine and the woman's department came in for its full share of praise. During the fair speakers of prominence from various sections of the State were present and made addresses. Notably among these were Commissioner of Agriculture J. A. Wilkinson; Lieutenant Governor W. D. Seed, and Prof. J. F. Dugger of Auburn Agricultural college. We sincerely hope that the fair Association will receive the aid and encouragement of the people of Clanton and that they will secure permanent quarters so that the fair can be held annually.

No Premium Lists.

The PRESS had entertained the hope that it would be able to give its readers a full list of the premiums awarded at the fair last Saturday, but just as we were going to press Mr. Conway walked in the office and informed us that it would be impossible for him to furnish the lists this week as the Secretary of the association had taken all of the books home with him so that a complete list could not be made. He requested that all premium lists intended for publication be held till next week when he promises to furnish a full list of all prizes awarded.

Mr. Conway seems to regret the unavoidable delay as much as we do, and though we already had much of this list of prizes awarded in Woman's department "set up" and ready for printing, yet at his request we withhold it till next week when we will announce all the prize winners.

A Reply to Mr. Barnett.

In last week's issue of the Banner Mr. Barnett has a card in which he requests all republicans to support the so-called republican ticket in this county. I want to ask Mr. Barnett what he calls a republican ticket and who are its candidates? Does he think that a man who took sides with a big democrat in the last campaign is a republican or a candidate who can ask for the support of republicans in this county?

Is that what you call a republican ticket? If not please explain what you mean. I have been a republican all my life and I wish to say that we have not got a republican ticket in this county this year and hence I think that the republicans of the county are free to support whomsoever they please. For one I shall do so.

J. W. EDWARDS.

Disastrious Fire.

The friends of Mr. A. W. Middleton, who resides two miles south of Clanton will regret to learn that he sustained a fearful loss of property on last Tuesday night by fire. After he had retired for the night and was securely wrapped in the arms of slumber, a constant and continued crackling sound, the lowing of cattle and the braying of stock awoke him. Rushing from his sleeping apartment he discovered that his cotton house, barn and stable were all in a blaze. Just how the fire originated is not known but it is supposed that one of the cotton pickers who had returned from the field must have been smoking and left sparks of fire in the cotton. Mr. Middleton, by dint of hard work, succeeded in saving his home but all else was lost. Among the effects lost by the fire were, besides the out houses, barn, stables and cotton house, a fine mule, a cow, a wagon and a buggy, and one bale of cotton. Several hogs and other live stock also perished in the flames. The PRESS understands that Mr. Middleton carried no insurance whatever, so that the loss sustained falls entirely upon his shoulders.

Piano Contest.

Note the changes in the PIANO contest this week. There seems to have been new spirit injected into the contest from some source. The time is now getting short and if you would win a piano or assist a friend to win one you must hustle. Ask for tickets and trade with those who handle them. Look over the list of those who are using PRESS contest tickets and do your trading with them. When you trade ask that the tickets be given you.

FRED KAUFFMANN

MADE TO MEASURE GARMENTS

ARE THE MOST PERFECT UNDER THE SUN

Several million people know the fine made-to-measure clothing for men made by Fred Kauffmann, Chicago.

This tailoring organization has built up the greatest made-to-measure business of the country, running into so many million dollars that you'd run up thumbs and fingers tallying it off.

This vast business has been won—and is being held—by carefulness.

Their designers get larger salaries than the members of Taft's Cabinet; their buyers of cloth are national experts; their standard for cloth, at our suggestion, is absolutely all-wool.

Fred Kauffmann secured us as representatives with the determination of making Kauffmann tailoring as standard in this vicinity as are Elgin or Waltham watches.

Tailoring that is guaranteed by seven simple words, namely: YOUR MONEY BACK UNLESS WE PLEASE YOU. This guarantee is backed by the mill, the maker and us.

Kauffmann has sent us a message: "We'd like to spend some money to further entrench our tailoring. What would you suggest?"

Our answer was: "Spend it by giving us a reduction that will capture the town."

The best way to win trade for Fred Kauffmann tailoring is to get it on men's backs. It will win their permanent friendship, and so we will make your measurement for made-to-your-personal-order garments at prices which have never before been quoted for Fred Kauffmann tailoring, namely:

A Hurry Order.

"The government requires immediately an air ship capable of conveying a large body of men," says the English cabinet officer, entering the office of the inventor.

"Ah! You want a war machine? Is it a secret order?" asks the inventor.

"It must be a dead secret, but it is not a war machine. We've got to have some means of enabling parliament to escape the suffragettes."

Art and Actuality.

"Look, Marie. Look! There goes Rantum Storme, the famous actor. Don't you remember how gloriously he plays the part of Monte Cristo, and how lavishly he scatters the money all about? Oh, he is just grand!"

"And who is the little man with him?"

"Why, that is a mean deputy sheriff who has attached his scenery and baggage and goes with the company until he gets his money."

By Way of Comparison.

"When one thinks of the immeasurable distance to the nearest star, it seems almost impossible to grasp the thought, doesn't it?" said the girl, as they were walking beneath the balmy stars.

"Yes; the only way one can arrive at an idea of the marvelous overwhelmingness of it is to try to think what it would cost to ride there in an auto rented for five dollars an hour."

His Mistake.

"But," we say to the young reformer who had gone single-handed against the rapacious trust that was fastening itself cormorantlike, etc. (we quote from his earlier speeches), "but, you said you were a David defying this modern Goliath."

"I diagnosed the situation incorrectly," he confesses. "I was Jonah swimming toward the whale."

Glad Promise.

"No," said the fair young thing to the bald-headed newsboy on the train "I don't believe I want to buy that book 'Lovers' Oaths.' But, Stranger Boy, I promise I hope that a happy

Prize Fighting and Prayer.

The little son of Nelson T. Wender of Seattle has been trained by his father to box. He is only six years of age. His father puts the gloves on with him and usually, after a few rounds, holds him down on the floor until he counts him out in the regular fashion of:

"One—two—three——"

One night the youngster knelt down at his mother's knee to say his prayers and he began:

"Oh, Lord, one—two—three—four—five——"

Then he remembered himself and said quickly:

"'Scuse me, God. I thought I was being counted out."—Popular Magazine.

One of the finest bodies of land in Chilton county. Two hundred acres. Two miles west of Clanton on the Clanton and Thorsby road. One hundred and sixty acres cleared land—the balance well stocked, with fire-wood. Four good tenement houses in thorough repair. There is no place in the entire county so well watered as is this place. An ideal home for a thrifty farmer who wants to become rich. Fine pasturage. Will sell acreage to suit purchasers in tracts of not less than forty acres. This land must be sold. Such an opportunity will not again be presented to you. You'd better snap at this chance. STANDARD CUTS OIL PRICES

Reductions Made in Europe and the Far East in Campaign to Increase use of Kerosene.

New York.—J. I. C. Clarke, through whm the Standard Oil Company makes its official announcements to the public, has issued a statement to the effect that the company has entered on a thoroughly mapped out campaign to increase the consumption of kerosene in European cnountries and the lands of the Orient. The first move in this campaign is the reduction of the prices of oil in those countries. Mr. Clark's announcement says in part:

"The Standard Oil Company has inaugurated a campaign to increase the world's consumption of refined oil. The level of prices for refined oil today in the United States is lower than at any time during recent years, and as a direct result of these prices the consumption of refined oil in this country is increasing. The same policy is now being actively pursued abroad."

As indicated by this statement, the Standard company began trying out the policy of lower prices in the United States, though without announcing that it had in view a campaign that would cover the world. In August the price of refined oil in tanks was reduced from 6 1-2 to 5 1-2 cents a gallon, and the price of refined oil in barrels at the refinery was cut 1 cent, from 9 3-4 to 8 3-4 cents a gallon.

CROP CONDITIONS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Washington, D. C.—The corn crop was 80.3 per cent of a normal on October 1, or at time of harvest, as compared with 73.8 a year ago, and 78.4 the ten-year average, according to the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture.

The production of spring wheat as estimated by the crop reporting board for 1910 was 233,475,000 bushels, compared with 290,823,000 bushels in 1909, the yield per acre being 11.8 bushels, compared with 15.8 in 1909 and 13.7 the ten-year average; the quality was 94.1 per cent, compared with 86.2 the ten-year average.

The production of all wheat for 1910 was 691,769,000 bushels, compared with 737,189,000 in 1909, the yield per acre being 14.2 bushels, compared with 15.8 in 1909 and 14.1 the ten-year average; the quality was 93.1 per cent.

The production of oats for 1910 was 1,096,396,000 bushels, compared with 1,007,353,000 in 1909, the yield per acre being 31.9 bushels, compared with 30.3 in 1909 and 29.5 the ten-year average; the quality was 93.8 per cent, compared with 86.1 the ten-year average.

The production of barley for 1910 was 158,138,000 bushels, compared with 170,284,000 in 1909, the yield per acre being 24.4, compared with 24.3 in 1909 and 25.7 the ten-year average; the quality was 88.1 per cent, compared with 86.0 the ten year average.

CHAS. H. HUGHES NOW ONE OF THE SUPREME JUDGES.

Washington.—After the oath of office as associate justice was administered to Charles H. Hughes of New York, the supreme court of the United States adjourned out of respect to the memory of late Chief Justice Melville Fuller. The court was in session only eight minutes. Every available seat in the little court room was occupied b persons especially interested in the events of the opening day. The mother, the wife and the daughter of the new justice were the first of the relatives of the court to arrive. They came fully half an hour before the court convened. Attorney-General Wickersham and Secretary Nagel represented the cabinet. Mr. Hughes followed Justices Harlan, White, McKenna, Holmes, Day and Lurton as they entered the court-room in procession. Behind the New York governor came Justice Brown, now retired, but formerly a member of the supreme court. Presiding Justice Harlan announced as soon as the court had taken its place that the president had appointed Mr. Hughes to the bench, that the senate had confirmed the nomination, and that Mr. Hughes was present. He directed Clerk McKenney, by whom Mr. Hughes was seated, to read the latter's commission. "The court extends a cordial welcome," said Justice Harlan, as the clerk finished reading.

Orders of Steel Trust.

New York.—Unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation for the month ending September 30 total 3,158,106 tons, compared with 3,537,128 tons for the month ending August 31. The figures are just announced. The low record for unfilled orders was 3,027,436 tons, on September 30, 1904.

A FEW THINGS.

Reggy—Bah Jove, I'd like to chastise those blawsted reporters!

Cyril—Why so?

Reggy—We have been insulted. The other day the firemen rescued us fellows from the burning clubhouse, and now the reporters have the account headed, "A Few Things Saved, but Nothing of Value."

WASTED A FORTUNE ON SKIN TROUBLE

"I began to have an itching over my whole body about seven years ago and this settled in my limbs, from the knee to the toes. I went to see a great many physicians, a matter which cost me a fortune, and after I noticed that I did not get any relief that way, I went for three years to the hospital. But they were unable to help me there, I used all the medicines that I could see but became worse and worse. I had an inflammation which made me almost crazy with pain. When I showed my foot to my friends they would get really frightened. I did not know what to do. I was so sick and had become so nervous that I positively lost all hope.

"I had seen the advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies a great many times, but could not make up my mind to buy them, for I had already used so many medicines. Finally I did decide to use the Cuticura Remedies and I tell you that I was never so pleased as when I noticed that, after having used two sets of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills, the entire inflammation had gone. I was completely cured. I should be only too glad if people with similar disease would come to me and find out the truth. I would only recommend them to use Cuticura. Mrs. Bertha Sachs, 1621 Second Ave., New York, N. Y., Aug. 20, 1909."

"Mrs. Bertha Sachs is my sister-in-law and I know well how she suffered and was cured by Cuticura Remedies after many other treatments failed. Morris Sachs, 321 E. 89th St., New York, N. Y., Secretary of Deutsch-Ostrowoer Unt.-Verein, Kempner Hebrew Benevolent Society, etc."

Trouble in the Troupe.

"They've had a frightful time in the No. 5 Tom Company. Hear about it?"

"Nope."

"Busted an' walkin' back. That's right. Went to smash on the Vincennes circuit. Utility feller they picked up at Sawville got mad 'cause he was doubled as Marks an' a bloodhound, an' sawed the legs off the ladder, an Eva fell out o' heaven an' landed on Papa St. Clair, an' Simon Legree landed on Unc' Tom, an' the real dog bit a hole in Aunt Ophelia, an' there was merry hades to pay until the local manager called the patrol wagon and had the whole bunch dragged up the pike and dumped in the woods. An' the worst of it was there was a record house, with nineteen good dollars in the box!"

Editorial Favor.

"A month ago you rejected a story of mine."

"I had offered it for $7, and you turned it down."

"So I did."

"Well, I sold that story for $40. Here's another story. May I ask the favor of one more rejection? It seems to help."

Queer Questions.

Queer questions come over the telephone to the newspaper offices. Here was one that the man who chanced to answer the phone had put up to him the other day:

"Say," began the unknown seeker after the truth, "do you—do you remember who it was that killed Abel?"

"Why, Cain, of course," replied the newspaper man, who put in several years at Sunday school. "Who'd ju suppose?"

"Well," observed the man at the other end in an annoyed tone, "doggon if I ain't gone and made a fool o' myself. Course it was Cain, now that you mention it, but I made a two to one bet with a fellow that 'twas Goliath, and now I'll have to go without a new overcoat, I reckon, this next winter."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Childish Reasoning.

"Look at the brownies, papa!" exclaimed a little miss as she gazed upward at a Wall street skyscraper.

"They are not brownies, dearie," replied papa. "They are big men, like me, but they look so tiny because they are so high."

"If they were twice as high, would they look twice as small?" she asked, showing the mathematical turn not unnatural in the offspring of a successful broker.

Papa answered "Yes."

She made a quick calculation and remarked: "They won't amount to much when they get to heaven, will they?"

His Inalienable Right.

When Willie goes to school next week he will have a new teacher.

The new teacher will like Willie when she begins to know him, but the process may take several terms.

Willie's teacher began to like him just before the close of the school year, and she testified to her affection by offering him a pocketknife.

"There, Willie," she said, "you have tried so hard to be a good boy that I am going to give you this nice four-bladed pocketknife—but you must promise me never to cut the school furniture with it."

"Take it back, teacher," said Willie, sadly.—Cleveland Plaindealer.

Experience Teaches.

"Sure, and Oi t'ink it pays to be honest, afther all," said Pat. "Oi troied thot phoneyweight business in my grocery sthore lasht year, and Oi losht money by ut."

"How so? Did you get found out?" asked his friend.

"No, sorr," returned Pat. "Oi made the mistake of fillin' me weights wid lead, so thot ivery mon thot came to me for wan pound of sugar got twinty-three ounces to the pound."—Harper's Weekly.

He Came by It Honestly.

"Lend me your pencil, Johnny." The small boy handed it over and teacher continued to correct the exercises of the class. When she finished she suffered a sudden lapse of memory and laid the pencil away in her desk. As she stood up to excuse the class she encountered the scornful gaze of Johnny's eyes. Rising in his seat he fixed her with an accusing forefinger and uttered the single word "Graft!"

Johnny's father writes for a current magazine.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form. THE MALARIA MONSTER

If the mosquito were as big as it is bad, it would darken the air like a gigantic death-breathing dragon. Each sting of a mosquito sows the germs of malaria. These germs multiply with wonderful rapidity. Then come chills and fever with other forms of malaria that undermine the health and sap the strength.

OXIDINE

—a bottle proves.

It is the modern malaria medicine and the one sure antidote for malaria poisoning. It kills the chills. It quenches the fever fires. It stamps out the cause and consequences of the disease. That's only the beginning of helpful healing work of OXIDINE. It builds up the body, revitalizes the system, enriches the blood, tones up the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. OXIDINE puts the body on a fighting footing of superb health.

The tonic qualities of OXIDINE make it the best medicine for all weak, run down, thin, pale persons. It is the best body-building tonic money can buy.

Temporary Heat Quickly

Did you ever stop to think of the many ways in which a perfect oil heater is of value? If you want to sleep with your window open in winter, you can get sufficient heat from an oil heater while you undress at night, and then turn it off. Apply a match in the morning, when you get out of bed, and you have heat while you dress.

Those who have to eat an early breakfast before the stove is radiating heat can get immediate warmth from an oil heater, and then turn it off.

The girl who practices on the piano in a cold room in the morning can have warmth from an oil heater while she plays, and then turn it off.

The member of the family who has to walk the floor on a cold winter's night with a restless baby can get temporary heat with an oil heater, and then turn it off. The

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. Apply a match and it is immediately at work. It will burn for nine hours without refilling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. It has a damper top and a cool handle. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font.

It has an automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be quickly unscrewed for rewicking. Finished in japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.

In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.

In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.

In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.

We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.

But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that our store is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.

The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.

Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.

Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.

They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries, Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

Howdy Do! How Are You?

The much talked-of season of hard time and business depression has failed to arrive; the prophecies of the chronic knocker are wanting in the fulfillment and the dire misfortunes predicted by the ever present calamity howler have died in the borning. Alabama, Chilton county and Clanton, instead of going to the bow-wows, as forecasted by would-be wiseacres, has gone steadily onward upon the road of material development that leads to certain success and abundant prosperity

We are enjoying the fruits of our labors as never before; the cry of poverty is hushed throughout this heaven blessed section; on every side is heard the tuneful tones of thrift and prosperity. The frugal farmer will not have to draw upon the store house of the West for his corn supply, for the harvest within our own fields is abundant in the extreme.

The cotton producer is satisfied with the results of his labors, and the shining coin which high prices for his staple enables him to secure and jingle in his jeans not only makes a gladsome sound to his ears, but fills his heart with joyful anticipations of a happy Christmas-tide. All things conspire to make his lot a pleasant one indeed.

The Chilton county farmer is fast assuming that place in the economic relations of life which his avocation predestined him to occupy—the front rank, a leader among the advance guard. Long faces have been succeeded by smiling countenances, and mortgaged homes and farms are soon to become happy firesides and productive fields of pleasure. Hard times have been vanquished and prosperity is victorious.

Contentment, peace and plenty are knocking at every door.

We are now entering upon an era of commercial development never heretofore anticipated; a season of rich rewards for honest toil is now dawning and will soon burst with noon-day splendor upon our people.

The farmers are happy, as they should be, for Mother Earth has yielded them rich trophies for their plucking; prices are soaring amid the radiant beauty of the stars; his products are in demand as never before.

Cotton is again King and Corn is the Prince Imperial.

What more could the planter desire to make his cup of gladness overflow?

Farmers of Chilton county, we greet you as the two-fold keepers and producers of our prosperity. You are they who have produced the wealth of our county, and upon your heads we pour our praises in unstinted measure. You have earned your reward and should enjoy the fruits of your labors.

The merchant who has bought wisely and well rejoices at your success.

The cotton buyer whose heart beats in unison with your own delights in the opportunity afforded him to give you good prices for your staple; he who would withhold from you the best and highest the market affords is neither a friend to the farmer nor a wise man of business.

We want you to succeed, because in your success we also shall share.

We have bought not stingily, but well; we have purchased in keeping with your position and your desires; you want the best, therefore we supplied ourselves with the best, that we might accommodate both your taste and your demands.

Desiring to have you make our place headquarters, we have arranged to pay the very top notch for every pound of the fleecy staple brought to our store.

We want to have a hand in your prosperity; we wish to be remembered in your rejoicing.

Come to us with your samples; we will top the market on every occasion; call upon us for your wants; our large and varied stock enables us to meet your every requirement, and at prices that will make you glad for the visit.

We hate the chronic croaker; we despise the knocked and the pessimist. The old world is bright with hope, buoyant with success, happy in plenteous abundance. We want you to know that we rejoice at your season of success; you deserve it, and we hope you will enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Come to see us; your happy faces make us glad indeed.

Come whether you want to buy or sell, both or either or neither. We will be glad to greet you.

We are going to set the gait this year, and those who would keep up with us must clip it off at a merry chase.

Cordially yours,

R. R. M. PORTER TELLS THE FACTS.

efuses to be Bought; Five Dollars Is Good Money not Enough to Purchase the Princip'es of Men

PORTER IS NOT FOR SALE AT ANY PRICE

m what I hear it looks like some people down about Clanton doubt my word and the word friends. I hear some of my were talking about the talk I the chairman of the committee and the probate and some of them gave it the ich reflects upon me and is my friends. I did not want to the papers about this matsince it is being talked so want to tell just how it hapMr. Middleton came to me me to go to work for Judge , and I told him that I didn't could do it. He then asked wouldn't sign a letter which write, and I told him I never things till I knew what the said. Then he turned to a dy and began to tell her what and she began to write on a When he got to the point was to say that me and my were going to support eynolds, I told him to stop, ere not going to support eynolds.

e took me out in the pump the court house and talked elling me that he know I had upported Judge Reynolds, I was a poor man. He hand- dollars and told me to take some back for more. I told n't want the money, but if I work for Reynolds I would ork and then send him the hat I had done. I told him were two bad paymasters paid in advance and one paid. He insisted that I the five dollars, telling me a poor man and he wanted along, and it would help en I told him that I could and that we were going to other ticket. As we in the court house Judge met us in the hall of the and asked me if I wasn't upport him, and I told him he asked me if there was he had ever done that caused ge. I told him there was, and Mr. Middleton in house.

Now, I want to say further that my word is as good as the word of any man; I do not sell out my principles for money or anything else. All this conversation took place in Judge Reynolds' office except that part that took place in the pump house at the court house when Mr. Middleton offered me the five dollars.

I had on a cheap shirt and other cheap clothes, and I guess that made Mr. Middleton think I could be bought, but while I am not an educated man and work hard for a living, I don't sell out to anybody.

Me and five of my boys are going to support the Democratic ticket this time, and unless I change my mind and they change theirs we are going to vote that ticket from now on.

I am sorry that I have had to tell these things, because I do not want to get into the newspapers; but when men try to buy me out, and then deny it, and try to put the lie on me and my friends, I think it is time to talk.

There's nothing to compare with KNOWLEDGE.

Knowing how to BUY is as great an art as knowing how to SELL.

We know both arts; we BUY wisely, we sell economically.

We spent two weeks in New York City inspecting styles, in order that you might have the latest from the most fashionable city in the world.

Our stock of Ladies' Furnishings is more complete this year than that shown by any other place between Montgomery and Birmingham.

We bought in New York at New York prices; we are going to sell in Clanton at UNPRECEDENTED prices.

Mrs. Breeden, a skilled trimmer of Nashville, who learned her trade under the masters of the larger cities and who assisted us in New York, will be with us this year to give you the benefit of her knowledge and skill.

A Letter From a Prominent Citizen.

Mr. John Baker, Sr., One of Chilton's Oldest Citizen and a Prominent Republican, who is a Republican from Principle, Tells What He Thinks and What He Expects to Do.

Mr. Baker was Paid Nothing for His Letter; was Offered Nothing and Would Have Refused to Accept any Gift. He Wrote Freely, Willingly and Cheerfully. Being the Oldest Republican in the County He Ought to Know Something of Party History.

WILL ANY OF THE OTHER PAPERS PUBLISH THIS LETTER

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 17, 1910.

Much has been said and written in the past few weeks about the policies of the two contending parties in this county. I am, perhaps, the oldest man in the county, and have always been a Republican, never having voted any other ticket since I became of age; but I want to say that at the November election I am going to break my lifelong practice and vote the Democratic ticket. I do this not because I repudiate Republicanism, but because I do repudiate the manner in which our candidates were nominated and the system which has been practiced by some of our leading men. They seem to think that no one except themselves have a right to express a choice, and they dictate our party candidates without regard to fitness for office or qualification. I sincerely believe that the best interests of the Republican party will be subserved if our people vote the Democratic ticket this year and by their votes assist in destroying the ring rule in this county. When men become bigger and greater and wiser than the party which nominates them I think it is time to tell them to step down and out, and for one I am going to use my influence in that direction. When we have ridden the party of these masters, then I believe we can again go before the people with a new set of candidates and ask their support with the assurance that their administration will be for the good of all the people rather than for a favored few.

History of Red Cross Seal.

"Charity stamps," first used in Boston in 1863 for the soldiers' relief funds during the Civil war, were the original forerunners of the Red Cross Christmas seal, which will be used this year to bring happiness and cheer to millions. The Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis society in 1907 for the first time in America made use of a stamp for the purpose of getting revenue to fight consumption. In a hastily organized campaign of only three weeks they realized $3,000. The next year, 1908, the American Red Cross conducted the first national tuberculosis stamp campaign. From this sale $135,000 was realized for the anti-tuberculosis movement. In 1909, under many adverse conditions, $250,000 was realized from these stamps. This year the slogan of the tuberculosis fighters and the Red Cross is "A Million for Tuberculosis From Red Cross Seals in 1910."

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

ELECTION NOTICE.

The State of Alabama—Chilton County.

I, John S. Catts, Sheriff of Chilton county, Alabama, in conformity with Section 357, page 329, of the Political Code of Alabama (1907), hereby give notice that a general election of the qualified voters of Chilton county, Alabama, will be held in the several precincts of said county on Tuesday, the 8th day of November, 1910, for the election of a Governor of Alabama, a Lieutenant-Governor, an Attorney-General, a State Auditor, a State Superintendent of Education, a Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, two Associate Railroad Commissioners, a Chief Justice and three Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of Alabama; one Representative in the Sixty-second Congress of the United States from the Fourth Congressional District of Alabama, a Supernumerary Judge, a Chancellor for the Northeastern Chancery Division, a Judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit Court of Alabama, a Solicitor of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit Court of Alabama, a Senator in the Legislature of Alabama from the Fifteenth Senatorial District of the State of Alabama, a Representative in the Legislature of Alabama from the County of Chilton, a Sheriff for Chilton county, Alabama; a Judge of the Probate Court of Chilton county, Alabama; a Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, Alabama; a County Commissioner from the First District of Chilton county, Alabama; a County Commissioner from the Second District of Chilton county, Alabama.

Dated this, the 6th day of October, 1910. JOHN S. CATTS, 5t Sheriff Chilton County, Ala.

NOTICE.

October 4, 1910.

I have compared the poll list with the list of registered voters as best I could, but I am sure that there are some names that ought to be on the list that are not on it. Hence I make this statement, hoping to get those who are qualified on the list; all who have registered and have paid poll tax in some other beat; all who have paid their poll tax, using sometimes their given name, and sometimes their initials.

In fact, if there is any difference in any of your poll tax receipts, if you will write me or come to my office, I will take pleasure in getting your name on the list if you are entitled to be on it.

If you have paid a poll tax in any other county, the law requires you to get a certificate from the judge of probate in that county and file with the judge of probate here, in order to get on the poll list.

However, if you are not on the poll list, and are challenged on the day of election, as the law requires, you can take the affidavit and vote.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
4t Judge of Probate.

A License for Liquors.

"Come," said the hostess, "don't be bashful, Mr. Giles"—he was just Giles on ordinary occasions—"you've a right to the place of honor, you know."

Giles deliberated a moment, then spoke.

"Thank you kindly, Mrs. Hodge," he said, "but if it's all the same to you, I'd rather sit opposite this pudden'!"

Orders of Steel Trust.

New York.—Unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation for the month ending September 30 total 3,158,106 tons, compared with 3,537,128 tons for the month ending August 31. The figures are just announced. The low record for unfilled orders was 3,027,436 tons, on September 30, 1904.

CENTER OF POPULATION.

In the predictions as to the showing which the census figures would make there was one virtually agreed upon—that the center of population would be shifted some distance westward from its location in 1890, which was six miles southeast of Columbus, Ind., says Toledo Blade. But this prediction was one of the kind which goes wrong. The census people have tentatively announced that the mark will have to be moved but slightly. The west has flourished tremendously in ten years. It has gained not only new railroads, but the old railroads have been renewed. Irrigation has caused new lands to be cultivated and new cities and towns to be builded. Such cities as Seattle have profited in wealth and population by the opening of new territory, the development of new resources, the filling in of the once deserted spaces between town and town. But in these same ten years an immense immigration has been distributing itself in the eastern cities—among the coal mines and steel plants of Pennsylvania, in the industrial districts of Lake Erie. It has offset the settlement of the far west.

Enforcing health regulations against ignorance and prejudice frequently is accompanied by difficulties. Cholera prevails in parts of Italy, and the officials have taken wise precautions against the spread of the disease. And one result has been a riot, accompanied by the wrecking of the health office in the town of Barletta. Of course the rioters are taking the precise course that opens the way for invasion by the deadly ailment. This is an age of enlightenment, but there are regions where there has been little advancement in ideas since the time when plagues swept away victims by wholesale because there was not sufficient knowledge to ward off the danger.

Those who have been able to hold back their vacations until now are to be congratulated. October is one of the finest months of the year for vacations, as any one who has been fortunate enough to have two weeks free at this time will tell you. The country lies before you. There is no better exercise than walking. Nature, in the full beauty of her late summer foliage, is at her best, and the crisp air of the approaching fall is noticeable mornings. Soon it will be on tap all day. Why not keep up your open-air vacation habits all winter?

The United States government has ordered another large installment of the rifle "silencers," by which the noise of firing is done away with. Experiments are also under way with similar silencers for cannon. It may yet come to pass that the noise of battle will consist mainly of the "shouting and the tumult" that were in order before the days of gunpowder.

IT CURES PILES.

It works gently but powerfully. Many relieved cases on record. Here is a desperate one quickly cured.

Mr. J. Cottle, Chinquapin, N.C., writes:—

"Mexican Mustang Liniment completely cured me of piles in its worst form. I had been a sufferer for thirteen years. It is by far the best remedy I have ever tried; it acts like magic. All that is necessary is to anoint the affected parts night and morning until a cure is effected. I am free to say that it ought to be called "A Sure Pile Remedy," for such it certainly is. I am so grateful for the great good it has done me and I earnestly recommend it to others."

Dynamiter, Himself a Married Man, Knew What Awaited Forgetful Husband.

The business man was sitting in his office, thinking of starting for home, when a suspicious looking person came in with a leather bag in his hand.

"If you don't give me $25," said the visitor, coming at once to the point, "I will drop this on the floor."

The business man was cool. "What is in it?" he asked.

"Dynamite," was the brief reply.

"What will it do if you drop it?"

"Blow you up."

"Drop it!" was the instant command. "My wife told me when I left home this morning to be sure and send up a bag of flour, and I forgot it. I guess it will take just about as much dynamite as you have there to prepare me for the blowing up I'll get when she sees me!"

He threw himself back in his chair and waited for the explosion, but it did not come.

"I'm a married man myself," said the dynamiter, and quietly slipped out.—Illustrated Bits.

Popularity of Thais.

"Every other young actress is calling herself Thais," said Henry E. Dixey at a dinner at Mauquin's. "Thais McGinnis, Thais Endicott, Thais Schmidt—the thing is universal.

"Universal and ridiculous; for they who have read Anatole France's story of 'Thais' know that she was a very naughty little girl, indeed. I am quite sure that no real reader of 'Thais' would ever, under any circumstances, consent to be called such a name.

"It makes me think of a man who, taking his infant daughter to be baptized, told the clergyman to call her Venus.

"'But I refuse to call her Venus,' said the clergyman, indignantly. 'Venus is the name of a pagan goddess.'

"'Well, how about your own girl, Diana?' said the man."

Like the Other Kind.

It was in a "down east" village that the young man met his sweetheart, a charming country beauty. When he returned to the city he sent her a jar of cold cream to keep her cheeks as fresh as the budding rose.

On his next visit he asked her how she liked his little gift.

"The taste was very nice," she said, with a rather sickly smile, "but I think that I like the other kind of cream best, dear."—Lippincott's.

COFFEE WAS IT.

People Slowly Learn the Facts.

"All my life I have been such a slave to coffee that the very aroma of it was enough to set my nerves quivering. I kept gradually losing my health but I used to say 'Nonsense, it don't hurt me.'

"Slowly I was forced to admit the truth and the final result was that my whole nervous force was shattered.

"My heart became weak and uncertain in its action and that frightened me. Finally my physician told me, about a year ago, that I must stop drinking coffee or I could never expect to be well again.

"I was in despair, for the very thought of the medicines I had tried so many times nauseated me. I thought of Postum but could hardly bring myself to give up the coffee.

"Finally I concluded that I owed it to myself to give Postum a trial. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions, and what a delicious, nourishing, rich drink it was! Do you know I found it very easy to shift from coffee to Postum and not mind the change at all?

"Almost immediately after I made the change I found myself better, and as the days went by I kept on improving. My nerves grew sound and steady, I slept well and felt strong and well-balanced all the time.

"Now I am completely cured, with the old nervousness and sickness all gone. In every way I am well once more."

It pays to give up the drink that gets all gone into Postum, for health is the greatest fortune and few have learned the easy way. There's a reason.

CHOLERA HELD IN CHECK BY UNITED STATES.

Washington.—With the knowledge that for the past month cholera cases have been developing in Russia at a rate exceeding 5,000 a day, the public health and marine hospital service is exerting itself to the utmost to prevent the introduction of the disease into this country. While not as yet assured of success, the service is hopeful. "The situation is not so threatening as in 1893, when we prevented the appearance of the epidemic in this country," said Dr. Walter Wyman, surgeon-general of the service, with cautious optimism. Dr. Wyman said that in Russia between June 25 and October 5 there had been 332,881 cases and 153,581 deaths, and that the disease is distributed generally throughout the empire. That it has been latterly on the increase is shown, he said, by the fact of this number, 150,289 cases having developed between September 9 and October 7. The percentage of mortality is normally more than 50.

FUNERAL OF DOLLIVER TO BE HELD ON THURSDAY.

Fort Dodge, Ia.—Funeral services for Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver will be held on Thursday at 2 o'clock. The suddenness of Mr. Dolliver's death from heart disease, while a physician was listening to the irregular beats of the organ with a stethoscope, took every one so much by surprise that some of the funeral arrangements are only tentative. According to present plans, the obsequies will be in charge of the Rev. W. H. Spence, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church at Fort Dodge. Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of Pennsylvania; Dr. Frank Gunsaulus, of Chicago; Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, of New York city, and Governor B. F. Carroll, of Iowa, have been invited to make funeral orations for the senior senator of Iowa.

WOMAN HAD TOO MANY HUSBANDS.

Chicago.—Mrs. Alice Goodwin, said by the Chicago police to have eight husbands, was arrested at Medford, Okla. She will be returned to Chicago to face trial on a charge of bigamy, made by J. F. Young, one of her husbands.

Police Sergeant Jacob Kueblock, who made an investigation of Mrs. Goodwin's career, declares that he has discovered the names of four men whom he says are married to Mrs. Goodwin. Their names are as follows: J. E. Kleck, Dayton, O.; J. W. Graham, To-Springs, Kan., and James F. Young, Chicago.

In addition to these, Sergeant Kueblock says he has found evidence of three or four other alleged bigamous marriages in which Mrs. Goodwin is charged with having been a principal in the last four years.

Young says he met Mrs. Goodwin at Toledo last spring while returning to Chicago from New York.

He married her at Aurora, Ill., in June. She left Chicago late in August to visit friends at Afton, Iowa. Young says she married Hoskins at Wellington, Kan., shortly after this date. Detectives followed Mrs. Goodwin from Wellington to Conway Springs, Kan., thence to Blackwell and Medford, Okla.

NEW ORLEANS LEADS IN THE DEATH RATE.

Washington, D. C.—With 11.4 deaths of every 1,000 inhabitants, St. Paul in 1909 led the cities of the 100,000 in point of low rate of mortality; Cleveland had the second lowest rate, with 12.8, and Columbus, O., the third, with 13.4, according to Dr. C. L. Wilbur, chief statistician of the United States census bureau, in a statement submitted to Census Director Durand. The highest death rate in 1909 was reached by New Orleans, with 20.2 per 1,000.

CROP CONDITIONS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Washington, D. C.—The corn crop was 80.3 per cent of a normal on October 1, or at time of harvest, as compared with 73.8 a year ago, and 78.4 the ten-year average, according to the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture.

The production of barley for 1910 was 158,138,000 bushels, compared with 170,284,000 in 1909, the yield per acre being 24.4, compared with 24.3 in 1909 and 25.7 the ten-year average; the quality was 88.1 per cent, compared with 86.0 the ten year average.

Orders of Steel Trust.

New York.—Unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation for the month ending September 30 total 3,158,106 tons, compared with 3,537,128 tons for the month ending August 31. The figures are just announced. The low record for unfilled orders was 3,027,436 tons, on September 30, 1904.

Want Battleships on Pacific Coast.

Sacramento, Cal.—By resolutions introduced in both houses of the legislature, Governor Gillett is asked to call a Pacific coast congress for the purpose of agitating for a permanent battleship fleet on the Pacific coast. Senator Wright of San Diego, introduced the resolutions in the senate.

One of the finest bodies of land in Chilton county. Two hundred acres. Two miles west of Clanton on the Clanton and Thorsby road. One hundred and sixty acres cleared land—the balance well stocked, with firewood. Four good tenement houses in thorough repair. There is no place in the entire county so well watered as is this place. An ideal home for a thrifty farmer who wants to become rich. Fine pasturage. Will sell acreage to suit purchasers in tracts of not less than forty acres. This land must be sold. Such an opportunity will not again be presented to you. You'd better snap at this chance. For terms and further particulars call upon T. C. MARCUS.

Dallas or Tuscaloosa—which?

"I am the grandson of a Union man, and I glory in it!" Piff!

Give you 25 cents to spell jury—"petit jury"—and tell the meaning.

The newspaper near the railroad is very well, thank you. How is Howle?

Socialism is bad enough, but anarchy—that's the limit!

"Hasn't mentioned victory since September." No need to mention it since then—it has been assured since that time. Why mention it?

Didn't he shake his finger in your face and in the face of some old minister of the gospel last October? Somebody said he did!

And he also said: "If the negro can outstrip the white man, I for one say let him do it. Encourage him!" That's speaking some little bit. Shades of Alpheus Baker!

"Personally Wood and I are friendly." "He talks like a nigger, and whether he smells like a nigger I can't say." Poor friendship, that! Away with such hypocritical professions!

"With all the Democrats have said, they have never attacked my official character!" No, they didn't have to; his own party associates did that.

Wonder why that letter from Charles appeared? We had never read anything in the local papers about the matter. Why does he wish to bring it in? Perhaps it is a case like that referred to in Proverbs 30: 10—perhaps not.

"We are not required to run a kindergarten law school for your benefit." Forgot more law, Judge, than you and the party who wrote the letter for you ever knew. At least we know how to spell jury—petit jury—and you don't. You ought to have learned that word.

"Wood is the largest load I have had to carry recently." Yes, since the days when Mangum combed your face, washed your hair and made you take to the tall timber. You sure admitted the truth when you said "recently."

But, speaking of loads, Judge, how has Wood been a load to you? Tell us, won't you?

When we came here as a preacher you never met the minister; when we held quarterly conference, you never attended. Whn we preached, you went to some singing. Certainly, from a preacher's point of view, he was not much of a burden. You did pay quite liberally—yes, in that respect you were generous; but if you begradge what you paid you can get it back on a moment's notice. You did invite him to your table and you treated him as a gentleman and gave him a fine dinner. Was that a burden?

Then when the November election came along you asked him to start a paper, and he did so. Was that a burden?

You furnished him with twenty dollars to go to Birmingham and get the paper started. He paid that back. Was that a burden?

You paid for several hundred extra copies of that paper to go out in the county. Was that a burden? If so, it was a self-imposed burden.

We are not ungrateful, Judge Reynolds, for your acts of kindness; we appreciate the friendship of all men, and value the friendship of some men highly, but we would not give the thrip of a finger for the friendship which cannot stand in storm as well as in fair weather.

Burden? How has he been a burden?

Some months ago the editor of The Press came to Clanton with a view to establishing a newspaper. We went to the office of the Banner and made him a proposition to buy him out. The matter was taken under advisement, and an answer was to be given within a specified time.

During that time a certain gentleman approached another certain gentleman and said, "Look here! that fellow is trying to purchase the Banner, and it has occurred to me that it would be a good thing for us to own that paper. I have talked with several of my friends about it, and they have all agreed that Wood ought not to have that paper. He is a strong writer, and he shells the corn down in great shape. We cannot afford to let him get hold of that paper. We have about decided that if you will take the editorship of the paper we will buy it from the present owner and put you at its head. This will keep Wood out, and we can have things our own way. Guess who that was? Give you two guesses, provided you don't guess the same man both times.

Well, the other gentleman remarked: "I cannot edit the paper for you. I am sorry to tell you so, but I would not undertake the task."

"Why not?" was the natural question from the first gentleman.

"Well, because if I should undertake to edit the paper I would have to submit to your dictation; I would have to write what you suggested, whether it suited me or not; I would have to advocate every measure you want to put into operation; I would have to espouse the cause of every candidate you wished to be nominated or elected, whether they were my choice or not, and I cannot do so."

That was the reply, and the matter dropped there.

The Banner man did not sell to this editor. He run along with his little excuse for several months, first on one side and then on the other—first here and then there. After a while the thing began to warm up a little, and over went the Banner. How much did it cost? We don't know; bless your soul, we have no idea! We know what we offered, but we don't know anything further than that. It may have cost a "right smart," and it may have cost just a little bit—scarcely anything, if at all.

Now that the Banner has come out openly for the Republican ticket, it would be becoming of it to omit the Democratic ticket. At least the county ticket. And we are sure that Col. O'Neal and the balance of the State ticket do not want their names tacked along with the Republican county ticket. This thing of picking candidates regardless of party and associating them together is mongrel, to say the least. Put the whole Republican ticket in your columns, Mr. Banner. O'Neal and Seed and Blackmon want none of your advertising. But which will you put in—Marse Jody Thompson or Marse Charlie Scott?

In his speech at the court house last Saturday Judge Reynolds said: "The Democrats have not attacked my official character," meaning to imply thereby, we suppose, that it was above attack.

Well, we have never seen any man's official character attacked if his was not—and, strange to say, it was attacked by his own party associates. If our recollection serves us correctly, there were several hundred "attacks" made upon his official character. They were made by the "skunks and traitors," however, and perhaps he did not count that.

We are printing in another column the list of premiums given out by the Fair Association. Read them and see how profitable it is to make a display of your pretty and your useful things.

Hon. J. Thomas Heflin failed to put in an appearance in Clanton last Wednesday, as per announcement, but his place was ably taken by Hon. Hugh Dent, congressman from the Second district. Mr. Dent is a graceful and forceful speaker, and he entertained the assembled crowd with flashes of wisdom, sentences of beauty and thoughts of great depth. All enjoyed the magnificent speech of Congressman Dent, and went away satisfied that the principles which he represents must triumph.

BELABORED THOMPSON.

Progressive Republicans Hold a Rally at Anniston.

Anniston, Ala., Oct. 12.—The Progressive faction of the Republican party in Alabama had a rally at the Calhoun county court house in this city this afternoon.

A feature of the evening was the declaration by J. C. Manning, who claimed that Washington and Thompson had undergone advice he had given when summoned to Washington by ex-President Roosevelt in regard to conditions in the South, that any man who votes for Joe Thompson for governor of Alabama will indirectly vote to perpetuate the power of Booker T. Washington as a political factor in the South. Thompson was belabored by the speaker for the alleged employment of A. N. Johnson, Washington's nephew, as private secretary.

WELL! WELL! WELL!

Mr. J. Thomas Heflin, who spoke here yesterday, made a speech in Tuskegee several days ago, from which we make a few extracts. Tuskegee, be it remembered, is the home of Booker T. Washington, and was the home of Joe Thompson up to the time he became a public official, which required his residence elsewhere:

Tuskegee, October 11.—Congressman J. Thomas Heflin spoke to a large crowd at the court house here yesterday. He said in part:

"We all know that the Democratic nominee for governor will be elected by a large majority, and that neither of the two candidates of the Republican party has the slightest hope of getting elected. The real contest between these two Republicans is to determine which one of them can make the best showing at the polls, and the one that polls the most votes will be hailed at the Republican pig pen of patronage as the chief dispenser of truck for this State. Scott has more Republicans from principle back of him, but Thompson enjoys the close friendship of Booker Washington, and through Thompson Booker Washington cntrols Republican politics in this State."

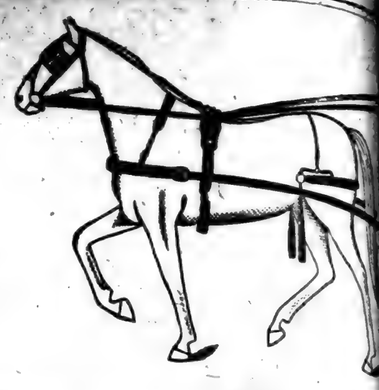
We are printing several pretty strong letters this week. They were all unsolicited by this paper, but come as the expressions of men who seem to have strong convictions on the questions about which they write. The letter of Mr. Retherford is particularly strong in its denunciation of certain practices, and will, no doubt, be received with applause by some and with condemnation by others; but, be that as it may, the practices mentioned in his letter, if they are indulged in, are reprehensible in the extreme.

The letter of Mr. John Baker, Sr., is admirably written, and will be received with some degree of astonishment by his many friends. This venerable old gentleman is the oldest Republican voter in the county, and perhaps in the entire state. He has been in the party from the beginning; has seen its rise, its victories and its defeats. He has voted the ticket in season and out of season. He has stuck to the party through many storms, under many adversities. He knows what Republicanism is, and what it is not. In his letter he still clings to his party, yet he states emphatically that he cannot vote the so-called Republican ticket in this county, and he gives his reasons—good reasons for his course.

Mr. Baker has had his eyes opened to the evil practices indulged in by those in party authority, and he refuses longer to be led by them or to vote for them.

Mr. Baker has a large personal following in this county, and his letter will doubtless cause many to pause before the espouse the side of bossism and ring rule.

Will the Republican papers of the county reproduce his letter?



Mr. Baker is a lifelong Republican; his words are entitled to consideration; his voice has led the Republicans in many hard fought battles. Will they listen to that voice again? We believe they will.

shall, of Selma, was in our town last

Let the two Republican papers reproduce the letter of Uncle John Baker. Let them—at least let the Banner—show that its columns are open to both sides. It made that statement several weeks ago. Let it publish the letter of the oldest Republican in the State. We dare it to do it—the Boss won't let you!

The campaign of the Democrats seems to be working along smoothly now, and everything points more directly to victory than it did even in September.

MAPLESVILLE, ROUTE TWO.

Mr. Editor:

Several days ago I went to Pletcher's in the hope of ascertaining something about the time when the collector and assessor would be at that point for the collection and assessment of taxes. I could gain no information relative to the matter. Later I met the tax collector and asked when he was to be at that point, and why notice of his appointments had not been published. He informed me that the notice of appointments had been published in the Union.

Now, I submit as a fair proposition that though the law may not require the collector or assessor to publish the list of appointments in more than one paper, yet as a matter of equal justice to all the people it ought to be published in one paper of each political party. I have been subscribing to one of the county papers for many years, and searched the columns of that paper for the announcement, but failed to find it.

I understand that The Press published the notice free of charge in order that its readers might be informed, but as I was not fortunate enough to see a copy of that paper, and do not subscribe to the Republican paper—I mean the one that has always been Republican—I have been left out in the matter of tax paying and assessing. I will either have to pay a collector's and an assessor's fee—though I went some distance to pay and to assess—or else I will have to make a special trip to Clanton in order to save those fees. I presume that there are others in the same condition. I am not charging any one with dereliction of duty; but even though the law requires the publication in but one paper, it would seem nothing but fair that it should be inserted in at least one paper of each political party so that readers of their own party papers might be served with notice. Respectfully,

J. M. WALKER.

The editor of The Press prints the above letter not as a criticism of any officer. Mr. Pounds brought the list of rounds to us, and we printed it as a matter of news. Unfortunately Mr. Walker did not get The Press. However, where the two parties are so equally divided it would seem that Mr. Walker's suggestion has some weight. Let all, regardless of party, have notice without having to go to the expense of subscribing for a paper contrary to his political views. Should this be required of him, then there is nothing saved to the farmer, since the amount paid out for an undesirable paper would be equal to the amount of assessor's and collector's fees.

MAPLESVILLE.

The sound of the hammer, saw and trowel is still heard in our town.

Business seems to be improving right along. The farmers are getting fair prices for their cotton, and do not mind spending some of it.

There was quite a crowd here on Monday last to see Weedon Bros.' show. It seems to be after the order of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show, but on a much smaller scale.

Miss Eloise Lawrence, accompanied by her grandfather, Mr. F. K. Mar- Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Jones, of Clanton, were here one day this week.

Prof. and Mrs. Hicks went up to Birmingham on a visit last Friday.

There is some talk of having our town incorporated immediately. This is badly needed, and we think the movement will be successful.

A petition was being circulated last week asking the governor to appoint Mr. Ralph Calloway as a justice of the peace.

Mr. B. D. Crum is visiting the east in the interest of the T. T. L. Co.

Mr. W. J. Huff went up to Birmingham last week to take in the fair.

The postoffice has been moved into the new brick building erected for that special purpose, which is greatly appreciated by our people.

We understand that a bank is to be established here right away. The T. T. L. Company is back of it, and that means business.

There are ten new dwelling houses just completed or in the course of erection here, also four new brick business houses, and the new bank building will make the fifth. The next thing will be a newspaper and a lawyer.

We are so rushed these days that we cannot write regularly, so we trust you will let all of this letter through. J. W. M.

EVERGREEN.

The people here are all suffering more or less from colds and other ailments, brought on, doubtless, by the dry weather. This will account somewhat for the scarcity of news.

The Invincible Literary Society met last Saturday evening in regular session. There were some of the speakers absent on account of bad weather; nevertheless, we had a good meeting. We are to meet again October 22 at 7:30 o'clock. Everybody is invited to be present.

The political pot is at scalding temperature just now. If the Democrats do not win in the November election, it will not be because they have failed to discuss politics in this section.

Our regular day school is to open October 31. Every pupil who intends to attend school at all this year should make it a point to be present the first day if they hope to make any progress. A teacher cannot do effective work with scholars who come in at irregular periods.

Rev. J. M. McCord filled the pulpit at Evergreen last Saturday night, preaching a fine sermon in a most impressive manner.

Dear Editor:

Please allow me a small space in your paper this week to say a few words.

Health of this community is very good. The people seem to be almost done gathering their crops.

Mr. J. D. Culp has bought a pair of young mules and a wagon. I suppose he is fixing to farm right next year.

We had a good meeting at this place last Sunday. Rev. R. J. Mills preached a good sermon. He told us things that would do us all good if we would only heed them.

As there was a little mistake about the singing, I shall correct it, so the readers of this paper will have no misunderstanding about it. The singing at this place is going to be next Sunday evening at 1:30 o'clock, which is the 23d of October. Wishing to see a large crowd out to enjoy the music, which will be fine, I shall not detain your readers longer.

NEWSPAPERS AID THE FARMERS GREATLY.

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 11.—Advices to Southern farmers to advertise their farm products in newspapers was given here today at the state fair in an address by John M. Parker, of New Orleans, president of the Southern Commercial Congress.

"The Northern and Western farmer is up-to-date," said Mr. Parker. "He advertises what he has to sell, and pays the expense of that advertisement, and derives the highest price for his products."

Newspapers, Mr. Parker said, have led in the diversified farming movement, have helped bring settlers into the South and have been of great practical benefit to Southern agriculture, but nevertheless their advertisements are totally disproportionate with those of Northern papers. The loss to the farmers in failing to advertise, Mr. Parker thought, was even more serious than the loss to the papers.

The above clipping from the telegraphic dispatches recently received shows what a practical farmer of the progressive type thinks of newspapers and their assistance to the men who make the bread for the country. What he says of one section is equally true of all the other sections. Read what Mr. Parker has to say, and act upon his advice.

FRED KAUFFMANN

MADE TO MEASURE GARMENTS

ARE THE MOST PERFECT UNDER THE SUN

Several million people know the fine made-to-measure clothing for men made by Fred Kauffmann, Chicago.

This tailoring organization has built up the greatest made-to-measure business of the country, running into so many million dollars that you'd use up thumbs and fingers tallying it off.

This vast business has been won—and is being held—by carefulness.

Their designers get larger salaries than the members of Taft's Cabinet; their buyers of cloth are national experts; their standard for cloth, at our suggestion, is absolutely all-wool.

Fred Kauffmann secured us as representatives with the determination of making Kauffmann tailoring as standard in this vicinity as are Elgin or Waltham watches.

Tailoring that is guaranteed by seven simple words, namely: YOUR MONEY BACK UNLESS WE PLEASE YOU. This guarantee is backed by the mill, the maker and us.

Kauffmann has sent us a message: "We'd like to spend some money to further entrench our tailoring. What would you suggest?"

Our answer was: "Spend it by giving us a reduction that will capture the town."

The best way to win trade for Fred Kauffmann tailoring is to get it on men's backs. It will win their permanent friendship, and so we will take your measurement for made-to-your-personal-order garments at prices which have never before been quoted for Fred Kauffmann tailoring, namely:

GRAND PRIZE CONTEST

FOR CLANTON PRESS SUBSCRIBERS

Early subscriptions mean early nominations; early nominations mean much to Contestants.

Get into the running early and stay late, thereby taking the best prize ever offered to the people of Chilton County.

The Piano belongs to you if you hustle for it; put your friends to work and rejoice in the possession of a handsome mahogany finish Grand UprightPiano.

Read the plan carefully and get actively into the game; you can win if you try and it's worth the trying.

THE PLAN: READ IT CAREFULLY

The Clanton Press has purchased and now has on display at the Upchurch Drug Company's Store, a handsome Mahogany Finish Grand Upright Piano, warranted by the manufacturers for ten full years.

Call at the Upchurch Drug Company's place and examine its beautiful finish and test its perfect tone and touch—convince yourself.

This handsome instrument is to be given away absolutely free of all cost to contestants, and will be a means of bringing joy into some home in Chilton County—that home may be yours.

With each cash subscription of one dollar to the Clanton Press—the new paper published at Clanton—will be given a ticket entitling the holder to five hundreds votes in the Grand Piano Contest.

The person receiving the largest number of votes at the end of the contest will receive this handsome instrument absolutely FREE.

In addition to the Grand First Prize, we have in our possession a receipt from the manufacturers for One Hundred and Fifty Dollars as part payment on another handsome Piano, which will be offered as a second prize in the contest. This prize goes to the person receiving the next highest vote. This prize represents One Hundred and Fifty Dollars in cash and will be accepted as such payment by the manufacturers.

No citizen of Chilton County, of good character, is debarred from the contest. Every one is invited to participate and will be given every assistance and all information possible to enable them to become the owner of this elegantly finished Piano and receipt for partial payment on another fine Piano.

READ THE PLAN CAREFULLY AND START EARLY; EACH DAY MEANS MUCH IN THE RUNNING.

In addition to the five hundred votes for cash subscriptions to the Clanton Press, the proprietors of the paper will give five votes in the contest for each one cent of cash advertising or cash job work that is brought to the office of the Clanton Press.

These votes are to be cast at the pleasure of the holder for the person nominated by the holder of the ticket.

Each ticket is plainly printed and contains a space for the name of the person for whom you wish to vote to be written thereon.

In case of a tie between contestants receiving the highest and next highest votes the prizes, or an amount equal to the value of the prizes, will be equally divided between them.

In addition to the votes given out by the Clanton Press we have arranged with several merchants to handle these Contest Tickets so that you may receive the benefit of your cash trade with them.

Below will be found the names of the merchants who will distribute Contest Tickets. With each one cent of cash trade done with them you are entitled to receive a ticket for one vote in the contest. Remember, one vote for each one cent of cash trade. If you spend one dollar in cash with them you are entitled to one hundred votes. If you spend ten dollars you are entitled to one thousand votes and so on. To obtain these tickets you will have to trade in Cash as no tickets will be given out for credit purchases. Each ticket will denote the number of votes to which you are entitled. For the convenience of the people two boxes will be used, one will be kept at the Upchurch Drug Company and the other at the office of The Clanton Press. Write on the ticket the name of the party for whom you wish to vote and deposit it in one of these boxes.

From time to time the names of the contestants and the number of votes each has received will be announced in the columns of the Press. Keep your eye on these announcements so that you can put your "best girl"—be she wife, sweetheart or daughter—up at the top of the column.

When you trade with merchants handling the contest ticket be sure to ask for them; you are entitled to them and they will gladly give them to you.

Bear in mind that you are entitled to five hundred votes for each Cash Subscription to The Clanton Press and to five votes for each one cent of Cash Advertising or Job Work done with The Clanton Press and to one vote for each one cent of Cash Trade with the following merchants:

Upchurch Drug Company, Drugs, Seeds, Toilet Articles, Jewelry, Soda Water

Miss Minnie Muse, Millinery, Laces, Linens, Ladies' Furnishings.

S. E. Davis, Clanton, Fresh Grocer ies, Country Produce.

J. J. Stanley, Thorsby, General Merchandise, Farmers Supplies.

J. E. Evans, Clanton, Retail Groceries and Fancy Articles, Country Produce.

W. D. Spigener, Clothing, Ladies' Furnishings, Mattings, Dry Goods, Notions.

Gamble Hardware Company, Clanton, Ala., Hardware, Farm Implements, Building Material.

Clanton Furniture Company, Furniture, Crockery, Tinware, House Furnishings.

J. B. Hicks, Clothing, Shoes, Dress Goods, Hats, Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Julius Palmer, Steam and Dry Cleaning and Pressing.

Popwell's Meat Market, Fresh Meats, Fish Vegetables, Country Produce.

Harris Brothers, of Mountain Creek, General Merchandise, Clothing, Shoes, Hats, Hardware, Provisions

Burns Marsh, Maplesville, Jeweler and WATCH REPAIRER.

Call for Tickets when trading with them and thereby increase your voting strength.

In addition to these votes The Clanton Press will print each week in each paper, a ticket entitling the holder to two votes in the contest. Cut these out carefully, write the name of your favorite in the proper place and deposit the vote in one of the boxes.

Enter early and vote often. You are entitled to vote as often as you please and can obtain as many votes as you wish.

If you do not fully understand the plan ask The Clanton Press and we will gladly furnish you all information and help you.

Its the chance of a life time. Get up a Club of friends to help you in the contest.

Remember that Cash subscriptions get you five hundred votes. Ask your friends to subscribe and give you the Votes. Hustle, hustle, hustle and you may wear diamonds. It's up to you. Will you work?

Contest Closes Monday, Noon, December 5th, 1910.

EGOTISM.

Who cares for your trifling loves, poet—
Who cares for your puny hates?
Who cares what you think, who waste so much ink
In impotent wrath at the Fates?
Who cares for your sadness of soul, poet?
Your chronic anguish of heart?
If your liver is wrong, keep it out of your song:
Bile's bile—it can never be art.

If you have any story to tell, poet—
A message of love, or of cheer;
If it's something worth while that will bring us a smile,
Or force out an honest tear—
Why, scribble with all your might, poet,
We'll read it, and laugh and cry;
But keep out of sight, if you can, when you write,
That wearying "I—I—I!"

If a painter should spend all his time, poet,
Depicting his own sad face;
Or a sculptor should cut never anything but
His own figure's doubtful grace:
You'd say it was hard to believe, poet,
That folly like that exists.
But what do you do that is different—you
Past Master of Egotists?

Easily Explained.

The smart angler from the city thought he would have some sport with the weather-beaten native by asking him a few nonsensical questions.

"And why is it that the fish bite better when it is raining?" queried the city man.

"That's easy to answer, sir," responded the old man, solemnly. "You see, when it is raining the trout stay under water because they are afraid to come to the surface and nibble the floating insects."

"And why are they afraid to come to the surface?"

"Why, they are afraid of getting wet, sir. Would you mind passing the tobacco?"

Describing the Barber.

Attles—What kind of a barber is that new man on the corner?

Callerson—Well, sir, if he shaves you, you won't know there's a razor passing over your face.

Attles—Is that so?

Callerson—Yes, sir; you'll think it's a guillotine.

Making the Best of It.

"Yes," said the lady caller, "my husband is a born diplomat, if I do say it myself."

"A born diplomat!" echoed the hostess.

"Yes," replied the l. c. "Or, in other words, when he can't have his own way he pretends that my way is his."

Sick Man's Choice.

"What I shall have to do with you," said the doctor, shaking his head, seriously, "is to put you on a soft diet."

"Say, doc," begged the patient, who had never been sick before, "if it's all the same to you I'd prefer to stay here on the old bed; it may take me longer to get well, but I'm a leetle shy about sleepin' on any of them new-fangled things."

Superstition.

Percy—Cawn't say, deah boy. She has a dozen othah—aw—suitors.

Jack—Being the unlucky thirteenth, you'll probably get her.

Artistic Temperament.

Suddenly the gifted cornet soloist stopped playing.

"Although I cannot see the person," he said, his features working convulsively, "I know that somebody in the audience is sucking a lemon!"

Might Be.

"It must be expensive to get up these moving pictures of warfare."

"Yes; actors and costumes cost a lot."

"Wouldn't it be cheaper to finance a South American revolution?"

"Good point in her favor."

GETTING EVEN WITH MAMMA

In This Case, Child's Punishment Certainly Failed to Have Salutary Effect.

A little girl had been so very naughty that her mother found it necessary to shut her up in a dark closet—in that family the direst punishment for the worst offense. For 15 minutes the door had been locked without a sound coming from behind it. Not a whimper, not a sniffle.

At last the stern but anxious parent unlocked the closet door and peered into the darkness. She could see nothing.

"What are you doing in there?" she cried.

And then a little voice piped from the blackness:

"I thpit on your new dress and I thpit on your new hat, and I'm waiting for more thpit to come to thpit on your new parasol!"

How Chronic Kidney Trouble Was Permanently Cured.

F. P. Semmel, Sr., 236 N. 6th St., Lehighton, Pa., says: "For over 15 years I suffered from kidney trouble. My kidneys were weak; the secretions contained sediment and passed with a smarting sensation. Sharp pains shot through my body and bent me almost double. I became so bad I could not drive to my work. After doctoring without benefit, I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and soon received relief. Continued use cured me. I believe Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life."

HIS HANDS CRACKED OPEN

"I am a man seventy years old. My hands were very sore and cracked open on the insides for over a year with large sores. They would crack open and bleed, itch, burn and ache so that I could not sleep and could do but little work. They were so bad that I could not dress myself in the morning. They would bleed and the blood dropped on the floor. I called on two doctors, but they did me no good. I could get nothing to do any good till I got the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. About a year ago my daughter got a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and in one week from the time I began to use them my hands were all healed up and they have not been a mite sore since. I would not be without the Cuticura Remedies.

"They also cured a bad sore on the hand of one of my neighbor's children, and they think very highly of the Cuticura Remedies. John W. Hasty, So. Effingham, N. H., Mar. 5, and Apr. 11, '09."

Slightly Mixed.

Two Englishmen were resting at the Red Horse inn at Stratford-on-Avon. One of them discovered a print picturing a low, tumbling building underneath which was printed: "The House in Which Shakespeare Was Born." Turning to his friend in mild surprise he pointed to the print. His friend exhibited equal surprise and called a waiter, who assured them of the accuracy of the inscription.

"'Pon my word," said the observing Englishman, shaking his head dubiously. "I thought he was born in a manger!"

BANKERS KNEW THEIR MAN

In His Customary Condition, and No Further Identification Was Necessary.

One day a big city bank received the following message from one of its country correspondents: "Pay $25 to John Smith, who will call today." The cashier's curiosity became suspicion when a cabman assisted into the bank a drunken "fare" who shouted that he was John Smith and wanted some money. Two clerks pushed, pulled and piloted the boisterous individual into a private room away from the sight and hearing of regular depositors. The cashier wired the country bank:

"Man claiming to be John Smith is here. Highly intoxicated. Shall we await identification?"

The answer read: "Identification complete. Pay the money."—Success Magazine.

May Sell 100,000,000 Red Cross Seals.

Twenty-five million Red Cross Christmas seals have been printed and are being distributed by the American Red Cross, and arrangements have been made to print 100,000,000 if necessary. It is expected that this number will be needed. While the sticker is perforated like those used last year, it is intended for use only as a seal on the back of letters. The seal is one inch square with the conventional Red Cross in the center and the words, "Merry Christmas, Happy New Year. American Red Cross" in a circle about it. The colors are red and green. The design is by Mrs. Guion Thompson, of Waterbury, Conn., who received $100 as a prize for her sketch.

He Knew.

A small boy brought up by a fire-eating father to hate anything connected with England or the English was consigned recently to eat dinner with the nurse while the family entertained a genuine English lord in the dining room. The grown-ups' meal had come to that "twenty minutes past" stage where conversation halts directly, when a childish treble fell upon the dumb-waiter shaft from the kitchen. This is what the astonished nobleman heard:

"Fe, fi, fo, fum,
"I smell the blood of an Englishmun."—Wasp.

Poor Prospects.

"Yes," said Miss Passay, "I found a very nice boarding house today, but the only room they had to offer me had a folding bed in it, and I detest those things."

"Of course," remarked Miss Pert, "one can never hope to find a man under a folding bed."—Catholic Standard and Times.

CONVINCING PROOF

OF THE VIRTUE OF

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

What is the use of procrastinating in the face of such evidence as the following letters represent? If you are a sick woman or know one who is, what sensible reason have you for not giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? For 30 years we have been publishing such testimonial letters as these—thousands of them—they are genuine and honest, too, every one of them.

Mrs. S. J. Barber says:

"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine in the world for women—and I feel it my duty to let others know the good it has done for me. Three years ago I had a tumor which the doctor said would have to be removed by an operation or I could not live more than a year, or two, at most. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, and took 14 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today the tumor is gone and I am a perfectly well woman. I hope my testimonial will be of benefit to others."—Mrs. S. J. Barber, Scott, N. Y.

Mrs. E. F. Hayes says:

"I was under the doctor's treatment for a fibroid tumor. I suffered with pain, soreness, bloating, and could not walk or stand on my feet any length of time. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice, followed her directions and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. To-day I am a well woman, the tumor was expelled and my whole system strengthened. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female troubles to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. E. F. Hayes, 1890 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Mrs. George May says:

"No one knows what I have suffered from female troubles, neuralgia pains, and backache. My doctor said he could not give me anything to cure it. Through the advice of a friend I began to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the pain soon disappeared. I continued its use and am now in perfect health. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a God-send to me as I believe I should have been in my grave if it had not been for Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. George May, 86 4th Ave., Paterson, N. J.

Mrs. W. K. Housh says:

"I have been completely cured of a severe female trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and want to recommend it to all suffering women."—Mrs. W. K. Housh, 7 Eastview Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, etc.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

The Clanton Millinery Company

Perhaps never before in the history of Clanton was a greater number of handsomely designed Hats, Turbans and other adronments for the Ladies put upon display than at this place.

It is so easy to fall in love at this season—says some one. This is especially true with reference to the new styles shown at the Clanton Millinery Company this year. It seems that nothing more beautiful could have been displayed than was the large and varied assortment of handsome Hats shown here. Every variety of trimmed and tailored Hat is to be found among the exhibition of styles and shapes shown at this modern emporium of fashion. Nothing nicer or more becoming was ever designed or originated. Here are the new shaped "Turtle Back," the "High Crowned" Hat, and others which Dame Fashion has decreed that the ultra fashionable shall wear this season.

Among their advanced models is an array of beautiful Hats for children and Bonnets for the wee ones; these are unusually tempting and are displayed with great taste. They will find ready sale because they combine the essential features of popular juvenile headwear; they are pretty, durable and inexpensive.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Georgia Teel returned Sunday afternoon from a visit of several days to her son, Joseph, in Birmingham.

Judge Reynolds paid a visit to Verbena last week.

Mrs. Belle George returned last Monday from an extended visit to Birmingham. While there she took in the State Fair.

We had a pleasant call Tuesday from Mr. J. M. Rasberry, who now resides in Arkansas, but who once lived here. He asked that The Press be sent to his address regularly.

Miss Aimee Dunn, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. S. J. Watts, returned to her home in Greenville last Saturday.

Mr. J. D. Sims, of Mountain Creek, was a pleasant caller at The Press offices Monday. The Squire speaks encouragingly of things political down his way.

The Press office was honored last Tuesday by a visit from Mr. A. Baker, one of Chilton's oldest citizens. He came in to look around the office and to pass a few moments with the editor. His visit was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Baker states that he has killed many turkeys and deer on the land now occupied by the town of Clanton. We found the old gentleman a most interesting talker and well posted upon the political issues of the day. He also told us that parties were now mining iron ore on his place near Verbena, and that they were securing the ore in paying quantities. The old gentleman looks venerable, and yet he carries his years well. We hope he will come in to see us again. The Press is going to his address, and we entertain the hope that he will enjoy reading it.

Messrs. Julian Latham, Grady Broadhead and John T. Morgan went up to Birmingham last week to pass judgment upon the State Fair.

Mrs. W. E. Brown is visiting the home of Mrs. Hannon.

Miss Katie Lawrence spent several days in Birmingham last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armstrong and little Mr. Stewart Armstrong spent several days of last week in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Pow, of Maylene, will spend several days this week with the family of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. VanDerveer, the parents of Mrs. Pow.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Baker visited Birmingham this week.

Mr. G. H. Denson, after a long siege of fever, has gone to Pelham to visit the home of his parents and to take a rest spell.

Mrs. B. F. Jones and mother, Mrs. Palmer, returned last Saturday from a short visit to friends and relatives at LeGrande. They were accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Sealye, who will teach near Clanton this year.

Misses Elna Sartor and Willie Jean Stewart spent the week end here last week, having come down from Birmingham.

Mr. T. G. Mackey was a visitor to Birmingham last Monday.

Mr. L. S. Hunter, of Wetumpka, was a visitor to Clanton last Sunday, spending the day with Mr. Buck Hart.

Rev. F. M. Woods returned Monday from an extended visit to Girard, Ala., and Columbus, Ga. He left Tuesday for points in Bibb county.

Mrs. L. H. Reynolds and children visited Birmingham last week, taking in the fair.

Mr. Claude Jones, an old Clanton resident, but now of Greenville, spent Sunday with relatives here. His friends will be pleased to know that he is succeeding admirably in Greenville.

Masons.

Clanton is nothing if not a town of Masons. Almost every business man in the town belongs to the order, some of them holding high degrees, while others have just entered upon the initiatory service and have a long way to travel before they reach the top.

The Commandery was established here last year with but a few members, and now that branch of the order has, doubtless, more members than any Commandery in any city in the South of an equal population.

Then, too, they boast of a large membership in the Shriner branch of the order, every member eligible being connected with that branch. The members of the Shriner division of the order will go down to Montgomery, where a great encampment of the lodge will be held, and quite a number of applicants initiated into the Shriner degree.

Among those who will attend from Clanton are: Dr. E. A. Matthews, Messrs. S. C. Matthews, J. E. Robinson, Sr., J. R. Mullins, W. I. Mullins, J. Watts Moore, E. E. Upchurch, Guy Higgins, I. N. Langston, J. B. Chrysell, H. T. Pipes, John W. Stanfield, Judge L. H. Reynolds, W. C. Edler, Dr. N. S. Johnson, Dr. E. G. Hyman, Dr. J. P. Hayes, Dr. V. J. Gragg, Messrs. W. H. Sartor, Jno. A. Thomas, J. H. Shepherd and Rev. F. Woods.

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.

In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.

In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.

In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.

We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.

But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.

The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.

Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.

Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.

They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries, Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

Howdy Do! How Are You?

The much talked-of season of hard time and business depression has failed to arrive; the prophecies of the chronic knocker are wanting in the fulfillment and the dire misfortunes predicted by the ever present calamity howler have died in the borning. Alabama, Chilton county and Clanton, instead of going to the bow-wows, as forecasted by would-be wiseacres, has gone steadily onward upon the road of material development that leads to certain success and abundant prosperity

We are enjoying the fruits of our labors as never before; the cry of poverty is hushed throughout this heaven blessed section; on every side is heard the tuneful tones of thrift and prosperity. The frugal farmer will not have to draw upon the store house of the West for his corn supply, for the harvest within our own fields is abundant in the extreme.

The cotton producer is satisfied with the results of his labors, and the shining coin which high prices for his staple enables him to secure and jingle in his jeans not only makes a gladsome sound to his ears, but fills his heart with joyful anticipations of a happy Christmas-tide. All things conspire to make his lot a pleasant one indeed.

The Chilton county farmer is fast assuming that place in the economic relations of life which his avocation predestined him to occupy—the front rank, a leader among the advance guard. Long faces have been succeeded by smiling countenances, and mortgaged homes and farms are soon to become happy firesides and productive fields of pleasure. Hard times have been vanquished and prosperity is victorious.

Contentment, peace and plenty are knocking at every door.

We are now entering upon an era of commercial development never heretofore anticipated; a season of rich rewards for honest toil is now dawning and will soon burst with noon-day splendor upon our people.

The farmers are happy, as they should be, for Mother Earth has yielded them rich trophies for their plucking; prices are soaring amid the radiant beauty of the stars; his products are in demand as never before.

Cotton is again King and Corn is the Prince Imperial.

What more could the planter desire to make his cup of gladness overflow?

Farmers of Chilton county, we greet you as the two-fold keepers and producers of our prosperity. You are they who have produced the wealth of our county, and upon your heads we pour our praises in unstinted measure. You have earned your reward and should enjoy the fruits of your labors.

The merchant who has bought wisely and well rejoices at your success.

The cotton buyer whose heart beats in unison with your own delights in the opportunity afforded him to give you good prices for your staple; he who would withhold from you the best and highest the market affords is neither a friend to the farmer nor a wise man of business.

We want you to succeed, because in your success we also shall share.

We have bought not stingily, but well; we have purchased in keeping with your position and your desires; you want the best, therefore we supplied ourselves with the best, that we might accommodate both your taste and your demands.

Desiring to have you make our place headquarters, we have arranged to pay the very top notch for every pound of the fleecy staple brought to our store.

We want to have a hand in your prosperity; we wish to be remembered in your rejoicing.

Come to us with your samples; we will top the market on every occasion; call upon us for your wants; our large and varied stock enables us to meet your every requirement, and at prices that will make you glad for the visit.

We hate the chronic croaker; we despise the knocked and the pessimist. The old world is bright with hope, buoyant with success, happy in plenteous abundance. We want you to know that we rejoice at your season of success; you deserve it, and we hope you will enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Come to see us; your happy faces make us glad indeed.

Come whether you want to buy or sell, both or either or neither. We will be glad to greet you.

We are going to set the gait this year, and those who would keep up with us must clip it off at a merry chase.

Cordially yours,

Editor Press:

Will you permit me to say a few words with reference to the now famous Porter letter, which seems to have scattered consternation in the Republican ranks?

In company with another reputable gentleman of the county, I went to the home of Mr. R. M. Porter and heard the other gentleman read to Mr. Porter the letter which appeared last week in your paper. Mr. Porter assented to every word of the letter, saying that it was just what he would have written himself if he had penned the letter personally. There was one expression which he said he would like to have changed a little. That was where he was made to say that he and his five sons would vote the Democratic ticket. He said he could not speak for his sons, as they were of age, but that he thought they would vote that way.

Since that letter appeared it seems that the chairman of the Republican committee has again gone to him and requested a written statement. It was represented to Mr. Porter that the letter appearing in The Press made him say that Mr. Middleton had attempted to buy his vote, and as this is a penal offense, it [illegible] to make the statement that he did not attempt the purchase.

"I do not wish to get any one into serious trouble."

Then, in compliance with Mr. Middleton's request, he said:

"You write that you did not attempt to buy my vote, but you did offer me five dollars to work for Reynolds. Write that, and say I am going to vote for Deason, and then write no more. That's all I want to say."

I will take an oath that Mr. Porter used these words to me on Tuesday, the 25th, after the visit of Mr. Middleton to Porter's house.

I understand that the gentleman who visited Mr. Porter for the purpose of securing a denial of The Press letter [illegible]

The above words in quotation were all that Mr. Porter authorized Mr. Middleton to use, and since finding out that the letter published in The Press does not state that he attempted to buy Mr. Porter's vote, Mr. Porter has written to the two Republican papers and to Mr. Middleton forbidding them, or either of them, using his name in any connection.

GENERAL NEWS.

An Open Letter From an Old Soldier.

Mountain Creek, Oct. 24, 1910.

Editor Press:

I have been informed by competent authority that a Mr. Calloway, from Coosa county, in his speech at Clanton on Saturday, the 15th ult., made the statement that 75 per cent. of the Confederate soldiers of this State are Republicans.

The young man has placed himself in a very unfortunate predicament. Either he is a fool to believe so manifest an untruth, or not believing it, desires to insult the intelligence or impose upon the ignorance of his hearers. Which hole is he in?

I have a large and intimate acquaintance with the veterans of this State, and think that there is certainly not more than 3 per cent. of them who are Republicans. Take the Soldiers' Home, for instance: Here we find out of 75 men only two Republicans. This gives two and two-thirds per cent. of the entire vote Republican. How should it be otherwise?

The Democratic party stands today for the same principles for which we fought and risked our lives and sacrificed our property—States' rights and home rule.

Young men frequently make the mistake of imitating the faults of distinguished men, rather than try to cultivate those traits in them which are commendable.

We counsel Mr. Calloway to trust no longer in imagination for his facts.

First in Fifty Years.

Fifty years is a long time between cotton seasons, and yet that is the way Mr. R. T. Gullahorn, from down about Cooper, states it has been with him. He is a good farmer, and plants quite a nice acreage, but he says that for fifty years he had left cotton out of the calculation and devoted his time to raising other crops and to making money in other ways. However, the prospects for a good price for cotton were too great for him to resist, so this year he put in a small patch and on last Saturday, for the first time in fifty years, he [illegible]

Had a Hot Time in the Old Town.

Last Thursday morning the vicinity of the depot presented a lively appearance. Some minutes after the regular southbound train had pulled out a special from Birmingham bearing the Shriners of that city came to a full stop to permit the local Shriners to board the train. There were perhaps a hundred Shriners from the Magic City, dressed in the gay uniform of that order, all bent upon a merry good time in the Capital City. As soon as the train came to a stop at the depot the band of the Birmingham lodge alighted, and to the tune of "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" they marched and counter-marched several times. Waiting for orders to board the train were twenty or more Clanton Shriners and four candidates for initiation into the order. These candidates were securely handcuffed together, and then, to make surety doubly sure, they were tied with ropes, and, under the careful guard of Mr. H. T. Pipes, boarded the train. The handcuffed individuals were Messrs. Mallie White, Mack Broadhead, Joe Hicks and Grady Reynolds. They submitted to the bracelets gracefully, and boarded the train with anticipations of much satisfaction. The crowd returned from Montgomery about 2 o'clock Friday morning, and the initiates report that the secrets made known to them by their introduction into the order were fully worth the price paid.

Any one who doubts this statement has but to say "Shriner" to Mack Broadhead and see the smile of satisfaction and joy that illumines his benign countenance.

Acting Probate Judge.

The appointment of Mr. F. A. Gulledge, of Verbena, to serve in the place of Judge Reynolds on the board of appointment in selecting inspectors and clerks of election seems to have given general satisfaction to both parties. Mr. Gulledge is a high-toned gentleman, who would scorn to take advantage of an opportunity such as fell to his lot to make partisan appointments, even if it were left entirely to him.

The Democrats will have no just cause for complaint, since Mr. Gulledge is an honored member of the party, and it is certain the Republicans can offer no [illegible]

A very interesting set of figures has been compiled by Robert Thomley, of Baldwin county, which show a remarkable list of relatives, including children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. Mr. Thomley is 83 years old, and is one of the pioneer residents of the county, having lived there the greater part of his life. He has five living children and two dead. These have an offspring which totals 37 living and eight dead, who are the grandchildren of the old man. There are 26 living great-grandchildren and two dead. The total number is 80, of which 12 are deceased. This is a remarkable record, and, what is more, the old man knows them all, and keeps an accurate account of them. He and his wife lived together 53 years, he having married when 22 years old.

The report that a party of eastern men with unlimited capital, through their agent, J. M. Dewberry, has purchased Dauphin Island for $76,000, has been confirmed. It is stated that approximately $3,000,000 will be spent in improvements and a great causeway connecting the island with the mainland, built through Grant's Pass with a draw, and to cost $500,000, is assured. A magnificent coaling station on the island will be established by Mr. Dewberry's party to take care of shipping interests which will be attracted there upon completion of the Panama canal.

The death of United States Senator Dolliver of Iowa may affect the trial of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association dissolution suit, which is pending before the circuit court of appeals at Birmingham. It is said in dispatches that William S. Kenyon, assistant attorney general of the United States, who has been directing the prosecution of the grocers' case, may be named to succeed the late Senator Dolliver. In that event the plans that have been outlined by Mr. Kenyon will be turned over to some other attorney of the department of justice, and a delay or change in his plans may result from this cause.

A light frost fell at Talladega Sunday morning, but the freeze was not sufficient to do damage to cotton bolls. Tender vegetables and flowers were killed, the mercury standing at 40 degrees. Farmers say that the light frost will benefit cotton by making the upper leaves drop and give a chance for the lower bolls on bottom lands to ripen. If a killing frost is delayed to the middle of November it will be worth $50,000 to this county.

A prisoner in the Decatur jail smoking a cigar set fire to the bed clothing and caused a small blaze. The fire department extinguished the fire before much damage was done. The prisoner claimed the fire was purely accidental.

The strangest phenomenon ever known in that part of the country is a steady rain falling in the yard of W. U. Almon, of Heflin, out of a perfectly clear sky and on a spot of ground about 8x12. The rain was first noticed by Mrs. Frances Vincent, a daughter of Mr. Almon. Quite a number of citizens and well-known people are witnessing the strange sight. The rain was first noticed about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and is still falling. Another strange feature is that the water doesn't moisten the ground.

GRAND PRIZE CONTEST

FOR CLANTON PRESS SUBSCRIBERS

Early subscriptions mean early nominations; early nominations mean much to Contestants.

Get into the running early and stay late, thereby taking the best prize ever offered to the people of Chilton County.

The Piano belongs to you if you hustle for it; put your friends to work and rejoice in the possession of a handsome mahogany finish Grand UprightPiano.

Read the plan carefully and get actively into the game; you can win if you try and it's worth the trying.

THE PLAN: READ IT CAREFULLY

The Clanton Press has purchased and now has on display at the Upchurch Drug Company's Store, a handsome Mahogany Finish Grand Upright Piano, warranted by the manufacturers for ten full years.

Call at the Upchurch Drug Company's place and examine its beautiful finish and test its perfect tone and touch—convince yourself.

This handsome instrument is to be given away absolutely free of all cost to contestants, and will be a means of bringing joy into some home in Chilton County—that home may be yours.

With each cash subscription of one dollar to the Clanton Press—the new paper published at Clanton—will be given a ticket entitling the holder to five hundreds votes in the Grand Piano Contest.

The person receiving the largest number of votes at the end of the contest will receive this handsome instrument absolutely FREE.

In addition to the Grand First Prize, we have in our possession a receipt from the manufacturers for One Hundred and Fifty Dollars as part payment on another handsome Piano, which will be offered as a second prize in the contest. This prize goes to the person receiving the next highest vote. This prize represents One Hundred and Fifty Dollars in cash and will be accepted as such payment by the manufacturers.

No citizen of Chilton County, of good character, is debarred from the contest. Every one is invited to participate and will be given every assistance and all information possible to enable them to become the owner of this elegantly finished Piano and receipt for partial payment on another fine Piano.

READ THE PLAN CAREFULLY AND START EARLY; EACH DAY MEANS MUCH IN THE RUNNING.

In addition to the five hundred votes for cash subscriptions to the Clanton Press, the proprietors of the paper will give five votes in the contest for each one cent of cash advertising or cash job work that is brought to the office of the Clanton Press.

These votes are to be cast at the pleasure of the holder for the person nominated by the holder of the ticket.

Each ticket is plainly printed and contains a space for the name of the person for whom you wish to vote to be written thereon.

In case of a tie between contestants receiving the highest and next highest votes the prizes, or an amount equal to the value of the prizes, will be equally divided between them.

In addition to the votes given out by the Clanton Press we have arranged with several merchants to handle these Contest Tickets so that you may receive the benefit of your cash trade with them.

Below will be found the names of the merchants who will distribute Contest Tickets. With each one cent of cash trade done with them you are entitled to receive a ticket for one vote in the contest. Remember, one vote for each one cent of cash trade. If you spend one dollar in cash with them you are entitled to one hundred votes. If you spend ten dollars you are entitled to one thousand votes and so on. To obtain these tickets you will have to trade in Cash as no tickets will be given out for credit purchases. Each ticket will denote the number of votes to which you are entitled. For the convenience of the people two boxes will be used, one will be kept at the Upchurch Drug Company and the other at the office of The Clanton Press. Write on the ticket the name of the party for whom you wish to vote and deposit it in one of these boxes.

From time to time the names of the contestants and the number of votes each has received will be announced in the columns of the Press. Keep your eye on these announcements so that you can put your "best girl"—be she wife, sweetheart or daughter—up at the top of the column.

When you trade with merchants handling the contest ticket be sure to ask for them; you are entitled to them and they will gladly give them to you.

Bear in mind that you are entitled to five hundred votes for each Cash Subscription to The Clanton Press and to five votes for each one cent of Cash Advertising or Job Work done with The Clanton Press and to one vote for each one cent of Cash Trade with the following merchants:

Upchurch Drug Company, Drugs, Seeds, Toilet Articles, Jewelry, Soda Water

Miss Minnie Muse, Millinery, Laces, Linens, Ladies' Furnishings.

Merchandise, Fancy Groceries. Hadley & Co., Clanton, General

S. E. Davis, Clanton, Fresh Groceries, Country Produce.

J. J. Stanley, Thorsby, General Merchandise, Farmers Supplies.

J. E. Evans, Clanton, Retail Groceries and Fancy Articles, Country Produce.

W. D. Spigener, Clothing, Ladies' Furnishings, Mattings, Dry Goods, Notions.

Clanton Furniture Company, Furniture, Crockery, Tinware, House Furnishings.

J. B. Hicks, Clothing, Shoes, Dress Goods, Hats, Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Julius Palmer, Steam and Dry Cleaning and Pressing.

Popwell's Meat Market, Fresh Meats, Fish Vegetables, Country Produce.

Harris Brothers, of Mountain Creek, General Merchandise, Clothing, Shoes, Hats, Hardware, Provisions.

Burns Marsh, Maplesville, Jeweler and WATCH REPAIRER.

Call for Tickets when trading with them and thereby increase your voting strength.

In addition to these votes The Clanton Press will print each week in each paper, a ticket entitling the holder to two votes in the contest. Cut these out carefully, write the name of your favorite in the proper place and deposit the vote in one of the boxes.

Enter early and vote often. You are entitled to vote as often as you please and can obtain as many votes as you wish.

If you do not fully understand the plan ask The Clanton Press and we will gladly furnish you all information and help you.

Its the chance of a life time. Get up a Club of friends to help you in the contest.

Remember that Cash subscriptions get you five hundred votes. Ask your friends to subscribe and give you the Votes. Hustle, hustle, hustle and you may win a handsome Piano.

It's up to you. Will you work?

Ringling Bros.' circus will take about all the small change, and much of the large change, out of the country. But that's one of the ways circuses have, and we can't blame them.

We notice that the Republican (black and tan) candidate for governor is calling upon his underlings for assistance in running his campaign. Wonder how much he has to pay for letters?

We would not have called attention to it had not the Judge made mention of it in his speech at the court house, but he did call some of the Smith fellows traitors, didn't he? Now, hones' Injun, didn't he?

The winter is fast approaching, and our country friends have about harvested and marketed their crops; but even if they have, they will want to come to town occasionally. How about the roads? Will they stand the winter rains? We're just asking.

Mr. Dix, of New York, is making it a little hot for Teddy. There was a time when T. R. could call a man a lie with impunity, but he is getting the same dose himself now. Dix says he does not hesitate to stultify himself for political ends.

These be the days when the mud-slinger is in his glory and when the bush-whacker delights in his prowess. He goes about in the dark telling of things he knows not of and attempting to blacken the character of those for whom he professed friendship—all for the sake of office.

We are sorry we made that fling at Reynolds about the juries. It isn't his fault, and we knew it at the time, but the temptation was strong, and we didn't resist. Of course he is not to blame for not knowing how to spell it, but since he became judge he ought to have learned—in the kindergarten he is running.

HON. FRED L. BLACKMON.

The question is being fairly and squarely put to the people of this county as to who they shall have in the next House of Representatives to represent them. The question is one of much weight, and deserves careful study of those who have the material advancement of this county really at heart. The question, plainly put, is this: Do you want a man in congress who will represent you, or do you wish a man that will draw the salary and NOT represent you? When you have determined this one question, then you have settled upon the man for whom you will cast your ballot; one who has made governmental affairs and the enactment of law a part of his life work; he has given much time and deep study to the science of government. The other has made banking and money-getting his occupation in life. Hon. Fred L. Blackmon was born and reared on a farm by a widowed mother. He knows the hardships of the farm life as well as its pleasures. During the years he has served as State senator (from 1900 up to the present time) he has made it his aim and object to secure for the agricultural sections the very best of everything. His heart is with the farmer. His record not only shows this, but it shows that he is capable and honest—a man who has devoted some of the best years of his life to the betterment of the rural classes. It was at his instigation and because of his untiring efforts that the bill for the better country school was enacted. He advocated a system of libraries for each country schoolhouse, and this bill, while not in active operation just now, will bear much fruit in the immediate future as the result of his labors. He advocated and fought for better state roads and better school systems, all of which redound to the good of the farmer, and is being felt throughout the State today.

Mr. Blackmon is the Democratic nominee for congress, and having been nominated by more than seven thousand voters, will be triumphantly elected.

What of the Republican nominee? He is a gentleman, and, we understand, something of a scholar; but what has he done for the masses of the people? He is a banker at Heflin, who knows men only as they are worth money or not worth money. His vision is made through the medium of a dollar. It is necessarily so, for this is his training—a money-maker, a money-getter. He has had no legislative experience. He was nominated in a postoffice by less than fifty Republican office-holders; they held their convention in the postoffice at Anniston, then adjourned to the hotel, where they held a jubilee because they had secured some one who would accept the nomination. Now this is the man whom the Republicans ask the farmers of this county to support for congress. Will they do it? We do not believe they will. When they compare the capabilities and the fitness of the two men we have no idea that they will endorse the candidacy of a man whose only claim to the office is the nomination by a few office-holding Republicans? The people were not consulted—they were not even made acquainted with the fact that a candidate would be selected. Word had gone out from the candidate that refused the nomination that no nomination would probably be made, and they were made to believe this.

Investigate the situation and decide.

General News

Hallowe'en Night.

The Baraca Class of the Baptist church is preparing to give an entertainment on Hallowe'en night complimentary to the members of the Philathea class of the same Sunday school. The entertainment will take place at the home of Mr. J. E. Robinson, Sr., and handsome invitation cards are being sent out for the occasion.

A night of merry-making and rare pleasure is in store for those who attend.

If you don't believe in spooks and ghosts, perhaps you will be converted if you attend the Hallowe'en party.

Something Sweet.

Almost every wagon seen leaving the city for the past few days has had one or more barrels carrying them into the country. Do you ask why, This is a prohibition county and a prohibition State, hence it could not be for the purpose of filling them with "moonshine" or "mountain dew." Oh no! these thrifty Chilton county farmers are preparing to live at home and board at the same place. They are preparing to grind the juicy cane out of which their 'lasses is made. Now, follow the old Louisiana way, ye fathers, and give the kids a chance. When you start to boiling, get the youngsters some oranges, and let them make their own crystallized fruit. Just cut a few small holes in the oranges and dump them into the boiling syrup. When they are candied the chilluns will enjoy themselves, and the pappy will be all the happier for having furnished his little ones "something good."

For Sale at Auction.

On November 12th we will offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash at our mill, six miles southwest of Billingsley, the following property: One 9x12 Eagle engine, one 36x10 Atlas return tubular goiler, one sawmill, one automatic shingle machine, one planing mill, one set of blacksmith's tools, one band saw, one turning lathe, one lot of good belting, saws, 12-pound rail trucks, etc.; a lot of lumber, several hogs, a small stock of goods in commissary, several wagons and mules.

In fact, everything on the mill site is going, regardless of price. Remember the date and the place.

2t PATILLO BROS.

Joint Debate.

The public speaking, or joint debate, to take place at the court house next Saturday between Mr. Pounds for the Socialists and Mr. Calloway for the Republicans was arranged without giving the Democrats a showing, but nevertheless, we are willing to advertise their speaking, for we believe in fair play, even if the other fellows do not. Perhaps they will let us "sass" to the crowd a little later on, when they are not present.

A Burglar Test.

Last Saturday The Press, through the courtesy of Mr. P. F. Leach, was invited to accompany representatives of the American Bankers' Protective Company to witness a test of the bank vault at Thorsby recently installed by that company. A representative did go with Mr. Leach, and he reports that the test was in every way a success. The walls of the vault consist of two heavy steel plates electrically charged so that any attempt to bore into or blast the walls of the vault immediately put in operation five signal bells, which sound loud enough to summons assistance from a distance of a quarter of a mile or more. One of these bells—a very large one, too—is placed on the outside of the building, two others are in the bank building, and yet two more are on the inside of the vault.

Any effort made to enter the vault except at times arranged by the cashier starts these bells to ringing, and they continue to ring till the cashier arrives and readjusts the timepiece by which the vault is opened and closed. The cutting of wires or other interference with the vaults meets with the same determined resistance by the bells as when a cold chisel or high explosives are used.

All in all, the arrangement is a unique as well as a safe one. The Thorsby bank is to be commended for its forethought in installing such safety appliances.

Mrs. Pinckard Entertains.

On last Tuesday afternoon at the handsome home of the hostess, Mrs. E. M. Pinckard gave a most delightful entertainment in honor of Mrs. Arthur Johnson. Thirty-six ladies were present, and a more enthusiastic party was never gathered in any home.

For quite a while the ladies passed the moments playing progressive dominoes, forty-two being the particular game indulged in during the afternoon. Late in the afternoon a delightful five-course luncheon was served, which was greatly enjoyed.

Handsome prizes were awarded for skillful playing, and were delivered as follows: Mrs. Arthur Johnson, a handsome cut-glass pitcher; Mrs. L. H. Reynolds, first prize at forty-two, an elegant cut-glass salad bowl; Mrs. J. Earl Gowan, the eighty-four prize, a beautiful hand-painted cake plate; Mrs. Crit Jones, the booby prize, a bon-bon dish.

As the party disbanded, they each and all pronounced the entertainment one of the most elaborate and enjoyable of the season, and voted Mrs. Pinckard as an ideal hostess.

The chairman of the Republican campaign committee informed us Tuesday afternoon that the Democrats would not be permitted to take part in the joint debate to be held at the court house next Saturday. Now, how is that for fair play, please? Are they afraid to let the Democrats have a shake at them? It looks that way, don't it?

NOTICE.

October 4, 1910.

I have compared the poll list with the list of registered voters as best I could, but I am sure that there are some names that ought to be on the list that are not on it. Hence I make this statement, hoping to get those who are qualified on the list; all who have registered and have paid poll tax in some other beat; all who have paid their poll tax, using sometimes their given name, and sometimes their initials.

In fact, if there is any difference in any of your poll tax receipts, if you will write me or come to my office, I will take pleasure in getting your name on the list if you are entitled to be on it.

If you have paid a poll tax in any other county, the law requires you to get a certificate from the judge of probate in that county and file with the judge of probate here, in order to get on the poll list.

However, if you are not on the poll list, and are challenged on the day of election, as the law requires, you can take the affidavit and vote.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
4t Judge of Probate.

The many friends of Mrs. Josephine Askins will be sorry to learn that she is quite ill at her home here.

FRED KAUFFMANN

MADE TO MEASURE GARMENTS

ARE THE MOST PERFECT UNDER THE SUN

Several million people know the fine made-to-measure clothing for men made by Fred Kauffmann, Chicago.

This tailoring organization has built up the greatest made-to-measure business of the country, running into so many million dollars that you'd use up thumbs and fingers tallying it off.

This vast business has been won—and is being held—by carefulness.

Their designers get larger salaries than the members of Taft's Cabinet; their buyers of cloth are national experts; their standard for cloth, at our suggestion, is absolutely all-wool.

Fred Kauffmann secured us as representatives with the determination of making Kauffmann tailoring as standard in this vicinity as are Elgin or Waltham watches.

Tailoring that is guaranteed by seven simple words, namely: YOUR MONEY BACK UNLESS WE PLEASE YOU. This guarantee is backed by the mill, the maker and us.

Kauffmann has sent us a message: "We'd like to spend some money to further entrench our tailoring. What would you suggest?"

Our answer was: "Spend it by giving us a reduction that will capture the town."

The best way to win trade for Fred Kauffmann tailoring is to get it on men's backs. It will win their permanent friendship, and so we will take your measurement for made-to-your-personal-order garments at prices which have never before been quoted for Fred Kauffmann tailoring, namely:

Not Afraid.

"Aren't you afraid eating welsh rabbit after the theater will give you nightmare?"

"No," answered the cynical first-nighter. "I'd rather have nightmare than lie awake thinking about the play."

THE BEST REAL "PULL."

Now that the summer is nearly over hundreds of young men who were graduated last June from colleges and high schools are entering the vocations which they intend shall be their life's work. Some are still seeking suitable openings. The young man without a "pull" may believe himself handicapped. He is likely to see instances where the employer gives first consideration to his son, his nephew or the son of a friend. But that is no more than right. The average business man recognizes the obligations of relationship and friendship, up to the point where they do not impair his material interests and those of his associates. His nephew and his friend's son must make good—his own son, most of all. His tendency, in fact, is to be more strict with his son than he is with any of his other employes, says the Cleveland Leader. If a young man thus favored with the first opportunity shows that he will be a failure in the work he is doing, he is removed. Family ties and friendship usually will not hold him. Then comes the chance of the young man who may have felt discouraged because he had no "pull." The best "pull" any young man can have in starting in life is honesty, industry and the determination to work for his employer as though he were working for himself. He should realize that, in fact, he is working for himself and that he has a financial interest in the business, to the extent of his pay. Such a young man is bound to succeed.

Upon a Newport "farm" which cost a fortune the young owner lies ill of typhoid fever. A wealthy woman nearby suffers from the same "disease of dirt." In Manhattan last year there was a sporadic outbreak in the region of costly apartment houses. This year it is Brooklyn's turn, says the New York World. In this city, with its guarded water supply, it is likely that typhoid at this season is brought from insanitary summer resorts or incurred during automobile runs. Every life lost by typhoid is a wasted life. It is absolutely preventable. People who live in marble halls without caring whether poison runs in the pipes behind them; the very rich who spend millions in display but neglect sanitation; college professors caught unaware by epidemics like that in Ithaca—these have themselves to blame if the disease occurs. Typhoid originating in any community disgraces it.

A new method of making physical examinations to detect the presence of tuberculosis has been demonstrated at Guy's hospital, London. The examination is made by the aid of X-rays, and shows tuberculous ravages in the lungs, it is said, at an earlier stage than they are revealed by the stethoscope. The X-ray is valuable for many purposes, but must always be used with caution, as numerous sad experiments have taught.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."—Mrs. Anna Anderson, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

NEED MONEY FOR GOOD WORK

Plans of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

What "a Million for Tuberculosis from Red Cross Seals" will do in providing some of the 275,000 beds needed at once in the United States for consumptives, is explained in a recent bulletin of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. There is just about one bed for every ten indigent consumptives, and if all tuberculosis persons in the country are counted, both rich and poor, hardly one for every 25 or 30. If sufficient hospital accomodations are provided only for those who are too poor to pay the full price for their treatment, fully 275,000 more beds in special institutions for tuberculosis would be needed at once. The immense outlay necessary to provide and maintain so many beds in hospitals, make it imperative, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis declares, that such institutions be erected from public money, either municipal, county or state. In order to get appropriations for public hospitals for tuberculosis, agitation is necessary, and in order to create a campaign of agitation, organization is demanded. But in order that an organization may carry on an effective campaign, funds are needed.

These funds it is proposed to secure in as many communities as possible from the sale of Red Cross seals.

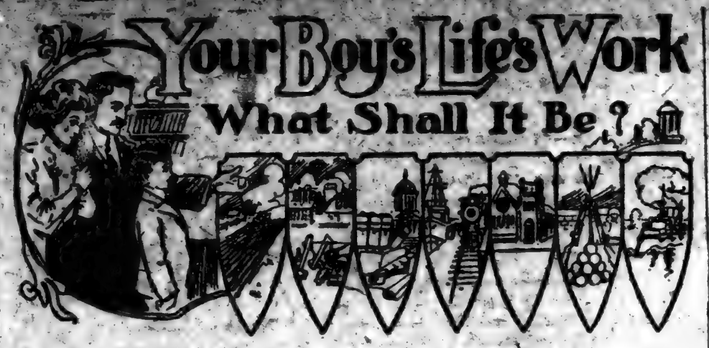
Deadlock.

"Who is that man who has been sitting behind the bar day after day?" inquired the stranger in Crimson Gulch.

"That's Stage Coach Charley. He's in a peculiar predicament. He went to town last week and got his teeth fixed. Then he came here, and, bein' broke, ran up a bill on the strength of his seven dollars' worth of gold fillin's. Charley won't submit to havin' the nuggets pried out an' the proprietor won't let him git away with the collateral, and there you are!"

WISE WORDS.

A Physician on Food.



A physician, of Portland, Oregon, has views about food. He says:

"I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not cease with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to protect their health, especially by hygienic and dietetic laws.

"With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying to the public that in my own experience and also from personal observation I have found no food equal to Grape-Nuts and that I find there is almost no limit to the great benefits this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence.

"It is my experience that no physical condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts. To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach, especially at breakfast, to start the machinery of the human system on the daily work.

"In cases of indigestion I know a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts and cream and I think it is also advisable in all cases of [illegible]

ARCHITECT?

Architecture is one of the most promising lines of endeavor today, besides being one of the cleanest—To become an architect your boy can go to an architect's office—Just how he will be advanced, the studies he will have to pursue, and why it is necessary for him to go into business for himself at a certain stage—The comparative ease with which this can be done.

BY C. W. JENNINGS.

HAVE you ever thought about architecture as your boy's life's vocation?

If not, perhaps you would do well to look a little into this line of human endeavor, especially if your boy has given you cause to believe that he takes to subjects mathematical naturally, or is good at mastering this branch of learning. For there is today probably not a more promising or cleaner field of industry for a young man than architecture. And what makes the opportunities in this profession—for profession it is—exceptionally bright just now is that the general aim in building is to combine art with utility and also the entire land is reverberating with the sound of hammers and riveting machines.

Not a few of the country's leading universities teach architecture in schools especially organized for this purpose. Probably it would be well for your boy, if he has architectural ambitions, to attend a good school of this sort, provided the family finances permit. But if they will not, do not be discouraged, for more than one successful architect has made himself such ere now, by starting as an office boy in an architect's office. And as an office boy, or minor clerk, your boy would do well to start, if he cannot be sent to a reliable school of architecture.

Of course, as an office boy, your boy will get only four or five dollars a week in actual money. But all the while he will have his eyes open, picking up the very simplest rudiments of the profession; and pretty soon, as some of the mysteries of blue prints and compass, and T square, and triangle, and box wood scale, and thumb tacks begin to clear up, his employer will give him an eraser and tell him to clean an ink-finished drawing of its pencil marks. This may be within two or three months from the time the youngster starts to earn his first week's wage as office boy.

Then, within about six months or so he is put before a big table, given a pen and bottle of india ink, and told to trace over the lines of a drawing that have already been made in pencil. He is also shown how to make blue-prints, the sheets containing the plans of the structure to be erected that are given to the carpenters and other workmen on the job. By this time he has been told something about water coloring and is set to make a blue sky behind a finished drawing, paint the house pink, and to splash a vivid green over the grass in front. Within a year from the time he entered the office—if he has got on—he will be getting eight or ten dollars a week.

Within another year he will be given a rough sketch of a floor plan and told to draw it out "to scale." This means that he must make a detailed picture of the floor of a house, allowing, say, a quarter-inch of space on the drawing for each foot of actual dimensions the floor is to be.

It will not be long now till the boy will know a lot about drawing and begin to look forward to the time he will be called a draftsman; for, inside of three years from the beginning, he will be earning from $15 to $18 a week and can probably take the notes given by the prospective owner of a modest dwelling and work out therefrom a fairly complete set of plans—with numerous hints and helps from the boss, of course.

Perhaps the boy by this time has some original ideas of how a house ought to look, and is able to picture his ideas on paper. This means that he has the rudiments of a designer in him. But, anyhow, he has acquired the foundation on which a real architect is erected, and goes on for three or four years more, till he can draw plans for any ordinary building and make very acceptable designs. He will be getting, as draftsman, anywhere up to $25 a week, and if he has qualified himself for the foregoing [illegible]

Architecture is a highly competent architect. Rather, executive ability is the main requirement; for he can hire good draftsmen, and radical changes in design are generally made through outside sources.

Your boy has got to get into business for himself. The requirements for doing this are practically nothing at all; for all he needs is the few tools he has long since acquired and mastered and a place to draw in. If he can get somebody that he knows is going to build a house to let him draw the plans and attend to the construction, he will get a fee of 5 or 6 per cent of the building's cost. Then he may be given more pretentious work, and so on, till he successfully submits plans in a competition, or otherwise, for some large public or semi-public institution, and finds his reputation all made, and his fortune in the making.

Between our office boy and the successful architect, however, there is a long course of studying that has to be done besides what he has learned in the office. The time has long since gone by when an architect, so-called, simply copied the plan of one house when called on to lay out another; for the modern cry is for more elaborate and original structures which require the most elaborate and painstaking detailed knowledge.

Your boy's course of study, which can be gone through at nights and will be partly acquired in his work, will include quite a complete knowledge of geometry and geometrical drawing, as well as freehand and perspective drawing, architectural and ornamental drawing, pen and ink rendering, drawing in water color and from nature, an extensive knowledge of masonry and carpentry, the latter including ornamental ironwork and sheet metal work; wiring for electricity, plumbing, heating and ventilating, painting and decorating. Also, he will have to be able to superintend the construction of the buildings for which he has drawn the plans, and this includes a general knowledge of all that the contractor does. Also, he must have studied contracts and the building permits and laws of his particular locality, as they have to be conformed to.

These subjects seem a somewhat forbidding array, particularly when it is added that the architect has to know the strength and adaptability of every timber or stone or piece of steel or iron used; but all this is no more than thousands of successful men have already learned, and no more than your boy can pick up during the course of his work—if he is ambitious and has unremitting application. Let me add that he should make his beginning in a comparatively small office rather than by being one of a score of employes in a large architectural company. In the latter he will probably develop facility in only one particular line of work, and be kept at it. In the other case he will have opportunity to participate in every class of work. And it is the all round man who stands the best chance of making good in architecture. He can specialize, if he so desires, after he has got a firm foundation. For there are architects who devote their time and energy on churches; others who limit their services to skyscrapers; others to stores and lofts; still others to dwellings, and so on, through the entire list of buildings. But it is invariably true that every successful specialist is one who knows from A to Izzard about everything there is to know of architecture in a general way. And this he had sense enough to learn before he set about specializing.

Most Famous Baby.

The most famous baby in the world today is the Princess Juliana of Holland, prospective heir to the throne.

A little more than a year old, she is daily the object of the admiration of thousands of citizens of the Netherlands.

There was great rejoicing when she was born and not a day has passed since then but that presents come as tokens of the affection for the little princess.

Masses of flowers are sent to her, and daily when the princess is taken for an airing flowers are strewn in her path. Furthermore, women of Holland who are skilled in making rare and almost priceless laces send many such articles to the princess.

Completely Pauperized.

Albert W. Hebbard, New York's charity expert, said at a recent dinner:

"The great danger of charity is its pauperizing effect. This effect must be avoided, or the recipients will all become Jack Hanches.

"Jack Hanch, on the score of bad health never worked, and the pastor of the Methodist church, a man whose heart sometimes outran his head, sent the idler and his family weekly gifts of food and clothing—supported the whole crew, in fact.

"A church visitor, after listening to Jack's complaints one day, said:

"'Yes, of course, you have had bad health, we know that; but one thing at least you ought to be thankful for, and that is our pastor's kindness in sending you all this bread and meat and jelly and blankets and so on. Don't you think it is good of him to look after you so well?'

"'Good of him?' said Jack, impatiently. 'Why, what's he for?'"

At the First Try.

"What do you think of my doughnuts, George?"

"Dear, you are a wonder!"

"Do you think so really, darling?"

"I certainly do. Scientists have been trying for years to produce artificial rubber, and here you do it the first rattle out of the box."

HOW SISTER HOBBLED THEM

When sister got her hobble skirt
The family assembled;
Papa's remarks were very curt;
With high disdain he trembled.
Aunt Julia sniffed and raised her hands,
Grandmother almost fainted
And said: "Be seen in that? My hands!
I'd rather that she painted!"

Then mother shook her head and sighed
And said: "Disgraceful, surely!
It isn't fifteen inches wide,
Besides, it fits you poorly.
No child of mine shall walk the street
In such a bold invention—
Why, look! It calls your—well, your feet!—
To every one's attention."

Then each took turns while sister stood
And heard how they condemned it;
They said the style was far from good—
O, how they hawed and hemmed it!
When they were through then sister took
An album from the table
And showed them in that olden book
Such things—believe me, Mabel!

First, grandma in her widespread hoops—
The style of 1850.
When Grecian bends and soulful droops
Were thought to be quite nifty.
Then with a smile that seemed to say:
"Once more I'm glad to fool you."
A "pull-back" costume, tight and gay,
She showed on good Aunt Julia.

Dear mother rose to seize the book
And they had quite a tussle,
But sister held it and cried: "Look—
Here's mother with her bustle!"
Then father in spring-bottom pants!
My sister's wise selections
Of father's, grandma's, ma's and aunt's
Old styles hushed their objections.

In Plain English.

"Woodman, Spare That Tree" is a highly idealized version of an attempt at applied conservation. The principal character comes upon a man who is chopping down a tree, and says to him:

"Don't cut down that tree."

"What?" asks the lumberman.

"You let that tree alone. I knew it when I was a little boy. I used to play mumblepeg under it and I have a sentimental attachment for it, so I would kindly request that you let it stand as it is."

"Do you own this timberland?"

"No, but I—"

"Well, don't pull any of that Gifford Pinchot talk around here, young feller. The big road for yours, see?"

Which shows us that conservation and conversation are entirely different propositions.

Two of a Kind.

"Must be something wrong with the organ bellows," whispered the man to his wife at church.

"What?" she asked.

"The organ bellows," he repeated.

"Hump! So does the frump who is trying to sing soprano."

These Dear Women.

"When my husband won't buy me what I want," confides the first woman, "I cry. Then he will agree that I may have it just to get me to stop crying."

"I have a better plan than that," says the second woman. "When my husband thinks I shouldn't have a new hat or dress, I smile. That works better than tears in my case."

"But," sweetly says the first woman, "my husband thinks I am so pretty when I smile that he will not do anything to get me to stop."

After thinking the matter over this evening the second woman concludes that the first is a hateful thing.

Discreet Bird.

"Sing, sweet bird!" "Sing, sweet bird!" carolled the damsels young and fair.

But the sweet bird, concealed in its bushy verdure or mouth to mouth of foot, merely twittered to itself.

"Not much. They want to keep me in on their concert and then leave me for its fellows."

Arkansas Lady Cannot Say Enough In Praise of Cardui, Which Did Her a World of Good.

Mena, Ark.—"I find Cardui to be all you represent," writes Mrs. H. R. York, of this city. "I suffered for nearly two years, before I tried your remedy. I have been so relieved since taking Cardui. I cannot say enough in its praise. It has done me a world of good, and I recommend Cardui to all women."

Similar letters come to us every day, from all over the country, telling the same story of benefit obtained from Cardui, the woman's tonic.

This great remedy is over 50 years old, and is more in demand today than ever. Cardui has stood the test of time. It is the standard, tonic medicine, for women of every age.

The first thought, in female ailments.

Would you like to be well and strong again? Then take Cardui. It can't possibly harm you, and its record indicates that it ought to help you.

Have you poor health? Cardui has assisted thousands of women to glowing good health.

Do you lack strength? Cardui is a strength-building tonic for women.

Over a million women have benefited by its use. Can you think of any good reason why you should not try it?

"So you have lived in Europe for 25 years. That's a long time for a man to be away from his own country."

"Yes, it is, and I'm mighty glad to be home again."

"I suppose you notice a great many changes?"

"Yes, many."

"What, if I may ask, is the greatest change that has come to your notice?"

"The greatest change, it seems to me, is to be found in the fact that the vice-president of the United States succeeds in getting his name in the papers nearly as often as he might if he were a baseball player or a promising lightweight prizefighter."

The Spots Disappeared.

Mrs. Dolan lived in a district which was not as favorable for the outdoor household experiments recommended by the Ladies' Helper as it might have been. This fact Mrs. Dolan was rapidly assimilating, and in a manner not so uncommon as it might be she blamed the estimable periodical for her difficulties.

"I wisht I had a holt o' that woman that runs the 'Handy Hints' department," she remarked to her husband one morning after an early excursion into the back yard, whence she returned in high dudgeon.

"I t'ought you t'ought she was a grand wan," said Mr. Dolan, cautiously testing his cup of tea.

"Well, I've changed me mind, as I've the rights to do," replied his wife. "Old chap, I've often wondered where you were and what you were doing. It was too bad we didn't get on better together. I hope your experience hasn't been as unpleasant as mine. I'm sick and tired of marrying strangers!"

THE MALARIA MONSTER

If the mosquito were as big as it is bad, it would darken the air like a gigantic death-breathing dragon. Each sting of a mosquito sows the germs of malaria. These germs multiply with wonderful rapidity. Then come chills and fever with other forms of malaria that undermine the health and sap the strength.

OXIDINE

The Clanton Millinery Company

Perhaps never before in the history of Clanton was a greater number of handsomely designed Hats, Turbans and other adronments for the Ladies put upon display than at this place.

It is so easy to fall in love at this season—says some one. This is especially true with reference to the new styles shown at the Clanton Millinery Company this year. It seems that nothing more beautiful could have been displayed than was the large and varied assortment of handsome Hats shown here. Every variety of trimmed and tailored Hat is to be found among the exhibition of styles and shapes shown at this modern emporium of fashion. Nothing nicer or more becoming was ever designed or originated. Here are the new shaped "Turtle Back," the "High Crowned" Hat, and others which Dame Fashion has decreed that the ultra fashionable shall wear this season.

Among their advanced models is an array of beautiful Hats for children and Bonnets for the wee ones; these are unusually tempting and are displayed with great taste. They will find ready sale because they combine the essential features of popular juvenile headwear; they are pretty, durable and inexpensive.

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.

In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.

In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.

In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.

We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.

But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.

The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.

Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.

Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.

They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries, Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.

Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.

Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.

We are here to buy what you have to sell.

We will sell you anything you want to buy.

If you have tried us you KNOW.

If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.

Howdy Do! How Are You?

The much talked-of season of hard time and business depression has failed to arrive; the prophecies of the chronic knocker are wanting in the fulfillment and the dire misfortunes predicted by the ever present calamity howler have died in the borning. Alabama, Chilton county and Clanton, instead of going to the bow-wows, as forecasted by would-be wiseacres, has gone steadily onward upon the road of material development that leads to certain success and abundant prosperity

We are enjoying the fruits of our labors as never before; the cry of poverty is hushed throughout this heaven blessed section; on every side is heard the tuneful tones of thrift and prosperity. The frugal farmer will not have to draw upon the store house of the West for his corn supply, for the harvest within our own fields is abundant in the extreme.

The cotton producer is satisfied with the results of his labors, and the shining coin which high prices for his staple enables him to secure and jingle in his jeans not only makes a gladsome sound to his ears, but fills his heart with joyful anticipations of a happy Christmas-tide. All things conspire to make his lot a pleasant one indeed.

The Chilton county farmer is fast assuming that place in the economic relations of life which his avocation predestined him to occupy—the front rank, a leader among the advance guard. Long faces have been succeeded by smiling countenances, and mortgaged homes and farms are soon to become happy firesides and productive fields of pleasure. Hard times have been vanquished and prosperity is victorious.

Contentment, peace and plenty are knocking at every door.

We are now entering upon an era of commercial development never heretofore anticipated; a season of rich rewards for honest toil is now dawning and will soon burst with noon-day splendor upon our people.

The farmers are happy, as they should be, for Mother Earth has yielded them rich trophies for their plucking; prices are soaring amid the radiant beauty of the stars; his products are in demand as never before.

Cotton is again King and Corn is the Prince Imperial.

What more could the planter desire to make his cup of gladness overflow?

Farmers of Chilton county, we greet you as the two-fold keepers and producers of our prosperity. You are they who have produced the wealth of our county, and upon your heads we pour our praises in unstinted measure. You have earned your reward and should enjoy the fruits of your labors.

The merchant who has bought wisely and well rejoices at your success.

The cotton buyer whose heart beats in unison with your own delights in the opportunity afforded him to give you good prices for your staple; he who would withhold from you the best and highest the market affords is neither a friend to the farmer nor a wise man of business.

We want you to succeed, because in your success we also shall share.

We have bought not stingily, but well; we have purchased in keeping with your position and your desires; you want the best, therefore we supplied ourselves with the best, that we might accommodate both your taste and your demands.

Desiring to have you make our place headquarters, we have arranged to pay the very top notch for every pound of the fleecy staple brought to our store.

We want to have a hand in your prosperity; we wish to be remembered in your rejoicing.

Come to us with your samples; we will top the market on every occasion; call upon us for your wants; our large and varied stock enables us to meet your every requirement, and at prices that will make you glad for the visit.

We hate the chronic croaker; we despise the knocked and the pessimist. The old world is bright with hope, buoyant with success, happy in plenteous abundance. We want you to know that we rejoice at your season of success; you deserve it, and we hope you will enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Come to see us; your happy faces make us glad indeed.

Come whether you want to buy or sell, both or either or neither. We will be glad to greet you.

We are going to set the gait this year, and those who would keep up with us must clip it off at a merry chase.

Cordially yours,

W. KANTER & BRO.

as knowing that Louis Reynolds lived in the county—or in the world, as for that matter. However, since the days of Honeycutt and during the administration of Reynolds, the resources of the county have increased five-fold—we now have five times as much taxable property as was here under Honeycutt. Has the tax rate been reduced one penny under Reynolds? Is it not a fact that at one time he had to send notices out to the taxpayers to come to the court house and get part of their tax money back? Money that they had paid under an assessment levied by him, when he knew, or ought to have known, it was much too high? The law required him to do this; he did not do it of his own accord, for if he had the interests of the people at heart he would never have had such a high tax rate levied, and then the law would not have required him to refund any money collected from the people of the county.

Has he reduced the rate? For one, I want to say that I have been paying about the same amount for the past several years that I paid under Honeycutt, and that I own no more property now than when we were under Honeycutt. It seems to me that if Reynolds was the financier he claims to be, he ought to have at least forty to fifty thousand dollars in the treasury. He claims that he has raised the fine and forfeiture fund to par. What has that to do with TAXES, pray? Not one thing in all the world. There are eight times as many people here now as when the fine and forfiture fund was low; and while there may not be as much as eight times as much crime, there is, of course, much more, and it is from this source that the fine and forfeiture fund is raised. It is a sad commentary upon Reynolds' administration for him to say that there is eight times as much crime committed under his administration as under Honeycutt's, and yet that is about the weight of his claim. Poor administration!

Well, what has become of that money? Where has it been expended? Into whose pockets has the people's money gone? We are paying five times as much taxes—that is, on five times as much property—as under Honeycutt, and the rate is the same. Where is the money? Why don't he reduce the rate if he is such a financier? Has it gone into bridges? If so, where are they? We have a few more bridges, it is true, but how many miles? With [illegible] in the county with th money that has come from the pockets of the people, and yet Judge Reynolds boasts of a few bridges that HE has built! And now that we are speaking of bridges, let us for a moment review Judge Reynolds' action in regard to Pole Bridge swamp. We presented to his court a petition with a large list of names upon it—every one a property owner and a taxpayer—asking that the county use some of this money Reynolds has raised to bridge that swamp, and thereby save much [illegible] and great inconvenience to the traveling public.

Well, we raised something over a hundred dollars, fixed the embankments and did much of the rather work, and the county built a very creditable bridge. But why should we, as private individuals, have had to raise this money and do this work if we are paying taxes for such work to be carried on by the county administration? [illegible] great financier, who has wrung the money from the pockets of the people? Generosity indeed!

Now, before Reynolds claims again that he has done so much for the county, let him explain what he has done with the money; why he has not reduced the tax rate, and why we poor individuals have to do part of the work in order to get bridges built over streams? Let him tell us about these things; show us the money in the treasury, give us bridges for which we pay taxes, and then we will listen to his talk about the fine and forfeiture fund, raised from the hire of convicts, and not from taxation.

Respectfully,
J. W. EDWARDS,
Of Beat Four.

By the way, what has made Mr. Popwell turn so suddenly? Why did he go with the ticket that he fought so hard? I think that if Mr. Deason was shrewd enough to get Mr. Popwell to dinner with him once or twice, give him a swell dinner and then send one of his friends down to see Popwell, and afterward go himself, he might be able to get him on his side.

I am asking this because Popwell and I have always been friends and Republicans, and I don't just understand why he has turned.

(DICK) J. W. EDWARDS.

ANOTHER LIFE-LONG REPUBLICAN SPEAKS OUT.

A Worker and a Voter in the Ranks Expresses His Views—No Mincing of Words Here—It's Plain Talk.

Mr. Editor:

Now that the campaign is drawing rapidly to a close and our people are discussing the availability of the several candidates, I would like to express my opinion through the columns of your paper.

I have been a life-long Republican; have worked for that party and voted that ticket, but at the coming election I shall change my course and cast my lot with the Democrats. I do this after mature deliberation and earnest though.

Like my good friend, Mr. John Baker, Sr., who is the oldest Republican in the county, if not the oldest in the State, I think it is about time for us to stop and examine our position. When we first organized the Republican party in Chilton county, it was with the determination to [illegible] this rule and turn it to the people mer court house ring in its grafting proclivities; a master at the helm who permits no one except himself to speak; an administration of the governmental affairs of the county in which the people have no voice and but few of the candidates are consulted as to what shall or shall not be done. It is a ONE-MAN affair; a campaign of mud-slinging and villification that is disgusting; a wholesale purchase of voters and newspapers in order that this ring may continue themselves in power and throttle the wishes of the people. These are a few—and but a few—of the conditions that we have brought upon ourselves by blindly submitting to the dictates of one man, whose only object is to continue himself in power and throttle the will of the people.

His claims to have reduced the tax rate of the county come with poor grace when it is remembered that the valuations in this county have more than doubled since he assumed the reins of government and arrogated to himself the right to become dictator; this being the case, the tax rate should have been greatly reduced; and doubtless it would have been had he remained in his office instead of running about the country making amendment speeches and spending the county's money hiring detectives.

As for me, I am tired of this state of affairs, and call for a change—a change from ring rule to a rule of the people; a change which will enable the humblest voter to express his opinion and to cast his ballot without being confronted with a five-dollar bill, as if the act of casting a ballot was like that of buying a sheep.

I think that when men go to buying up votes to put them in office, there is something fearfully bad—something that needs looking into. If the candidate was competent he would not have to buy votes; if he was the choice of the people he would not have to offer five dollars to men for their support; if his record was above criticism he would not have to buy newspapers to protect that character.

There was a time when he was a power in this county, but so grossly has he abused the confidence of the people and so certain has he tried to [illegible] a ring for himself and a [illegible] to keep others out except

BARACCA CLASS

Of Baptist Sunday School in New Role—Hostess to the Philathea Class at Residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Robinson, Sr., on Elm Street.

When the ghosts of Hallowe'en began to walk, they were guided to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Robinson, Sr., on Elm street, where much good time awaited them, and until a late hour did they enjoy the festivities. The occasion was a party given by the Baraccas of the Baptist Sunday school in honor of the Philatheas, and about forty guests were in attendance. Each and every one came "rigged out" as though they were from the land of spooks, and some very weird costumes were seen. After much meditation and earnest contest, the prizes for the "ghostiest ghost" among the female members of the "Hant Land" was awarded Miss Golder Palmer, and well did she deserve to win it, for it was agreed among all present that of all the ghosts she indeed was the "ghostiest ghost" in the throng, while the prize for the opposite sex was given to Dr. Arthur Johnson. The ladies' prize was a sterling silver chatelaine bag, and the gentleman's prize was a pearl-handled knife, and each were told to betake themselves to ghost land, there to fill the purse to overflowing and carve their names in the hall of ghost fame.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Robinson, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mesdames Heath, Mullins, White, VanDerveer, Matthews and Gore, the Misses Driver, the Misses Morgan, the Misses Smith, Misses Hopkins, Downs, Foshee, Bruce, Willis, Florence, Gore, Mullins, Reynolds, Gwin, Jones, Hayes, Palmer, and White, while Messrs. Denson, VanDerveer, Bruse, Willis, Ruffin, Alred, Woods, Littlejohn, Driver, Cox, Maddox and Mullins were the gentlemen present.

After disrobing, numbers were drawn to match for partners for the promenade to the dining room, where a delicious two-course luncheon was served and much fun was found in pairing off for the occasion. The courses were salad and pumpkin pie and coffee, and many were the fortunes told in the coffee cups after they had been drank to the dregs.

Immediately following the supper slips of paper were passed among the guests, and they were requested to write as many words out of the word Hallowe'en in the space of three minutes as could possibly be written. A prize of a box of candy was offered to the one writing the most words, which was won by Tom Woods, he writing 22 words.

The home was illumined by weird lights, they having been made from pumpkins, and presented an awe-inspiring scene, to be sure. One corner of the room was cut off for a fortune teller, and one had only to look at the expression on the faces of the boys as they emerged therefrom to tell what had been told them, and she was indeed kind to each and every one, telling them just the fortune they wished. If one was blue on account of love affairs being tangled, they came away with a smile; if one was expectant of his lady's love and had not been assured thereof, they, too, were comforted, and all in all, the fortune-teller's nook was the most inhabited.

The diving for apples in tubs of water furnished much sport, as well as the biting of apples tied to the door casing.

The Baracca Class was organized some time ago with only a few members, and it has now grown to 35 strong, and sickness alone was responsible for the lack of boys present.

GENERAL NEWS.

Hallowe'en Entertainments.

Last Monday night was the night on which the ghosts and spooks are supposed to hold high carnival, and in honor of the occasion there were several entertainments arranged for that particular night.

At Jemison quite a merry crowd gathered and spent the night—or rather a great portion of it—awaiting the appearance of the ghosts and indulging in ghost stories that would curl the hair upon an Apache Indian.

Over at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Adams another gay party assembled to tell tales of the never-to-be-recalled and to hear recited "Once upon a midnight dreary." Here were congregated several couples who enjoyed the hours of Hallowe'en to the full, and so charmingly were they entertained that thoughts of spooks and hobgoblins were left entirely out of the calculation till just at the hour of departure, when each young lady wished to be assured that her escort had a ghost-proof armament and a full-paid spook insurance policy.

With this assurance given, they bravely went out into the black night defying ghosts, ghouls and goblins, and thinking only of the pleasant hours spent.

"Come Back."

Mr. John H. Gore, who for the past several months has been working in Waycross, Ga., returned to his home last week to visit his folks, and incidentally to vote for the Democratic ticket. Mr. Gore says that it feels like old times to be rustling around with the boys of bygone days, and that he will feel at home when he walks up to put a Democratic ticket in the ballot box. There are quite a number like Mr. Gore, who are waiting for the time to come—and that will not be long coming now—when they can join hands in electing for Chilton county a lot of officers who will look to the interest of the whole people rather than to their own private ends. The days of BOSSISM are ended in Chilton county; the jury, which is the common people, will render the verdict next Tuesday, and the MAIN PIN will have to retire to the shades of private life to earn bread as do other folks—by the sweat of his brow.

Discussing Legal Matters.

There is to be a joint debate out at Samaria next Saturday night, in which several young men will take part. The question for discussion, while political, does not infringe upon the patent rights of the BOSS to corner all the schoolhouse politics. This time it is going to be a debate between young men who are striving to improve their mental capacities rather than to catch the votes of the unwary. They are going to discuss the question: "Resolved, That a law prohibiting all Sunday labor should be passed.'

The affirmative side will be represented by Messrs. H. G. Williams, W. C. Scarborough and W. E. Robinson, while the negative will be defended by Messrs. T. E. Williams, M. C. Roper and R. A. Smith.

All interested are cordially invited to be present.

Mr. Retherford Addresses the Voters.

R. F. D. No. 4, Jemison,
Nov. 1, 1910.

To the voters of Chilton County:

Owing to the fact that I am a farmer and have to attend to the harvesting of my crop, it has been impossible for me to make an extended canvass such as I would like to have made in the interest of my candidacy for commissioner from the First district, and as it is now but a few days till the election, I will not be able to see all the voters in the county, so I take this opportunity of saying to the voters that should I not get an opportunity to see you personally and solicit your vote, it is not because I do not wish to see you, or would not have seen you long ago had I been able. I will appreciate your vote and influence just as much as if I had made a personal visit to you and a personal request of you for your support. I feel that I am fully capable of filling the office to which I aspire to the entire satisfaction of ALL the people, and I promise that if elected I shall give my best efforts and attention to the discharge of the duties of the office without the interference of any BOSS or the control of any clique or ring.

I hope to so deport myself during my term of office as not to bring regret to any friend or acquaintance for having supported me.

Thanking you in advance for your co-operation, I am,

Yours truly,
G. D. RETHERFORD.

A Republican Advises the Voters and Solicits Their Votes for a Democrat.

Clanton, Nov. 1, 1910.

To The Press:

Pardon my asking this space, but the fact that an old friend whom I have known from infancy is a candidate for clerk of the circuit court, I would be derelict did I not say a word in favor of Hugh M. Simpson, now Register in Chancery.

I know Mr. Simpsons qualifications and attainments, and in all of my acquaintance know of no one more fit for the office of clerk of the circuit court of Chilton county than he. Born and raised in Chilton, he is one of us—thoroughly in sympathy with our people—and if elected will give, I am sure, satisfaction to all of our people, besides reflecting honor upon those who vote for him and the office to which I believe he ought to be elected. REPUBLICAN.

AND YET THEY TRY TO DENY THEM.

What About the Office-Seeker Who Will Wilfully Misrepresent the Facts in a Case? Will He Do for YOUR Judge? Listen!

Jemison, Ala., Oct. 29, 1910.

On the 3rd day of October, 1910, I saw Judge Reynolds and Mr. J. O. Middleton and Mr. R. M. Porter all talking together in the court house, in Judge Reynolds' office. I heard Judge Reynolds say to Mr. Middleton, "Are you acquainted with Mr. Porter?" and I heard Mr. Middleton say, "Yes; I am acquainted with Mr. Porter," and then turned my attention to something else. I don't know what they talked about. I am not taking any stock in the matter against Judge Reynolds or any one else, but all of this statement is positive facts. Judge Reynolds says he never saw Mr. Porter that day and Mr. Porter says he did, and when Porter says he did talk to Reynolds and Middleton together in the court house, Porter told the truth and nothing but the truth. Porter was a witness in Judge Reynolds' court on that day and secured a certificate for his attendance as a witness in Judge Reynolds' court, and the records of the court will show that he was there on the day mentioned. And I wish further to state that I have been acquainted with Porter all my life, and he is a good citizen and stands as high for truth as any man in Chilton county or any other county. W. J. ARLEDGE.

NOTICE.

Regular Term of County Court Postponed to Monday, Nov. 14th.

As a great many parties and witnesses will desire to make ready on Monday to attend the election on Tuesday, November 8th, there will not be any County Court held on Monday, Nov. 7th. All parties and witnesses are hereby ordered and directed to be present at court on Monday, Nov. 14th, 1910, at 9:30 a. m., as the regular term of court will be adjourned to Nov. 14th.

This 1st day of November, 1910.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of the County Court.
WM. M. ADAMS,
County Solicitor. It

Mr. Editor:

I hear that it has been reported by Judge Reynolds and his crowd that I have been hired by Judge Deason to work for him during the present campaign. Please permit me to say that such a report is a falsehood from start to finish. Mr. Deason has made no proposition to me, nor has any one else done so. I think enough of my county and my people to do what work I can do without being hired to perform a service.

I am against Reynolds, and he knows why. He knows that I was opposed to him in the primary and showed up some of his rascality. I have had no occasion to change my mind since then, and if I live till the 8th day of November I am going to cast my vote against him and do all I can to rid our county of a trickster, a man whom I consider a corrupt judge and a BOSS who runs roughshod over the will of the people, I need no pay for this service; don't expect any and would not accept any. The pleasure of seeing him defeated and a good man elected in his place would be pay enough for me. Respectfully, J. M. MAHAN.

EDITORIAL.

We are printing a letter from Judge Honeycutt which was written last Wednesday night. This letter exposes the rascality of the Republicans. The Banner had the honesty to date the letter of Judge Honeycutt, which it published, with the proper date line (1904), but The Union, as is its custom, layed truth aside and betrayed the friendship of a loyal citizen. Judge Honeycutt's denial of the whole transaction appears in this issue. If any one doubts its truth, telephone him. He is in easy reach.

A man who will lie for office will lie under any other circumstances. Beware!

THE DIRTY TRICK OF POLITICAL SCAVENGERS.

The Extreme Limit of Nasty Politics. The Game of a Desperate Man—Using Unauthorized Letters — Judge Honeycutt Speaks Out to the People and Brands the Use of His Letter Written Years Ago as the Act of a Deceiver and a Trickster—Read the Communication of This Upright Citizen and Form Your Opinion of the Man Who Would Use Such a Letter For His Own Ends.

THE LETTER IS SIX YEARS OLD

Chilton County, Nov. 3rd, 1910.

To the People of Chilton Conuty—Greeting:

Icanot afford to hold my peace any longer, as I have just seen The Banner of this week, in which there is a letter REPRINTED which was written by me SIX YEARS AGO in regard to the election of county officers at that time.

I wish to say that at the time I wrote the letter I wrote according to my then honest convictions and I believe that at that time I was right in what I said but the best of people are liable to make mistakes in a matter like this. I wish now to say to the people of the county that the conditions which then confronted them and the circumstances under which we labored have entirely changed, and that without the aid and direction of Lewis Reynolds. I cannot say in this hurried letter what I would like to say, but I said SIX YEARS ago that I thought Lewis Reynolds was a better qualified man for the office of judge, and now, after reviewing his official record and being acquainted with his official conduct, I wish to say in the broadest and most emphatic terms that this statement was incorrect, that I misjudged the man and that my statement SIX YEARS ago has proven to be a false prediction. I advised the people of the county at that time to vote for Reynolds. I did so with an honest heart and an upright purpose, but now with an equal sincerity and with the same love for my country, advise each and every one of my friends to vote against Lewis Reynolds and to elect to the office of judge of probate that young man whom SIX YEARS ago I opposed—E. B. Deason.

One of the reasons why I advised the people to vote for Reynolds was that I knew his ability to do, and so I gather as to how the affairs of the county should be managed, having in his charge [illegible] age the affairs of our county to the advantage of the people rather than for his own personal benefit and for the advancement of his own purposes.

I recommended him to the people for these reasons—because I believed he would manage the affairs of the county on the lines suggested in our conversation, but I must confess that I have been sadly mistaken in the man and that I have been greatly disappointed; for, instead of his being economical in the administration of the affairs he has been extremely extravagant, and his policy has been a RICH TREASURY and a POOR and OPPRESSED PEOPLE in the way of taxes. It is clearly shown that here is more than double the amount of money from taxes received by him than was received under my administration or any former administration, and yet he has nothing to show for all the money he has received further than a few dollars in the treasury and many dollars out of the pockets of the people.

And now since Judge Reynolds has entirely failed to do what he promised, the people of this county to do, and what he promised me that he would do if elected, I cannot advise the people to vote for him for a second term. Should he receive the office again his acts and deeds would be even more extravagant and high-handed than during his first term and the people cannot tell to what extremes he would go since he would feel that the OFFICE BELONGED TO HIM.

Again, my fellow citizens, I think that the fact that Reynolds and his followers brought out a letter written by me SIX YEARS ago in advocacy of his election when he well KNEW that at this time I was bitterly opposed to his re-election PLAINLY SHOWS the character of the man and stamps him at altogether UNFIT to be trusted by the people. If he would do this for the SAKE OF OFFICE what would he not stoop to do after he had RECEIVED the office? Where would our RIGHTS be IF entrusted into his hands? A man who would knowingly use the letter of a friend for such purposes would knowingly BETRAY the most sacred trust and is unfit for any office. His act of digging up this letter and using it in the last week of the campaign for the purpose of fooling the people and without giving me any chance to reply or defend my present position, is sufficient cause for you to vote AGAINST him this time, for I consider this one of the lowest down political tricks that I have ever heard of and I consider a man who would stoop so low as to do such a trick UNWORTHY to be voted for and UNFIT to hold any office of trust. If he wants office that bad he wants it bad enough to do ANYTHING after he gets it.

Now, as to Mr. Deason, I want to qualify him for that place. My objection to him before was simply that he had not had the experience, but SIX years is a long time, as is shown by the meanness of Judge Reynolds, and Mr. Deason has applied himself and become fully competent to hold the office, and I do most HEARTILY advise the people of my county to vote for him; and, as I have always been independent in politics I am still independent, and I believe that it would be greatly to the interest of the people of the county to let Judge Reynolds out of the office and elect the WHOLE DEMOCRATIC ticket as headed by Mr. Deason.

I wish it was so that I could come to Clanton Saturday and be on the streets and at Judge Reynolds' speaking to denounce his low-down trick of using my letter, but it is my preaching day and I cannot come.

Again, I advise the people to vote AGAINST judge Reynolds and to vote FOR E. B. DEASON.

Respectfully,
R. M. HONEYCUTT.

WOMEN ARE MORE RECKLESS

Physicians Say, That Taking Desperate Chances is a Feminine Characteristic.

Now that women have definitely entered the field of the air, which only a selected few of the men venture into, even for sport, the theory that women are naturally and constitutionally timid will have to be as definitely abandoned. It has long been noted by physicians that a certain fatalistic courage, a willingness to take desperate chances, is a feminine characteristic; they oftaney have to dissuade their women patients from surgical operations involving fatal risks than persuade them to undergo them. In automobiling, it has come to be noted that women who drive the machines will take such liberties with the regulations of the police, with the allowed rates of speed on country roads and with the eternal law that two solid bodies cannot occupy the same bit of space at the same moment of time without a clash, as men would ordinarily refuse to be responsible for. These tests are all in the realm of physical courage, be it noted, where the male sex fancies itself specially and expressly endowed for superiority. Nor could it be called moral courage, this willingness to defy the road regulations and, above hubs [illegible] struck, but rather immoral. It is only the latest form, perhaps, after all of the misconception that anything will be pardoned that is "up pretty. Even [illegible]

TWO STATES TO SEEK DEEP WATER

Louisiana and Mississippi Have 500 Delegates for Meeting in St. Louis

100 TO NATIONAL CAPITAL

Representatives Can Attend Association Session and the Rivers and Harbors Congress Besides.

New Orleans, La.—Louisiana and Mississippi will have a delegation of more than 500 at the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterways Association convention in St. Louis November 26 and 27, and of this number more than 100 will go from St. Louis to Washington to attend the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which convenes at the national capital during the first week in December.

This information was received here Monday morning by the Progressive Union, which is to be well represented at both of the waterway gatherings.

Seventeen states have already agreed to send delegates to St. Louis, and virtually every state in the Union will be represented at the congress in Washington.

The Lakes-to-the-Gulf Waterway Association, as the name implies, is advocating a waterway from the lakes to the gulf. Its president is Mr. W. K. Kavanaugh, of St. Louis. The Rivers and Harbors Congress, which is working in the interests of the entire deep waterway movement, uses as its slogan the fact that it is working for a "policy, not a project." Its chairman is Representative Joseph Ransdell, of Louisiana.

NEGRO SAVES TRAIN FROM BEING WRECKED.

Vicksburg, Miss.—An attempt to wreck a westbound Alabama and Vicksburg passenger train near Edwards, Miss., failed because of the presence of mind of a negro farm hand, who was making his way afoot between stations, a short distance in advance of the train.

When the train, heavily laden with excursionists returning from the State fair at Jackson, was brought to a standstill in response to the negro's frantic waving of a lantern, it was within a short distance of a loosened rail.

State Baptist Convention.

Jackson, Miss.—One of the most notable state gatherings of the year will be the annual meeting of the Mississippi Baptist convention at Greenwood on Monday, continuing for a period of four or five days. Jackson will send a big delegation to the event, headed by Dr. T. J. Bailey, editor of the Baptist Record and president of the convention. The statistical reports to be submitted at the Greenwood convention will show about 150,000 active members of the Baptist faith in Mississippi and a healthy growth of church membership during the past year, together with complete cancellation of all assessments made last year for state, home and foreign mission work.

Postmasters Meet.

Jackson, Miss.—The annual convention of Mississippi postmasters is being held here, 200 being present. E. E. Robertson, postmaster at Collins, president of the association, presided. V. Otis Robertson welcomed the gathering to Jackson, responses being made by U. B. Parker of Wiggins. After the announcement of the committees, Postmaster Edwards, of Jackson, distributed tickets to the State fair and the association took a recess to hear Senator Percy. The postmasters will be in session two days.

Postmasters Adjourn.

Jackson, Miss.—The Mississippi postmasters' convention has adjourned to meet next at Greenville on May 22 next, the date having been changed from fall to spring for obvious reasons. R. O. Edwards, postmaster at Jackson, was elected president of the association; M. J. Mulvihill, of Vicksburg, vice-president, and J. F. Butler, of Holly Springs, secretary and treasurer.

Inspecting the Canal.

Colon.—Members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers to the number of 150 and their families arrived here from Kingston on the steamer Prinz August Wilhelm. Most of the members will remain on the isthmus for a week, while the others will leave on the return voyage on Friday. The primary object of the visit is to inspect the canal and a program has been arranged for the canal officials so that the engineers may see as much as possible of the work in the short time at their disposal.

WRONG IN THAT DIAGNOSIS

Physician's Method May Have Been All Right, but Here He was at Fault.

We are told that the latest sensation in the medical world is the assertion of a doctor that he is able, by looking into a patient's eye, to make an accurate diagnosis of the complaint which the patient is suffering. But is this really as novel as it is supposed to be? I recollect hearing some time ago of a doctor who said to a patient who was under examination: "I can see by the appearance of your right eye what is the matter with you. You are suffering from liver."

"My right eye?" asked the patient.

"Yes," returned the doctor. "It shows me plainly that your liver is out of order."

"Excuse me, doctor," said the patient, apologetically. "My right eye's a glass one."

AWFUL BURNING ITCH CURED IN A DAY

"In the middle of the night of March 30th I woke up with a burning itch in my two hands and I felt as if I could pull them apart. In the morning the itching had gone to my chest and during that day it spread all over my body. I was red and raw from the top of my head to the soles of my feet and I was in continual agony from the itching. I could neither lie down nor sit up. I happened to see about Cuticura Remedies, and I thought I would give them a trial. I took a good bath with the Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. I put it on from my head down to my feet and then went to bed. On the first of April I felt like a new man. The itching was almost gone. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and during that day the itching completely left me. Frank Gridley, 325 East 43rd Street, New York City, Apr. 27, 1909." Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world; Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props, Boston, Mass.

Why the Boy Gave Thanks.

Alan had played the entire day with little brother without an impatient word. After saying his customary prayer that night, his mother suggested that he add: "I thank God I was not impatient with little brother today." This he did with much fervency; after which he remarked that there were some other things he would like to thank God for, and forthwith he closed his eyes and said:

"I thank God I offered my candy to father before taking any myself.

"I thank God I offered my candy to mother before taking any myself.

"I thank God I offered my candy to little brother before taking any myself.

"And I thank God there was some left."—Lippincott's.

Getting a Reputation.

There is a desk in the senate particularly convenient as a place from which to make speeches. It is next to the aisle and almost in the center of the chamber, and affords an opportunity for the speaker to make everybody hear.

At least a dozen senators, according to the Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Star, have harrowed this desk when they had special utterances to deliver to the senate. This led, not long ago, to a mild protest from its legitimate occupant.

"I am perfectly willing to give up my desk," said he, "but I am afraid people will think that the same man is talking all the time. I don't want to get the reputation of constantly filling the senate with words."—Youth's Companion.

Mrs. Cook Says

"There is not much pleasure in life," writes Mrs. J. D. Cook, of Crane, Mo., if one has to be sick all the time. So many women suffer from girlhood on, all through life, who could be spared such suffering, and live in comfort, if they would only try Cardui, the woman's tonic, as I did.

I was only 16 years old when I first took Cardui. Now, I am 39. Whenever I was poorly or felt real bad, Cardui always brought me out all right. I have faith in it. I know what it has done for me, and I have seen what it has done for others."

TAKE CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Nearly everybody knows what Cardui will do for weak women. For more than 50 years, it has been in successful use in the treatment of women's ills.

Thousands of enthusiastic, truthful, unbiased women have written to tell of the help this remedy has been to them. Do you still hesitate to take Cardui for your troubles? If so, why? Read what others say, and at least give it a trial. It may be just what you need.

Shaking! Aching!! Shivering!!! Quivering!!!!

THAT'S malaria. Malaria is murderous. It kills the vital powers. To cure malaria you must do more than stop the shaking and aching. You must stamp out the last spark of disease and put back into the body the strength and vigor that disease has destroyed.

OXIDINE

—a bottle proves does this so quickly and surely that it stands alone among malaria medicines as a perfect cure. It drives out Chills and Fever, and then begins its tonic action, rebuilding and revitalizing the entire system.

The tonic body-building properties of OXIDINE make it the most effectual of all remedies for disorders of Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels when these organs are failing in their functions.

If you want to cure malaria, get OXIDINE. If you are weak, get OXIDINE and be strong.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotics nor alcohol.

The ingredients, as attested under oath, are Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Stillingia Sylvatica), Black Cherry-bark (Prunus Virginiana), Mandrake root (Podophyllum Peltatum), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no druggist could imitate.

This tonic contains no alcohol to shrink up the red blood corpuscles; but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many unspeakable symptoms, always excessive tissue waste in emaciation from fevers; for the run-down, anaemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy; and refuse all "just as good" medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

SPEECHES, LETTERS AND INFLUENCE AT SO MUCH PER.

Five dollars each for letters of endorsement and speeches from the opposing candidates in the primary, besides having to promise this opponent the office six years hence, if he will only go out and make speeches for the Republican ticket, and especially for the BOSS. Whew! don't that stun you just a little after all this long time we have heard of the many virtues of the Republicans and most especially the BOSS, proclaimed and held up before the people, as though BOSS Lewis was a saint gone beyond that degree that he could commit a sin or make a mistake. Already some of those good, staunch, saintly Republicans that can do no wrong are saying that it will be impossible to keep Mr. A. C. Smith out of the probate judge's office next time; just because the BOSS has promised it to him for making speeches for him at FIVE DOLLARS per. My! my! Five dollars for a letter or a speech is paying some. But, gee! wouldn't it shock your modest opinion of those saintly Republicans to hear that an offer of TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS was made to one man for his influence before the primary election? Listen! Mr. Nute Martin says that before the Republican primary election that Mr. Jack Gentry approached him and asked him if he would take $250.00 for his influence.

Now, as we all know that are acquainted with the facts in the case, Mr. Martin in the past has been a strong supporter of Judge Reynolds, but in the last Republican primary Mr. Martin was supporting and working for Mr. Smith when this offer for his influence was made to him, and Mr. Martin also says that he had reasons to believe that it was Reynolds' money that was to purchase his influence. As to how Mr. Martin will vote, I do not profess to know, but he has said that he believed that the best thing that could be done for Chilton county would be to elect the Democratic ticket.

And Judge Reynolds says that Mr. Porter did not know what the letter that was published in The Press over his name contained, but, Judge, will you please tell us who wrote that Hip! Hip! Hurrah! Hurrah! letter that appeared some time ago in The Union over Mr. B. N. Martin's name? Mr. Martin says that he did not write it nor authorize any other person to write it. Who wrote it, BOSS Lewis? Won't you tell us? And what is more, Mr. Martin says that he believes that money was paid for the publication of that letter and said that he thought that if any one was paid that he should receive his share. When told that he should expose such dealings on the part of the Republicans, he replied that he suspected that he would do so, that he was waiting for developments. After paying so much money for letters and speeches, has Lewis now paid Mr. Martin for his silence?

No, Lewis, you could not purchase Mr. Martin's influence, but did you have to pay hush money to keep that letter from being exposed? How about it, Lewis? Or did you pay the fellow that wrote that letter for his services and also give him some money for Mr. Martin, and he kept it all and gave Martin none? Yes, there is something crooked about that letter, sure. If anyone before casting his ballot doubts the truth of what I have said that Mr. Martin said about being approached and offered money for his influence or that he said that he did not write that letter in The Union, let him go and ask Mr. Martin himself and see whether or not I have told the truth. Go and ask Mr. Martin if you wish to satisfy your curiosity about the veracity of the statements that I have made and if Mr. Martin dares to deny them, I will prove them.

Pretty costly campaign, isn't it, Judge? You used to hide behind the name of "Just a Voter," and write to The Union and praise yourself and your administration and the Republican administration in general to deceive the people and last campaign some fellow exposed your sophistry and let the cat out of the wallet about who "Just a Voter" was, so you couldn't resort to that kind of tactics and this campaign finds you with the money to purchase your way through. Afraid that this business of buying letters and speeches and trying to buy influence has leaked out and won't work, Judge.

This scheme isn't as good a one as to write over the name of "Just a Voter" and fool the people, is it, Judge? Somehow or other you can't keep things from leaking out, can you?

Now, a few words about the claims of the Republicans for good roads in Chilton county. If there is a mile of good road in the county, it was certainly made so by nature and not by the county officers, for the roads are worked as they have always been, that is, what little work is done on the roads. Why to hear a man say that Chilton county has good roads is only to make one believe that the person that would make such claims has never been out of the county.

Now, a few words in reply to Mr. E. H. Smith's letter in last week's Union. When Mr. Smith states that all the streams of any size in Chilton county are bridged, he either wilfully misstates the facts or else he knows very little of the county. If you will come and go with me over the county I will show you more streams that need bridges than you can show me that have bridges, or I will agree to pay the expenses of our travels and also pay you for your time.

And in regard to what you say about Mr. Martin supporting Reynolds and the Republican ticket, I will say that probably you know whereof you speak, and say Mr. Smith can't you give us a little information about that letter in The Union that Mr. Martin says that he did not write Didn't you go to Mr. Martin with that letter written and talk to him and try to get him to sign it? What about it? Didn't you write that letter anyway and send it to The Union? Yes, you could tell something of that letter. We know you could.

As I have said before, I don't profess to know how Mr. Martin will vote, but say, won't you tell us what you got for writing that letter? Was it a Five Dollar per, or did it come higher?

Pretty costly campaign, isn't it, Boss Lewis—have to pay for letters; have to pay for speeches, and to pay for influence, and, Oh, my! then had to pay for silence, and we are all wondering what paltry sum you had to pay The Banner man!

Will the manhood of Chilton county defy the Boss and vote their convictions? We shall see what we shall see.

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.

In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.

In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.

In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.

We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.

But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.

The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.

Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.

Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.

They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries, Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

CHILTON COUNTY CAME BACK

For Twenty Years a Prodigal Far from Home She Returns to the Bosom of the Family and Receives a Cordial Welcome

It Took Twenty Years to Persuade the Wandering Child to come Back But She at Last Consented

The REPUBLICAN TICKET defeated in the County by a substantial Majority. The Entire Ticket SAFE, except Circuit Court Clerk, which is in Doubt, but may yet go for SIMPSON. It requires the official count to decide this one office. JUDGE REYNOLDS admits defeat and so does County Chairman Middleton. Reynolds does the graceful and manly thing in tendering Deason his Congratulations. Under such circumstances the sting of defeat is drawn and friendship and good will remain.

The Republicans, though downcast, are not bitter and no Democrat who has the good will of the party or the elected officers will gloat over the victory.

Let all now join hands to make the next six years the BEST Chilton has ever had. Judge Reynolds says he is ready to assist; many other Republicans will do likewise. Let ALL Democrats aid in the upbuilding of Chilton County and forget politics for a season.

The welfare of the county is more desirable than the personal success of any one man.

A long pull and a pull all together will get the answer. Many Republicans and Socialists aid the Democrats in achieving victory; to these the unstinted praise and unbounded thanks of Chilton Democracy is due and will be given.

The Commissioners Court is evenly divided. The two new members being Democrats, the two hold overs being Republicans. This gives Judge Deason the deciding vote should party lines be maintained.

With kindest good will for Judge Reynolds and his friends THE PRESS cannot refrain from shouting HURRAH FOR DEASON and JONES and CURRY and MAHAN and RETHERFORD and HAYES. BLACKMON also received a substantial majority and is triumphantly elected.

Should Simpson make the landing it will prove to be the greatest landslide in the history of the County.

THE PRESS has received many congratulations, but it is modest and has no desire or intention to crow.

Victory is sweet to us but we remember that DEFEAT is bitter to our opponents and have no desire to add to their discomfort.

Many elements went to bring about success. The Honeycutt letter, the Edwards letters, the Broadhead letter, the Porter letters had telling effect. The SILENT work of determined men brought the answer. The organized efforts of well trained Democracy rang the bell when the opposition was sleeping upon the field.

THE PRESS had a voice, just a small voice, in assisting its friends to come over the border line.

Congratulations came from many quarters by wire and by mail.

But above all, citizens of Chilton, let us remember that they are OUR officers—the officers of ALL the people—and let's assist them in bringing more prosperity to Chilton. Let's give them our aid and encouragement and DEMAND of them that they give us the VERY BEST EFFORTS of their lives. WE OWE it to them; they OWE it to US.

ROSY AS YOUNG GIRL

J. W. Church, the Notary Public, of Summit, N. C., Tells How Cardui, The Woman's Tonic, Helped His Wife.

Summit, N. C.—"My wife had been ailing for nearly 12 years," writes Mr. Church, "and at times was unable to leave the house. She suffered agony with her side and back. We tried our family physician for many years, without relief. After his treatments all failed, she began to take Cardui, and gained in weight at once. Now she is red and rosy as a school girl.

"Mrs. Church recommends Cardui to all suffering women."

Cardui is more successful than other remedies, because it is "different." It is in a class by itself.

In over half a century, more than a million women have been helped to rosy health and happiness, by using this well-known and scientific woman's remedy.

Cardui acts specifically, on the weakened womanly organs. It helps to refresh the worn-out nerves and is the ideal remedy for young and old.

As a tonic for women, it has brought remarkable results.

As a remedy for women's ills, its friends say it has no equal.

Try Cardui.

SICK, SOUR, UPSET STOMACH

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Relieved Five Minutes After Taking a Little Diapepsin.

Here is a harmless preparation which surely will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store here in town.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Gastritis or any other stomach disorder.

An Effort to Oblige.

"Mr. Lobrow does his best to be agreeable," said the sympathetic young woman. "It's too bad that he has so little tact."

"I understand that Miss Coddleyap refuses to speak to him. He sent her a box of candy and she fed it all to her pet terrier. So he tried to be still more kind and thoughtful and sent her a box of dog biscuit."

Sore throat leads to Tonsilitis, Quinsy and Diphtheria. Hamlins Wizard Oil used as a gargle upon the first symptoms of a sore throat will invariably prevent all these of these dread diseases.

Appreciation of good accomplished helps more than much advice on the good yet to be done.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules. Easy to take as candy.

Most marriages are happy; the unhappiness comes later.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

CURIOUS, ODD AND INTERESTING OBJECTS AND PLACES

Fast on the Alaskan Rocks

When the Canadian Pacific steamer Princess May not long ago came to grief off Alaska, she literally was high and dry, as the accompanying photograph shows. The Princess May was plying between Vancouver and Alaskan ports and went ashore, settling on the rocks of Center Island, and at low tide hung above the surface of the water. She carried eighty passengers and a crew of sixty-eight, but all were taken off in safety.

PRETTY SUNI OF ZANZIBAR

In the gardens of the British Agency of Zanzibar are to be seen several specimens of the Zanzibar suni, an especially pretty little animal that is not often seen in captivity. Indeed, it is seldom seen in its native haunts, which are the wildest parts of the island and are covered with dense scrub. The suni also occurs on the mainland of Africa. The captives in the Agency gardens thrive, and each of the does has produced a young one.

NEW NOSE MADE FOR WOMAN

A woman recently left the London hospital with a new nose made from a flap of skin taken from her own forehead. The operation was rendered necessary on account of an ulcer of years' growth, which had gradually eaten away all the tissues of the nose. A racquet-shaped flap of skin about two inches in length and an inch and a quarter wide was cut, extending upwards, from the bridge of the nose, the beginning of the "handle" of the racquet being the only point of attachment. The skin was very carefully detached from the underlying bone, and, being swung round with its attachment at the base of the nose, was made to cover the previously denuded nose area. The new nose was stitched into place at the sides, openings being left for the woman's nostrils. The denuded space on the forehead was then covered in with skin grafts. The patient, a woman of fifty years, who was only three weeks in the hospital, left well pleased with her artificial features.

A child has been born at Willesden, Eng., with the left arm missing from a few inches below the shoulder. The motor-car driver's left arm was so badly crushed in the collision that it had to be amputated almost [illegible]

CURIOUS RELIC IS FOUND.

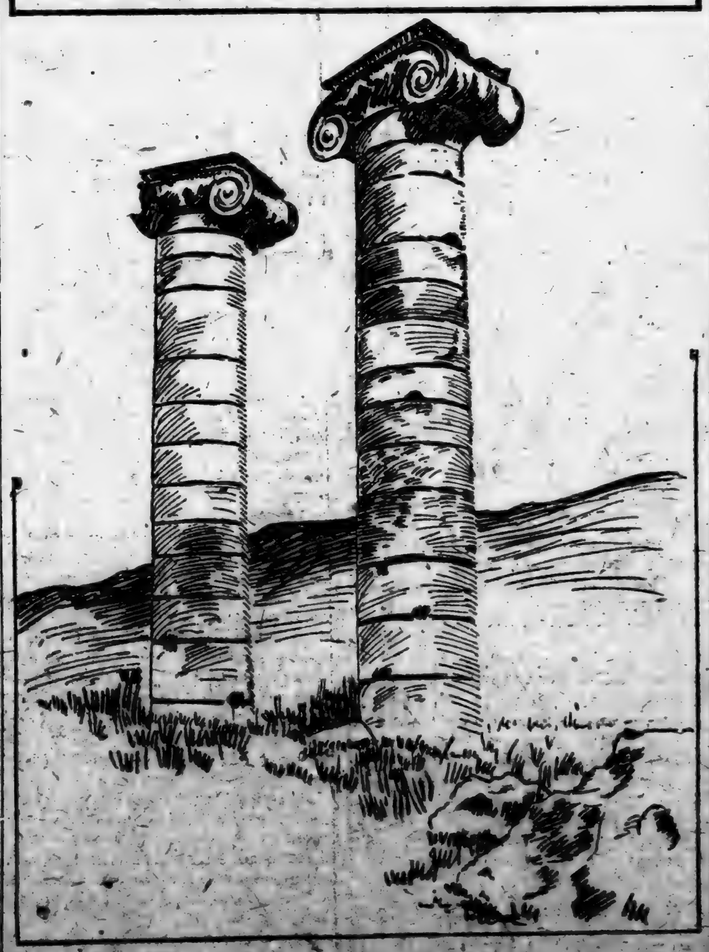
A curious and interesting specimen of the fine work of a famous old American engraver, A. W. Overbaugh, has just come to light in a little Staten Island town. The relic is an ancient gold dollar in the center of which, in a circle one-sixth of an inch in diameter, Overbaugh engraved the Lord's Prayer. The inscription cannot be read with the naked eye, but is perfectly distinct with the aid of glasses. At the bottom of the circle Overbaugh added his name. The engraving was done on a wager.

The coin will go to one of the New York museums.

RAISES SIX-INCH GERANIUM.

Richard Diener, a gardener at Colma, Cal., has perfected a geranium that is six inches in diameter, which is pronounced by experts to be one of the most extraordinary achievements in floral culture. Diener also has produced carnations four or five inches in diameter by crossing them with the "Prosperity" pink. He has secured fifty-seven varieties of dahlias and is now trying to produce a blue dahlia.

MYSTERY OF A NEEDLE.



A correspondent of the Scotsman sends to that journal in Edinburgh, Scotland, a letter relating an unusual experience. It is a well-known fact, he remarks, that when a sharp body like a needle penetrates the skin it is very difficult to find, and if left long enough it may wander over the body and ultimately appear at a most unexpected place. I never, however, heard of a needle and thread being found where it was found today—viz., in a hen's egg! A servant girl, engaged in cooking, broke an egg into a bowl, and commenced beating it with a fork. She felt something catch the fork, and, on examining it, found to her surprise a needle and thread. Happening to be visiting at the house at the time, I was at once informed of the extraordinary find, and the needle with the thread attached was put into my hand. My first idea was that the needle might have dropped from the girl's dress, but I was assured that this was not the case; and, moreover, the needle, now in my possession, was quite black, this being no doubt due to the action of the sulphur of the yolk upon the steel of the needle. The needle is an inch and a half long, and the thread is six inches.

PLACE FOR A FISH PICNIC

The remarkable natural saucepan pictured herewith is known as the Fish Hot-Pot Spring and is situated in Yellowstone Lake, in the middle of a tiny island on which the angler is standing. The island is really the top of the cone of a submerged geyser of natural hot water. Fish caught from the lake are cooked immediately in this strange hot spring.

Where Rich Croesus Lived

Far away in Asia Minor, under the shadow of a high, sharp hill, two broken columns have stood for centuries, looking toward a little river, alone, rising from a mass of vegetation that covers the fallen tops of two or three of their fellows. They are beautiful Ionic columns, and they mark all that is left of the city of the man whose name still stands today for wealth incalculable—Croesus, king of Lydia, who ruled in Sardis. The summit had not been disturbed for many centuries, probably not since the year 12, when suddenly it came into the range of an Englishman to be rich and then some. The Archduke [illegible] enough people to start a well-equipped expedition. The expedition pitched its tents at the foot of Mount Tolmus and promptly began to dig. The result has been unexpectedly satisfactory. Sardis was a new field for the explorer, and it was confidently expected that interesting ruins would be unearthed, but nobody thought that in less than a year the expedition would uncover one of the largest Greek temples ever discovered and find the remains of one of the earliest civilizations hid under the sands of Asia Minor. They have, too, [illegible]

On Authority of Teacher.

A quick-witted boy, asking food at a farmhouse too recently ravaged by other hungry fishing truants, was told that he was big enough to wait until he got home.

"Of course, if you have children with you—" hesitated the kindly woman of the house, and was immediately informed that there were six children in the party.

"No, I don't tell a fib, neither," was the indignant protest later drawn forth by the condemnation of one who had shared the good bread and butter thus secured. "Fib nothin'. We're children six times over. We're children of our father and mother, children of God, children of our country, children of the church an' children of grace. Teacher said so last Thursday, and I guess she ought to know."

The Perfection Oil Heater quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap, put in like a cork in a bottle, is attached by a chain. This heater has a cool handle and a damper top.

The Perfection Oil Heater has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged and can be unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel, is strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

THE MALARIA MONSTER

If the mosquito were as big as it is bad, it would darken the air like a gigantic death-breathing dragon. Each sting of a mosquito sows the germs of malaria. These germs multiply with wonderful rapidity. Then come chills and fever with other forms of malaria that undermine the health and sap the strength.

OXIDINE

—a bottle proves

It is the modern malaria medicine and the one sure antidote for malaria poisoning. It kills the chills. It quenches the fever fires. It stamps out the cause and consequences of the disease. That's only the beginning of helpful healing work of OXIDINE. It builds up the body, revitalizes the system, enriches the blood, tones up the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. OXIDINE puts the body on a fighting footing of superb health.

The tonic qualities of OXIDINE make it the best medicine for all weak, run down, thin, pale persons. It is the best body-building grain money can buy.

FRED KAUFFMANN

MADE TO MEASURE GARMENTS

ARE THE MOST PERFECT UNDER THE SUN

Several million people know the fine made-to-measure clothing for men made by Fred Kauffmann, Chicago.

This tailoring organization has built up the greatest made-to-measure business of the country, running into so many million dollars that you'd use up thumbs and fingers tallying it off.

This vast business has been won—and is being held—by carefulness. Their designers get larger salaries than the members of Taft's Cabinet; their buyers of cloth are national experts; their standard for cloth, at our suggestion, is absolutely all-wool.

Fred Kauffmann secured us as representatives with the determination of making Kauffmann tailoring as standard in this vicinity as are Elgin or Waltham watches.

Tailoring that is guaranteed by seven simple words, namely: YOUR MONEY BACK UNLESS WE PLEASE YOU. This guarantee is backed by the mill, the maker and us.

Kauffmann has sent us a message: "We'd like to spend some money to further entrench our tailoring. What would you suggest?"

Our answer was: "Spend it by giving us a reduction that will capture the town."

The best way to win trade for Fred Kauffmann tailoring is to get it on men's backs. It will win their permanent friendship, and so we will take your measurement for made-to-your-personal-order garments at prices which have never before been quoted for Fred Kauffmann tailoring, namely:

He Deserved It.

"No," said the Roman conqueror to the court fool of the defeated king. "I will not chain you to my chariot wheels."

"Thank you, your majesty," says the court fool. "I have always heard that you were chariotable."

For this the Roman conqueror compels the court fool to enter a pie eating contest in the coliseum.

Christened.

"Have the Blinkerbys named their twins?" asks the caller of the neighbor of the Blinkerbys, whose household has been blessed by the arrival of duplicates a few days before.

"I don't know," replies the neighbor, "but I understand that Mr. Blinkerby suggested names for them immediately on learning of their arrival."

"He did?"

"Yes. He exclaimed, 'Heaven and Earth,'"

His Offense.

"What is your charge against the defendant?" asks the magistrate of the complainant.

"He stole the words of a popular song I wrote."

"Sing the song," orders the magistrate.

The witness starts, but is interrupted at the second chorus:

"That'll do. I'll commit the defendant for insanity."

Unappetizing.

It was sometime after they had moved out of Eden.

Constipation

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Good Arrangement.

A genial looking gentleman wanted an empty bottle in which to mix a solution, and went to a chemist's to purchase one. Selecting one that answered his purpose, he asked the shopman how much it would cost. "Well," was the reply, "if you want the empty bottle it will be a penny, but if you want anything in it you can have it for nothing." "Well, that's fair," said the customer; "put in a cork."

A Sure Sign.

STOPPED SHORT
Taking Tonics, and Built Up on Right Food.

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics—drugs.

New material from which to rebuild wasted nerve cells is what should be supplied, and this can be obtained only from proper food.

"Two years ago I found myself on the verge of a complete nervous collapse, due to overwork and study, and to illness in the family," writes a Wisconsin young mother.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics prescribed by physicians, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me and I gained no flesh nor blood.

"Reading of Grape-Nuts, I determined to stop the tonics and see what a change of diet would do. I ate Grape-Nuts four times a day, with cream and drank milk also, went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape-Nuts.

"In about two weeks I was sleeping soundly. In a short time gained 20 pounds in weight and felt like a different woman. My little daughter whom I was obliged to keep out of school last spring on account of chronic catarrh has changed from a thin, pale, nervous child to a rosy, healthy girl and has gone back to school this fall.

"Grape-Nuts and fresh air were the only agents used to accomplish the good results."

Chilton county cast the largest vote on last Tuesday in its history.

It's two more years now before another election, thank Caesar's ghost. But two years isn't long if you have paid your poll tax. If you haven't paid up, attend to it today.

The Press said it would, and it will. Yes, we are going to put in a press and attend strictly to business now. We are here to stay for twenty years and then some more. If you haven't subscribed, get into the running now. If you have job work to do, let us do it for you. Help us, and we will help you.

Go slow, boys, in your rejoicing. We have good friends who differ with us on all points—not only in politics, but in other matters. Don't think the other fellow is ALL wrong and you ALL right. Give him the right to think and act for himself. Claim that right, and give it to your neighbor.

Sheriff Catts is a wheel horse when it comes to doing things. He certainly made good in the past few days, and we doff our hat to him.

It's getting close to sausage and backbone time. How about the shoats? Have you any in the pen fattening? If not, why not?

Chilton will have more corn, more syrup and more meat this year than she has ever had before. Wonder if they will charge that to the democrats, too?

No, the price of cotton didn't go down when Deason was elected, thank you. She stayed right up to the notch. Funny how some folks think a county officer affects the price of a world-wide commodity! As well talk about the Grand Llama of Siam affecting the price of guinea pigs in New Zealand, or an Eskimo squaw affecting the price of opera cloaks for Hottentot belles!

From the reports that are coming from "up state" it seems that the democratic landslide has completely buried Teddy Roosevelt deeper than a snow shovel can plow in a month. Ted, old boy, you didn't play your game well at all—that is, for your side.

With a democratic house and several new democratic governors and lots of democratic senators, it does look as if the high cost of living should be reduced a little. We believe it will be, and that cotton will also stay right where it now is—at the top notch.

Underwood, an Alabama man, will be the next chairman of the ways and means committee in the national House of Representatives. This is the most powerful office in the government. Champ Clark will be the next speaker and Harmon will be the next President. Lay this aside and watch.

There was one significant article which appeared in this week's issue of the Banner that is liable to be misleading.

We have no desire or intention to prod a brother editor, but we do like to see "honor given to whom honor is due."

The significance of the article is this: It appears as original matter, there being nothing further than a mere mention in the body of the article to indicate that it was copied from the Advertiser, and even that intimation is vague. But in that article which is seemingly original it speaks of the "BLACK AND TAN" republican ticket—the Thompson ticket. Now, mind you, it speaks of it in that way as original matter.

Should some of our good republican friends take the editor of the Banner to task for having printed that article and charge him with reference to them in such a manner, he can easily say "It was copied from the Advertiser," and thereby disclaim all intent to thus refer to the Thompson ticket. If they fail to notice it, then in the after days the editor can say, "Why, I even printed a long article in my paper in which I referred to those Thompson men as the black and tan ticket!"

Now, what we are driving at is this: Some of our friends have charged that WE went a little too far on that line. WHAT ABOUT THE REPUBLICAN paper in the county going a little further?

If it was NOT original matter, then the ADVERTISER ought to have credit for the article; if it was original matter, then the republican editor of the Banner has said things about his own ticket to which objection was raised in a DEMOCRATIC paper.

Catch the point?

The Banner seems to have placed itself in an awkward attitude; now don't blame us for it. You remember that word last year was "COMMUNICATED."

Is history again repeating itself?

EDITORIAL.

Christmas time is coming boys, have you begun to save up your pennies yet?

The democrats must prove true to the trust reposed in them. Give Chilton her best administration and all will be well.

With a substantial majority in the house the high cost of living ought to be, and will be reduced, provided the senate and the president does not handicap the house.

Six years ago Reynolds beat Deason eighty-one votes; six years after Deason beat Reynolds seventy-four votes. Honors are about even aren't they?

The county democratic committee is going to be called upon soon and some "re-organization" on party lines is going to take place—mark that.

The paper is late again this week; we are sorry that it was necessary to hold the paper back again. It was not for Honeycutt letters this week however. Just inability to "get there with the goods" sooner.

It begins to appear that Chilton is not the only one who "came back." New Jersey, Massachusetts, Little Rhody, Injiany, New York and some more, then others and again some more returned to the house of their fathers.

Now boys, lets be magnanimous. We have won; don't gloat, don't yell, don't guy, don't crow. We had lots of friends to help us. They must receive praise, but those who differed with us were entitled to their opinions also.

Mr. Arkie Mahan will have the proud distinction of being the first democrat to sit in the house of representatives from Chilton county in twenty years. We'd give four half dollars to be in the Capitol building when Arkie puts in his appearance.

The democracy went wild last Tuesday night. That was natural. When a fellow hopes and works and prays for results twenty long years and then at last gets the answer it is but natural that he should "demonsrate" a little. However, the Press wishes to disclaim for the older ones any part in the boisterous demonstrations; that was the exuberance of youth drawn long. Don't criticize the boys harshly; remember how you swelled with pride, when a youth, after accomplishing your heart's desire.

The Press is ashamed of its issue this week. It ought to have been its best; but when a fellow works twenty hours a day, eats two meals a week and spends the balance of the time in day-dreaming, there's no margin left for getting out a paper. Next week we will get right down to knitting and will give you the best ever. We are going to reconstruct our news service, throw ourselves into news work, forget politics and attend to business.

The Piano contest has about been forgotten in the political excitement. Notice the changes this week; they take place all along the line. The time is now short and if you propose to do any hustling it must be done now.

Victor, boys, means responsibility. Remember that.

"Mr." Senator Curry, we salute you. You have the honor and the distinction of being the first democrat ever elected to the senate from Chilton county. That's something of which any man should be proud. Of course you have the smile that wont come off, but wear those honors with dignity friend. When you climb Capitol Hill remember the eyes of Chilton are upon you and the good wishes of thousands are with you. You ought to be proud Tom Curry and we know you will reflect credit upon yourself and your county.

When "inauguration" times comes can't we get a "small" delegation to escort those two democrats to Montgomery? They ought to have a bodyguard to see that those fellows in Montgomery don't do them violence. Remember its twenty years since one went from Chilton and we're afraid they'll be "eat up" by the house and the senate.

Two typewriter men struck Clanton on election day. Both paid the Press offices a visit but as we now have two typewriters and but one operator we had to turn them down. Guess they made but few, if any sales. Clanton was too busy to talk typewriter sales Tuesday.

COUNTY CORRTSPONDENCE

SAMARIA.

We are going to have another debate at this place next Saturday night and will be glad to have all our friends come out and encourage us with their presence.

Last week, because of the political excitement, our regular meeting was postponed and the debate did not take place, hence we are going to discuss the question which would have been discussed at that time.

The debaters are: Affirmative H. G. Williams, W. C. Scarbrough and W. E. Robinson; negative, T. E. Williams, M. C. Roper and R. A. Smith.

The question for discussion is: Resolved that a state law prohibiting all Sunday labor should be passed.

Our fathers have about gathered all their crops and are now enjoying a season of rest between the harvest time and the planting time.

A little rain at present would be gratefully received. The dust is becoming annoying.

JUST A LITTLE MISUNDERSTANDING.

There was just a little excitement created at the depot last Monday morning when Sheriff Catts went up to a certain party and took possession of several election boxes. It seems that the boxes had been turned over to this party by Judge Reynolds for delivery to the several voting places and without the knowledge or consent of Sheriff Catts. Immediately upon ascertaining that the boxes had left the court house Mr. Catts made a break for the depot and took possession of them.

This was right as the sheriff is the executive officer of the county and upon him devolves the duty of delivering the ballot boxes and of receiving them.

The report was current on the streets that Sheriff Catts took the boxes to the depot himself and then carried them back to the court house for political effect. The Press is in position to positively deny this rumor.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.

Last Sunday night some one made an attempt to burglarize the store of Headley & Co., near the depot. The entrance was made through one of the back windows and it at first appeared as if the intruder would make a good haul, but fortunately Mr. Frank Thomas, the express agent, saw the man go through the window and immediately gave the alarm.

Mr. Headley had retired for the night but was summoned and came running to the store. Unfortunately he left his keys at home and realizing that no time was to be lost he broke in the glass doors to the front of the building and secured the intruder before he had succeeded in making off with any booty.

It is thought that the young man was drunk or drinking at the time and did not realize the gravity of his offense.

Mr. Headley is now nursing a badly cut hand of consequence of his hurry to get into the store.

The Latest New York and Paris Creations.

There's nothing to compare with KNOWLEDGE.

Knowing how to BUY is as great an art as knowing how to SELL.

We know both arts; we BUY wisely, we sell economically.

We spent two weeks in New York City inspecting styles, in order that you might have the latest from the most fashionable city in the world.

Our stock of Ladies' Furnishings is more complete this year than that shown by any other place between Montgomery and Birmingham.

We bought in New York at New York prices; we are going to sell in Clanton at UNPRECEDENTED prices.

Mrs. Breeden, a skilled trimmer of Nashville, who learned her trade under the masters of the larger cities and who assisted us in New York, will be with us this year to give you the benefit of her knowledge and skill.

There is nothing in the millinery art that cannot be found at our place.

Come to see our beautiful display—never before equalled in Clanton.

PERSONAL AND LOCAL.

S. M. Griffin, an old resident of Clanton, but now residing in Selma in the Press offices this week and left his order for the paper to be forwarded to his new address.

Arthur Johnson spent last Saturday night in Montgomery on business.

Miss Alice Stewart, who has acted stenographer at Democratic headquarters for the past three months, after heroic work for the victorious cause is taking a much needed rest in Birmingham.

One of the happiest men that the writer of this paper has seen were the streets of Clanton last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. They were all rejoicing over the victory that came to the democrats.

Mr. S. M. Adams came in Wednesday morning from Thorsby to spread the good news and meeting Mr. Deason at the depot proceeded to give him a regular bear hug for several minutes. Then he took the old man and had a war dance with him. The Judge said he was a Baptist all Wednesday, but had come over the Press man's church, (the Methodist), so he could shout in regular order.

Mr. Len Gullahorn of Pelham was in Tuesday, having come down to vote in a straight one for democracy.

The Press offices have been crowded since Monday morning early with callers and inquirers. They all wanted the latest news and knew where to get it. We have held a continuous reception for the past week.

We had hoped to give our readers a complete statement of the vote this week, but some of our friends were back on us in sending us returns of the vote cast at their respective boxes; hence we will have to wait till next week. However, enough returns have been received to verify th prediction that democracy has triumphed in Chilton—at last.

The Press man has been deluged with congratulations and expressions of success in the past few days, the greatest compliment that has been paid him, and one which he appreciates above all the others, was that one of Clanton's handsome young ladies took us by the hand and said, "I want to congratulate you; you too full to talk and we realize what was the work you have done and how brought sunshine into his home."

NOTICE.

The ladies of the Methodist Aid wish to announce that they will present the farce comedy, "The Old Maids' Convention," at the court house Friday night, November 18, 1910.

There are twenty or more characters in the play, and it is highly entertaining.

Further notice will be given later.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

The following marriage licenses were issued this week:

J. J. Gray to Miss Martha Hall.

William Rhodes to Miss Lessa Hall.

Clarence Shaw to Miss Ruth Hall.

J. L. Dennis to Miss Lerrie Hall.

Matthews Roper to Miss May Hall.

Mr. O. D. Hardy to Miss Melissa Mims.

Mr. Joiner.

Mr. Paul V. McAlister to Miss Alma Blackmon.

RIDERVILLE.

Our school is progressing nicely under the careful management of Misses Johnson and Jenkins.

Miss Bonnie Jenkins made a flying trip to Jemison Saturday and returned Sunday night, reporting a nice time.

Mr. Otis Strickland left for Childersburg Monday, much to our sorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wood of Centerville have been visiting relatives at Riderville.

Miss Nelia Johnson spent Friday night and Saturday at Maplesville.

Quite a number of people from this place attended the circus at Selma last week.

Mr. Tom Smith of Maplesville was down Sunday but don't suppose he will call again. I guess Miss Eunice feels somewhat blue this week.

Little Ethelym Reynolds is on the sick list. We hope a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollins, Mr. and Mrs. Connell, spent Sunday with Mrs. N. T. Milam.

We have organized the "merry makers' club." It is progressnig nicely. The proceeds are to go to our new school building.

Hurrah for Mr. Tabbot. We notice he had on a new suit Sunday. Looked somewhat better.

We must say Mr. Charlie Ellis has got a new job. Wonder who will take his place "street walking." Am sure Miss Beulah will miss him.

Many good wishes to the dear old Press. "CHUMS."

POPWELL SCHOOL HOUSE.

Editor Press:

Please allow me a short space in your paper this week.

Health of this community is very good at present.

Farmers are about done gathering now, and practically nothing to do except making syrup.

The weather has been exceedingly cold for a few days past.

The Sunday school at this place is still progressing nicely, but some seem not to interest in the Sunday school as well as they should be.

Misses Ada and Everee Williams and Miss Annie Culp were visitors to our Sunday school Sunday afternoon.

Mr. S. J. Headley of Cleveland, Ala., spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. W. C. Roper.

Messrs. J. D. Sims and Dock Bone were visitors to Montgomery last week, taking in the fair.

Misses Lonnie and Ida Poole spent Saturday night with Misses Ada and Everee Williams and report having had a nice time.

Our literary school started here Monday, October 23, with an enrollment of 34 pupils. Miss Sadie Belle Johnson is our teacher and every one seems to like her fine.

Will close for fear of the waste basket. "POLLYWOG."

OBITUARY.

Mr. Bob Reynolds, 28 years old, died at Riderville, Ala., Wednesday, November 2nd, 1910.

The young man was an employee of E. E. Jackson Lumber Co., and about 5:30 p. m. he, while at work, accidentally fell on company's railroad and was run over by engine No. 4, breaking arm and hurting him internally, for he only lived a few hours. The company doctor did what he could to alleviate his suffering and not realizing his injuries were so severe advised taking him to Selma for operation. So his family had him at depot waiting for Birmingham train and the train being late, was the only reason Mr. Reynolds did not die away from home; but as they were preparing to place cot in position to lift on train, he expired.

It has been quite a while since Riderville had such a shock. Everyone here knew and thought well of Bob and only 16 months ago he was joined in holy bonds of marriage to daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williams, of this place. His wife was admired for her piety and charm of manner and from the union much happiness and good was expected. Now what do we see? A sad young woman and a laughing baby boy. It pierced the hearts of wife, father, brothers, sisters and friends to look upon the manly form "so still in death."

I thought, as I gazed at the familiar face and remembered the happy hearted youth—that he was so much better off than we, who were mourning his untimely death.

It is one of the things we can not understand, (such a death as his), but when the golden cord is loosed and the silver bowl is broken and we meet him up yonder, then it will be revealed to us.

We can see him there as if asleep,
With flowers twined around him so
Then why do we mourn and weep?
When he is better off, we know.

We don't want to give him up,
But God's will we must obey,
Even though we drink the bitter cup
And drain the dregs from day to day.

Dear wife and loved ones all,
God comfort you as He can,
May each be ready to answer the call
To come up higher where I am.

Thursday evening at 5 p. m. Mr. Reynolds was borne to the church at Plantersville, Ala., where his funeral was preached by dear Brother Woods, and then dear Bob was laid to rest in family burying ground; there to sleep in that quiet city of the dead, 'till Gabriel sounds his trumpet and all come forth. Goodbye, but not forever.

We'll see you again some day,
Where death can not sever
Or take loved ones away.

A. FRIEND.

GEN NEWS.

The Canvassing Board.

There seems to be some slight misunderstanding as to how the vote of the county is to be counted, or rather by whom it is to be counted.

The law requires that in the event either the probate judge or the circuit clerk are absent, or either of them is disqualified by reason of having been a candidate in the election, and PROVIDED the appointing board failed to select a man to fill such vacancy AT THE TIME the inspectors were appointed, THEN the returning officer (the sheriff) shall appoint some qualified elector to take the place of the disqualified member on the canvassing board. In compliance with this law, Sheriff Catts has appointed Mr. P. D. Wilson to act on the canvassing board, who will take the place of Judge Reynolds in aggregating the vote of the county.

Serenaded.

Last Wednesday night at the editorial home, the editor was serenaded by a crowd of young men and boys, who came at his door. The serenaders began with soul-stirring "Dixie," which drove all thoughts of sleep from the editorial head. Several other sweet pieces were played, and then the night visitors broke out with ragtime, "There's Going to Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." It's the first serenade the editor has had in many weary years, but the delicate compliment which these young friends paid us brought renewed determination to do the right thing by the young men of Clanton at all times. Boys, our hat is off to you.

We hope, however, that the promised "hot time" did not materialize. Let's rejoice and be glad, but let's do it in a becoming way.

Remember what Admiral Sigsbee said to his men in the battle of Manila Bay when the United States marines were mowing the Spaniards down by the hundreds and were yelling at their well-named victory. "Don't throw your veil in Chilton [illegible]

REGISTRATION NOTICE.

In accordance with the provisions of section 6, an act to further regulate elections in the State of Alabama, approved October 6, 1903, as amended, the Board of Registrars of the county of Chilton, Alabama, does hereby give notice that the following appointments are set for the purpose of registering those qualified under the law to register as electors:

Beat No. 4, at Clanton on Friday and Saturday before the first Monday in November for the purpose of registering voters for the general election.

Board of Registrars.

One of the finest bodies of land in Chilton county. Two hundred acres. Two miles west of Clanton on the Clanton and Thorsby road. One hundred and sixty acres cleared land—the balance well stocked, with firewood. Four good tenement houses in thorough repair. There is no place in the entire county so well watered as is this place. An ideal home for a thrifty farmer who wants to become rich. Fine pasturage. Will sell acreage to suit purchasers in tracts of not less than forty acres. This land must be sold. Such an opportunity will not again be presented to you. You'd better snap at this chance. For terms and further particulars call upon T. C. MARCUS.

RARE FORMS OF MARINE LIFE

Beaked Whales and West Indian Echinoids Are Described in the Bulletins of the National Museum.

The United States National museum has issued two bulletins in the quarto series.

Of these the first, Bulletin 73 is "An account of the beaked whales of the family Ziphidae in the collection of the United States National museum, with remarks on some specimens in other American museums," by Dr. Frederick W. True, head curator of the department of biology in the United States National museum.

The beaked whales are among the rarest cetaceans and of the three genera only specimens representing about 100 individuals are known. The three genera in the family Ziphidae are Mesoplodon, Ziphius and Beradius, and to the discussions of these with their individual species Doctor True has devoted his attention.

The second of these bulletins, No. 74, is "On Some West Indian Echinoids," by the well known authority, Theodore Mortenson of the Zoological museum of Copenhagen, Denmark.

Of special interest in this bulletin is the list of North American and West Indian Echinoids, which he has carefully compiled from the specimens obtained by the Blake and the Albatross. The bulletin is beautifully illustrated by 16 full-page plates of these interesting forms of marine life.

The Worm.

"I insist upon an allowance of $500 a month—not a penny less!" he cried.

"Absurd! That's more than I pay my cook," she retorted with curling lip.

"Then get your cook to dance attendance at all manner of boresome affairs; to give you the face to do what an unmarried woman never dares do; to be always at hand yet out of the way; never to mind no matter how you choose to conduct yourself—in short, to be a husband to you in the modern sense of the term!" he flared out defiantly.

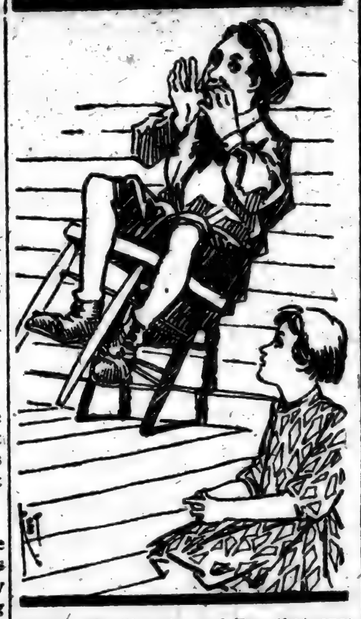
She perceived that the worm had turned. "Hush!" she implored, and reached for her checkbook.—Puck.

It Rested With Him.

Upton Sinclair, discussing the fasting cure that he has done so much to advance, said in New York:

"Fasting has become as popular as appendicitis. I hope, though, it won't fall into the same disrepute.

"It's currently believed, you know, that a leading surgeon said to his wife one day:



"'I operated on Mrs. Goben Golde for appendicitis last night.'

"'Goodness!' said the lady. 'I wonder what'll have it next!'

"'I don't know,' the surgeon answered, thoughtfully. 'I haven't decided yet.'

The Onlooker
by WILBUR D. NESBIT

The Jewsharp

Some praise the pipes of Pan that once aroused with tones of gold
The nymphs and maids of the haunted forests known of old;
And when Apollo struck the lyre 'tis said
the trembling strings
Sent forth a marvel melody that was as though on wings—
But once it seemed all other tones were simply stricken dumb
Beside the joyous jewsharp with its
"Flummer-flummer-flum!"

No classic thing, the jewsharp, but when you and I were boys
In very truth it seemed to us it made a soulful noise,
And we would press it 'gainst our teeth and puff our breath, and beat
Our fingers on the tongue and seek to coax the music sweet—
No cavalier with his guitar whereon his tunes to strum
Could drown the olden jewsharp with its
"Flummer-flummer-flum!"

I see you now—your eyes bulged out, your lips drawn back and strained,
Your chin held rigid as a vise, while slowly you attained Perfection in the melody, as back and forth your hand
Went solemnly in unison with music that was grand.
Ah, then we thought the greatest strains that ever were could come Forth from the iron jewsharp with its
"Flummer-flummer-flum!"

The winds that strike aeolian harps set fairy strains adrift,
And bands may play us surging tunes that make our hearts beat swift,
But memory clings to its own, and memory is sure
That our old jewsharp melodies were marvelous and pure,
And through the hazes of the past in gentle chords there come
The throbbing of the jewsharp in its
"Flummer-flummer-flum!"

At the Millinery Opening.

"Things are seldom what they seem."

"Indeed, you are right. Awhile ago I saw a hat marked $11.9, and was just about to buy it when the saleslady informed me that the price tag had been turned upside down by mistake and that the price was $66.11.

Unfortunate Result.

As the belle of the ball passes they begin commenting upon her appearance.

"A remarkably beautiful girl," says the first one, "but isn't it a pity her eyes have that peculiar squint in them?"

"Yes," says the second. "The way she acquired that squint was: She read the beauty hints all the time, and followed them with the result that she became beautiful, but the strain was too great for her eyes."

Passing It Along.

"Who is it?" asks the gruff poet, as the butler brings a card. "Is it that barber I sent for?"

"Yes, sir," is the reply, "And he has brought with him the buying agent of a hair-pillow manufacturer, who requests to be permitted to bid on your surplus hair for the next year."

They Were.

"As soon as I saw you," says the enamored youth, "I felt that we were made for each other."

"And somehow," comments the fair young thing, "I just knew that we would be thrown together often throughout life."

Subtle Distinction.

"And this note is from Miss Perkins. She was an old flame of yours, wasn't she? It certainly looks strange."

"Strange? When I have married you, and she is unmarried?"

"Yes."

"Well, she was an old flame of mine—but you must remember there are more criticisms of life insurance than of fire insurance."

"I have found the germ that causes men to seek the north pole," asserts the first savant.

"You have?" asks the second. "That is a wonderful achievement. How did you find the germ?"

"I was looking for the cause of scrivener's paralysis."

Remembering the tendency of polar explorers to write for the appropriations we wonder that the germ has not been captured long ago.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago I had pains downward in both sides, backache, and a weakness. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured of my troubles."—Mrs. Auguste Vespermann, De Forest, Wisconsin.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles, finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. Lily Peyroux, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

If you want special advice about your case write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

STATE TO ENFORCE LAWS.

Attorney-General to Act When Local Efforts Fail.

Birmingham.—Attorney-General A. M. Grber of Alabama has given out a statement as to the enforcement of prohibition and other laws as follows:

"As a citizen and as an official of the state, I will demand enforcement of all the statutes regulating the conduct of our people. In respect to the flagrant violation of the prohibition laws in several localities of the state, I had occasion recently to write Gov. Comer an official communication defining my attitude on this subject. I will further state that when I am advised officially that the local prosecuting officer has declined to take action in any case which is presented to him upon a proper showing, I will take such matters up at such time as it may be officially brought to my attention, and act upon it as in my judgment the premises require. And in such instances I would employ every injunctive or other process necessary to meet the emergency."

TEACH COTTON GROWING.

U. S. Demonstration Work in Alabama Eminently Successful.

Decatur.—Mrs. Lelia Seaton Wilder, who owns a large cotton plantation on the outskirts of New Decatur and on whose plantation the United States government had during the past year an experimental farming station, is more than delighted with the government's method of farming. She says that under this method one bale of cotton was produced to the acre, while by the old method and on the same land which adjoined that operated by the government it took three acres to make a bale.

On this demonstration farm during the season a government expert gave demonstrations and lectures once a month. These demonstrations and lectures were attended by a good many farmers of this section.

Mrs. Wilder is one of the few women of the South who have made a wonderful success at cotton farming. She is of the opinion that under the government method of raising cotton there are wonderful opportunities here in the South.

When the Alabama legislature convenes at Montgomery next January, the state solons are going to be confronted with the biggest delegation of labor lobbyists that has ever stormed the state capital at one time, according to R. E. Gann, state president of the Alabama Federation, who is preparing to stump the entire state in an effort to create a sentiment that will be of aid to the labor forces in securing what they want from the people's representatives.

Housed in a small field tent on the banks of the Coosa river near Cedar Bluff, in Cherokee county, are two of the busiest scientists in the state of Alabama. They have been busy in that locality now for several weeks gathering specimens of fossils and shells for the museum of the Alabama geological survey located at the university. These people are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Smith. Mr. Smith is curator of the museum and Mrs. Smith is his able assistant.

Auburn.—When N. T. Bass killed himself in his Auburn store Wednesday morning, a chain of grewsome coincidences had been established. Bass bought the business three weeks ago from the executors of the estate of Judge W. B. Guillate, who committed suicide one week before. Bass used the revolver with which his predecessor had killed himself, and died within a few feet of the spot where Judge Guillate fell.

Montgomery.—Dr. H. G. Perry of Greensboro has been appointed by the Rockefeller hookworm commission of Washington, D. C., as general field agent in the Alabama campaign to be waged against hookworm infection. Dr. Perry will have general supervision of the six or eight field workers, who have been selected by Dr. W. W. Dinsmore, the executive head of the state hookworm commission.

The plans for the new $654,000 shops of the Louisville & Nashville railroad at Boyles had arrived and that work of construction will start at once.

The desire of an employe of the Louisville & Nashville railroad at Elkmont to hear the explosion of a target torpedo caused the death of T. W. Evans, a well-known farmer of the community.

Selma.—The work of eradicating the cattle tick from Dallas county, and which has been conducted for the past year in the county under supervision of experts from the department of animal industry in Washington is progressing most satisfactorily.

Athens.—The recent freeze in this section cost the farmers of the county thousands of dollars. The bottom land cotton was killed and much of it had just begun to open and most of it had a heavy crop of green bolls, which were killed.

Tremendous possibilities of agricultural Alabama are shown by the offerings which have been made in the shape of exhibits at the various state fairs which have been held in the commonwealth during the past few months.

HIS HEALTH RESTORED.

Terrible Kidney Trouble Cured After Physicians Gave Up Hope.

Edward Gelston, 82 Wallace St., Bridgeport, Conn., says: "So painful were the passages of the kidney secretions that neighbors heard me scream two blocks away. Every doctor in town treated me. I was in three different hospitals and had two operations but was finally taken home to die. A physician made affidavit that I could not live six months. As a last resort I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and soon noticed improvement. Under their use I gained in weight from 134 to 177¾ pounds, more than I ever weighed before. Doan's Kidney Pills saved me from the grave and restored me to perfect health."

A Condition, Not a Theory.

A sociologist in conversation with a practical person from the middle west concerning the labor problem in her part of the country thereby learned the lesson of the situation.

"Are there many men out of work?" he asked.

The lady admitted that there were quite a number.

"What," said he then, "do the unemployed do?"

"Nothing," said the lady. "That's the trouble."—Youth's Companion.

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain—would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

Strong Preaching.

The minister's eight-year-old daughter was returning with her parents from church, where the district superintendent had that morning occupied the pulpit.

"Oh, father," asked the little girl, her face alive with enthusiasm, "don't you think Brother C. is a very strong preacher? I do."

Gratified by this evidence of unusual intelligence on the part of his offspring, the minister eagerly inquired into her reasons for her statement.

"Oh," replied the little miss, artlessly, "didn't you see how the dust rose when he stamped his feet?"—Judge.

ED GEERS, "The grand old man," he is called for he is so honest handling horses in races. He says: "I have used SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE for 12 years, always with best success. It is the only remedy I know to cure all forms of distemper and prevent horses in same stable having the disease." 50c and $1 a bottle. All druggists, or manufacturers. The Preface of Trade.

"I had a curious experience yesterday," said Farmer Corntossel.

"What was it?"

"A stranger came along and told me a funny story and didn't try to sell me anything."

A Terrified Hero.

"Did you have any narrow escapes in the surf last summer?"

"Yes," replied the life-saver. "One lady whom I rescued was so grateful that she nearly married me."

WOULD BE OF MORE VALUE

Father O'Leary's Facetious Rejoinder to John Philpot Curran an Example of Real Wit.

One day the famous John Philpot Curran, who was also very partial to the said corned mutton, did me the honor to meet him. To enjoy the society of such men was an intellectual treat. They were great friends and seemed to have a mutual respect for each other's talent, and, as it may easily be imagined, O'Leary versus Curran was no bad match.

One day after dinner Curran said to him: "Reverend father, I wish you were St. Peter."

"And why, counselor, would you wish that I were St. Peter?" asked O'Leary.

"Because, reverend father, in that case," said Curran, "you would have the keys to heaven, and you could let me in."

"By my honor and conscience, counselor," replied the divine, "it would be better for you that I had the keys of the other place, then I could let you out."

Curran enjoyed the joke, which he admitted had a good deal of justice in it.—From Kelly's Remeniscences.

Knows Tetterine Cures Eczema.

Mocksville, N. C.

I have a friend in the country here who has suffered for years with Eczema, and I told him if he used Tetterine he would soon be relieved, for it is the only thing that I ever used that would kill it.

P. S. Early.

Tetterine cures Eczema, Tetter, Ring Worm, Itching Piles and every form of Scalp and Skin Disease. Tetterine 50c; Tetterine Soap 25c. At druggist, or by mail from the manufacturer, The Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

Lover's Wedding Cake.

Four pounds of flour of love, half a pound of buttered youth, half a pound of good looks, half a pound of sweet temper, half a pound of self-forgetfulness, half a pound of powdered wits, half an ounce of dry humor, two tablespoonfus of sweet argument, half a pint of rippling laughter, half a wineglassful of common sense.

Then put the flour of love, good looks and sweet temper into a well-furnished house. Beat the butter of youth to a cream. Mix together blindness of faults, self-forgetfulness, powdered wits, dry humor into sweet argument, then add them to the above. Pour in gently rippling laughter and common sense. Work it together until all is well mixed, then bake gently forever.

The Test of Time.

Benjamin Hapgood Burt and U. S. Epperson of Kansas City were motoring in Long Island the other day and stopped at Evan's hotel in Douglaston. They ordered large quantities of raw oysters, some of which were thrown aside by the oyster opener.

"How do you determine when an oyster is bad?" asked Mr. Epperson.

"You wait a short time and if you have ptomaine poisoning the oysters were bad," said Mr. Burt. "If you are not ill they were good. That's the only safe way to tell good oysters from bad ones."

Expecting Too Much.

It was a cold, raw day, but the Neversweats and the Fearnoughts were playing a game of ball on the prairie, just the same.

The pitcher of the Neversweats, his fingers half frozen, failed dismally in getting the balls over the plate.

"Aw," said the captain, "I t'ought ye wust one o' dese cold weather pitchers!"

"I am," said the slab artist, blowing on his benumbed digits to warm them, "but I ain't a ice pitcher, blame ye!"

Reporter in Luck.

City Editor (hurriedly)—Anything new about that suicide in the St. Fashion hotel?

Reporter—Not much. The man was a stranger, about my size. Shot himself with a .32 caliber revolver. Had on a dress suit at the time. The body had been taken to the morgue.

City Editor—Bout your size. That's lucky. I want you to report a big society wedding in an hour. Rush around to the morgue and ask the keeper to lend you that dress suit.

Allsviating Circumstances.

"Did you say," asked a gentleman who was looking for rooms, "did you say that a music teacher occupied the next apartment? That cannot be very pleasant." Harper's Bazar gives the landlady's reply.

"Oh," she said eagerly, "that's nothing, sir. The music teacher has 11 children, and they make so much noise that you can't hear the piano at all."

Howdy Do! How Are You?

The much talked-of season of hard time and business depression has failed to arrive; the prophecies of the chronic knocker are wanting in the fulfillment and the dire misfortunes predicted by the ever present calamity howler have died in the borning. Alabama, Chilton county and Clanton, instead of going to the bow-wows, as forecasted by would-be wiseacres, has gone steadily onward upon the road of material development that leads to certain success and abundant prosperity

We are enjoying the fruits of our labors as never before; the cry of poverty is hushed throughout this heaven blessed section; on every side is heard the tuneful tones of thrift and prosperity. The frugal farmer will not have to draw upon the store house of the West for his corn supply, for the harvest within our own fields is abundant in the extreme.

The cotton producer is satisfied with the results of his labors, and the shining coin which high prices for his staple enables him to secure and jingle in his jeans not only makes a gladsome sound to his ears, but fills his heart with joyful anticipations of a happy Christmas-tide. All things conspire to make his lot a pleasant one indeed.

The Chilton county farmer is fast assuming that place in the economic relations of life which his avocation predestined him to occupy—the front rank, a leader among the advance guard. Long faces have been succeeded by smiling countenances, and mortgaged homes and farms are soon to become happy firesides and productive fields of pleasure. Hard times have been vanquished and prosperity is victorious.

Contentment, peace and plenty are knocking at every door.

We are now entering upon an era of commercial development never heretofore anticipated; a season of rich rewards for honest toil is now dawning and will soon burst with noon-day splendor upon our people.

The farmers are happy, as they should be, for Mother Earth has yielded them rich trophies for their plucking; prices are soaring amid the radiant beauty of the stars; his products are in demand as never before.

Cotton is again King and Corn is the Prince Imperial.

What more could the planter desire to make his cup of gladness overflow?

Farmers of Chilton county, we greet you as the two-fold keepers and producers of our prosperity. You are they who have produced the wealth of our county, and upon your heads we pour our praises in unstinted measure. You have earned your reward and should enjoy the fruits of your labors.

The merchant who has bought wisely and well rejoices at your success.

The cotton buyer whose heart beats in unison with your own delights in the opportunity afforded him to give you good prices for your staple; he who would withhold from you the best and highest the market affords is neither a friend to the farmer nor a wise man of business.

We want you to succeed, because in your success we also shall share.

We have bought not stingily, but well; we have purchased in keeping with your position and your desires; you want the best, therefore we supplied ourselves with the best, that we might accommodate both your taste and your demands.

Desiring to have you make our place headquarters, we have arranged to pay the very top notch for every pound of the fleecy staple brought to our store.

We want to have a hand in your prosperity; we wish to be remembered in your rejoicing.

Come to us with your samples; we will top the market on every occasion; call upon us for your wants; our large and varied stock enables us to meet your every requirement, and at prices that will make you glad for the visit.

We hate the chronic croaker; we despise the knocked and the pessimist. The old world is bright with hope, buoyant with success, happy in plenteous abundance. We want you to know that we rejoice at your season of success; you deserve it, and we hope you will enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Come to see us; your happy faces make us glad indeed.

Come whether you want to buy or sell, both or either or neither. We will be glad to greet you.

We are going to set the gait this year, and those who would keep up with us must clip it off at a merry chase.

Cordially yours,

W. KANTER & BRO.

Railroads Yield More Than Farms.

Chicago.—That the railroads get a better return on their investment than the farmer, despite the latter's much-talked-of ability to buy automobiles, was the position taken at the rate hearing here, when the shippers, who oppose proposed advances in freight tariffs, put H. C. Wallace of Des Moines on the stand as their first witness.

Mr. Wallace is a farmer and editor, and was elected president of the National Conservation Congress at St. Paul recently.

Senator Bacon in Aeroplane.

Mourmelon, France. — Jacob M. Dickinson, American Secretary of War, made a short aeroplane flight at the military aeroplane here as a passenger with a French officer, Ensign Lafon. The Secretary, on reaching the earth again, expressed himself as delighted with his trip. M. Gobe took up Senator Bacon of Georgia and others of Secretary Dickinson's party. The American visitors then made a lengthy inspection of the extensive workshops, and witnessed several fine flights by Thomas

Will Not Recognize Republic.

Washington.—According to a high official of the State department, whose identity cannot be indicated, the United States will not recognize the Portugese republic until its stability has been established. It was said that the interests of the United States in Portugal are small and that recognition will come only when there is no fear of future serious conflict between the republicans and the royalists, or when a constitutional government has been established. The United States will act independently.

Georgia Postoffice Robbed.

Valdosta, Ga.—A dynamite explosion wrecked the postoffice safe at Ousley, 10 miles from here. One man reached the postoffice in time to shoot at a fleeing robber, who obtained $300 and a quantity of stamps.

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.

In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.

In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.

In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.

We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.

But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.

Howdy Do! How Are You?

The much talked-of season of hard time and business depression has failed to arrive; the prophecies of the chronic knocker are wanting in the fulfillment and the dire misfortunes predicted by the ever present calamity howler have died in the borning. Alabama, Chilton county and Clanton, instead of going to the bow-wows, as forecasted by would-be wiseacres, has gone steadily onward upon the road of material development that leads to certain success and abundant prosperity

We are enjoying the fruits of our labors as never before; the cry of poverty is hushed throughout this heaven blessed section; on every side is heard the tuneful tones of thrift and prosperity. The frugal farmer will not have to draw upon the store house of the West for his corn supply, for the harvest within our own fields is abundant in the extreme.

The cotton producer is satisfied with the results of his labors, and the shining coin which high prices for his staple enables him to secure and jingle in his jeans not only makes a gladsome sound to his ears, but fills his heart with joyful anticipations of a happy Christmas-tide. All things conspire to make his lot a pleasant one indeed.

The Chilton county farmer is fast assuming that place in the economic relations of life which his avocation predestined him to occupy—the front rank, a leader among the advance guard. Long faces have been succeeded by smiling countenances, and mortgaged homes and farms are soon to become happy firesides and productive fields of pleasure. Hard times have been vanquished and prosperity is victorious.

Contentment, peace and plenty are knocking at every door.

We are now entering upon an era of commercial development never heretofore anticipated; a season of rich rewards for honest toil is now dawning and will soon burst with noon-day splendor upon our people.

The farmers are happy, as they should be, for Mother Earth has yielded them rich trophies for their plucking; prices are soaring amid the radiant beauty of the stars; his products are in demand as never before.

Cotton is again King and Corn is the Prince Imperial.

What more could the planter desire to make his cup of gladness overflow?

Farmers of Chilton county, we greet you as the two-fold keepers and producers of our prosperity. You are they who have produced the wealth of our county, and upon your heads we pour our praises in unstinted measure. You have earned your reward and should enjoy the fruits of your labors.

The merchant who has bought wisely and well rejoices at your success.

The cotton buyer whose heart beats in unison with your own delights in the opportunity afforded him to give you good prices for your staple; he who would withhold from you the best and highest the market affords is neither a friend to the farmer nor a wise man of business.

We want you to succeed, because in your success we also shall share.

We have bought not stingily, but well; we have purchased in keeping with your position and your desires; you want the best, therefore we supplied ourselves with the best, that we might accommodate both your taste and your demands.

Desiring to have you make our place headquarters, we have arranged to pay the very top notch for every pound of the fleecy staple brought to our store.

We want to have a hand in your prosperity; we wish to be remembered in your rejoicing.

Come to us with your samples; we will top the market on every occasion; call upon us for your wants; our large and varied stock enables us to meet your every requirement, and at prices that will make you glad for the visit.

We hate the chronic croaker; we despise the knocker and the pessimist. The old world is bright with hope, buoyant with success, happy in plenteous abundance. We want you to know that we rejoice at your season of success; you deserve it, and we hope you will enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Come to see us; your happy faces make us glad indeed.

Come whether you want to buy or sell, both or either or neither. We will be glad to greet you.

We are going to set the gait this year, and those who would keep up with us must clip it off at a merry chase.

Cordially yours,

PROSPERITY IS AT HAND.

Commissioner Urges Co-operation in State Work.

Montgomery.—Prosperity is at hand, declares R. H. Walker, immigration commissioner of Alabama, in a statement which he issued to the press of the state. Using that as a basis, the commissioner urges that the fullest co-operation be given him in his work in order that the best returns might be secured.

In his statement Mr. Walker announces that the commonwealth has entered upon its greatest industrial growth and that as a consequence fine results may be expected as the result of the rigid campaign which he expects to launch. The commissioner expresses himself as confident that Alabama, with its resources, can readily usurp first place as an industrial and as a commercial center, provided everybody pulls together with the end in view of helping the state in an immigration way.

Mr. Walker's statement follows:

"The act under which the state immigration board was established was passed in 1907 and as stated by Governor Comer, no commissioner was appointed at that time because of the industrial depression that then existed. Those conditions have passed; prosperity is to be noted on all sides; activities in every line of business endeavor were never more pronounced in Alabama than at the present time and the eyes of the world are turned toward the south with Alabama as the focal point. The tremendous advances made by the cities and towns of the state as shown by those returns already made public have arrested the attention of every thoughtful man and the time was never before so propitious for the successful establishment of an immigration department as a branch of the state government.

"The splendid returns being received by our farmers as a result of their labors in the fields, the large dividends from banking and merchandising, from the timber business and from investments in coal, iron and steel industries, together with our unsurpassed climate and increasing educational advantages are so great that inquiries as to homes are already reaching the immigration department."

RAISE TOBACCO AND LIVE STOCK

The Farmers Fight Weevil by Abandoning Cotton.

Selma—Present indications conform with the culture and sale of tobacco and the raising of live stock will be the mode by which the farmers of central Alabama will fight the bol weevil when that pest reaches this section.

Just a few years ago there were but one or two patches of tobacco to be found in any part of Dallas county or central Alabama. Today nearly every farmer in this section of the state has given some study to the raising of tobacco, even if he has not yet attempted to grow any. Upon a number of farms in different parts of the county during the past two years tobacco has been raised successfully. In most of these instances two crops have been raised, and in one or two cases as many as three crops a year have been gathered.

SUES SISTERS.

Aaron Bresler Aks $10,000 for Loss of Sleep.

Tuscumbia—Aaron Bresler filed suit in the circuit court against his sisters, Rosa Stiner, Cella Weinbaum, Sophia Clelland and Mamie Bresler, asking for $30,000 damages. The suit grows out of a recent inquiry into the sanity of Bresler, which was made at the instigation of the four sisters and which resulted in a verdict declaring Bresler to be sane.

The plaintiff is his own counsel, wrote his own complaint and will prosecute the case himself before the jury. In his complaint he said:

"The plaintiff asks $10,000 for false imprisonment and further claims of the defendants the further sum of $10,000 for vexation and being placed in the county jail and being caged like a beast and not a human being. The plaintiff further claims of the defendants the further sum of $10,000 damages for the loss of sleep."

The Alabama Press Association has been called to meet in Montgomery, November 29 and 30, at which time the annual convention of the Alabama Commercial and Industrial association will also be held. In calling for a meeting of the newspaper men, President McLane Tilton of Pell City has announced that immigration will be the general topic to be considered.

Receipts of the department of agriculture for the month of October show that the sum of $3185 was collected during the 31 days, as opposed to $2472 collected during the same month of 1909. The difference in receipts is due to a fewer number of registration of brands.

The surveyors for the proposed Selma and Cahaba Valley railroad are in camp near this city. About $5,00 will be extended in making the survey and the next road is said to be a certainty.

ALABAMA BOOSTERS.

Commercial Organizations to Meet November 29 and 30.

Montgomery.—Alabama boosters are promised a great time on the occasion of the gathering in this city of the commercial organizations of Alabama, session to be held November 29-30. All arrangements have been completed for the meetings and business men of Alabama have been urged to be on hand to make the occasion one of the greatest in the history of the commonwealth.

As planned by the promoters at the session, steps wil be taken to thoroughly advertise Alabama, and in all probability a fund will be established for the purpose of advertising the resources of the state. In such an event it is quite probable that a committee from the various visiting clubs will be appointed to look after the disbursements and to get the most good from the money put into the venture.

SEIZE LIQUOR BY CARLOAD.

War on Drinking in Alabama Continues—Railroads Hands Off.

Birmingham.—On warrants sworn out before Judge Fort of the criminal court by C. W. Austin, former chief of police, and one of the active reformers of the city, Deputy Sheriffs Chew and Cowin confiscated five carloads of beer in railroad yards consigned to different people here. A carload of whisky was confiscated.

The railroads have been notified not to remove the stuff until the court has passed on the matter of destruction. The railroads claim that their duties as common carriers have not been completed and that they are not responsible for the contents of the consignments.

R. J. LOWE IS DEAD.

Was Prominent in Alabama Affairs for Many Years.

Montgomery.—Hon. Robert J. Lowe, one time prominent in Alabama politics, died at his home in Eufaula. Mr. Lowe's death was the result of two strokes of paralysis within four months.

Robert J. Lowe was of a pioneer Alabama family, which had been distinguished for three generations in the Tennessee valley. His grandfather, Gen. G. M. Lowe, was president of the branch bank at Huntsville, and prominent in Alabama affairs in the earliest days of the state. William Manning Lowe, the father of Robert J. Lowe, was for many years a dominant figure in the political affairs of Madison county. He served as solicitor and his several contests for congress in that district atttracted the attention of the entire state. Rober J. Lowe inherited from him the dash and brilliancy which characterized him in public life. The elder Lowe was noted for the same courage and eloquence which won Robert J. Lowe such reputation in Alabama politics as a young man.

Birmingham.—Five white men met almost instant death in mine No. 1 of the Yolande Coal and Coke company, at Yolande, about thirty miles south of Birmingham, in Tuscaloosa, when a pocket of gas became ignited from a naked open lamp. The victims of the explosion were: Dan Thomas, Jas. Walker, Mark Creek, Fred Steele and Len Grant.

Montgomery. — Fire destroyed the buildings occupied by John L. Cobbs & Co., dry goods and carpets, and the Alabama Bible society. The estimated loss is $60,000, John L. Cobbs & Co. suffering about $50,000 loss, covered by insurance and the Bible society $8,000.

Montgomery.—Dr. H. G. Perry of Greensboro has been appointed by the Rockefeller hookworm commission of Washington, D. C., as general field agent in the Alabama campaign to be waged against hookworm infection. Dr. Perry will have general supervision of the six or eight field workers, who have been selected by Dr. W. W. Dinsmore, the executive head of the state hookworm commission.

As every cattle man of experience knows, it is useless to undertake to raise cattle in Alabama as long as the cattle tick is allowed to exist. A government quarantine against all Alabama cattle prohibits the raising of cattle for commercial purposes. Cattle shipped from Alabama are discounted from 20 to 30 per cent by reason of the existence of the cattle or Texas fever tick. It means an annual loss to Alabama of not less than $2,000,000, and Alabama has not been classed as a cattle raising state, at that.

Daniel Collier, recent candidate for judge of the Sixth judicial circuit, has filed with the secretary of state a statement of his campaign expenses. The report issued by Judge Collier showed that the total expenses of his campaign amounted to $1,086.

Birmingham.—On account of the strenuous campaign which the city is waging for pure milk, it is announced that many dairymen, rather than erect sanitary barns and dairies, are preparing to move to other cities.

Huntsville. — Fire destroyed the Huntsville Hotel and damaged other property to the extent of about $130,000. No lives were lost, although several guests in the hotel had narrow escapes. It is the most destructive fire in the history of the city.

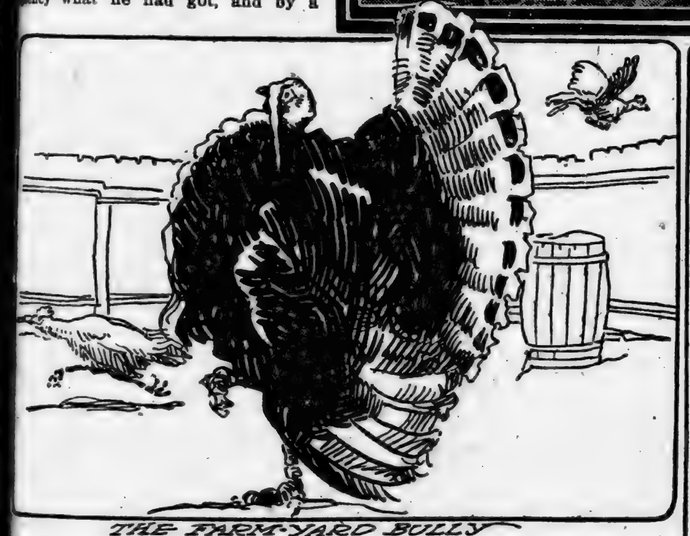
The BIRD of the SEASON

by Frank Finn



THANKSGIVING without the turkey is almost unthinkable. For this great bird, which has become inseparably associated with the season of Thanksgiving, is peculiarly an American bird and as much an American institution as Thanksgiving day itself. Within the reach of poor and rich alike, the great national bird is the principal feature of the feasting which is an important part of the festivities of the day.

The fact is, of course, that turkeys don't come from Turkey, and were unknown before the discovery of America, in the north of which continent the wild turkey still roams in unrestrained freedom, though not, alas, in undiminished numbers.

When the enterprising Spaniards began to explore the resources of the new world that Columbus had opened out for them, they found that the natives had tamed a big bird, which they regarded as a sort of peacock; and it was not long after the discovery of America that the new bird made his appearance in European poultry yards.

Great must have been the disgust of the original occupants of these when the invader appeared. For one thing he was much bigger than any of them, and could look down on them in the most literal sense. He was also fully aware of the importance of his expensive personality and lost no time in impressing it on all and sundry. The peacock, who had reigned supreme both as an artist in feeding and as a table delicacy—the Romans used to talk of having "ham and peacock" as we would speak of ham and turkey—found himself confronted with a rival who made up for inferiority of plumage by displaying with much greater energy and frequency what he had got, and by a way of expression which nothing in the animal world can equal.

THE FARM-YARD BULLY

It is all very well to talk of the wonderful mobility of the human countenance, sensitive to every change in the emotions of the soul; it is nothing to the turkey cock's. See him elongate his nose till it comes down to his chest, and observe the number of double chins he can produce to add to his importance if he wishes to impose on a presumptuous rooster or to impress a fair young turkey pullet.

Then, as to blushing, there was no debutante ever floated on the social sea who could blush as her gobbler can; his complexion plays through all shades between livid blue and ghastly white to a lively scarlet, and, taken in connection with the changes in his features, makes him a quick-change artist of the first order, before whom the chameleon collapses ashamed.

If anybody wants to practise drawing portraits, let them get hold of a turkey gobbler for a glitter, and if they can succeed in getting his features properly fixed on canvas I will undertake they will find anyone else's easy in comparison.

But it is not only in the display of his charms that the turkey proclaims his advantage over the world of our feathered dependents; his stentorian gobbling arrests the attention of all.

The said gobbling, by the way, has given rise to the only bit of folk-lore about the turkey that I know of. Being an American, he is too modern to have legends associated with him as a rule; but Indian Mohammedans profess to hear in the turkey's voice a blasphemous mockery of their creed as spoken in Arabic. Hence, when a turkey has to be killed in India, the native takes a cruel pleasure in executing it by cutting out its impious tongue; and so widely spread is the belief, that a little native boy, a retainer of an animal dealer in Calcutta, replied to me, when I asked him—just by way of trying his knowledge—the name of an American curassow bird that was in the yard, "That is a turkey, sahib, but it does not repeat the creed!"

What with strutting and gobbling himself, and both proving congenial to the gobbling proceedings instituted by human beings, the turkey fairly distanced the poultry world in general, and actually ousted the goose, the most ancient member of the poultry association and the savior of Rome, from popular estimation as a holiday dish. The turkey is a good type of the product of his native continent in more ways than one, and some Americans, impressed by the fact that the bird's emblem, the white-headed eagle, is not only a "bird of freedom," but a freebooter, robbing the respectable fishhawk of his catch, and generally playing the needy sharper, have claimed that the turkey would better represent the United States, and he certainly better suits the ideals of an eminently practical people.

Go-ahead as he is in his methods, however, the turkey gets "scored off" now and then. A century or so ago, when geese and turkeys used in the absence of present-day facilities for transport to be driven long distances on the roads, a couple of noble sportsmen laid a wager as to the speed of turkeys and geese over a course which it would take a matter of days to traverse. Each nobleman was provided with a little flock of four of the fowls of his fancy, and of course betting was high in favor of the turkeys. And at first they seemed to justify their backers, for they soon stalked away from their waddling rivals and left them far behind. So things went on all day, but as dusk came on the aristocratic turkey herd found his charges becoming passive resisters, and displaying an incurable desire to go to roost—no amount of coaxing would propel them farther. Meanwhile the despised geese, with whom night and day were not of any very great importance, waddled sedately past, and ultimately won the race with plenty to spare. It was pretty nearly the old tale of the hare and tortoise over again, in fact.

I have known the farmyard bully pretty well beaten on two occasions myself—tragically so, in fact. One of the most valued possessions of the Calcutta animal dealer I have mentioned was a fawn-colored European-bred turkey, whose color much commended it in his eyes, since turkeys of this hue seem not to be found in India. This privileged fowl used to circulate about his master's chair, strutting and gobbling; and though he often resented the entrance of natives into the compound he respected Europeans, a piece of discrimination one does not expect in a being of such limited intelligence as a turkey. Another inmate of the menagerie was a young cassowary, and he wrought the turkey's downfall; for, coming into the compound one day, I missed the ginger-hued gobbler, and asked what had become of him.

"Ah, my poor turkey!" said the dealer; "he gave cheek to the cassowary, and the cassowary kicked him and burst his bag!" It sounded as if the impudent bird had been collapsed like a toy balloon, but I did not inquire into details.

The dealer, however, consoled himself with a pair of local turkeys of the ordinary dark color, and the gobbler was beginning to take the place of his deceased predecessor in the esteem of the menagerie, when he also met his end from a far different adversary. This was a gamecock of some Indian breed, the most blackguardly looking fowl I have ever set eyes upon, with beetling eyebrows, a bulldog type of beak and pillar-like legs, his athletic proportions set off by very tight-fitting plumage. However, he was only a fowl, thought the two turkeys, and with Oriental indifference to the rules of fair play they both set out to tackle him together. The gamecock acquitted himself in a manner worthy of his breed, and bowled them over with one blow apiece. Perhaps his natural magnanimity—for chanticleer is seldom anything but a gentleman—made him lenient with the hen; at any rate, she was only "knocked silly." But he gave her husband a fair knock-out blow; gripping his wattle with the bulldog bill, he brought the columnar shanks down on the bulky adversary's neck with such force that, when I saw the defeated bully he was sitting in a state of paralytic collapse, and not long after ingloriously expired.

Such is the part the turkey plays as a tame bird—a pretentious and pushing person who occasionally collapses ignominiously. Nor are his aspect and career as a wild bird different, for he is one of the few creatures which have altered very little in domestication; and though he may be regarded as the premier bird of America, and gains a certain amount of dignity and consideration thereby, there is a comic element in his performances and misfortunes which robs him of the dignity of the feathered nobles of the older world. The blackguardly tendencies which, seen in domestication, have caused some people to suggest that he is called a turkey because he behaves like the proverbial unspeakable Turk, are in full swing in his wild ancestor, who is altogether born in sin. His wife, or wives—for he is an inveterate polygamist, even in his primitive condition—have to keep their infant poults out of his way, or he will crack their little heads for them; and when he conquers and slays a rival gobbler, he tramples him when he is down and done for. His courtship is every bit as absurd in the wilds as it is in the farmyard, and ancient turkey dowagers emulate his absurdities in strutting to win his regard, though the pullets maintain a proper modesty of demeanor. Moreover, the wily hunter brings about his downfall in ways which make him look undignified—no other bird is lured to his end in such queerly discreditable ways.

One is to call him up within shot by imitating the voice of her he loves for the time being. On a small pipe, often made of a turkey's own drumstick bone, the sportsman imitates what he ungallantly calls the "yelp" of the hen turkey, and the infatuated gobbler, lured by the soft invitation, is often decoyed within range. To his credit be it said, however, he displays a fine ear, and if he detects anything suspiciously insincere in the accents of the concealed charmer, it will be a clever impersonator who gets him to answer another matrimonial advertisement for that season at all events.

Another plan is the turkey trap, which is a pen made of logs and entered by a trench, across which there is a bridge just inside the entrance. A train of corn leads the turkeys into this, and when they are inside and have eaten up all the corn, it never occurs to them to stoop under the bridge beneath which they passed in, but they continue to wander round and round till the trapper comes and gathers them in—a proceeding which does not argue any great amount of intelligence on their part.

One can even get a turkey by hunting him with a dog, circumstances being favorable. The said circumstances are the fact of the turkey's being a little way off from their woodland retreat, feeding out on the prairie, and one's dog being a greyhound; moreover, one's horse should know how to go. The turkey, even when wild, is not a long-distance flier, but he has not sense enough to remember this when he finds his foes between him and the wood, and tries to fly straight away from the pursuing hound instead of turning about overhead and coming back to cover. After about a mile he has had enough of flying and takes to his legs, only to find that his four-legged opponent is close behind, and he must perforce take to the air again. But this time his flight is not for so long a distance, and he is ignominiously "run into," a victim of misplaced confidence in himself as an aeroplane.

Let us be thankful that we have got the turkey as he is, with all his comic extravagances, and that in one respect, at all events, he can challenge comparison with many worthier people; his last appearance is always creditable, and no one can deny that he cuts up well!

Cause for Thankfulness.

Thanksgiving day is the one day in the year when the nation turns to heaven in thanks for its preservation. The life of the nation is the principal consideration; not only its life, but its health, and its preservation in that condition in which it was established by the fathers of the country. Man can thank God for their own accumulations or supplements him to lighten their burdens, but that is not the purpose of a national thanksgiving. The nation must, the political existence which was framed and handed down to it by the generations of the past which the present generation participates

The Latest New York and Paris Creations.

There's nothing to compare with KNOWLEDGE.

Knowing how to BUY is as great an art as knowing how to SELL.

We know both arts; we BUY wisely, we sell economically.

We spent two weeks in New York City inspecting styles, in order that you might have the latest from the most fashionable city in the world.

Our stock of Ladies' Furnishings is more complete this year than that shown by any other place between Montgomery and Birmingham.

We bought in New York at New York prices; we are going to sell in Clanton at UNPRECEDENTED prices.

Mrs. Breeden, a skilled trimmer of Nashville, who learned her trade under the masters of the larger cities and who assisted us in New York, will be with us this year to give you the benefit of her knowledge and skill.

There is nothing in the millinery art that cannot be found at our place.

Come to see our beautiful display—never before equalled in Clanton.

Your poll tax is NOW due; have you PAID it?

Have you PAID your poll tax? It's DUE. You want to vote? Then PAY.

When last heard of Teddy was saying, "I have nothing to say." Oh, that he may continue to say it!

Dreams of a new press, a better paper, and a better service interfere with health giving sleep. Its worse than a boy's dream of Santa Claus.

The recent sudden death of Senator Clay of Georgia puts the wise acres again to thinking. Who will it be, a Brown man or a Smith man? Odds on the former.

Did any one ever hear of a pig pen being a preventive of typhoid fever? We have considerable fever in Clanton and lots of pig pens.

Woodrow Wilson, Harmon, Dix and Fox make it appear that there's going to be a merry scamper down the presidential lane real soon.

Has the waterworks question died entirely, or are we just waiting till the long, hot summer to come, and then say, "How bad we need waterworks?" Let's get at it now.

The Ellen N. is to put on another fast train between Montgomery and Nashville. It comes through Clanton at night, and will have no necessity far yelping and screaming and screeching. Wonder if it will?

A certain man said on a certain occasion that "If the Press man was on to his job he could have gotten the democratic nominees in a certain book." Was he on, Mr. Man? Echo answers—was he?

Judge Deason, we are going to ride you over the coals if you don't give us some good roads in this county during your administration. Progressiveness stands for good roads, and good roads stand for progressiveness. Think of that.

The first duty of an officer is to himself—to discharge his duty well. His second duty is to the people—to discharge it courageously, without favor or fear. His last duty is to his enemies—to discharge that duty unflinchingly and yet with mercy.

If we could turn the compliments we have received into CASH we'd install at least two Mergenthalers and a triple deck press. But we are modest, we'll be satisfied with just an ordinary "all print at home." And we'll have it!

By paying your poll tax you get in line for next time. By neglecting it you help to forfeit what we have already won. Do it now! The tax collector will not ask for it. Its not his business to do so. You tell him you want to pay.

Did you vote in the recent general election? No! Remember, it was your own fault. The tax collector is not required to demand poll tax. The probability is he will not ask for it. Speak up! Tell him you want to pay! Get in line for the next fight. Don't forget that February 1st is the extreme limit—therefore PAY NOW.

The Press has in store for its friends—democrats, republicans and socialists alike—a scheme which we know will be enthusiastically received, especially by our former friends. We're going to put it "on tap" January 1st and 'twill be a hummer. Watch for it for you will appreciate it and strive for it.

The political index points to the prediction that Governor Brown, of Georgia, will give the senatorial appointment to ex-Governor Terrell to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Clay, who died suddenly last week; or rather, he will appoint Terrell to serve till the legislature of Georgia meets in June of next year, when a successor will be elected.

Some are going to criticise us for cutting off their papers. Before you criticise harshly remember that we have sent out over three hundred free copies each week for three months, or thirty six hundred extra copies. We did it gladly and wish we could continue, but the horse we feed won't wear green goggles, and consequently we can't feed him on shavings and call it hay. If your paper doesn't come next week remember its because you failed to order it continued. Don't blame us. We wish you would tell us to send it some more.

We are printing this week several cards of thanks written by the successful candidates. Surely they ought to arrange a Thanksgiving service, if no one else will.

Clanton is suffering with, or from a seige of typhoid. We have no desire or intention to criticse anyone, but it occurs to us that medical science says a pig pen is not conducive to convalescence of a typhoid patient. It also suggests that pig pens do not prevent typhoid, and Clanton has lots of pig pens! Can the city council—won't the city council—if it will not stop the whistles, won't it abate the pig pen nuisance and thus protect the citizens? What say you Mr. Mayor? What say you gentlemen of the council? Point them out? Yes—yonder and here and there and across the way—east, west, north, south and in the center. Point them out! Why certainly. Just look!

We have in this issue of the paper the letters of Congressman-Elect Hon. Fred L. Blackmon, Probate Judge-Elect Hon. E. B. Deason and Sheriff-Elect Hon. B. L. Jones, in which each expresses his heartfelt thanks to the people of Chilton for their support in the recent election. We have no doubt that these expressions of thanks come from sincere hearts. It means much to these men to have been elected to office. It means much to the people of Chilton to have them come out and openly express their thanks and show their appreciation. Now, let's all get behind the men to whom we have entrusted the affairs of the county and the district, and assist them to not only "make good," but to give us the very best administration we have ever had.

LEST YOU FORGET.

The recent election demonstrated the fact that there were more than five hundred voters in Chilton county who had voluntarily disfranchised themselves. A large part of our people seem to think that this is an evil clause in the constitution of the state It is an error to think so. No white man is debarred of voting if he pays his poll tax. That is a very small condition which the state asks the voter to comply with in order to fit himself for assisting in the selection of state, county and town officers. If you refuse, neglect or forget to pay your poll tax it is your own fault and not the fault of the state. You would not blame the state if you refused to eat your dinner and should become hungry about four o'clock in the afternoon. The same reasoning holds true in each case; therefore, if you want to be in line and prepare yourself to assist in the selection of county and state officers pay your poll tax now. There will be other elections and if your poll tax is not paid you cannot vote. It is not the business of the tax collector to force the payment of poll taxes or even to insist upon it or so much as to ask for it. An election for tax assessor, tax collector, superintendent of education and commissioners is not very far off. GET READY. PAY YOUR POLL TAXES.

Judge Deason Has a Word.

To the People of Chilton county.

The campaign is over the election is past and you have by your votes placed me in the office of judge of Probate of your county for which I desire to thank you most heartily. During the campaign I made but one promise and that was to treat all people right should I be elected.

The office belongs to the people and my best efforts and all my energy shall be expended to give you an administration of the affairs of the office with equal justice to all, democrats, republicans, socialists and independents.

I am grateful to my friends for their enthusiastic support; to those who opposed me I have no word of censure; in me they will find an officer who shall at all times strive to give them an administration that will meet with their approval.

Again thanking you for the confidence reposed in me, I am, Yours cordially, E. B. DEASON.

General News

A NEW LUMBER COMPANY.

There is soon to be a new lumber company in Chilton as a candidate for public favor. The company is to be known as the T. C. McSwain Lumber company and will have its headquarters at Mountain Creek when it first launches the enterprise but expects in the near future to move its offices and perhaps its plant, to Clanton. The new firm will conduct a general lumber business looking especially to the furnishing of railroad lumber. The Press is now busily engaged in fitting them out with handsome stationery. We wish the new firm all manner of success.

To the Citizens of the Fourth Congressional District of Alabama:

I desire to sincerely thank you for the able and earnest support given me in my race for congress. The large majority you gave me I regard as an evidence of your faith in my ability to represent the district and I wish to assure each and every one who supported me that it shall by my earnest effort to so conduct myself as to give you no cause to regret the confidence which you have reposed in me. My best efforts shall be directed to securing such legislation as will protect the best interests of the masses of the peope.

I trust that each and every citizen, whether he supported me or not, will not hesitate to freely and frankly call my attention to any and all matters which appear to affect the interest of our people, and each and every suggestion made to me will receive careful and earnest consideration.

Again thanking you I beg to remain, Most respectfully, your humble servant, FRED L. BLACKMON.

THE TEEL MONUMENT

A Beautiful Tribute By Governor Seed to the Memory of a Departed Brother Woodman.

On last Sunday afternoon as per announcement made in the Press the local lodge of Woodmen met to pay honor to the memory of their departed brother, Benjamin F. Teel, whom everybody loved and respected.

The members of the lodge, some fifty or more, formed a line of march at the lodge rooms and under the leadership of Mr. J. P. Van Deerver, Mr. H. T. Pipes acting as grand marshall, they went directly to the cemetery, where a large gathering of citizens had congregated in anticipation of the beautiful ceremony of unveiling the monument erected by the Woodmen to the memory of Mr. Teel. Reaching the grave, the Woodmen formed a circle around the grave. Just to the right of the grace a stand had been erected for the speaker—Governor Seed, and for the members of the Teel family. Coming to a half at the proper command, the lodge members joined in singing "Nearer My God to Thee," at the conclusion of which Dr. E. A. Matthews read that part of the lodge ritual which tells of the custom adopted by the lodge in erecting monuments to its departed members and explaining the significance of the ceremony.

When Dr. Matthews had concluded his reading the male quartette rendered "Shall We Gather at the River," in a very touching manner. Then Miss Ione Crow was introduced and in a most masterly manner recited "O, Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" Miss Crow's rendition of this philosophic, yet truthful piece, was superb in the extreme. She held her auditors from the beginning to the end and every ear was turned to her that not a sylable should be missed. After this came the unveiling of the handsome shaft which had been placed at the head of the grave. It is an extremely handsome monument with suitable inscriptions and the emblems of the lodge graven thereon.

The quartette then sang "Jesus Lover of my Soul," and the further ceremony of the lodge in dedicating the monument was conducted by Dr. Matthews and his assistants.

Governor Seed was then introduced and in a most eloquent address paid tribute to the memory of Mr. Seed as a man, a skilled mechanic and as a fraternity member. Governor Seeds' address was replete with beautiful sentences, sound reasoning and touching appeals.

The ceremony ended the vast throng of friends and loved ones returned to their homes impressed with the fact that in the death of Ben Teel all had lost a true friend, the family a devoted husband and father and the lodge which paid tribute to his memory a member whose place will be difficult to supply.

Mr. Lee Hayes presented to the editor of The Press this week a stalk of sugar cane that was grown on his place. The stalk contained sixteen well-developed joints, and was of unusual size.

There was a persistent rumor on the streets all the early part of the week that Mr. W. A. Reynolds, of Jemison and Thorsby, had called a meeting of his creditors to take place at Jemison today with a view to adjusting his indebtedness. There is no doubt that the meeting is called for some purpose affecting the business affairs of Mr. Reynolds, but until the exact nature of the meeting develops The Press prefers to remain quiet. We wish to do Mr. Reynolds no injustice, hence we refrain from any comment whatever.

Mr. David Vines, of Maplesville, was in Clanton on last Tuesday.

Notice.

The Philathea Class of the Baptist church will meet with Miss Florence Hopkins Friday evening, November 17, 1910, at 7 o'clock. Every member is requested to be present.

MISS EMMA GWINN, President.

Miss Jessie Mae Lewis, who has been on a visit to the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ruffin for the past several days, returned to her home in Prattville on Wednesday, much to the regret of her Clanton friends.

Miss Alee Stewart, the "mascot" of the democratic party in Chilton—the young lady who "did the work," and who has been on a visit to friends and relatives in Birmingham since the close of the campaign, has returned home and is receiving the congratulations of her candidates and their friends. Miss Stewart will be glad to see her friends at the court house after the "inauguration."

Mr. J. P. Parrish, one of Chilton's substantial citizens, has removed his family to East Lake, Birmingham, where he will make his future home. Chilton dislikes to give up her citizens, and especially such as Mr. Parrish and his estimable family. He remarked when leaving, "Don't forget to send The Press to my new address. I can't get along without it."

Notice.

On account of the illness of Mrs. W. M. McDaniel, the mother of Mrs. Simpson, who is president of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, the play scheduled to be given on next Friday night, "The Old Maids' Convention" has been postponed. Further notice will be given later.

LADIES OF BAPTIST CHURCH TO HAVE BAZAAR.

Cakes and Candies and Holiday Presents.

The ladies of the Aid Society of the Baptist church desire to announce to their friends and the general public that on Tuesday, November 23 next, both day and night, they will have a bazaar on the second floor of the Eugene Evans store building. They will serve all kinds of good things to eat and sell lots of beautiful things for the home and for holiday gifts. Cakes and candies can be had in abundance, and those who are too busy to prepare for the Thanksgiving dinner are requested to send in their orders now so that they can be filled without delay or disappointment. Don't forget the pretty things that are to be sold. Space forbids mention of the articles. You must come to see them.

The bazaar will continue into the night.

Bring the little ones during the day; bring the old ones during the night. Help a worthy cause and at the same time enjoy yourself.

House Moving.

Miss Rosa Thornton is having the rear end of her dwelling house, consisting of six rooms, moved to the west corner of the Thornton lot. The home when completed will be occupied as a residence by Mr. John Culp and family. The original Thornton home will remain on the old site, and will be occupied as heretofore.

Election Freaks—Strange Associations.

The recent election brought forth some peculiar combinations. For instance, Mr. Enoch Hayes was elected commissioner by a margin of one vote, defeating his republican opponent by the narrowest margin possible.

Mr. Green Retherford was defeated by the casting of one vote for his opponent rather than for him. The change of one vote would have landed Mr. Retherford in the commissioner's chair, whereas Mr. Shaw gets the place, and will be the republican representative from the First district.

Mr. Archie Mahan was proclaimed the victor in the race for representative, and even his opponent, Mr. Popwell, admitted his defeat. The final count disclosed the fact that Mr. Popwell had won by five votes. In this connection it is well to say that at the Thorsby box Mr. Mahan is reported to have received 44 votes. The election returns show that the figures had been changed by the inspectors. The last figure shows plainly that it was either a four originally, and then changed to a nine, or else it was a nine originally and then changed to a four. If it was a four, and then changed to a nine, Mr. Mahan was elected; if, on the contrary, it was a nine, and then changed to a four, Mr. Popwell was elected. The canvassing board called it a four, and, to make sure, asked Judge Reynolds later on during the count, to show them his returns in order that they might verify the figures, but he had retired for the night, or was otherwise engaged, and did not show his returns; hence Mr. Popwell was declared elected. It is worthy of mention that several people at Thorsby who kept memoranda of the returns have the vote received by Mr. Mahan as 49. However, there is no going behind the returns, and Mr. Mahan will not, perhaps, grace the seat in the House of Representatives. It is well to learn a lesson just here: Don't be in too big a hurry to conclude your labors as inspectors. Much depends upon your accuracy, and your interests in making out the returns. It is hard to undo [illegible] by declaring in favor of [illegible] returns are [illegible] Mahan [illegible] if those Thorsby figures had been distinctly and clearly made it would settle much doubt.

Another strange feature of the election is that Mr. Simpson lost by the unlucky thirteen. Then again over at Pletchers, where the governor on the democratic ticket received a neat vote, the lieutenant-governor received but a small vote; whereas, the republican lieutenant-governor received a vote equal to that of the democratic governor.

All this goes to show that the figures were entered in the wrong column. It does not affect the general result at all, but it might have done so in a close race. Be careful, boys, next time. You see one vote put in one man; one vote put out one man.

A Card of Appreciation.

To Our Friends:

We wish to extend our sincere appreciation of the kindness shown us during the illness and subsequent death of our dear little Mary Wood Hyman. These acts of thoughtfulness and kindness shall ever be remembered by us with feelings of deepest gratitude.

May the God of all mercy and love shower His blessings upon each of you. Respectfully,

DR. AND MRS. E. G. HYMAN.

Seriously Ill.

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch will regret to learn that just as Mrs. Upchurch was recovering from an attack of typhoid fever their little daughter was stricken with the disease, and is now suffering intensely from the ravages of fever. All hope and pray for the speedy and entire recovery of the little lady, as well as of her mother.

A Precious Child Stricken in Death.

Some days since little Mary Wood Hyman, the 3-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Hyman, was stricken with that dread disease so fatal to children, diphtheria. All that loving hearts or tender skillful hands could do for the darling one was done willingly, gladly, cheerfully; yet the Master had need of her to decorate His crown with another bright jewel, and he called the spirit of Mary Wood Hyman to shine in the diadem of the King.

On Tuesday night she breathed her last upon earth and opened her precious little eyes in the presence of her Lord.

Tender hands laid her precious little body to rest at Jemison to await the resurrection morn.

To the bereaved parents, the Press, in common with their host of friends, extend heartfelt sympathy in this their sad hour.

Painting the Church.

Messrs. Potts and Nix are busily engaged in putting a new coat of paint on the Methodist church and otherwise adding to its appearance. The windows of the church were recently repaired, so that with the coming of the winter season everything there will be as neat as a pin and as snug as a bug in a rug.

Sheriff Jones Returns Thanks.

Mr. Editor:

Please give me a small space in your paper to say to my friends that I am deeply grateful to them for their untiring energy and faithful support. I appreciate more than I can express the confidence which my fellow citizens have reposed in me. I promise one and all that I shall conduct the office to which they have elected me on a high plane, and that I shall exert my best efforts to meet the hearty approval of every one, regardless of political faith.

Again, my fellow citizens, I thank you. Respectfully,

BOWEN L. JONES.

The Sunday school and preaching service last Sabbath were attended by a large crowd. Several visitors were present. Rev. Mr. Lewis, of Plantersville, preached a most inspiring sermon.

The Merrymakers' Club was entertained last Friday evening by Miss Beulah Garner. Parlor games were the features of the evening's amusements. Delicious cream and cake was served. After a couple of hours most pleasantly spent, the guests bid their fair hostess adieu.

Mrs. F. S. Connell and Miss Mollie Reynolds made a trip to Selma last week, making several purchases.

Miss Leigh Ella Parnell, of Montgomery, made a week-end visit to her parents here last week.

On last Thursday morning just after the work at the mill had begun, a negro workman accidentally fell upon one of the running belts and was torn asunder, thus causing two deaths at the same mill within a week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Johnson made a flying trip to the Capital City last week.

Mr. Luther Gay's absence from Sunday school last week was noted.

Mr. Perry Stewart is on the sick list this week.

Little Ethlyn Reynolds is improving very rapidly, much to the delight of her many friends.

CONTRIBUTOR.

MOUNTAIN CREEK (SOLDIERS' HOME.)

Our poll turned out all right, as you already know, but you do not know that we voted all of the Home who were qualified except one lone soldier, who was sick in bed.

We are now enjoying the satisfaction of work well done and the triumph of the people's cause, and we are confident that our choice of county officers will be justified by their conduct in office.

We wish to offer congratulations to you and your paper for the excellent manner in which the campaign was conducted and the fine results that were attained.

May Chilton county bloom and flourish. Yours,

WILLIAM BELL.

Scary Dreams

"I was so weak and nervous, I could hardly be up," writes Mrs. Dora Stauffer, of Wily, Va., "and I could hardly bear the noise of my own children. Often, I would lie awake at night, and I had such scary dreams! I fell off a great deal in weight, and grew very weak. Inside of one week, after I began to take Cardui, my pains were better, and in three weeks I felt like another woman. I feel it my duty to recommend Cardui to all suffering women."

Cardui is a pure, vegetable medicine, with genuine curative powers, and acts so gently as to be without bad after-effects on young or old.

COOK IS DISCREDITED BY ESKIMO GUIDES

ESKIMOS SAY DOCTOR COOK DID NOT REACH NORTH POLE.

STORY OF HIS COMPANIONS

Story of Trip in Arctic Regions Told to Missionaries by Eskimo Guides.

Chicago.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook was further discredited in a special dispatch to the Chicago Daily News from its correspondent in Copenhagen, Denmark. The story was the first publication of the report of Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, as sent by him to his wife in Copenhagen and now given out by her. This is the story of the Eskimos as given in the dispatch:

"We traveled from Annatook with eight sledges in company with Doctor Cook, at the first sunshine (February). From there to Ellesmere we slept only once on the ice. It took four days to cross the Ellesmere land. Eighteen days out our companions left us. We had gone only about twelve English miles from land.

"The ice was fine, and there was no reason to stop, for any one who wanted to go on could do so. The 19th day Doctor Cook took observations with an instrument he held in his hand, and we then changed our course westward.

We left here a lot of food for men and dogs and one of us (Itukusuk) went ahead to examine the ice. He reported it in good shape, which it was, but Doctor Cook looked at it and said it was bad.

"On the way back we stopped at open water near the land. We stopped one day and went over to Ringnas island, but the snow had melted (April). We had not had the least fog on the ice. At this time the sun was just below the horizon at night. It was the month when it does not get dark (March). Later, when near Axel Heibert Land, we passed two days in a fog.

"One day I (Apilak) came upon Doctor Cook sitting down drawing a map. I looked at it and asked him:

"'Whose route are you drawing?'

"'My own,' replied Doctor Cook.

"But that was a lie, because he drew the map a long way out at sea, where we never had been.

"We continued to shoot bears on the ice till we had enough for the dogs. We do not know how many nights we slept on this part of the journey. The small rivers had only begun to break when we reached Hellsgate.

"Here, as Doctor Cook directed us, we left our dogs behind us, although they were fat from the meat of bears. We crossed the great sound and had to push our boat along the ice. Doctor Cook said:

"'We will reach human beings (Baffins Land) within tw odays.

"We had slept twice when he looked ahead and said that he saw a tent, but it was only a stone. We kept hunting for human beings a long time. Then we came to an island on which eider birds were nesting. We followed the land past Cape Sparbo, and when our provisions were nearly gone we returned toward Cape Seddon, at which place we arranged for wintering.

"It was yet twilgiht the whole night, and we built a house of peat and stone, just as we do at home. We caught walrus, musk ox and bear for the winter. With the bow we killed only two hares. We had a gun to kill musk ox and bear with. To kill a musk ox with a bow is impossible. It was a fine autumn and we had good provisions for the winter.

"During the dark time we were inside most of the time making clothes. Doctor Cook made clothes and wrote all the time. At first sight of the sun we started home.

"Doctor Cook, during the journey, promised us a good reward, but he proved himself a liar and swindled us out of payment. We did not get the guns he promised us. Those he sold for fur skin. He gave us only a knife and some matches and a useless boat.

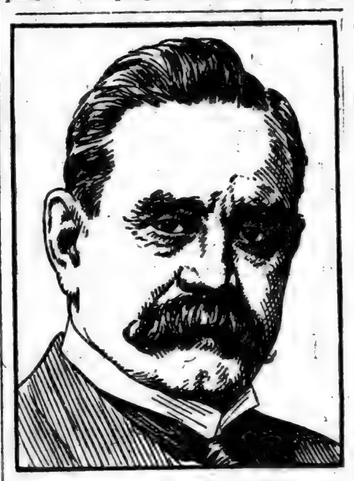
"This is all we, Itukusuk and Apilak, have to tell of our journey with the great Doctor Cook."

Prosper Berckmans Deand.

Augusta, Ga.—P. J. A. Berckmans, a noted horticulturist, entomologist and pomologist, died here in his 81st year.

He was president of the National Pomological society, vice president of the International Pomological society with headquarters in Paris; president of the Georgia Horticultural society, and the Georgia Entomological society, and a member or officer in every similar society of note in this country and some abroad. He was a native of Belgium.

84 Killed in Mine Horror.



Delagua, Col.—Through two openings scarcely 200 yards apart the dead and living were taken from the Delagua mines of the Victor-American Fuel company at the same time, but the dead far outnumbered the living. Fifty-one are known to be dead as the result of the explosion, while thirty-seven escaped alive. Forty persons are believed to have been in the mine.

DICKINSON IS PLEASED.

Secretary of War Busy Preparing Report on Trip Around the World.

Washington.—Secretary Dickinson was at his desk in the War department busily engaged in the preparation of a report upon his trip around the world, with special reference to conditions in the Philippines. This he expects to have ready for submission to the President upon the return of the latter from the Isthmus.

The secretary was well pleased with the situation he found in the Philippines. The people, he said, were generally satisfied and prospering. An attempt was made to elicit his views upon the subject of independence for the archipelago, but he made it clear that the matter was one beyond his authority to discuss.

JACOB M. DICKINSON
Secretary of War.

The secretary was particularly well pleased with the development of the judiciary, and he spoke in terms of high praise of the prisons, which, he said, were worthy of imitation by some of the most advanced countries. The army, as a whole, was found to be enjoying good health.

Work on the fortifications of Manila harbor is progressing rapidly. The principal point of defence is Corregidor island at the entrance.

NO MORE CENSUS RECOUNTS

Director Durand Makes Announcement Regarding Census.

Washington.—No more re-enumerations of populations will be made in connection with the thirteenth census unless on account of fraud. This announcement was made by Director Durand of the census bureau. He was speaking of the demand of Baltimore for a recount, but the statement was made as of general as well as of special application.

"We simply must have the aggregate figures by the time congress meets in December," said Mr. Durand.

FOUR WOMEN LEGISLATORS.

Four Women Were Elected to the Colorado Assembly.

Denver, Col.—Four women will sit in the eighteenth general assembly of Colorado as a result of the recent elections. They are Alma Lafferty, Louise U. Jones and Louise M. Kerwin, all elected representatives from Denver districts on the Democratic ticket, and Agnes Riddle, Republican, representing Adams, Arapahoe and Elbert counties.

In the last general assembly Mrs. Lafferty, who was re-elected, was the only woman representative. There are no women senators.

One Killed in Auto Accident.

Camilla, Ga.—In an automobile accident which occurred one mile from here on the Camilla and Moultrie road, W. John Everett of Pelham was instantly killed and Hon. C. L. Taylor of this place was seriously injured. Taylor, who owns the machine, and was driving, seems to have lost control of the car, which jumped over an embankment, striking a pine tree with terrific force. Everett was thrown against the tree, his neck and shoulder being broken.

With the amount already secured the delegation which will leave for Washington within a few days will be able to offer a bid of $17,500,000 for the privilege of holding the exposition.

Rome, Ga., Joins in Express Fight.

Rome, Ga.—Dissatisfied with the rates, service and policy of the Southern Express company, the Manufacturers and Merchants' association of Floyd county has joined with organizations over the country in a petition for investigation by the interstate commerce commission of the rates and practices of the express companies of the United States. The petition is headed by the commercial organizations of New York and Boston, and is joined by those of every large city in the United States.

Wealthy Woman in Prison.

Wheeling, W. A heart tonic, blood and body-builder that has stood the test for over 40 years of cures is

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The heart becomes regular as clock-work. The blood corpuscles are increased in number—and the nerves in turn are well fed. The arteries are filled with good rich blood. That is why nervous dizziness, irritability, fainting spells, disappear and are overcome by this alterative extract of medicinal roots put up by Dr. Pierce without the use of alcohol. Ask your neighbor. Many have been cured of scrofulous conditions, ulcers, "fever-sores," white swellings, etc., by using Dr. Pierce's Discovery. Just the refreshing and vitalizing tonic needed after excessive tissue waste, in convalescence from fevers or for run-down, emaciated, thin-blooded people. Stick to this safe and sane remedy and refuse all substitutes "as good" kinds offered by the dealer who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing will do you half as much good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

DRINK WATER TO CURE KIDNEYS AND RHEUMATISM

The People Do Not Drink Enough Water to Keep Healthy, Says Well-Known Authority.

"The numerous cases of kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine, has been neglected.

Stop loading your system with medicines and cure-alls; but get on the water wagon. If you are really sick, why, of course, take the proper medicines—plain, common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach."

To cure Rheumatism you must make the kidneys do their work; they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized so it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all, you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions you can do no better than take the following prescription: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargun, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often.

This valuable information and simple prescription should be posted up in each household and read at the first sign of sickness or rheumatism. Druggists can obtain ordinary ingredients as mentioned.

CURES RHEUMATISM

Immediate relief from pain follows use of Mexican Mustang Liniment. It soaks in to the bone. Read the positive statement:

Mr. E. C. Ford, of Rome, Ga., writes: "I was in bed three months suffering fully from inflammatory rheumatism, everything I could think of without relief until I struck Mexican Mustang Liniment. After using three bottles I was right. I rubbed the liniment in thoroughly and it did the work. There is no doubt whatever as to the curative properties of the liniment properly and frequently applied and well rubbed in. It works equally well on man or beast."

God Will Be God For All That

By REV. F. FINCHER, Pastor Second Presbyterian Church, Houston, Texas

Text.—Thus did God render the wickedness of Abimeleck—and all the evil of men of Sechem did God render upon their heads.—Judges 9:55, 59.

Our text reads, "Thus did God render the wickedness of Abimeleck—and all the evil of the men of Shechem did God render upon their heads."

"The mills of the gods grind slow but they grind exceedingly small," History keeps on repeating this truth. Back of all the mystery of human deeds is the ruling of a mighty hand. Abimeleck learned this to his sorrow. He had gained his throne by murder and ruled with hands dyed in blood. But evil hunts for the wicked to overthrow him. One of his own number conspired for his ruin and the story of his fall by a stone hurled from a woman's hand is graphically told in this chapter. Our text merely gives the reason why: "God will be God for all that," is here sounded forth in words that can not die.

Let us learn first that God rules over all and no wrong shall ever go unpunished. All dealings with men have also their deal with God. There are three parties to every transaction, God, myself and my brother man and none can be left out. In wronging my brother I wrong God and the wrong shall not go unrequited. History repeats this story over and over. "Be sure your sin will find you out." Abimeleck was no exception. The blood of his seventy brethren was crying out for vengeance. His fall was inevitable. This truth needs added emphasis today. Many are amassing wealth by means foul or fair, regardless of law either that of man or God. But there shall surely come a day of reckoning, not only from men, but God Himself shall set right every wrong. Vengeance may be slow, but it is nevertheless sure.

The crime of murder is fast on the increase. Statistics show that a large per cent of the guilty go free. But there is yet a sterner Judge from whose law no guilty one shall escape.

Then again our text shows how men reap what they sow. Abimeleck had gained his throne by murdering all who stood in his way and now he falls by a murderer's hand. "He that sows to the wind shall reap the whirlwind." A life of sin must end in a life of shame. A man's conduct always comes back to him. Jacob deceived his father and in his old age he reaps the sorrow of deceit and falsehood at the hands of his eleven sons. The man who swindles to make his fortune will most surely reap loss and ruin at the swindler's hand.

Note also that God carries on His purpose despite the sin of those entrusted with power. God will still be God after all, and He is the last one with whom we must reckon. We shall not be able to foil His purpose nor thwart His plan. Our resistance shall only become our ruin. Abimelech found it so. Might could not make right and error shall not stand. That man or nation that persists in wrongdoing God shall set aside and it shall fall. We call ours a great nation and it is, but we have some grievous sins laid to our charge. Our civilization is fast leaving God out and has little regard for His eternal law. We often weigh with a false weight and sell with a false measure. Right is often changed to suit the occasion while men in high places set up false standards. Let us be sure that all this graft and greed and wrong shall become our undoing for we are dealing with God as well as with man. If we continue to resist and break His law He shall cause the destroyer to rise up in our midst, and though we fall His purpose shall go evenly on.

Then, again, I think this text clearly teaches that God will most surely care for His own. Those who trust Him shall never be forsaken. In the end our cause shall triumph because it is God's cause. Not so much it is because God is on our side, but rather because we are on the side that God upholds and makes to triumph. He will care for us though all else shall fail. Though, like Elijah, we seem all alone, God's tender care shall be our constant stay. While we trust and obey Him the cruse of oil shall not fail nor shall the bread be exhausted. He shall ever keep us in the hollow of His hand.

Church Attendance.

The best preparation for life any young man can have who, from college or high school, or otherwise, enters the wider arena of the world's life is a church-going habit. Such a habit is a steadying force in the young man's life, and brings him periodically into contact with the uplifting forces and sweeter influences, disseminated through the church, which go to make existence intellectually intelligible and morally worth while. Few young men will go utterly to the bad who keep up the church-going habit.—Congregationalist.

Worlds to Conquer.

Let us not be satisfied with the petty little provinces of pleasure and sin. Let us not spend our time dreaming of better things outside, but let us by faith act on noble principles and live for highest ideals. This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.—Bishop F. J. Spalding, Salt Lake City.

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

Health Completely Restored After Case Was Pronounced Incurable.

Mrs. J. Tilghman Wright, 519 Goldsborough St., Easton, Md., says: "I cannot begin to describe my suffering from Bright's disease. I constantly felt as if I were dying. My back pained me intensely and was so weak that for weeks I could not walk across the floor. My condition became critical and physicians pronounced me incurable. I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills as a last resort and soon received relief. When I began with them I weighed only 64 pounds. I now weigh 109 pounds and feel like a new woman."

Remember the name—Doan's.

Looking After the Eggs.

Lady Betty, who is four years old and never misses a trick, was taken the other evening to a restaurant for her supper, and with all the importance and sprightly dignity of her years calmly ordered poached eggs on toast. While the little family group was awaiting its service the "kiddie" amused herself by looking out of the window, pressing against a screen to get a closer view of something below. She was warned by her mother that the screen might give way and let her fall to the sidewalk, perhaps injuring her terribly. She drew away, thought a minute, and then said naively: "Would I fall if the screen went out?" "You certainly would," was her mother's reply. "And would I get awful hurted?" "Very likely." "Then what would the man do with the eggs?"

PUTS STOMACHS IN ORDER.

No Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Dyspepsia Five Minutes After Taking a Little Diapepsin.

There should not be a case of indigestion, dyspepsia or gastritis here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest, acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odors from the breath.

If your stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest, and your meal don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any druggist here in town, and make life worth living. Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and besides, one fifty-cent case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Pape's Diapepsin, which will always either at daytime or during night, relieve your sick, sour, gassy, upset stomach and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

The Limit.

"John, I want to buy some gloves—will you give me a check?"

"Sure—how much can you do with?"

"How much have you got in the bank?"

With the advent of the telephone, the old "working nights at the office" excuse has been given a permanent vacation.

THOUGHT ONLY OF THE GAME

Filial Affection Lost Sight of by the Small but Enthusiastic Lover of Football.

Among the spectators at a match between the Blackburn Rovers and the Olympic was a little lad about nine years of age. Though the boy's knowledge of the game may have been limited, his notion of correct play was extremely robust.

"Go it, 'Lympic," he yelled. "Rush 'em off their pins. Clatter 'em. Jump on their chests. Bowl 'em over. Good for yer. Mow 'em down. Scatter 'em, 'Lympic."

When his parent neatly "grassed" one of the opposing forwards, the youngster expressed approval by bawling, "Good fer yer, owd 'en," adding proudly to the spectors, "Feyther 'ad 'im sweet."

"Yes," said a hearer, "but he'll get killed before the game's finished."

"I don't care a carrot if he does," said the boy.—London Tit-Bits.

An Exciting Town.

Los Angeles is a truly exciting town to live in. To say nothing of its heavenly climate and its bombs, there is always something stimulating in the occult line going on. Just the other day a widow of the angelic city began to long for a sight of one of her schoolmates whom she had not seen for 45 years. The longing brought its fulfillment. A spirit told her to look for him in Brooklyn. She obeyed, met him on the street a few hours after she arrived, and promptly married him. It is worth while to live in a city where things like this happen, even at the risk of being blown up now and then.

A Touch of Family Life.

When the country youth proposed to the city girl, he received the conventional assurance that she would be his sister. It happened that this youth had sisters at home and knew exactly his privileges. So he kissed her. At this juncture she availed herself of the sisterly right to call out to father that brother was teasing her. Father responded in good, muscular earnest. Then the new brother-and-sister relation was dissolved by mutual consent.—Judge.

Lost Forever.

"Ah, you flatterer!" she said, with a pretty pout.

"Do you really think I am a flatterer?" he asked.

"Of course," she replied, with a bewitching smile.

"Well, since you are not to be fooled, I suppose I may as well admit it."

Then she angrily got up and left him.

Easy Marks.

"Talk erbout yore easy marks," said Uncle Silas Geehaw, who had been passing a week in the city, "us rubes ain't in it with them air teown chaps."

"Did yew sell 'em enny gold bricks, Silas?" queried old Daddy Squashneck.

"Naw, I didn't," answered Uncle Silas, "but I seed a feller peddlin' artificial ice—hed th' sign right on his wagon—an' blamed of th' chumps didn't buy it for the real thing, by grass!"

Baton's Peculiar Course.

The writer once attended a concert at Brussels. During the performance of a rhapsody of Brahms, M. Closson, who was conducting, got rather demonstrative at a certain point in the composition. He made a sweeping pass with his baton; it struck the desk, escaped from his hand, and flew across the hall in an elegant curve, to fall at last at the feet of the German Ambassardor.

About all a school teacher gets out of her great education is that after she becomes old, she knows more to find fault with than other people."

There are times when the still, small voice of conscience seems tongue-tied.

Have You Tried?

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? We can furnish positive proof that it has made many remarkable cures after all other means had failed.

Women who are suffering with some form of female illness should consider this.

As such evidence read these two unsolicited testimonial letters. We guarantee they are genuine and honest statements of facts.

Cresson, Pa.—"Five years ago I had a bad fall, and hurt myself inwardly. I was under a doctor's care for nine weeks, and when I stopped I grew worse again. I sent for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, took it as directed, and now I am a stout, hearty woman."—Mrs. Ella E. Aikey, Cresson, Pa.

Baird, Wash.—"A year ago I was sick with kidney and bladder troubles and female weakness. The doctors gave me up. All they could do was to just let me go as easily as possible. I was advised by friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier. I am completely cured of my ills, and I am nearly sixty years old."—Mrs. Sarah Leighton, Baird, Wash.

Evidence like the above is abundant showing that the derangements of the female organism which breed all kinds of miserable feelings and which ordinary practice does not cure, are the very disorders that give way to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are afflicted with similar troubles, after reading two such letters as the above, should be encouraged to try this wonderfully helpful remedy.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

WAS NOT A BEAUTY LECTURE

Timid Little Woman Found Herself Seeking Dress Hints at Federation of Club Women.

"The conservation of the natural resources of this country is one of the paramount issues before the American people today and—"

The speaker adjusted her nose glasses, raised her eyes confidently from her manuscript to meet the expressions of approval from the thirty or more clubwomen of Iowa, says the Des Moines Register and Leader. It was a stupendous statement and well worth readjustment of one's pose for the dramatic effect. The speaker, who stopped now and then to look up from the script, was neatly but severely tailored, her hear was brushed carefully and not unbecomingly from her high brow. There was not a curl nor a ripple of a marcel wave. Higher education was writ large.

A little woman on the back seat in common clothes, seamed face and hard hands fidgeted and looked startled at such an intellectual outburst.

"Excuse me, mum," she ventured timidly, as she nudged her neighbor, "is this Mme. Xo's beauty lecture?"

"It is not," was the grim rejoinder. "It is the annual meeting of the official board and chairmen of standing committees of the Iowa Federation of Club Women."

"Mercy!" ejaculated the woman out of place. Then she "scooted."

SCOLDING FOR SUMMER GIRLS

Irate Vicar in England Denounces Their Costumes as Mussed and Immodest, and Blames Motor Cars.

"For some weeks past we have enjoyed the presence of summer visitors. But who devises their clothing?" Thus writes the vicar of Carisbrooke, Isle of Wight, in his parish magazine, says a recent London dispatch to the New York Tribune. He continues: "We can remember a time when the English girl was a most attractive creature. Look at Leech's pictures in the old numbers of Punch—pretty, tasteful and bright, they were a pleasure to look at.

"But the 1910 female seems either to be wrapped up in a bundle of rags, with the least clean one spread over her hat and tied under her chin, or else she discards as much of her clothing as she can—leaves her hat at home and gets her head full of dust; exposes her chest to every wind that blows, displays ankles that show the solidity of her understanding, runs about the island half-clad, crumpled and dust-laden. Is it to convey the impression that they have all traveled in motors?

"But the motorist deserves a line to himself. He represents the last arrogance of wealth. He comes hooting, squeaking, bellowing, tinkling, roaring or whistling with a piercing scream, to tell everybody to get out of the way."

Women in Holland Prisons.

There are now less than 200 women in the prisons of Holland, according to Dr. Simon von der Aa, who for 50 years has been the chief of administration of prisons in that country.

"During my administration three prisons for women have been closed for lack of inmates," declared Dr. von der Aa. "There are two reasons for this decrease of criminal women. One is the growth of social work. There are societies without number not only to rescue the fallen but to help the poor and suffering. The other reason is simply the fact that women are allowed to work and support themselves honorably. I am convinced that the industrial freedom of women is keeping them out of prison in Holland."

QUEER JAP ROOSTER

Breed Which Has Tail Over Twelve Feet Long.

Barnyard Marvels Prove What Scientific Selection Can Do—Birds Result of Century's Evolution and Careful Breeding.

Tokyo, Japan.—The long tailed cocks of Japan are striking proof of what selection, scientifically carried out, can do. It has taken a century to evolve these remarkable birds with abnormal tails from the ordinary farm yard cock and hen. The cocks hail from Shinowara, a village near Kochi, in the Isle of Shikoku. Some of them are white; others are of different colors. The feathers forming the tail, which number from fifteen to twenty-four, measure from seven and a half to more than twelve feet long. Their roots, it need scarcely be said, are very much stronger than those of the tail feathers of an ordinary cock. The feathers, growing on either side of the body and hanging over the tail, reach to a length of three and a quarter feet.

That the long tail may not be damaged, and may have ample opportunity to grow, each bird is kept in a high, narrow cage, lighted at the top only, as, if the bottom were lighted, the bird would stay there, and so, in all probability, damage its much prized tail feathers. The bird remains on its perch all day long, and is allowed outside its cage only once in two days, when it walks for half an hour, a man holding its tail from the dirt during its promenade. Once or twice a month it is washed in warm water, and dried by being exposed to the sun and air on some elevated spot, such as the roof of a house. It is fed on rice, the husk of which is retained, and on cabbage, and has an exceptional amount of water to drink.

When it is necessary to transport a bird it is placed in a long, narrow box, akin to that in which the Japanese are wont to roll their pictures. The tail feathers are bent as little as possible and find a place in a special compartment in the box. The hens of this breed in no sense rival the cocks in beauty of plumage, but they are fine birds nevertheless. They lay about thirty eggs each year, but are deemed too aristocratic to sit; this work is performed for them by hens whose mission in life is less exalted.

Where Country Girls Make Good.

New York.—The frivolous girl doesn't stand a show when it comes to working in a telephone office. "Though there was a time," says an official of a New York company, "when telephone girls, whether they merited it or not, were not classed with the serious, hard workers of the community. Rather they were a synonym of trifling, unbusiness-like behavior. That day is past.

"Today recruits to the service must have not only a fair education, considerable intelligence and a wide-awake, alert manner, but they must show a first-class aptitude for attending strictly to business in business hours.

"The country girl is bound to make good as a general thing. She is deadly in earnest, her manners are good and what she may lack in alertness at first is more than offset by her dogged perseverance.

"There are New York girls who conceive the idea of taking up telephone work who make a splendid impression at first by their intelligence and alertness, but who haven't the patience enough to go through the school, nor purpose enough to master the complexities of the work.

A FAMOUS POLITICAL LEADER

Prominent National Figure Passed in the Death of David Bennett Hill.

Albany, N. Y.—A distinguished lawyer and statesman, who for many years was a prominent figure before the people of the nation, passed away in the death of ex-Gov. and ex-Senator David Bennett Hill, at his home near this city. Mr. Hill for many years was one of the leading Democrats in the country and his influence was felt in shaping the policies of his party. He was active and influential in many state and national campaigns and was a prominent candidate for the presidential nomination in 1892.

Mr. Hill was born in Havana, Chemung county, in 1843, and began the study of law in his native village. In 1863 he removed to Elmira and after his admission to the bar the following year rose rapidly in his profession. He soon entered politics and his advance was rapid, for he had a marked taste and adaptability for political life. In 1864 he became city attorney of Elmira, then entered the assembly, where he served two terms, and later was elected mayor. In 1882 he was elected lieutenant governor and on Cleveland's resignation of the governorship, in January, 1885, to assume the duties of the presidential office, Hill succeeded him and rounded out the term. In 1885 and again in 1888 he was elected governor, serving in all a period of seven years—a record surpassed by only three governors in the history of the state. In 1891 he was elected United States senator and the following years was a candidate for the presidency against Grover Cleveland. In the senate he played a prominent part, chiefly in connection with the proposed income tax law, which he opposed strenuously. In 1894, against his wishes, he became the Democratic candidate for gover nor and was beaten. When he left the senate he withdrew practically from politics and since then Mr. Hill had devoted himself to his legal profession.

PLACE WHERE PITT LIVED

Noted English Statesman's Home Where It Is Said Britain Really Lost America.

London.—North End Place, which was recently sold at public auction, should be an object of great interest to Americans. Perhaps if William Pitt, earl of Chatham, had not retired to this fine old-fashioned residence, but remained at the head of his political party, the Boston tea duties never would have been imposed and the English flag might now be flying over the whole North American continent.

In 1767, when the great statesman was seized with an unaccountable illness, he shut himself up in this house. His last days here have a wonderful resemblance to the closing chapter of Stevenson's story, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." To the consternation of his ministers, Pitt did not put in an appearance when parliament met. Occasionally he would drive about Hampstead Heath in a closed carriage, but most of his time he spent completely secluded in a tiny room at the top of the house. All his meals were conveyed to him through a hole in the wall, closed by a door on either side. He refused to see any one, even his own attendant, who never would open the hatchway to shove in the food unless the door was closed on the other side of the wall.

Where Pitt Lived.

The house is a fascinating old structure, with various modern additions, situated 400 feet above sea level in the most beautiful suburb of London. Its interior abounds with fine oak paneling and quaint staircases. With its magnificent views over London and its wide-data connections this house is an ideal home, to which the rather gruesome memory of Pitt only adds a piquant historical association.

A LOVABLE WOMAN

Queen Amelie of Portugal Most Unfairly Treated.

Woman of Many Sorrows and Tragedies Who Devoted Herself to the People—Charities Were Her Only Extravagance.

Lisbon.—Perhaps there is not in all Europe today a more pathetic figure than Queen Amelie. Brave she has proved herself to be often, but there is something about the calm intrepid spirit with which she has faced this latest trouble, which calls forth the deep sympathy of womankind the world over.

After having had her husband and her eldest son slain by her side, in the most shocking fashion, nearly three years ago, and her own remaining boy wounded, she has now been compelled to submit to the loss of her son's throne (that was also her own), and has been driven with him to seek refuge abroad—leaving all their belongings, all their personal treasures, in the hands of the revolutionists.

Born in England at Turkinham on the banks of the Thames—her father, the late Comte de Paris, being banished at the time from France—Amelie will doubtless add one more to that Parisian group of throneless royalties who furnished the inspiration of one of Alphonse Daudet's famous novels.

What Amelie Fears.

Perhaps Queen Amelie's greatest grief in connection with the recent tragic events will be the shattered future of her only remaining son. For all hopes for the future are practically at an end for a monarch who has been deposed by his people. Another source of profound sorrow will be the fact that she will be barred henceforth from that Church of St. Vincent at Lisbon where her murdered husband and eldest son sleep their last sleep.

She will be in doubt, indeed, whether the remains of those so dear to her will not be subjected to some such frightful indignities as those which characterized the last revolutionary outbreak in Barcelona, when the mob having sacked the convents and monasteries, tore the dead monks and nuns from their tombs, paraded them about the city, either whole or piecemeal, exposed them to every sort of outrage, and ended by setting them up in grotesque positions at the ruined entrances of the sacred buildings from which they had been taken.

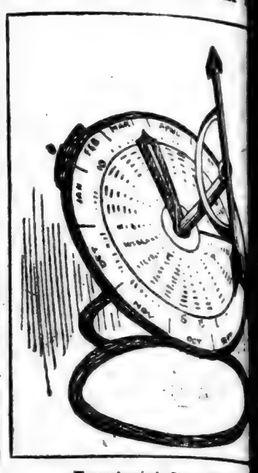
Ever since Amelie's husband and eldest son were assassinated she had lived in utter terror lest her only remaining son, Manuel II., should share their fate. For herself, her own safety and welfare, she cared little. Those who know Amelie realize that when a cruel death claimed her husband on that terrible afternoon in February, 1906, her heart was quite broken, and the only interest left for her in life lay in her son, Manuel. The domestic life of King Carlos and Amelie was utterly unclouded and the queen was the happiest of wives and mothers.

Tried to Help the People.

Amelie has been obliged to submit to seeing the instigators of the murder of King Carlos and the crown prince not only unpunished, but even occupying positions of influence and rank. Indeed, she was brought face to face with them almost daily and had to remain silent for the sake of the young king.

She was debarred from rewarding those who had endeavored to defend her husband on the day of his assassination and could not open a Portuguese paper without finding its columns filled with calumniations of her dead husband, which she was powerless to officially or publicly deny.



Since Amelie, then a slender young woman renowned for her exquisite beauty, came to Portgual a little over 24 years ago, she has done nothing but good. Out of her own personal fortune she has had built and endowed homes for crippled children, orphan asylums, homes for the blind and public dispensaries.

Marie Amelie is possessed of a sufficiently large fortune of her own to have rendered her wholly independent of the Portuguese treasury. Her own extravagances consisted of her many charities, and that from her own purse she returned to the Portuguese government money which it was asserted had been advanced to her husband, the late king, but which he did not in reality owe, it will be realized that Portugal has driven from her soil a wise, good and energetic princess, who spent her entire married life in working for the welfare of her people—a woman toward whom they should be filled with feelings of gratitude.

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.
In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.
In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.
In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.
We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.
But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.
The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.
Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.
Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.
They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries,

Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

The Peoples Supply House

Howdy Do! How Are You?

The much talked-of season of hard time and business depression has failed to arrive; the prophecies of the chronic knocker are wanting in the fulfillment and the dire misfortunes predicted by the ever present calamity howler have died in the borning. Alabama, Chilton county and Clanton, instead of going to the bow-wows, as forecasted by would-be wiseacres, has gone steadily onward upon the road of material development that leads to certain success and abundant prosperity.

We are enjoying the fruits of our labors as never before; the cry of poverty is hushed throughout this heaven blessed section; on every side is heard the tuneful tones of thrift and prosperity. The frugal farmer will not have to draw upon the store house of the West for his corn supply, for the harvest within our own fields is abundant in the extreme.

The cotton producer is satisfied with the results of his labors, and the shining coin which high prices for his staple enables him to secure and jingle in his jeans not only makes a gladsome sound to his ears, but fills his heart with joyful anticipations of a happy Christmas-tide. All things conspire to make his lot a pleasant one indeed.

The Chilton county farmer is fast assuming that place in the economic relations of life which his avocation predestined him to occupy—the front rank, a leader among the advance guard. Long faces have been succeeded by smiling countenances, and mortgaged homes and farms are soon to become happy firesides and productive fields of pleasure. Hard times have been vanquished and prosperity is victorious.

Contentment, peace and plenty are knocking at every door.

We are now entering upon an era of commercial development never heretofore anticipated; a season of rich rewards for honest toil is now dawning and will soon burst with noon-day splendor upon our people.

The farmers are happy, as they should be, for Mother Earth has yielded them rich trophies for their plucking; prices are soaring amid the radiant beauty of the stars; his products are in demand as never before.

Cotton is again King and Corn is the Prince Imperial.

What more could the planter desire to make his cup of gladness overflow?

Farmers of Chilton county, we greet you as the two-fold keepers and producers of our prosperity. You are they who have produced the wealth of our county, and upon your heads we pour our praises in unstinted measure. You have earned your reward and should enjoy the fruits of your labors.

The merchant who has bought wisely and well rejoices at your success.

The cotton buyer whose heart beats in unison with your own delights in the opportunity afforded him to give you good prices for your staple; he who would withhold from you the best and highest the market affords is neither a friend to the farmer nor a wise man of business.

We want you to succeed, because in your success we also shall share.

We have bought not stingily, but well; we have purchased in keeping with your position and your desires; you want the best, therefore we supplied ourselves with the best, that we might accommodate both your taste and your demands.

Desiring to have you make our place headquarters, we have arranged to pay the very top notch for every pound of the fleecy staple brought to our store.

We want to have a hand in your prosperity; we wish to be remembered in your rejoicing.

Come to us with your samples; we will top the market on every occasion; call upon us for your wants; our large and varied stock enables us to meet your every requirement, and at prices that will make you glad for the visit.

We hate the chronic croaker; we despise the knocked and the pessimist. The old world is bright with hope, buoyant with success, happy in plenteous abundance. We want you to know that we rejoice at your season of success; you deserve it, and we hope you will enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Come to see us; your happy faces make us glad indeed.

Come whether you want to buy or sell, both or either or neither. We will be glad to greet you.

We are going to set the gait this year, and those who would keep up with us must clip it off at a merry chase.

Cordially yours,

JOINING LIMBS OF A TREE

Select Two Small Branches Growing Opposite and Twine Them Together Horizontally.

When a tree is small, but with sufficient growth, select two small branches growing opposite and as near the crotch as possible, as shown at A in the sketch, and twine them together horizontally, one overlapping the other as a rope is twisted, leaving the ends free as in B. It will take about a year for nature to join them, writes D. English in Popular Mechanics. Then prune the ends off smooth and in time as the bark expands through the growth of the tree the connection will become as one solid piece, C, thereby binding the limbs together. This method may be used several times in one tree. Trees treated in this manner will not split through rapid growth or by the wind. This method can be applied to all fruit trees except the peach tree.

NO SURPLUS OF GOOD FRUIT

So Great Is Demand for Best Grades of Stock That It Is Always More or Less Scarce.

(By C. R. BARNES.)

It is an interesting fact that the great extension of fruit growing in all parts of the country has been attended, not by a decline in prices, but by a very considerable advance. The question whether or not the multiplication of orchards and berry patches will have the effect of producing a glut, so as to render profitless the labor and expenditures of the fruit grower, seems, then, very likely to meet a negative reply.

In the first place the demand for all the fruits of North America is world-wide. The world's appetite for them is insatiable; and as the facilities for distributing them are better systematized through intelligent cooperative arrangements between growers and transportation agencies, and selling agencies in the city, it seems as though the problem is to be, not how to get rid of surpluses, but how to get enough of any kind of good fruit. In years of great abundance in American apple orchards, good apples have sold in Mexico at 15 cents apiece. In London they have retailed at 25 cents apiece. Other fruits, capable of bearing transportation for long distances, have commanded proportionately high prices. Of course, these prices have been for choice fruit. In New York and Boston, even 10 and 15 cents apiece has been readily obtainable for choice apples.

Such exceptional figures are not, however, necessary as a basis for profitable fruit growing. The moderate prices paid by the mass of American consumers are sufficiently high for that.

It would seem then, that the grower need only see to it that his fruit is of good quality, attractively put up and intelligently marketed, to be certain of a reasonable reward. But the day when neglected orchards and bushes could be depended upon to produce salable crops has passed. The grower of today must be equipped by study for battling with insect pests; must be insistent in cultivation and in the use of the sprayer; and must, in short, give as close attention to his trees as the stockman does to his cattle.

The Pig and the Orchard.

The two go together well. The pig stirs up the soil about the trees, letting in the sunshine and moisture to the roots and fertilizing them, while devouring many grubs that would otherwise prey upon the fruit. But many orchards cannot be fenced and many owners of fenced orchards, even, would like to have the pig confine his efforts around the trunk of each tree. To secure this have four fence panels made and yard the pig for a short time in succession about each tree.

Many Dangers Menace Trees.

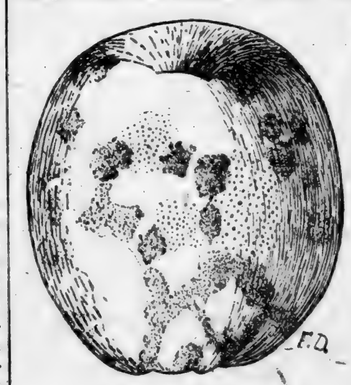
The apple tree has a hard time of it, surely. The Maine station enumerates as many as 88 insects that injure apple trees. Some of these are more serious than others; for instance, San Jose scale and the codling moth [illegible]

SEVERAL ENEMIES OF APPLE

Bitter Rot or Anthracnose Seriously Impairs Both Eating and Keeping Qualities of Fruit.

Bitter Rot or Anthracnose.—In recent years this fungus has been investigated and its survival in the nursery fruits and cankered branches proved.

This bitter-rot is also a ripe rot and the disease develops in the later season and seriously impairs both the eating and keeping qualities.



Attacked by Bitter Rot.

For its control the destruction of all nursery fruits and attention to branch cankers are necessary in addition to the application of sprays. Since we know the life history of the fungus better it has been possible to control bitter-rot successfully under orchard conditions as the annual sources of infection by nursery fruit and cankers have been mastered.

Fly-Speck Fungus.—This disease in ordinary seasons appears chiefly upon apples grown in low, moist situations. During wet seasons some varieties are liable to be spotted by this parasite whatever may be the location of the trees.

Aside from selecting high, sunny situations for the apple orchard, spraying with Bordeaux mixture will prevent this disease.

Storage Rots.—These rots of the apple are extremely various since apples infected before storage are liable to develop during storage the forms of rot due to that infection. Even bitter-rot may not be overlooked in this way and much more commonly still, black-rot and the rots which develop from the gradual invasion of molds. It is found, furthermore, that bruises upon the apple or any tendency to sun scald phenomena give dead tissues in which various organisms that normally hasten decay will do their work with rapidity. It is understood, of course, that the temperatures of storage will regulate or control more or less perfectly the rate of this development.

Growing Berries.

You must not forget that all berries are forest fruits, and generally grow in the shade and are great lovers of moisture.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES

Now is a good time to apply manure to raspberries, currants, gooseberries etc.

As long as the soil remains unfrozen continue to hoe and cultivate the strawberry bed.

All weeds and dead branches should be cleaned out of the small fruit gardens and burned.

Where ground freezing is to be expected straw mulch will protect the roots of the orchard trees.

There is scarcely a farm apple orchard in existence that cannot be renovated to a profitable purpose.

Brush and rubbish left in the orchard is a hiding place for insects, to alone being unsightly and untidy.

Young trees will grow later in the fall than older ones, and the sap-run should be checked as early as possible.

A covey of quail in an orchard will prove a good friend to the grower, because they eat a tremendous number of insects.

Attractive flower beds add much to the charm of the flower garden. Coleus, salvia and phlox are well adapted for bedding purposes.

In the extreme north fruit growers find that it is much better practice to cultivate the orchards from the beginning to the end of the season.

In filling apple barrels, fill until the last layer stands an inch above the chime of the barrel. This ensures solidity when the head is pressed down carefully.

When the ground freezes hard enough to hold up a wagon, is the time to mulch the strawberry bed with straw or marsh hay. Don't be in too big a hurry.

Nabors Case Is a Mistrial.

Birmingham.—After having been out forty-four hours, the jury was discharged and a mistrial was ordered by Judge William E. Fort in the case of William Nabors, charged with having murdered William Young and Harry Wilson by wrecking an L. & N. passenger train at Cunningham switch during last December. The report of the jury was made Monday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. The foreman of the jury announced to the court that there was no possibility of a final agreement on the case. He stated that the jury was divided on the evidence in the case and not on the law. After having questioned the jury as to whether he could assist them by any additional instructions on the law Judge Fort thanked the men and discharged them.

Johnston Gone to Boston.

Huntsville.—James G. Johnston who resigned as agent of Abington Mills here Friday, left for Boston, where he will resume mill work. Mr. Johnston was a prominent member of the lodge of Elks in this city, and was in line for the seat of exalted ruler. He held the office of esteemed leading knight.

Letter Gives Clue.

Huntsville.—J. H. Hodge, one of the escaped prisoners of the Madison county jail, has been recaptured and is now behind the bars. He wrote a letter to a Mrs. Nunnally, who is in jail, charged with providing the saw with which three of the men made their way out of the jail. The jail authorities took possession of the letter and within a few hours had the man. It is believed the other men are hiding in the mountains in Jackson county.

City Abandons Famous Spring.

Huntsville.—The city council has appropriated the sum of $1,000 and placed it at the disposal of a special committee, of which Mayor Smith is chairman, the money to be expended in finding a new water supply for the city. The county commissioners will be asked to contribute a like sum, and if more is needed the business interests will be asked to contribute. This action was taken at the request of the Business Men's Club, the general opinion being that since reports have gone out over the country reflecting upon the big spring, the best thing to be done will be to find another source of water.

Woodmen Unveil Monument.

Florence.—Florence and Oakland camps, Woodmen of the World, unveiled mouments to E. R. and W. T. Whitten, the two brothers killed last summer by lightning. The unveiling took place at 2 o'clock and was attended by about 500 people. The address was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Davidson, pastor of the Oakland circuit, and another address was made by A. A. Williams of Florence. Officers who conducted the unveiling ceremonies were John A. Pruitt master of ceremonies; C. W. Parham, C. C.; John D. Wood, Adv. Lieut.; James F. Koonce, banker. Miss Clara Devaney recited the Woodman poem.

Council Has Awarded Contract.

Huntsville, Ala.—The city council has awarded a contract for cleaning the streets of the city to former Street Superintendent Frank E. Murphy, who will employ a large force of men and teams. This is one of the biggest contracts at the disposal of the council. All the paved streets of the city are to be swept three times each week and all garbage is to be hauled to a point beyond the city limits.

Rats Set Fire to House With Matches.

Gadsden.—Fire, supposed to have been started by rats gnawing matches in a closet, destroyed the home of Van Ventress, on Washington street, this city. Mr. Ventress was badly burned in an unsuccessful effort to recover $140 from the flames. The family escaped from the building with only their night clothing.

$20,000 for Good Roads in Franklin.

Russellville.—Commissioners' court court has been in session for the last ten days. A large portion of the time has been given to the much vexed road question. Increased assessments to the extent of $20,000 were ordered on various parties.

The Texas Oil Company, the largest independent oil company in the world and backed by the millions of Gates and Yoakum interests, is entering the Fayette, Alabama, oil and gas field through the purchase Wednesday of a large block of stock in the Providence Oil and Gas Company by Capt. J. V. Allen and unnamed associates.

Three Killed by Explosion.

Birmingham.—In an explosion at the mines at Banner, in the western part of the county, Wednesday, three men are reported killed, two negroes and one white.

The mines at Banner are operated by the Pratt Consolidated Coal Company and convicts are worked in this place.

A report reached the city that a hundred men had been killed, but at the office of the company it was announced that only three men had lost their lives.

Banks Consolidated.

Anniston.—According to an official announcement made here, the Anniston National and the City National banks will be consolidated on January 1, 1911. Out of the consolidation will grow a state bank and trust company, to be located in the building now occupied by the City National bank. Further than the statement that the object behind the combine the combine is the desire for greater strength the statement of the bankers is brief. The new consolidated institution will be known as the Anniston City National bank. W. H. McKelroy, president of the Anniston National; T. E. Kilby, president of the City National; C. D. Woodruff and Jamse Keith, active vice-presidents, will be officers of the combined institution. According to the last published statements of the two banks they combined resources and liabilities approximate nearly a million and a half dollars, including $150,000 capital, surplus funds amounting to $130,000 and deposits aggregating $634,924.57.

Federation Elects Officers.

Birmingham.—The Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs enters upon a new year with every reason to expect the most brilliant results for the benefit of the organization as a whole, and as an aggregation of individual clubs. The following constitute the full list of newly elected federation officers:

Mrs. J. H. Phillips, Birmingham, president.

Mrs. E. D. Thames, Greenville, first vice-president, re-elected.

Mrs. Wm. C. Fritter, Dothan, second vice-president.

Mrs. Law Lamar, Selma, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Sterling Wood, Birmingham, recording secretary, re-elected.

Mrs. L. J. Haley, Birmingham, auditor, re-elected.

Mrs. W. H. Seymour, Montgomery, state editor, re-elected.

Mrs. Phares Coleman, Montgomery, general federation secretary.

The federation meets next year at Mobile.

Cherry Blooms in Winter.

Anniston.—The orchard of J. R. Perkins at Oxford, south of this city, resembles a Nipponese garden, as he has a number of trees in the orchard that are full of cherry blossoms. Mr. Perkins has been raising cherries for a number of years, but he says this is the first time in his experience that he has witnessed the blossoming of the trees at this time of the year, the phenomenon being unaccountable.

Judgeship in Dispute.

Huntsville.—Attorney General Garber has wired Judge Tancred Betts and Judge James Ballentine, expressing unofficially his opinion that Judge Beets should retain the judgship until January 16. Judge Ballentine believes that he should assume his duties now and the matter will probably be taken into the courts for decision as soon as possible.

Farmer Held Up.

Tuscumbia.—Columbus Duncan, a farmer residing 10 miles east of Tuscumbia, was held up Tuesday evening by two negro highwaymen and robbed of his watch and $8. After securing his values the negroes, who made no attempt at disguise, beat Duncan up considerably. Duncan came to town and reported the affair to Sheriff Mclesky, giving a description of the negroes, but so far they have not been captured.

Big Cotton Gin.

Red Bay.—During the last 50 days the Gober ginnery has baled 727 bales of cotton. This is an ideal plant, erected by Felton Gober & Sons, on the Illinois Central railroad. This company has a large sawmill, grist mill, planing mill and gin combined, and is one of the most complete plants in this section of the country.

Telegraph Office to be Open at Night.

Selma.—According to recent orders issued the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company will in the future keep open all night. The new order went into effect Wednesday night and the keeping open of the office all night will prove a source of great convenience to the company here.

Piedmont Postoffice Robbed.

Anniston.—Every officer in the Anniston district has been furnished with a description of two of the yeggmen who robbed the postoffice at Piedmont, 24 miles north of here, Tuesday night.

Miss Landman Kills Herself.

Huntsville.—Miss Mattie Lee Landman, daughter of the late Wesley Landman, of this county, killed herself at her home on West Holmes street by shooting herself through the heart, and her dead body was found in the front room by her brother, John Landman. Life was extinct when the brother came upon the scene and there was a bullet wound in the left breast near the heart. An inquest was held by Coroner [illegible] and a verdict rendered that the girl came to her death by the hand of [illegible].

$10,000 THE BAPTISTS GET THROUGH WILL

HOOKWORM CAMPAIGN STARTS AT DOTHAN ON THE 29TH.

GILES ELECTED PRESIDENT

Will Test in Courts—Incorporation Paper Filed—Governor's Appointments.

Montgomery.—A bequest of $10,000 from the estate of the late J. C. Bush of Mobile, who left $80,000 to various denominational institutions, was received by the Alabama Baptist Mission Board.

The interest alone can be used and the money will be put away as the nucleus for a larger endowment, the ultimate purpose being to purchase property therewith in Birmingham, Montgomery or some other thriving city of Alabama for headquarters of Alabama Baptists.

Mr. Bush bequeathed $10,000 each to the Mission Board, the Baptist orphanage at Evergreen, Judson College for girls at Marion, and Howard College at East Lake. The remaining $40,000 was left to institutions outside the state.

Mission Board Meeting.

An important meeting of the Baptist State Mission Board has been called by its president, Dr. W. B. Crumpton, to be held in Montgomery. The members of the board are: R. E. Pettus, Huntsville; B. F. Green, Decatur; H. S. D. Mallory, Selma; Dr. C. A. Stakely, Montgomery; Rev. W. J. Elliott, Montgomery; Rev. W. M. Anderson, Woodlawn; G. G. Miles, Montgomery; Dr. W. J. E. Cox, Mobile; W. B. Davidson, Montgomery; Dr. S. O. Dawson, Tuscaloosa; Dr. Preston Blake, Birmingham; Rev. A. S. Smith, Alexander City; L. Lasseter, Montgomery; Dr. A. J. Dickinson, Birmingham; J. B. Ellis, Selma; G. W. Ellis, Montgomery; R. E. Cooper, Oxford; J. W. Miner, Ensley; Rev. S. H. Campbell, Troy; Dr. W. F. Yarbrough, Anniston, and Rev. S. A. Cowan, Montgomery.

Re-Elects Presient.

The Baptist Mission Board of Alabama elected George W. Ellis of Montgomery president, succeeding George G. Hiles of Montgomery. W. B. Davidson and Dr. W. B. Crumpton of Montgomery were re-elected to the record and corresponding secretaryships, respectivaly. The board is engaged executively on appropriations for the year, which will likely be announced later in the day.

Hookworm Campaign Starts.

Formal opening of the Alabama hookworm campaign, under the auspices of the State Health Department, co-operating with the Rockefeller Hookworm Commission, is announced for Dothan, November 29. Previous announcement that the campaign would start at Phoenix City, near Columbus, Ga., should have read a special assignment, inasmuch as the machinery for demolition of the parasite in that section of the state was only put in motion.

On November 29, accordingly, Dr. W. H. Sanders, chairman of the State Board of Health; Dr. W. W. Dinsmore, supervisor of Alabama; Dr. J. K. Orr and Dr. H. G. Perry, field agents, will journey in a body to the Houston county seat, where they will confer with physicians with the end in view of eradicating the pest in that section of the state. Drs. Sanders and Dinsmore will be at Dothan only one day, but Drs. Orr and Perry will be left in charge of the work to undertake a thorough investigation of the invested district.

Governor's Appointments.

The following appointments were announced from the office of Gov. Comer: R. D. Algee of Talladega, to be notary public; Jimmie Hagan of Odenville, to be notary public; J. P. Marchant of Girard, to be notary public; Miss Libby Vaughtn Cloud of Tuscumbia; A. B. Deason of Maplesville, to be notary public and justice of the peace; T. W. Whatley of Calera, to be notary public and justice of the peace.

McBreen Plead Guilty.

Philip L. McBreen of Pittsburg, Pa., until the fall of 1909 employed as a veterinaray surgeon by the United States Department of Agriculture, plead guilty in the federal court today to falsifying his accounts and perjury with reference tot an inspection tour which he made in this county in September, 1909. He was penalized $12.50 and six months in jail in each case. McBreen submitted vouchers to the department that he had paid out $28 for horse and buggy hire. The court did not believe he had a wrongful intent and gave him the lightest penalty.

Incorporation Papers Filed.

The following incorporations were reported to Secretary of State Cyrus B. Brown:

The Turner Radio Company of Tuscaloosa. Authorized capital stock, $5,000; $2,940 paid in. A photographic [illegible] to do photograph [illegible].

Briefs in Automobile Cases Filed.

Briefs have been filed in the supreme court of Alabama in the case of the city of Mobile vs. R. H. Gentry. The case was brought up to the highest state tribunal at the instigation of the Association of Automobile Owners of Mobile, and is regarded in the light of a test case. The question involved is whether or not first class municipal corporations of Alabama have the power to levy a license tax upon private pleasure vehicles under the municipal code of 1907.

The city council of Mobile passed an ordinance in 1909 levying a tax on private pleasure vehicles. Automobile owners, in addition to paying for placards registering their machines, were compelled to pay $7.50 for the pleasure of operating their cars.

R. H. Gentry refused to pay this additional license, and he was arrested and fined in the recorder's court. He appealed his case to the city court, and Judge O. O. Semmes held that the law was invalid, and released the fine against Gentry. The case was then appealed to the state supreme court and the briefs were filed Friday.

Invitation Accepted.

The cordial invitation of Governor Joseph Brown of Georgia and of the Georgia legislature extended to Governor B. B. Comer of Alabama, in which the chief executive of this state is asked to attend the exercises occasioned by the unveiling of the monument at Fort Oglethorpe, November 22, has been accepted. In an interview the Alabama governor states that he has not only accepted the invitation, but that he is looking forward to a good time. The governor is closely identified with Georgia because of the residence in that state of a number of his kinfolk. Several of his nieces and nephews now reside in Savannah, while a brother is a large plantation owner about 50 miles from the Georgia port.

Mobile Aviation Meet.

Montgomery and middle Alabama in general are much intgrested in the aviation meet which is to be held in Mobile during the week beginning Monday, November 21. The fact that Glenn Curtiss is to have some of his expert birdmen at the Gulf City to take part in the contests of fair week will send a liberal delegation to that city from the central and southern portions of the state.

Bush is Momber Board of Control.

Gen. J. W. Bush, of Birmingham, has been appointed by Governor Comer a member of the board of control of the Old Soldiers' Home for the Ninth Congressional district, vice Capt. W. C. Ward, deceased. General Bush is a well known attorney and Confederate veteran, prominent in both circles. He is capable and will give the position to which he has been appointed every attention. General Bush is one of the most active and leading officers of the Fourth brigade, United Confederate Veterans.

O'Neal Visits Comer.

Affairs of state were discussed in the office of Gov. B. B. Comer at the capitol on Friday, when Gov.-elect Emmet O'Neal was closeted with the chief executive for more than an hour in a careful review of the work now going on in the state. The incoming governor and the outgoing executive met in the most cordial spirit, and chatted away pleasantly during the whole of the visit.

Unique Bond Granted.

Judge Armstead Brown of the city court of Montgomery on Saturday granted an appeal bond to Calvin Johnson, a negro train porter, who is under conviction on the charge of felony. The granting of the bond is the first of the kind to be allowed in the history of the Montgomery city court, and is permitted under a comparatively new statute which provides such a bond in cases where the punishment cannot exceed five years.

Work Will Be Begun.

President Charles G. Abercrombie, of the Alabama Traction Company, has signed the contract for the rails and crossties to be used in the construction of the new electric line which is to operate in Montgomery. Just as soon as these rails and ties arrive, the work of construction will begin, and, according to report the work will continue uninterruptedly until the whole line is completed. The work of construction will first begin on Lee street, starting from the union depot.

Will Test in Court.

Friendly proceedings between the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and the city authorities of Montgomery will be instituted in the courts with a view of determining positively whether or not the railroad has a legal right to lay a water main across Lafayette street from the plant of the Citizens' Light, Heat and Power Company into the yards of the road for the purpose of conveying river water to its boilers.

Chief Clerk W. F. Feagin of the State Department of Education has received word from Marengo county that the voters of that county have stamped their approval upon the one mill tax for educational purposes, having cast their ballots in the election of last week for the levy to hold good for 10 years. At the same time the voters [illegible] for the issuance of $[illegible] in bonds for the erection of [illegible] in the county.

"Lame Leg Well"

"I wish to say that I have used Sloan's Liniment on a lame leg that has given me much trouble for six months. It was so bad that I couldn't walk sometimes for a week. I tried doctors' medicine and had a rubber bandage for my leg, and bought everything that I heard of, but they all did me no good, until at last I was persuaded to try Sloan's Liniment. There is a story of a man who was so transported with joy as he stood up at the altar rail to be married, that his thoughts reverted to a day when he stood up at the prisoner's bar in a court of justice to plead "guilty" or "not guilty" to a criminal charge. So powerfully did that, the most painful event of his life, obtrude itself upon his mind, that when the clergyman put the question, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" and so on, the poor distracted bridegroom answered with startling distinctness, "Not guilty, so help me God!"—From Tuckerman's "Personal Recollections."

AN EFFECTIVE HOME MADE KIDNEY AND BACKACHE CURE

Easily Prepared Medicine Which is Said to Regulate the Kidneys and End Backache.

To make up enough of the "Dandelion Mixture" which is claimed to be a prompt cure for Backache and Kidney and Bladder trouble, get from any good Prescription Pharmacist one-half ounce fluid extract Dandelion; one ounce Kargon Compound and three ounces Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Those who have tried it say it acts gently but thoroughly on the Kidneys and entire urinary system, relieving the most severe Backache at once.

A well-known medical authority recommends the prescription to be taken the moment you suspect any Kidney, Bladder or Urinary disorder or feel a constant dull Backache, or if the urine is thick, cloudy, offensive or full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a scalding sensation; or for too frequent urination during the night.

This is a real, harmless vegetable mixture which could not cause injury to anyone and the relief which is said to immediately follow its use is a revelation to men and women who suffer from Backache, Kidney trouble or any form of Urinary disorder.

Just two more weeks of the PIANO contest. If you are going to get busy you had better be stirring now.

Christmas is not far off. Mr. Merchant, are you telling the people what you have to offer them for that occasion?

Unless the next Congress limits the membership of the House to four hundred, which now seems probable, Jefferson county will become a Congressional district.

The "contestants" had a meeting Tuesday, but are not giving out any "news" for publication. Perhaps when they view the situation in the broad light of FACTS they will be willing to let well enough alone.

The South will be in the saddle in the next House. Most of the important committees will be headed by Southern men. Like Chilton county, the South is again coming into her own.

The letter of Judge Honeycutt, which appears this week, is an evidence of the genuineness of our former letters. Will any one deny the authenticity of this week's letter?

Discouragement and disappointment are the things that have come to this editor more than once. Perhaps he was born to it, and yet we are not so much a Presbyterian as to believe that these difficulties may not be overcome.

Don't forget that today is Thanksgiving. You may not have much to be thankful for in so far as your neighbor is concerned, but remember that God has been wonderfully kind to you. Rejoice and be glad. Return thanks.

We called attention last week to the large number of pig pens in the city limits. We also called attention to the number of typhoid cases in the homes here. So far as we have been able to ascertain, the pig pen nuisance has not been abated. What about it, Mr. Health Officer?

The report current upon the streets that some of the republican candidates are going to "contest" is merely the whistle of a boy to keep his courage up. It amounts to nothing. When they start the contest Arkie Mahan will go to the legislature and Green Retherford will occupy a seat in the commissioners' court.

We feel sure that our friends and patrons will pardon us for reproducing something of the good things that are occasionally said about The Press and its editor. During the campaign both were under fire and received some body blows that were hard to take. Now that the election is over and our position vindicated, it sounds good to hear a fellow like Will Yerby, of the Greensboro Watchman, say a kind thing or two about this editor. We have known Will Yerby since school days, and when he says a thing in his paper you can rest assured that he is at least sincere; he believes that what he says is true, hence it makes us feel good to have nice things said of us by him. Here is the article from the Watchman:

"Chilton county, after being under republican rule for the past twenty years, has come back to the democratic fold. We congratulate Chilton county, and especially our friend, Felix Wood, editor of The Clanton Press. Without his able and efficient aid as editor, we are sure Chilton county would yet be under republican domination. He was a live wire throughout the entire campaign."—Watchman.

MR. RETHERFORD RETURNS THANKS.

Jemison, Ala., Nov. 21, 1910.

Editor Press:

Please permit me through your paper to return to my friends and supporters my sincere gratitude for the magnificent vote given me in the recent election. I wish to say that if it ever comes my way I stand ready and willing to help my friends and the democratic party in any way they or it may see fit to command me. Again thanking you all, and wishing you each and every one a happy Thanksgiving, a merry Christmas and a glad New Year, I am,

Your friend, sincerely,

G. D. RETHERFORD.

Don't forget that Upchurch Drug Company has rented headquarters to Santa Claus for this season, and will handle all kinds of Christmas goods. tf

The Discordant Note

By TEMPLE BAILEY

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press)

Dushane lying lazily on the marble bench by the fountain could see Julia as she swept down the long shaded walk with the vista of the terraced gardens at the end. She was in shimmering green with a necklace and belt of turquoise. Behind her strutted a peacock with outspread tail. Dushane's artistic eye gloated over the perfection of the picture. "You beauties," he murmured under his breath.

Julia, coming nearer, said, "I knew I should find you here. You are always lazy in the afternoons. Other men play tennis—but you—" She shrugged her shoulders.

"Would you like to have me play tennis—now?" he asked.

She shook her head.

"No, you may talk to me."

"What shall I talk about?"

She gave him a swift glance. "As if you didn't know," she murmured.

He knew what she wanted. He had always paid homage to her beauty, and she liked to bask in the sunshine of his compliments.

Somehow he felt not in the mood to give her what she desired. A weariness had come over him, a sense of incompleteness. He had planned today to ask Julia to marry him, and now that the moment had arrived, he had no desire to speak.

Even as he hesitated the peacock raised his head and gave a harsh cry. Julia put her hands over her ears. "He is such a beauty," she said, "who would have dreamed that he could give forth such an evil sound?"

It flashed through Dushane's mind, as she sat there, touching her shining hair, setting the blue stones at her neck, making a thousand little ineffective feminine movements, that she was not unlike the peacock preening itself in the sunshine. At his silence she pouted. "You're not interesting," she said, "I am going to leave you and find somebody who can talk."

He let her go, wondering why he did so, yet held from the declaration of his feelings by some intuition. When he was again alone he became conscious of a little sound in the stillness; a soft song sung in a quavering voice. He rose, followed the sound, and came upon a little summer house set at the foot of the vegetable garden. In it a little old lady sat with a big pan in her lap into which she was shelling peas. Dushane laughed delightedly, "Why, Mrs. Worthington—" he said. "Who would have believed it?"

The little old lady rose hurriedly, and the peas flew in all directions. "Oh, what would Julia say if she knew you saw me?" she gasped.

She was a quaint little figure. Her modish black chiffon gown was covered with a big, white apron; her hair, dressed with jeweled combs, was piled high on her head, and she had perched on it an old straw hat to shade her eyes.

"Julia doesn't like to have me do anything in the kitchen," she faltered. "You know Julia has been away to school, and since we got the big house she wants us all to live like people in the city; but I"—she drew a quick breath—"I have always shelled peas, and done such things, and I cannot get used to idleness."

"I know," he added, "my mother loves housewifely things. In our place in Virginia she is out in the garden half the time."

"Oh, is she?" The little lady's tone was eager. "I wish you would tell Julia, she thinks ladies—like your mother—do not do such things."

Dushane knew now the cause of his instinctive suspicion of Julia's beauty. He had felt behind it there was a lack of character, and a selfishness that was obvious. His own training was unconventional, but the women of his family had been proud of their gentility. Their kindness and of their housewifely domain.

"Now Nell is different," the old lady was saying. "Sometimes she comes out and helps me. The other day we ran away and had a picnic. We bought a loaf of bread and a bottle of milk, and made milk toast over a little fire we built in the woods, and you cannot imagine how good it tasted."

"Indeed I can," Dushane said heartily. "The next time you run away you must tell me and I will go too, and I will catch some fish, and we will broil them over the coals."

She clasped her hands eagerly. "There comes Nell now," she said. "We've planned to go tomorrow, and I am going to tell her you want to accompany us."

Nell had none of Julia's haughty pride, but she was very fresh, and sweet, and enthusiastic as she talked to Dushane.

"Do not tell Julia," she insisted, "she hates to have mother and me do such things, but tomorrow there will be a lot of people for tennis and tea, and we thought we could run away, and not have to meet them."

"I will run away too," Dushane said. "I will meet you at the second bridge. They will never miss me in the crowd."

But Julia did miss this wealthy and important guest. It was because of him that she had invited her neighbors for tea and tennis. She was proud of her conquest, and wished to show him off.

Dushane appeared among them for a moment, and then he could not be found, and little did Julia guess that he was on the road to a tryst with her mother and schoolgirl sister.

Dushane caught a half dozen trout, and broiled them with bits of bacon. The little old lady made coffee, and Nell stirred up a cornbread and baked it over the coals. In the midst of the feast came Julia, flaming.

"What are you doing?" she demanded, sweeping in upon them, all in pale pink, with rosy plumes in her wide hat. "I missed you, and the servants said you had come this way. I thought something must have happened, and I ran away from my guests long enough to find you here. I cannot understand it. Why has mother come out here in that old lawn dress and wide hat? Nell, what if some one had seen you?"

In her anger she had forgotten that Dushane might sit in judgment. Her voice, usually low and well modulated, was harsh and rough. Dushane thought of the cry of the peacock. This was the discordant note!

"Yes, we ran away," he said, and his glance met Julia's steadily. "Your mother does not enjoy tennis and tea and crowds of people, and she enjoys this, why should not she have it?"

The direct question brought Julia to her senses.

"Why, of course," she faltered, "only nice people don't do such things."

"My mother does them," Dushane stated. "I have been with her in the woods many a day, and we have roasted potatoes, and boiled corn, and had all sorts of feasts."

Julia saw that she had made a mistake, and attempted to retrieve it. But Dushane had no eyes for her; he was watching Nell whose crimson cheeks and tear wet eyes showed her distress. He was watching, too, the old lady's trembling lip and nervous hands. His heart went out in sympathy and tenderness. These two women needed him; more than that, Nell was a girl to love.

They went home a dejected group. The little mother and Nell entered by the back door. Julia rejoined her guests, and Dushane drifted down the shady walk to the marble bench by the fountain. On the terrace the peacock spread his plumage and gave forth his cries.

At dusk a little figure crept like a shadow to the fountain. It was Nell in filmy white and pearls.

"Are we such sinners?" she whispered. "Wasn't it dreadful?"

Dushane rose and took her hands in his.

"No," he said, "but I am afraid Julia will never forgive me, and I'm not sure, Nell, that I want her forgiveness. But there is something that I do want, and I am not going to ask it now. You are the sweetest woman in the world, and your mother is just a little faded edition of you. Some day, and I hope it will not be long, I want to take care of you both; but this is not the time to ask it. Will you wait a little and then let me come back to you, Nell?"

"Oh!" she whispered, "but Julia?"

"Julia will find many others," he said, "who will adore her beauty. She doesn't need me any more than I need her, but you will fill my heart. May I come back?"

And the fountain heard her as she answered "Yes."

Full Particulars Later.

Mr. Dorkins—Maria, do you call that thing a hat?

Mrs. Dorkins (in a clear, metallic voice)—I think that's what the milliner will call it in the bill you will get next week.

Late Horror.

"Well, professor," said one of his young married friends, "I've done the usual thing: I've put a mortgage on my house and lot."

"Have you anything to chauffer it?" inquired the professor.

She Was Grateful.

"But daughter, why didn't you tell him to stop kissing you?"

"Oh, papa, I thought it would be impolite to interrupt a gentleman friend of mine."

BIG GAME OF NORTHWEST

Danger of Complete Disappearance Can Only Be Averted by Prompt Action.

Northwest Canada and portions of Alaska still contain great numbers for large game, but in some localities this has already become very scarce. This is almost the last spot in America where big game is abundant; there remains only the arctic regions.

It is evident that in a new country, lacking transportation facilities and invaded by great numbers of civilized men, who must depend in large measure on the country for subsistence, the larger native fauna will soon disappear. In this northern region travelers, trappers and prospectors subsist very largely on the game and fish that they take, and great quantities of wild meat are brought into the settlement for sale.

There has been enormous waste by the white game killers, and if the waste by the Indians has been less it is only because the Indians are fewer in numbers. In some localities the continued and reckless killing of game for sale in the mining camps has resulted in the almost complete disappearance of such game. Besides this there are not a few people who go into the country in search of fine game heads, and who kill with the usual selfish recklessness. They have been known, after a day's hunting, to leave to spoil on a hillside enough meat to supply a prospector with provisions for a whole winter.

The chief game animal in much of that country is the moose, which is so abundant that from a good lookout high up on the mountains moose can be seen almost any fine day by the aid of field glasses. In certain portions of the country west of the Mackenzie river caribou are still seen in great herds at the proper season of the year, but these herds appear to be growing constantly smaller.

Mountain sheep are yet abundant in many places, and, owing to their habits of life, are perhaps in less immediate danger of extermination than the moose or caribou.

It is obvious that as the settlement of this northern country proceeds the game must disappear. It is only by the establishment of game refuges in these regions that it can be preserved, and at the present time the residents of that northern country are interested in the game only so far as it may be turned into money.

SOME FIFTH CENTURY JESTS

Anecdotes Taken From Joke Book Compiled by Greek Student in Fifth Century.

The following anecdotes are taken from a volume of jests compiled by a Greek student of Alexandria, Hierocles by name, in the fifth century, A. D.:

A learned man, wishing to swim, was nearly drowned; whereupon, he swore that he would never touch water again until he learned how to swim.

Of twin brothers, one died. A professor, thereupon, meeting the survivor, asked: "Is it you that died, or your brother?"

A scholar meeting another of the profession, said: "I heard you were dead." "And yet," replied the other, "you see that I am still alive." "Well," said the first, in perplexity, "I don't know what to believe, for the man who told me about it is a much more truthful man than you!"

A professor, a bald man, and a barber, traveling together, agreed to keep watch in turn four hours each, while the others slept. The barber's turn came first. He quietly shaved the head of the sleeping professor, and when the time elapsed awoke him. The latter, scratching his head as he got up, and finding it bare, cried out: "What a rascal that barber is! He waked the bald man instead of me!"

The Press learns that there are several cases of smallpox at Maplesville. The disease seems to be confined to the colored population at present, but as next week is court week and many of the negroes from that section will doubtless be here as litigants or witnesses, it would be well to take every precaution against the spread of the disease in Clanton. We cannot be too well guarded against the invasion of infectious and contagious sickness. Clanton just now is suffering from a siege of typhoid fever. If smallpox be added, we would be in a sad plight indeed. We don't know that the pig pens would help to decrease either disease.

General News

Mr. W. A. Reynolds Compromises.

Last week we made some mention of the fact that Mr. W. A. Reynolds had called a meeting of his creditors with a view to settling his outstanding obligations. At that time we knew but few of the particulars, and did not choose to air a matter about which we knew comparatively little.

The day after the publication of our paper the following appeared in the Montgomery Journal, which is self-explanatory:

GEORGE STUART IS RECEIVER.

Chilton County Merchant Is to Be Allowed to Pay Up—W. A. Reynolds—One Hundred and Ninety-six Creditors Are Clamoring for Money Alleged to Be Due Them—Met at Exchange Hotel and Came to an Agreement.

Opportunity will be given W. A. Reynolds, the bankrupt merchant of Jemison and Thorsby, Chilton county, to make the best of his tangled affairs by his 196 creditors.

The largest meeting of creditors held in Alabama in many years entered into this agreement Thursday, when a basis of settlement was entered into and a receiver recommended to the United States court by the attorneys for the various companies involved and personal representatives of other creditors.

Approximately $75,000 is involved in the bankruptcy proceedings, while Reynolds' assets cover not more than a third of the amount.

At his request the creditors assembled at the Exchange Hotel Thursday evening and a proposition for a cash settlement of 25 per cent. and 25 per cent. in four deferred payments of 6, 9, 12 and 15 months was advanced.

There was some demurring on the part of the minority of the creditors, but a majority agreed to accept the proposition.

The meeting also decided to recommend to the United States court that George Stuart be named receiver and carry on the business of the bankrupt firm.

Judge Thomas G. Jones Friday issued an order naming Stuart receiver. —Montgomery Journal.

On last Saturday night the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Teel and took from the home the spirit of their son, Thomas Teel. Young Mr. Teel was about 13 years of age, and was noted for his manly qualities and his devotion to duty. He had just arrived at that age when life becomes beautiful and boundless with hope. Not only was he a source of joy and pride in the home, but he had, by his careful attention to business and home duties, become a great help to his father and mother in their daily affairs.

The young man was stricken some days since with typhoid fever. For days loving ones watched at his bedside, hoping to see him rally and finally regain his accustomed health, but these hopes were cast in gloom when on Saturday night the summons came.

Lovingly his friends laid him to rest on Sunday morning to await the final summons from the Supreme Judge.

Young Mr. Teel had many friends who mourn his departure.

May the God of all comfort and peace give to the broken-hearted father and mother that comfort which comes only from above.

JUDGE HONEYCUTT TO THE PEOPLE.

Jemison, Nov. 22, 1910.

Mr. Editor:

By your permission I would like to say a few words to the people of this county through your paper.

First, I wish to say that I was almost forced to write a communication on the 4th of this month, which appeared in print, concerning my letter written six years ago, which was reprinted in the Banner and Union, and whereas some persons who claim to be my friends have taken offense at me for writing said letter, claiming that I should have kept my mouth shut.

Now, if I made any untrue statements in that letter, then I am very sorry for it, but as yet I have not seen that I made any incorrect statement, nor have I been convinced that I did any wrong in writing that letter. It was not my intention to have anything to say publicly or to have written anything for publication until that letter of six years ago appeared, and then I felt it my duty to protest against its being used in the manner in which it appeared to me it was used, and so I believe I did my duty in this matter.

Now, some have said that my political life was like unto a poisonous snake's trail—very crooked—claiming that I have forsaken the party which elected me to office. Please bear with me a little, and let us see as to these statements. In 1880 there was no convention or primary election in this county, and I was elected to the office of tax collector of the county. Then in 1884 there was a convention by the democratic party, but I refused to go into the convention, because I did not think that was the way to get at the will of the people; so I submitted my name to the people, and at the general election I was re-elected tax collector. Then in 1886 the democratic party held a primary election and nominated Judge Cullen for re-election to the probate judgeship, but the people being dissatisfied because of what they considered the court house ring, I, about two weeks before the general election, submitted my name to a mass meeting of the people which met at the court house, and which mass meeting made me the choice of the people for the probate judgeship on the people's ticket against the democratic nominee. In the general election I was elected by the vote of the people, but was counted out by the tricksters.

Then in 1892 I was asked by one of the members of the democratic executive committee of the democratic party if I would go into the primary election, provided they would make the rules for voting so that every white man in the county could vote. My answer was that I would be satisfied with that, so the primary was ordered and I submitted my name for the office of judge of probate, and received the nomination by a large vote; but after this, those court house tricksters being dissatisfied, called themselves into a convention and nominated another ticket, calling themselves "true blues." But I was successful in the general election, and was elected. Then in 1898 Judge Adams was elected on the populist ticket; then in 1904 Judge Reynolds was elected on the combined ticket of the populists and republicans.

So you see that Judge Adams was the first one to serve in this county who was not elected as a democrat, except the one who held by appointment when the county was first formed. Again, you see that I have been against the court house ring, or clique, as it is called, and I expect to be against it as long as I live. I am not a republican, nor can I be, and I am as much opposed to a republican or populist ring as I am to a democratic ring.

and I earnestly insist that the people study well what is our duty along these lines, and instead of voting our prejudices, vote for the good of the people. I have always tried to stick to principle, and do not believe that I have ever forsaken the principles on which I was first elected to office.

Thanking you in advance, Mr. Editor, for printing this, and with an earnest request that these lines may be carefully studied, and if you will go to the court house files of the newspapers you will find out that my statements are entirely correct, for the newspapers are kept as a part of the records of the county.

Now, with best wishes for the peace, happiness and prosperity of our entire people, I remain, yours sincerely, R. M. HONEYCUTT.

POPWELL'S SCHOOLHOUSE.

Editor Press:

Health of this community is very good at present, with the exception of Mrs. Jeffie Traywick, who has been on the sick list for some time. Hope for her a quick recovery.

Rev. R. J. Mills filled his last appointment at Mt. Nebo Sunday night. Hope to have him with us another year.

Mr. H. M. Roper and sister, Mrs. J. F. Apperson, were visitors in this community Saturday and Sunday.

The debate was rained out Saturday night.

Miss Mattie Klinner was a visitor to our Sunday school Sunday last.

Mr. Joe Traywick visited friends and relatives near here Saturday night and Sunday.

Sunday school was very good last Sunday.

Our Literary School is progressing nicely.

Will close with best wishes to The Press. "POLLYWOG."

COOPER'S CROSS-ROADS.

For some time we have remained silent, but there is too much good news in our section to be silent any longer.

The farmers are through gathering their bounteous crops, and have started most of their children to school, which is under the direction of Prof. J. A. Hunter and Brady Harris. The school is one of the best that has ever been conducted in this section.

The sawmills are doing an excellent business now, there being three in this immediate neighborhood, which enables the young men to make Christmas money.

The Sunday school at Chestnut Creek is progressing nicely under the management of Mr. L. A. Calloway as superintendent. Our school is constantly growing. The teachers' training class, which was organized a month since, is doing well. In the beginning we had but ten, but that number has now doubled, there being twenty on the roll at the present time. How is this for a country Sunday school? Prof. J. A. Hunter is organizer and teacher.

The young men organized their class last Sunday, calling themselves "The Hunters." They say they are going to do what their name signifies—hunt for scholars and keep them in the school.

Wishing The Press and its readers much success,

A SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKER.

The Birthday Dinner

"Harry says it proves again the necessity of absolute confidence between us," said Janet, chopping somewhat recklessly at the mince meat she was preparing. "That was what made me maddest—madder than seeing the hammer, even. As if I didn't tell him everything but surprises! Hand me those raisins. It's sweet of you to help. There's a pink checked apron in that drawer. Hilda simply can't make mince meat, and it's her day out. Though why I am making it except from habit I cannot see——"

"For Harry, dear," smiled Louise, "because he loves homemade mince pies. As a peace offering, isn't it? What's the trouble all about? The hammer sounds ominous."

"It was the worst dinner I ever gave," Janet began again. "I'm sorry I ever wanted to cover that shirtwaist box with blue. The pink did very well, and I wouldn't have thought of the hammer if it hadn't been for that box."

"Now," said Louise, determinedly, "begin at the beginning and try to talk sense."

"Last week Harry had a birthday," explained Janet. "He told me once he had never had a birthday cake, so I got to planning and decided that, considering the lovely chinchilla set he had just given me, I would celebrate his birthday in grand fashion.

"He has been having some dreadful abstract cases and has stayed down nights several times this month, so to be sure that he'd come home I asked him to bring me a hammer. I made it so important that he wouldn't have dared stay downtown for dinner and I mentioned that it was his birthday, for fear he might think I had forgotten it, and I added that we should have a nice evening at home.

"Harry, said he'd come home early and went away flattered to death with the new umbrella I had given him. I had lost mine and two of his, so I thought it only fair to make him a birthday present of one.

"Then I asked the Weavers and the Bartons to come for a 7 o'clock dinner, since the trip out here is so long. I made the cake and got out mother's old-fashioned glass cake stand and covered it with pink candy hearts and wound it round with smilax. And I got twenty-one of those pink rose candleholders—oh, of course, he's older, but you can't say 'sweet sixteen' to a man. And Hilda and I got up a beautiful dinner.

"Everybody was lucky and caught the right train and seemed filled with the birthday spirit. But Harry didn't come.

"By and by I got nervous and went to the phone. He had left the office at 5, and so I told Hilda to heat up the soup and make the gravy—we had ducks, my dear, beautiful wild ones.

"'Well, we waited and waited. At last at 8 o'clock—I made them wait so long—we went out to dinner without Harry. Hilda had lighted the candles, as it was a part of the program, and Mr. Barton took the head of the table. Everything had a 'kept warm' taste to me and I couldn't eat for fear Harry had been robbed or run over, and it was dreadful all around.

"When did he come? At 8:45!

"He came right out to the dining room, saying he was starved or something. And the candles were all out and the cake was cut and everything was as bad as possible.

"Of course, he was surprised, but all he said was, 'Here's that hammer, and you're lucky to get it.' Then he handed me a rusty, battered old thing that made everybody scream with laughter.

"That was the reason—the hammer.

"He had taken an early train home and when he got to our station he remembered the hammer and took the next train back. He got there so late that the stores were closed, of course, and so he went back to the office to get the office hammer. The boy had locked it in his locker.

"Then there was a search for the janitor and duplicate keys. Nothing mattered but the hammer. It was like a gold nugget by that time to Harry. He finally got the night watchmen and between them they dug it out, while we at home were eating our soup. Fortunately, he caught the last express train, or he would not have reached home till 9:30.

"Oh, he told a great story. It made a tremendous hit. Nobody could see why I wasn't pleased over Harry's display of obedience and devotion. He even told them that I said I had to have the hammer that night or I couldn't sleep, because the box must be covered by noon next day, as the embroidery class was to meet here that afternoon. I may have told him that, but he should have known that I didn't mean it.

"He wouldn't take a bit of the blame—insisted that if he had been invited to his own birthday party he would have let the hammer rest in Johnnie's locker. And then they laughed more and I all but cried with rage. Hand me the citron, please." Janet sighed as she got out a blue-mixing bowl.

"Did you cover the box?" asked Louise, tremorously.

"No, I didn't. The embroidery class doesn't meet till next week, anyway, and Harry liked it for me the next morning. I told him I would cover it when I returned the hammer, he said, [illegible]

Booker T. Washington, congratulated by a New York reporter on the success he had made of his life, said with a smile:

"I suppose I must be modest and declare that luck has had more to do with my progress, or otherwise I'll be in Senator Dash's shoes.

"Senator Dash of Tallapoosa prided himself on his rise from the bottom, for Senator Dash in his youth had worked with the colored people in the cotton fields.

"Boasting at a political meeting about his rise, the senator singled out Uncle Calhoun Webster among his audience and said:

"'I see before me old Calhoun Webster, beside whom, in the broiling southern sun, I toiled day after day. Now, ladies and gentlemen, I appeal to Uncle Calhoun. Tell us all, uncle, was I, or was I not, a good man in the cotton field?'

"'Yo' wuz a good man, senatah,' the aged negro replied; 'yo wuz a good man, fo' a fack; but yo' sut'ny didn't work much.'"

"I don't want him to fatten yet," William replied, knowingly. "I'm waiting until he gets to be as long as I want him, then I'll begin to widen him out."—Tit-Bits.

LIFE IN YOKOHAMA

Sights in Thoroughfares of City Interest Strangers.

Old-Time Courtesy of Little People Seems to Be Wearing Away in Seacoast Cities—Shopper Needs Full Purse.

Chicago.—Yokahoma is very European. There are stately banks, marble office buildings and large hotels and business houses, and in some streets you could easily imagine yourself in any western city were it not for the whirling jinrikishas and the natives in kimonos, says a Yokohama correspondent of the Chicago Daily News.

It is hard to believe that only a little over 50 years ago Commodore Perry found Yokohama an insignificant fishing village. In those days Kanagawa across the bay was the main port, but as it was on the main road, the Tokaido, and meetings between foreigners and the armed trains of the Daimyos passing to and from the capital were to be apprehended, Yokohama was brought into the foreground.

Much of Yokohama is, of course, truly Japanese, and we reveled in the quaint shops on the Motomachi, where there are no sidewalks and life goes on in true native fashion. There in the silk stores we sat on matted floors to examine the goods presented for our inspection with deep bows or wandered among the toy shops as delighted as children over the many quaint contrivances.

One night every other week the Motomachi is brilliantly lighted with strange little lanterns and the passing throngs carry others, so that the effect from the distance is entrancing. On these nights booths are arranged all along the street and you can finger anything without annoying the salesmen. We fell in love with the dwarf trees and with the tiny urchins having their mouths stuffed full of spun sugar by the candymaker, who bristled with pride when we tarried long beside him. Strange beads and potted flowers were offered to us by shy little girls and all around us was a gay hubbub, every one good natured, every one out to enjoy life, laughing and nudging and scraping sandaled feet.

On Benton-dori our hands ran to our purse strings constantly, so fascinating were the shops there. At Yamamotos we were shown the most superb old embroideries, and it was hard to make a selection, as we wanted all of them. Nozawaya's is a modern department store, and the curio shops drive one distracted. Wonderful bits of old Imari, cabinet pieces too precious for nomads like ourselves and old daggers and Daimyo hats tempted us on every side.

At a big silk store on Honcho-dori the proprietor and his little wife bowed to the ground and offered us "o cha" (tea), which we drank out of consideration for them. There is something very charming about the old-time courtesy of these little people, and one is sorry to see it wearing away in the seacoast towns, where we learned to despise the stamp of modernism in Japan. Like most people who spring suddenly into prominence, they are becoming arrogant and showing an overpowering sense of their own importance and a vanity not at all in proportion to their size. Tourists are doubtless largely responsible for this. Their manners shock even our hardened western sense of propriety and to the courteous, gentle-mannered native their brusque ways and loud voices, their harsh comments and loud laughter must strike home painfully.

There is not much sightseeing to be done in Yokohama; the ride to Mississippi bay, to Mikusu's porcelain factory and to the little tea house on the bluff, which is reached by ascending 100 steps and is hallowed by the memory of Perry's visit to it, are the chief points of interest. It is the street sights, the shops and the comforts of living which hold the visitor in Yokohama.

During our stay we had three hideous days and nights to live through during a Buddhist feast, when up and down the native streets ran crowds of rough boys fancifully attired, carrying josses on long poles and screaming and beating tomtoms and making life a burden to every one in the neighborhood. We were told that no policeman would dare to stop them while they carried josses, and in consequence they sometimes became dangerously excited and do all sorts of wild things.

EVERYBODY TO USE AIRSHIPS

Moissant Says Flying Is Easy and That Planes Will Soon Be As Numerous As Autos.

New York.—John B. Moissant, American aviator, declares that learning to guide an aeroplane is about as easy as learning to ride a bicycle or to walk stilts.

"There is no great mystery or great difficulty about operating an aeroplane," he said. "Everybody will realize this very soon.

"The next generation will use aeroplanes as we are now using automobiles. The perfection of the flying machine from now on will be very rapid and its perils will be found to be no greater than the perils of bursting tires and skidding wheels and faulty automobile mechanisms.

"Every person who makes a flight in an aeroplane comes back to earth with the same impressions. He tells you that it was a delightful experience; that it was something new, he was not a bit scared, and he is crazy to do it again. That tells the whole story."

Miss Hogan was about to leave college to earn her own living when her classmates heard of it. They raised $450 among themselves for the girl.

The only tides known to exceed these are in the Bay of Fundy.

PROHIBIT HUNTING IN CITY

Mayor Proposes Amendment to Old Ordinance Aiming at Practise of Chicago Sportsmen.

Chicago.—Though Chicago has a population of more than two millions, hunting in the city limits has become so prevalent that the mayor found it necessary to send a letter to the council, at the suggestion of the chief of police, proposing an amendment to the old hunting ordinance, which has been doing duty since 1905 to the satisfaction of Chicago's stay-at-home hunters.

Most Chicagoans, who live in districts so congested that the report of a shotgun would bring a dozen policemen on the jump, are not aware that it is the practise of many other Chicagoans, who know about the hunting grounds, to sally forth, in season, and return with a bagful of game birds without ever having left the city limits.

In a letter to the council, which accompanied the proposed amendment to the hunting ordinance, Mayor Busse told of the numerous complaints occasioned by "metropolitan hunting" that had reached Chief Steward and caused him to ask for action by the city fathers.

Wolf lake, Hyde lake, Lake Calumet and the Calumet river have been swarming with hunters in the shooting seasons of the past. At the continuance of these as hunting grounds the amendment is not aimed, and in future the echo of the reports of shotguns still will ring over their waters.

That section of the Chicago "happy hunting ground" which the mayor would move from the realm of the primeval into that of the metropolitan comprises a section of the lake shore on the South side, the shore of the drainage canal and several other favored haunts of game. The only restriction on hunting in the "open" districts is that no shots be fired within 750 feet of a house, factory or barn.

The section where hunting would be prohibited, as calarfied by the passing of the amendment, would be:

Beginning at the intersection of Seventy-first street with Lake Michigan, thence west along Seventy-first street to South Madge avenue, thence along West Thirty-first street to South Western avenue, thence [illegible]

THIS WARSHIP HAS NO CREW

Vessel Directed and Operated From Shore by Means of Wireless Is the Latest.

New York.—The "crewless warship," a vessel directed and operated from shore by means of a complicated wireless apparatus, is the latest naval wonder in Germany, according to reports which have just reached the navy men here.

Within a radius of 18 miles from the controlling apparatus the new warship, it is said, can be started, stopped, steered and its guns controlled or fired by means of electrical waves communicated without wires.

The German naval experts are making experiments with a motor boat near Nuremberg. The statements of an eye-witness who watched the progress of some of these trials is published here.

"The boat," he says, "was absolutely unmanned. All the apparatus on board was controlled from the bank of the lake by means of wireless telegraphy.

"When I first arrived the boat was lying motionless in the middle of the lake. No one was on board. Suddenly a gun was fired on the deck and I saw the screw begin to revolve and drive the boat forward.

"I watched the maneuvers of the unmanned boat for an hour during the daytime and again in the evening. At the end of each test the unmanned vessel was brought to her anchorage by the same unseen forces."

Nothing except the dairy utensils is permitted to remain in the room. The walls are painted white and are frequently washed down with hot water and sal soda. As soon as the milk is brought from the barn it is placed in clean pails and set in a trough through which cold water from the spring constantly passes.

DON'T NEGLECT THE COWS

Allowing Animals to Shift for Themselves When Becoming Dry Is Costly and Inhuman.

(By RALPH M. WHITESIDE.)

This is a picture from a photograph of a cow owned by a well-to-do farmer who allows his cows to shift for themselves when they become dry. The writer has seen in the early spring many cows that are too weak to arise from the ground without being assisted. This is a splendid way of losing money fast and it is inhuman as well.

Proper Ration for Dairy Cow.

It has been determined that cows fed on soiling crops alone without pasture consume 75 to 100 pounds of forage a day. Here the protein content of the forage comes in for consideration, as a dairy cow in full milk needs nearly two pounds of digestible protein per day. Alfalfa contains 3.9 pounds of protein per 100 pounds; red clover, 2.9; oats, 1.8; sweet corn, 1.5; millet, 2; flint corn, 1, and sorghum, 6. The clover and millet furnish enough protein, while the rest are short in that element of food.

DAIRY NOTES

Kind words bear fruit even with a cow.

Have stable light, airy, clean, and comfortable.

Wholesome food and pure water are necessary to keep the cow healthy.

The poor unprofitable cows are a fearful load upon the dairy farmers of today.

The keeping of a herd of dairy cows in the right condition is not an ignorant man's business.

The activity of milk secretion depends in a large measure upon the vigor of the circulation of the blood.

Strong thrifty calves cannot be expected from cows that have been fed starvation rations for a few months before calving.

Dairymen do not seem to realize that good milk and butter increases consumption while poor milk and butter decreases it.

The best results will not be reached by fighting the dairy and food commissioners, but by working in harmony with them to produce clean and palatable articles.

Let the blessed sunshine in, clean up, whitewash the stables and disinfect and make a good fight and stop the insidious ravages of the dread disease, tuberculosis.

The time has come when the consumers are demanding their rights and it is more than right that they should know the kind of products they are buying for their families.

Twenty years from now dairymen will look back and wonder why they did not clean up their milking yards and cattle and pay some attention to keeping systematic records of what each individual cow is producing.

Cow testing associations are certain to become the instruments of making yearly records of farmers' herds. Every dairying community should establish an association and keep [illegible]

WEAK, SICK PALEFACES

Will Be Interested In This Suggestion From the Pen of a South Carolina Lady.

Gramling, S. C.—"I was so weak," writes Mrs. Lula Walden, of this place, "when I began taking Cardui, that it tired me to walk just a little. Now I do all the sewing, cooking, washing and general housework, for my family of nine, and have not been in bed a day.

"I was almost a skeleton, but now I weigh 160 pounds, and am still gaining. I think Cardui the greatest remedy for women on earth."

You ladies, who have pale faces, sallow complexions, and tired, worn-out expressions, need a tonic.

The tonic you need is Cardui, the woman's tonic.

Cardui is the ideal tonic for women, because its ingredients are specifically adapted for women's needs. They help to give needed strength and vitality to the worn-out womanly frame.

Being a vegetable medicine, containing no minerals or habit-forming drugs of any kind, Cardui acts in a natural way, and is perfectly harmless and safe for young and old.

In the past 50 years over a million ladies have been benefited by this standard woman's remedy. Why not you?

Please Try Cardui.

Note From Basswood Bugle.

Somebody took the rope off the bell in the fire engine house to use for a clothesline, and now, when there is a fire, the constable has to climb up into the tower and ring the bell with a hammer. Somebody took the hammer the other day, and, when Hank Purdy's corncrib ketched fire, the constable had to hurry down to Hilliker's store for to borry a hammer. Hilliker had lent his hammer to Deacon Renfrew, who lives four miles out in the country, and by the time the constable had got there and hunted around in the barn for the hammer and got back to the engine house, the angry elements had done their worst and Hank's corncrib was a mass of smoldering ruins.—Judge's Library.

STOMACH MISERY VANISHES

Indigestion, Gas, Sourness and Dyspepsia Go and Your Stomach Feels Fine in Five Minutes.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn or a sick, sour, upset or gassy stomach, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and besides, there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store here in town.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Gastritis or any other stomach disturbance.

HUMOR IN THESE VERDICTS

Quaint Ideas and Expressions Recorded as Having Been Rendered by Coroner's Juries.

Referring to a verdict recently given by a coroner's jury that death was "caused by the medical evidence," the British Medical Journal says: "This verdict may be added to those cited in the report of the select committee on death certification, where Dr. Ogle is quoted as saying: 'One verdict came before me a little time ago which was this: "A man died from stone in the kidney, which stone he swallowed when laying on a gravel path in a state of drunkenness." That was given as a verdict. I thought some joke had been played, and I wrote down about it, and found it was an absolute fact. Another one is like this: "Child three months old, found dead, but no evidence whether born alive."' These novel judgments recall that an up-state newspaper not long ago spoke of taking a murdered man's "post-mortem" statement.

Reason for Strange Names.

A little colored girl appeared on one of the city playgrounds the other day, accompanied by two pickaninnies, who, she explained, were cousins of hers, visitors in Newark. "What are their names?" asked the young woman in charge of the playground. "Aida Overture Johnson and Lucia Sextette Johnson," the girl answered. "You see, their papa used to work for a opera man."—Newark News.

UNSIGHTLY COMPLEXIONS

The constant use of Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for toilet, bath and nursery purposes not only preserves, purifies, and beautifies the skin, scalp, hair and hands, and prevents inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores, the common cause of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness, yellow, oily, mothy and other unwholesome conditions of the complexion and skin. All who delight in a clear skin, soft, white hands, a clean, wholesome scalp and live, glossy hair, will find Cuticura Soap most successful in realizing every expectation.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are admirably adapted to preserve the health of the skin and scalp of infants and children, and to prevent minor blemishes or inherited skin humors becoming chronic, and may be used from the hour of birth. Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the civilized world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, for their free Cuticura book, 32 pages of invaluable advice on care and treatment of the skin, scalp and hair.

He Couldn't See.

Little Jack's father was the teacher of the Sunday school class of which Jack was a new member. He had been told that as this was his first Sunday he would not be asked any questions but he must pay close attention just the same.

So, on the way home his father asked him who it was who killed Goliath.

"I don't know, I was sitting on the back seat and couldn't see," was the ready answer.—From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

Dry Your Clothes on a Wet Washday

With a New Perfection Oil Heater

When clothes can't be hung outside, and must be dried in a room or cellar, the New Perfection Oil Heater quickly does the work of sun and air. You can hang up the wet clothes, light your Perfection Oil Heater, open the damper top, and the heat rises and quickly dries the clothes.

Do not put off washing to await a sunny day in order to avoid mildew. Dry your washing any day with hot air from a

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

It gives just as much heat as you desire. It is safe, odorless and smokeless.

It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. Burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and can always be easily unscrewed for rewicking.

An indicator shows the amount of oil in the font. Filler-cap does not need to be screwed down, but is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain. Finished in japan or nickel, strong and durable; well-made, both for service and yet light and ornamental. It has a cool handle and a damper top.

REVOLUTION IN MEXICO AGAINST PRESIDENT DIAZ

OUTBREAKS ARE REPORTED IN SEVERAL LARGE CITIES IN MEXICO.

UNCLE SAM SENDS TROOPS

Mexican Government Has Taken Charge of Press Wires and Is Censoring News.

San Antonio, Texas.—Troop K, Third infantry, United States cavalry, Capt. Arthur Thayer in command, left here in a special train for Del Rio. The troop is equipped for a month's stay in the field. It is understood that other troops will be sent from Fort Sam Houston to do duty along the Mexican border. Brig. Gen. Hoyt has been ordered to keep troops in readiness for service on the border.

El Paso, Texas.—One hundred persons were killed in riots which took place at Zacatecas, in the interior of Mexico, opposite Tampico, according to advices received here. Soldiers fired into a struggling body of rioters with disastrous effect. One hundred is the lowest estimate of the loss of life, which may reach 500.

Mexico City, Mexico.—Gomez Palacio, a town of 7,000 inhabitants, and the junction point on the railroad near Torreon, is said here to be in the hands of revolutionists. Railroads and telegraphic communication is cut off and this lends color to the report.

Del Rio, Texas.—Government officials at Chihuahua are searching the city for all sorts of ammunition and are dealing rigorously with persons found with explosives in their possession, according to reports reaching the border.

All American women have been ordered to keep off the streets of Chihuahua, the police stating that they could not guarantee to protect them from insults.

El Paso, Texas.—A report reached here from Cananea, Mexico, that the revolutionists are enlisting the hostile Yaqui Indians for service against the Mexican government. It is said that over 1,000 warriors will take the field if actual war breaks out.

Wholesale smuggling of arms and ammuition acros sthe border near Naco, Ariz., is said to be in progress.

Laredo, Tex.—The situation in Mexico appears to be serious. For the first time in the last fifteen years of operation, the leased wire of the Associated Press from Laredo to Monterey and Mexico City was commandered by the Mexican government on the plea of military need, and the Federal circuit manager in Nuevo Laredo was ordered to cut off the Laredo office of the Associated Press to prevent information being gleaned from messages moving over the wire.

GIGANTIC SWINDLING GAME.

$50,000,000 Gained by Sale of Bogus Stocks.

New York.—In raids so important that Postmaster General Hitchcock took charge in person, his inspectors fell on two concerns which are charged with swindling the public out of more than $40,000,000 by fraudulent use of the mails.

Sheldon H. Burr, president of Burr Brothers; Eugene H. Burr, secretary and treasurer of the firm, and Frank H. Toby, its vice president, were arrested in the first raid and held in $20,000 bail each. The government charged that the firm sold between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 of mining and oil stock worth little or nothing.

Charles L. Vaughan, a director of the Continental Wireless Telegraph and Telephone company, incorporated in Arizona, were taken in the second raid and held in $10,000 bail. Inspectors say his company has sold stock to the amount of at least $1,000,000, which has brought in no return to the investors.

Augusta Claims 41,295 People.

Augusta, Ga.—The population of the city of Augusta is 41,295, according to the count taken by 300 volunteer enumerators, composed of all classes of people, including many of the most wealthy and prominent business men. This compares against the official count of 37,286, sent out by the census bureau, and 39,441, as the official census ten years ago. The city's count shows that the Federal enumerators missed 3,463 people. Every ward in the city shows an increase over the Federal report.

Montgomery Is "Dry."

Montgomery, Ala.—For the first time in many a month, it is alleged, the city of Montgomery is as absolutely dry as a desert. The sheriff served in all 90 warrants charging soft drink proprietors of this city with infractions of the prohibition laws. Announcement is made by Sheriff Hood that he has already taken the necessary steps whereby he can close up any establishment in the city by the injunction route, if such a drastic step is deemed necessary to enforce the law.

STANDARD OIL GOES FREE.

Oil Combine Wins Notable Victory Over Government in Grand Junction Cases.

Jackson, Tenn.—In a ruling which required just twenty minutes to read Judge John E. McCall, in the United Etates circuit court, wrote finis to the efforts of the government to have assessed against the Standard Oil company of Indiana penalties aggregating in excess of $30,000,00. The ruling of the court, instructing that a verdict of not guilty be returned, came with the conclusion of the case in chief of the prosecution, and in substance holds with the contentions of the defense, that after four years the United States had failed to build its structure of evidence other than on sand.

The suit at issue was probably the most important litigation against the greater corporations ever fought out in the South.

The Elkins law, regarding interstate commerce, was violated, it was alleged, through "scheme and device," the specific offense charged being the receiving of freight rate concessions.

TRADE WAR FEARED.

Result of the Controversy With Germany In Regard to Potash.

Washington.—While the settlement of the potash controversy with Germany is awaiting the return of President Taft, the statisticians are busy figuring how much American trade would be damaged if the 25 per cent maximum were to be applied in retaliation to German's action. The latest record of the trade of the United States with Germany gives for one year $143,000,000 in imports and $235,000,000 in exports.

Students of commerce fear that should the President decide to apply the maximum to German imports, the German government probably would at once impose its maximum and a trade of about $250,000,000 would be seriously damaged.

There are two principal products of American export to Germany, however, which would not be affected, for they are both on the German free list. The first is cotton, which amounts to $112,000,000 a year, and the second important item is copper, which aggregates about $18,000,000 a year.

SUFFRAGETTES FIGHT POLICE

English Women Try to Reach Parliament Leaders.

London, England.—The militant suffragettes reopened hostilities again against the government and marching, 16,000 strong, on the parliament building, gave the police a lively fight. The women, many of whom were placed under arrest, were led by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst.

The suffragettes had determined, if possible, to dodge the police cordon about the house of commons, and, reaching Premier Asquith, to insist upon the adoption of a woman suffrage bill. The police, however, were too strongly entrenched, and the women, who tried every means in their power to force the line, were thrown back.

A large contingent of American blue jackets from the visiting fleet were amused spectators to the struggle.

Western Union Official Dead.

Atlanta.—B. F. Dillon, Sr., general superintendent of the Southern division of the Western Union Telegraph company, diedly suddenly at his home in this city. Death was caused by acute indigestion

4,500,000 Men Out of Work.

New York.—The number of unemployed in the United States is estimated at 4,500,000 by the investigating board of the Bowery mission here. About 15 per cent. of them are said to be in New York City and vicinity. The mission plans to obtain work for 7,000 men during the winter.

Ban on Public Drinking Cups.

New Orleans, La.—A ban has been placed on the public drinking cup in Louisiana.

It will have to disappear from all railway trains and school houses in the state by March 1, 1911, according to an order issued by the Louisiana board of health at a meeting held in Ruston, La. The order likewise provides for the appearance of cuspidors, on for every third seat, at least, in all passenger coaches running through this state. The same regulation applies to school houses.

Aviator Fell to Death.

Denver.—With one wing tip of his machine crumbled like a piece of paper, Ralph Johnstone, the daring young aviator, holder of the world's altitude record, dropped like a plummet from a height of 800 feet into the enclosure at Overland park aviation field, and was instantly killed. When spectators reached him his body lay beneath the engine of the biplane, with the white planes that had failed him in his time of need wrapped about it like a shroud. Nearly every bone in his body was broken.

Barring Birds From Hats.

Baltimore.—Since the last convention of National W. C. T. U. nearly 2,000 women have taken the pledge not to adorn their headgear with birds or their plumage. Cruelty to animals and vivisection also were strongly denounced. In her report on "Physical Education," Mrs. Francis Waite Leiter of Ohio urged the organization to wage a national campaign against the "white plague." She recommended that a systematic exemption of education should be carried on especially in the schools.

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.
In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.
In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.
In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.
We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.
But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.
The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.
Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.
Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.
They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries,

Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

The Peoples Supply House

Howdy Do! How Are You?

The much talked-of season of hard time and business depression has failed to arrive; the prophecies of the chronic knocker are wanting in the fulfillment and the dire misfortunes predicted by the ever present calamity howler have died in the borning. Alabama, Chilton county and Clanton, instead of going to the bow-wows, as forecasted by would-be wiseacres, has gone steadily onward upon the road of material development that leads to certain success and abundant prosperity

We are enjoying the fruits of our labors as never before; the cry of poverty is hushed throughout this heaven blessed section; on every side is heard the tuneful tones of thrift and prosperity. The frugal farmer will not have to draw upon the store house of the West for his corn supply, for the harvest within our own fields is abundant in the extreme.

The cotton producer is satisfied with the results of his labors, and the shining coin which high prices for his staple enables him to secure and jingle in his jeans not only makes a gladsome sound to his ears, but fills his heart with joyful anticipations of a happy Christmas-tide. All things conspire to make his lot a pleasant one indeed.

The Chilton county farmer is fast assuming that place in the economic relations of life which his avocation predestined him to occupy—the front rank, a leader among the advance guard. Long faces have been succeeded by smiling countenances, and mortgaged homes and farms are soon to become happy firesides and productive fields of pleasure. Hard times have been vanquished and prosperity is victorious.

Contentment, peace and plenty are knocking at every door.

We are now entering upon an era of commercial development never heretofore anticipated; a season of rich rewards for honest toil is now dawning and will soon burst with noon-day splendor upon our people.

The farmers are happy, as they should be, for Mother Earth has yielded them rich trophies for their plucking; prices are soaring amid the radiant beauty of the stars; his products are in demand as never before.

Cotton is again King and Corn is the Prince Imperial.

What more could the planter desire to make his cup of gladness overflow?

Farmers of Chilton county, we greet you as the two-fold keepers and producers of our prosperity. You are they who have produced the wealth of our county, and upon your heads we pour our praises in unstinted measure. You have earned your reward and should enjoy the fruits of your labors.

The merchant who has bought wisely and well rejoices at your success.

The cotton buyer whose heart beats in unison with your own delights in the opportunity afforded him to give you good prices for your staple; he who would withhold from you the best and highest the market affords is neither a friend to the farmer nor a wise man of business.

We want you to succeed, because in your success we also shall share.

We have bought not stingily, but well; we have purchased in keeping with your position and your desires; you want the best, therefore we supplied ourselves with the best, that we might accommodate both your taste and your demands.

Desiring to have you make our place headquarters, we have arranged to pay the very top notch for every pound of the fleecy staple brought to our store.

We want to have a hand in your prosperity; we wish to be remembered in your rejoicing.

Come to us with your samples; we will top the market on every occasion; call upon us for your wants; our large and varied stock enables us to meet your every requirement, and at prices that will make you glad for the visit.

We hate the chronic croaker; we despise the knocked and the pessimist. The old world is bright with hope, buoyant with success, happy in plenteous abundance. We want you to know that we rejoice at your season of success; you deserve it, and we hope you will enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Come to see us; your happy faces make us glad indeed.

Come whether you want to buy or sell, both or either or neither. We will be glad to greet you.

We are going to set the gait this year, and those who would keep up with us must clip it off at a merry clip.

Cordially yours,

Smart Turbans

BY JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

THE influence of Oriental ideas is more evident in our millinery styles than for many a year. The dressier turbans for evening wear appear to be pieces of rich fabric draped about the head and fastened with gorgeous looking ornaments of mock jewels. Gold and silver tissue and jeweled bands are used in these.

For day wear turbans made on larger frames show crowns in handsome fabrics, such as heavy brocades, tapestries and gold or silver tissues. Tinsel nets are draped over silk nets or lace. Nothing is more popular for the brims or "coronets" than bands of fur. This is, in fact, the furriest of seasons. Fur bands appear about the bottoms of handsome gowns for street or visiting and on the filmiest of fabrics for evening wear. Lace hats with collars of rich fur and hats of all descriptions share with the gowns the smart touch of fur.

For less expensive millinery the turban of velvet is the most effective that can be chosen. In order to get best results, a good quality of plain velvet is selected or one of the "panne" velvets in good colorings The latter are a little less expensive than good quality in plain velvets.

Fancy feathers and wings are chosen for their decoration.

It takes about a yard and a half of velvet to make a turban. Rows of parallel shirrings confine the velvet to the frame, which may be either of wire or of buckram. A soft crown should be supported by a lining of crinoline.

Fabric hats are much in evidence. Silks, satins, velvets, brocades, tapestries, figured ribbons and colors of various descriptions, all are cast in the play for winter millinery, but velvet holds sway in the star part.

BARGAINS IN CHEAP STUFF

Few Deft Touches Will Frequently Give Garment an Entirely Different Appearance.

Often you will see real bargains in frocks and blouses on the ready-made counter. Do not give one look at the cheap lace or trimming, or at the way the seams are finished, and throw it back. Buy your bargain, take it home and redeem and regenerate it.

Cheap lace can be replaced by good; dainty tulle or net frills can take the place of cheap ruffles; seams can be restitched and coarse embroidery worked over by hand. If the material and the cut justify your buying the garment at all, you can give it an individual touch that will raise the value of your bargain 75 per cent.

And even where there is nothing noticeably cheap or common about the garment, try to give those little extra touches; then you will be in no danger of meeting your new gown on another woman at the next street corner.

TWO PRETTY HOLIDAY GIFTS

Slipper Case or Sewing Bag Both a Welcome and Serviceable Present.

A slipper case and a sewing bag are delightful holiday gifts, which are easily made and very useful to the receiver. They may be made from any stray pieces of bright-colored silk, linen, chintz, satin, denim or, in fact, any material of that kind; or, if desired, the slipper case may be developed in pink-flowered cretonne bound with dark-green braid.

The loosely gathered sewing bag has an outside flap, which contains the needle book, and a pretty fancy is to embroider the owner's initials on the outside of the flap. Fancy brass rings are sewed to the upper edge, through which is run the ribbon which regulates the fullness about the top, and is used to hang it up by.

The slipper case, which is divided into compartments and stiffened by means of cardboard interlining, requires seven-eighths yard of material 22 inches wide or five-eighths yard 31 inches wide; either with 2¾ yards of tape to bind and two hangers. The sewing bag needs 1½ yards 22 or more inches wide, with 2½ yards of braid and seven rings.

Chenille Caps.

Parisian women have taken with enthusiasm to the new knitted caps of chenille, mostly in red and other bright colors, very flat, and untrimmed. These are warm, light and pretty, and will be much worn this winter for skating, etc., and as traveling caps. The idea originated with a little girl who sold dolls' caps of this sort at the Paris races.

Men Like Simplicity of Fare.

How many well-meaning housewives make the mistake in their over-zealous hospitality to furnish men guests with elaborate dishes, when simple, well-prepared foods would please the men so much more! Any hostess who will bear this fact in mind will not only save trouble, expense and time, but will also please her masculine guests to a greater extent.

Sash for Slender Figure.

The slender woman who cannot wear the too narrow girdle should try the sash with the "pump" or obi bow, worn in front, its folds arranged in perfectly flat loops and the whole of stiff, wide ribbon. The effect is most becoming and very easy to wear, besides extremely fashionable.

MAKING SNAP-SHOTS OF CELEBRITIES

THE past few years has witnessed the development of a unique activity, the purpose of which is to satisfy public curiosity regarding men and women who are prominent in one or another of the conspicuous walks of life. This particularly up-to-date vocation might be denominated the "snap-shotting" of celebrities, which means the making of instantaneous photographs of the people who are temporarily or permanently in the public eye and whose personal appearance is consequently a matter of interest to the people of all parts of the country.

Few newspaper readers who take delight in the mass of pictures spread nowadays over every printed page, ever stop to reflect what a comparatively short time ago it was that first saw such embellishment of the chronicle of the day's happenings. Most of our readers can doubtless remember distinctly the time when pictures were unknown in their favorite newspaper, and even after crude cuts began to make their appearance in the advertising columns of the weeklies, and later in the dailies, it was a long lapse ere the pictures were to be found in the reading columns and a yet longer time before the reader came to expect not mere scenic subjects but graphic pictures of the current happenings of the busy world.

The vocation of snap-shotting celebrities has been the outgrowth—the very latest outgrowth, it might be termed—of the practise of recording in picture as well as in story the doings of all the world. When the newspaper-reading public came to expect the quick reflection in picture form of great happenings all over the world it speedily progressed from interest in places and things to curiosity regarding the actual appearance of the people regarding whose doings the papers had much to say. It was not enough that the newspapers should print as a counterfeit presentment of this or that public man a carefully posed bust portrait, touched up to show the subject as he wanted to appear rather than as he actually did appear. Newspaper readers with a thirst for accurate information came to demand pictures that would show the subjects as they actually appeared. Moreover, they wanted not a commonplace bust photo, but a full-length picture that would represent its object as he would appear to one who met him on the street and with a hint as to his distinctive characteristics as to dress, etc. From this demand was born the personal "snap shot."

Nowadays the snap-shot is to a large extent displacing the stereotyped visage in the public prints. Almost everybody who achieves fame or notoriety must must needs fall victims to the sharpshooters of the camera. The snap-shotter is no respecter of persons or callings so long as "human interest" is present, and everybody, from preachers to pugilists and from statesmen to suffragists, is the quarry of the camera scout at one time or another. Some of the people who are snap-shotted manifestly relish it; a great number accept it as a matter of course and a minority wriggle and squirm and even fight at sight of a camera. Conspicuous among the latter are Harry Lehr, the Newport society pet of monkey dinner fame, and J. Pierpont Morgan, the financier. It must be admitted that the father of trusts does not make a pretty picture when taken unawares and he evidently realizes this, for he is usually guarded by several private detectives when he appears in public and carries a cane which he is quick to use on any offending camera that he can reach.

Public officials, headed by the president of the United States, are usually the most satisfactory subjects for snap-shots because, whatever may be their natural inclination in the matter, they quickly learn to submit gracefully to this sort of attention. A leading statesman or army or navy official who realizes that at public functions he is liable to be continually in the camera eye is likely to instinctively avoid those awkward attitudes and facial grimaces that sometimes spoil things in the case of a celebrity who is new to the game and self-conscious in consequence. From the standpoint of the snap-shotters perhaps the most satisfactory subjects in this country are the diplomats at Washington—that is, the alien officials who are stationed at our seat of government as the ambassadors or ministers of foreign powers. For one thing, these titled foreigners are possessed of gorgeous uniforms that show up well in unconventional pictures, and then again they are accustomed to being constantly on dress parade.

The snap-shotter must "quick on the trigger" and he cultivates ability in this direction almost as earnestly as the gun fighter of the west did in the old days. The newspaper snap-shots are made by means of special cameras made specially for the purpose, and costing as much as $250 apiece. Only a fraction of a second is required, of course, to make a snap-shot, once the lens is focused upon a celebrity in a desired position, but the uncertainty lies in the fact that the celebrity is seldom actually posing for the picture. More than likely he may not realize that he is being snapped by the camera or perhaps may be trying to dodge the glass eye pointed toward him. In any event quick action is necessary at the critical moment if the subject sought is to be caught ere he moves away, turns his head or otherwise spoils the picture. Indeed the snap-shotter who would "catch on the wing" such restless spirits as Colonel Roosevelt must develop a sort of sixth sense that will enable him to anticipate with reasonable certainty the future moves of his subject.

No other American of the day is so much photographed as is Colonel Roosevelt, and yet he is by no means an easy subject for good pictures. It is not that he objects to the operation; indeed, he seems to utterly ignore the cameras that are pointed at him a dozen times a day. But the colonel is one of the most active and sudden of men, and the snap-shotter must be on the alert every minute of the time or he loses the golden opportunity to catch the ex-president at the "psychological moment." This was admirably illustrated many a time during the colonel's trip through the west. Several professional photographers accompanied him, and a number of the press correspondents also carried cameras, and often it was a wild race for them to keep up with Mr. Roosevelt and be on hand at the time when the good "human interest" pictures were to be had.

Whenever Colonel Roosevelt appeared, unless the police arrangements prevented, he was at once surrounded by a cheering crowd, every man, woman and child of which was trying to get close enough to grasp his hand or at least to say "Hello, Teddy." At such times a snap-shot usually yielded only a mass of heads and backs surrounding a set of gleaming teeth. If Mr. Roosevelt was carefully guarded by police or soldiers, as was the case in some cities, the task of the photographer was almost as difficult, for the "coppers" and deputy sheriffs of the western towns seemed to have much more self-importance than common sense. In Denver two of the camera men were left behind when the colonel and his party went to the auditorium and arrived to find that building packed to the doors and surrounded by a ring of mounted police. To one of these they appealed in vain. "But we are supposed to be with Mr. Roosevelt's party," said one of them finally. "Well," was the chilly response, "if you are supposed to be with them, why aren't you?" And the officer's horse scornfully switched his tail in their faces.

It was in Denver, too, that one of the most amusing scenes of the trip was witnessed. The Press club gave a "chuck-wagon" luncheon to the colonel in a park. "Here," said the camera men, "is our chance for some good stuff." So they put in fresh films or plates and hustled out there by the dozen. The colonel, in the midst of a throng of self-invited Colorado deputy sheriffs, stood at the rough board table and every time he reached for a bit of meat or put a morsel of food into his mouth there was a perfect fusillade of clicks from the cameras that surrounded him. The photographers were ranged in a triple ring about the chuck wagon, those with little cameras in front, stooping low; next, the men with the larger hand cameras, and in the rear the local artists, who had big machines on high tripods. It was in truth a comical sight, but the colonel did not seem to mind it a bit, and went on eating and talking with the utmost enthusiasm.

The visit to Cheyenne, of course, gave the snap-shotters their best chances for picturesque views, for there the colonel could be caught almost any time shaking hands with the cowboys, cowgirls and gaudily painted Indians, or applauding the work of the bronco-busters.

There is a Chicago newspaper man who once had the unique experience of being the only person with a camera present at the coronation of a king. The monarch in question was Mataafa, who had been elected king of Samoa by a majority of the inhabitants of those delectable islands in 1889. His reign, to be sure, lasted but a few months, for after a gallant struggle he was most unjustly deposed by the Americans and British, who thereupon partitioned the islands with Germany. The performance took place in the open, but the King and the others were dressed like poor folk in order to be as ENTERTAINING THE BLIND.

"In these days of specialists you can't just step out and help your fellow humans in haphazard fashion," said the matron on an institution for the blind. "You have to take a course of training before you can even do good in the world. In this position the task that requires most diplomacy is declining the services of people who offer to entertain the blind. All sorts of incompetents volunteer. Their intentions are good, but their achievements are deplorable. Poor readers are most numerous and are hardest to manage. They have had no practise in reading aloud since they left the lower grades in the grammar school, yet when the fires of benevolence break out that is the first thing they want to do.

"The blind are particularly sensitive to the quality of a voice. A harsh, high pitched voice that rambles on without rhyme or reason gets on their nerves, and it is our duty to shut out all such readers. They have to be handled with care because their hearts are in the right place, and with tact their good intentions may be deflected into some useful channel."

KING'S BEARD MODEL FOR ENGLISHMEN.

Beards are at present the order of the day among London's fashionable "men-about-town." In remarking about the prevalence of facial hirsute adornments, a prominent hairdresser said:

"One would not have thought that the coming of King George to the throne would have made much difference to the fashion of current hairdressing, in view of the fact that his father wore a beard for so many years, but I can assure you it has, and a very great difference at that.

"In all probability the present fashion of the point beard is due in a great measure to so young a man affecting one. I have been told that there was a great rage for beards among 'men-about-town' when King Edward first grew a beard many years ago.

"In my opinion the average Englishman is extraordinarily unattractive. The [illegible] King George wears it [illegible] in the most [illegible]

Atrociously Cruel Sport.

Some people have queer ideas of sport. In Vale of Leven it seems to be considered good fun to tie a live rat to the foot of a seagull and allow the pair to fight for the mastery. One poor bird was found hopping near the water's edge the other day hitched to a carcase which must have been at least six weeks old.—London Mail.

He's Always Right.

Lord Northcliffe, who began life as a poor reporter, now owns the London Times, the Daily Mirror, the Evening News and a score or two of British weeklies and magazines.

Lord Northcliffe, on his last visit to New York, was reproached because two of his newspapers advocated diametrically opposite views.

But the young millionaire journalist was quite ready with his defense.

"Are there not," he said, "two sides, a right and a wrong, to every question? Well, how, without two papers, can I be always right?"

New York Water Power.

New York state's total water power, without including that of the Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers, has been estimated at 1,500,000-horse power. Eight hundred and eighty thousand of this is undeveloped. The New York water supply commission has recently recommended that the state expend $20,000,000 to develop this water power, which it estimates would return an annual profit of $1,400,000.

Again we rise to inquire, "Have you paid your poll tax yet? Are you a democrat?

Wasn't that a neat little game of bluff and bluster put up about contesting? Wish they had!

Birmingham lost one of its benefactors and progressives when Captain Woodward died. His death occurred last Saturday at his summer home in far-off Maine.

The Press' subscription list increases each day. It will soon be the only advertising medium in the county. It is now the only newspaper in the county.

Judgments for subscriptions three years old! Thought the law forbid sending a paper to subscribers so much in arrears. How about it? How come, and why and who, also what?

The "All Alabama" meeting in Montgomery this week can but result in much general good to every section of the state. "In the multitude of counsel there is wisdom"—and progressiveness.

Poor Senator Sloan! Won't he feel lonesome in the next senate, though—if he holds his seat? He, of Cullman county, is the only republican elected to that august body, and even his seat is being contested by his democratic opponent, F. E. St. John, on the ground of much fraud in little Winston.

Now comes Marconi, of wireless fame, and proposes to invent an airship that will fly straight up. Be careful that when it goes straight up it doesn't come straight down—with a dull thud.

Should the next legislature decide to pass a compulsory educational bill, as doubtless it will, there will be more schoolhouses to be erected and much more money spent on education. Are you willing? We shall hail the day with pleasure when all the children are given an opportunity to acquire knowledge.

The cartoon in the Advertiser several days ago representing the burial of the Big Stick by members of the Ananias, the Mollycoddle and other clubs was about the most timely, truthful and withal the most ludicrous that has appeared in many days.

Somehow our good republican friends of Chilton are at a loss to understand why cotton has not declined since the defeat of their county ticket. Many of them were foolish enough to believe that the price of this world-used staple was entirely dependent upon the election of the county ticket. In the meantime, however, cotton has advanced, and the price of meat has declined, yet they are willing to believe that county politics play a great part in the fixing of prices on these commodities.

The Press does not wish to be insistent or persistent, but there are three things it wishes to impress just now: The Piano Contest is alarmingly near its close, the pig-pens are fearfully pungent, and the time for paying poll taxes will soon expire.

New congressional districts will no doubt be formed by the next legislature. Into what district will Chilton fall? Which counties will be her party associates? These are pertinent questions just now. And another is, Have you paid your poll tax? New alignments will soon be made; other elections will soon be upon us. Get ready!

The Press is now busily engaged formulating a plan by which it can help the farmers of the county next year. The matter is in the embryo state just now, but it will soon be evolved. We want to help you, and you CAN help us. The full announcement will come as a New Year's surprise. In the meantime, Mr. Farmer, you had better "jine the crowd" and subscribe for the only live paper in the county—The Press.

The Press sent out notices last week that those in arrears would be charged nothing for the papers heretofore sent, provided cash subscriptions were made at once. One of the other county papers, we understand, went into court and secured judgment against a number of subscribers who were in arrears. See the difference. Who helps? Who pulls down?

Berger in congress will not feel more lonely than will Sloan in the state senate. When the democrats hold a love feast Sloan will have to go to the kitchen.

Would it not be well for the mothers and fathers to remember the poor clerks, the saleswomen and salesmen—and the bosses, too, as for that matter—by making their Christmas purchases early, and thus relieving the fearful strain that usually comes at Christmas time? Buy now, and help the tradespeople to enjoy Christmas with you.

The democrats are preparing for a great love feast in Baltimore, Md., in the early part of January. Wish we could go. There is to be no convention, no platform-making, no boosting of presidential candidates—just an old-time love feast and "getting together." Prominent men from every section of the United States will be in attendance. Let's go!

We want to rise in our large white cravat and say to the republicans of Chilton that cotton continues to hold its own, notwithstanding the election of Judge Deason, the democrat. We wish some one would explain this to us. Surely a democratic probate judge ought to have sent cotton to the bow-wows. At least, the pin-heads think so. He ought also to have lowered the price of Texas mules and Indiana pumpkins. His election might have greatly affected the price of celery in Kalamazoo and cranberries in the northwest—if those fellows out there had known about it. Now isn't that a beautiful and sublime piece of ROT for any man to put up as an argument?

We clip the following notice from Monday's edition of the Advertiser:

Barker in Washington.

"Washington, Nov. 27.—P. D. Barker, of Mobile, Republican National Committeeman for Alabama, is in Washington to discuss with Postmaster-General Hitchcock the appointment of several Alabama postmasters to fill existing vacancies. It is understood he is desirous to settle the matter at once."

Wonder if he is that same P. D. Barker whom the republicans of Chilton county refused to endorse at their convention in Thorsby. If so, it seems that he is getting along fairly well without endorsements. If he is the same Prelate D. Barker that we once knew, he is well able to manage his affairs without endorsements, even if he does happen to be on the wrong side.

Referring to the little squib copied from the Advertiser anent the visit of Mr. Barker to Washington, the news comes by grape-vine that Marse Jody Thompson has laid the law down o Mr. Taft, the President, saying that he must consult him alone in reference to Alabama appointments, or else he must leave him out altogether.

It is not stated what was Mr. Taft's reply, but the news comes that Mr. Barker (the man whom the Thorsby convention refused to endorse) was a caller upon Secretary Hitchcock of the Postoffice Department last Monday, and that on Tuesday he and the secretary had a conference with the President. It looks to a man down in the hollow as if Prelate D. Barker had trimmed the sails of Marse Jody somewhat.

Readers will remember that last August Mr. Thompson stated in New York that the "Big Stick" could get the nomination for President if he so desired. This may be the kernel in the nut, so to speak. Anyway, there seems to be a rupture between the President's two referees in Alabama, and Prelate D. Barker (the man whom the Thorsby convention refused to endorse) appears to have the whip hand.

The democrats are getting together and the republicans are stampeded—not only in Chilton county, but all over the face of the earth.

SHERIFF CATTS GIVES AN OBJECT LESSON.

Farmers Should Pattern After This Officer—What a Little Attention to Details Will Accomplish.

Three years ago Sheriff Catts was appointed to the office which he now so ably fills. At the time of his appointment he was living at Verbena, and was making a first-rate living. Notwithstanding, he undertook the duties devolving upon the sheriff and removed to the county seat.

But Sheriff Catts did not come alone. In the buggy with him he brought two fine young pigs. These he placed in the jail lot and fed them from the scraps left by the prisoners. On last Thursday Sheriff Catts shipped to Jefferson county eight as pretty specimens of the pig family as one could wish to behold; for these he received just half a hundred dollars.

This, however, is not the only sale made by the genial sheriff from the increase of those two little pigs brought with him in a buggy. He has supplied his own table, given generously to his friends, fed the county prisoners occasionally on pure home-raised pork, and in addition to this has sold more than $200 worth of pigs—all within two years, and with comparatively little expense or trouble.

What Sheriff Catts has done in a little jail yard or garden, it seems that our farmers ought to be able to do on their wide acres.

If each of them would do this—would take a lesson from Mr. Catts—it would be but a short time before the South would become not only the clothier of the world, but the granary and meat market of the country. We would not then be sending our hard-earned money to swell the coffers of the cattle kings of the west, but would be the most independent and happy people on earth.

THE KING WENT UP THE HILL,

And the King Came Down Again.

Just after the election results had been declared there were quite a number of "conferences" in Clanton for the purpose of deciding whether or not a contest should be made for the office of sheriff—the office to which Mr. Bowen L. Jones had been elected by the democrats.

The conferences lasted, some a few minutes and some a few hours. It was currently reported on the streets that the republicans would make the contest and attempt to regain the office by throwing out certain boxes or certain votes in certain boxes. For several days the affair hung in midair, then all of a sudden it vanished.

Just why the contest was not pulled off still remains a mystery. One thing, however, is certain; if a contest had been entered, the democrats would have welcomed it. They were ready and waiting for the "game" to open, and would never have cried, "Hold—enough!" Perhaps that is why the contest was abandoned at the last moment. It was decided by the "knowing ones" that the contest could not be sustained, and that there was a probability of losing what they already had. This is undoubtedly true. Mr. Jones was clearly elected by a majority vote of the people of Chilton county. To have made a contest would have opened the entire affair, and would, without doubt, have resulted in sending Arkie Mahan to the legislature and in placing the other democratic candidates in office.

And so, after all, the little scheme resembled the march of the famou French king who marched up the hil with his army and then marched down again.

ALL HOME PRINT—A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

The Press Is Taking on New Life.

For the past four or five days The Press man has been visited by agents representing the several type foundries and printing presses of the country. We announced some weeks ago that under certain conditions this office would install a press of its own and print the entire paper in the city. As nearly as we can tell the conditions have been fulfilled, and we are now making arrangements to put in an up-to-date printing press and all other accessories to a first-class newspaper and printing establishment.

These things are all to be installed within a month's time, and by the beginning of the happy New Year we hope to greet our friends and patrons with an ALL HOME-PRINT paper. Then what will the MAN on the corner have to say? Have to revise his predictions somewhat, won't he?

Now we want to say just a word to the people of the county in this connection. You have been putting up with some mighty poor papers; you have paid your money for a news service and have received no service; you have advertised, and the money has well nigh been expended for nothing.

It is our purpose to give the people of the county the best paper they have ever had. We are going to have more news on one page than the other papers have in the entire paper. We want your support; we must have it if the paper is to be sustained. We have sent out letters requesting our friends to bring us in their subscriptions. Some have complied with this request, but many have not done so. We believe that to call your attention to the matter again is all that will be necessary.

Don't delay further; we need your assistance. If you are not coming to town during court week, then tell some friend who is coming to give us your name, address and one dollar, so that we can have you on the books for the first ALL HOME PRINT paper ever gotten out in Chilton county.

Do it NOW.

OYSTER SUPPER.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid Society will have an oyster supper at Mr. Roper's "Restaurant" on next Tuesday evening, December 6th. They will begin serving "STEWED OR FRIED" at 5 o'clock. Everybody cordially invited.

RIDERVILLE RIPPLES.

Wednesday night of last week was observed with a Thanksgiving service. The program consisted largely of songs and recitations. Offerings were also made for the sick of the town by the students.

We were very much disappointed that our services, which were to have been conducted by Brother F. M. Woods, were rained out. We anticipated a good meeting, a fine sermon and a large congregation.

Misses Nelia Johnson, Anna Milam and Jessie Parnell spent Thanksgiving at Pletcher, and report having had a most enjoyable visit.

Misses Beulah, Willie Mae Parnell and Frances Ellis made a flying visit to Selma last week.

We are sorry to report that little Miss Blanche Rollins has returned to her home in Dothan after an extended visit to our town.

Miss Dixie Griffin, of Selma, spent a few days with friends here last week.

The Merrymakers' Club was most pleasantly entertained last Friday night by Miss Leone Johnson. After the business meeting several games were played, and then the hostess srved a most delicious lunch and fruit.

We are sorry to say that Mr. Avery is soon to leave our little town. We regret his departure very much.

CONTRIBUTOR.

VERBENA.

Now that the political campaign is over, probably you would like to have a few dots from Verbena.

Misses Mary Ellen Baldwin and Katie Deramus, two charming young ladies of Verbena, who have been attending the Woman's College, spent Thanksgiving with relatives here, much to the delight of their many friends.

Miss Fannie Pitts, one of Verbena's most popular young ladies, who is now teaching at Tharin, spent Thanksgiving with her father, Dr. J. S. Pitts, at this place.

Mr. Theo. Bethea, of this village, will soon bring his bride, who was formerly Miss Ninna Dent of Montgomery, to make a permanent home with us. These young people will be a delightful addition to Verbena's social set.

Miss Mildred Mitchell, who has spent the past few months in Birmingham, has returned to Verbena to spend some time, much to our delight

Miss Mary Scott, the newly elected secretary of the Methodist Sunday school, gives gratifying reports to those who are present to hear them

Dr. H. C. Caffey and his brother J. A. Caffey, of Lawrence, Mass. spent a few days with their uncle here the past week.

Miss Elizabeth Baldwin, one of the December brides, spent last Saturday with her grandmother, Mrs. M. J Baldwin.

"SCHOOL GIRLS."

EAST PLANTERSVILLE.

The people of Pilgrims' Rest celebrated Thanksgiving day by holding services at the church. We are sorry to say that several of the speakers were absent; nevertheless we had a number of good addresses, and the pleasure of listening to two excellent papers prepared by Misses Lula Jones and Nelia Johnson. There was a bounteous dinner for all present elegantly prepared, and enough remained to feed as many more. Mr. Editor, if you wish to get a sure enough square meal, you should go to Pilgrim's Rest. I'll assure you that you cannot be treated nicer by any one than by the good people of that section.

Mr. A. B. Jones and Miss Gladys Herrod were happily united in the holy bonds of wedlock on Thanksgiving morning at the home of the bride's parents. Immediately after the ceremony the happy wedding party attended the Thanksgiving services, and from there went to the home of the groom's parents, where an excellent wedding dinner awaited them. Those present, besides the immdiate family, were: Mrs. Nannie Moore, Miss Minnie Batton and Mrs. John Moore. The dinner was sumptuous indeed, served in courses by Mrs. Jones. The linen was beautifully white, the hand-embroidered doilies and the exquisite bowl of pure white chrysanthemums all leading charm to the occasion. Several stands of fruit and handsomely decorated cakes also added to the tempting repast. The groom has just completed his cozy home, and will live but a short distance from the home of his parents.

Alpine school is progressing nicely under the management of Miss Minnie Batton as teacher. Already 33 pupils have been enrolled, and more are yet to come.

I heard a young man the other day try to make a date with a married lady, thinking he was talking to his best girl. The lady in question made it very plain, however, that a mistake had been made.

Mrs. Klinner has been on the sick list for quite a while, but we are glad to report that she is now improving.

Mr. Gordon Jones was unable to attend school Friday on account of a rising on his ankle.

Mr. Frank Moore, the hustling farmer of this section, has already begun to turn the sod preparing for a new crop.

a short line to show that the veterans at the Home celebrated, in due and ancient form, and with thankful hearts, Thanksgiving day.

Of course, we had, as usual, the prince of birds of American pedigree and nativity on our dinner tables, and he was reinforced by all the proper supports.

At 3 o'clock we held a Thanksgiving service, which was well attended and quite impressive. Comrade Hornady made the address, which was followed by fervent prayers and some remarks by others of the veterans.

Mrs. Frank Snyder, of Marbury, presided at the organ, and rendered some beautiful and impressive music.

How much we have to be thankful for this year! Yours,

WILLIAM BELL.

THORSBY ITEMS.

P. K. Villadsen is building two modern cottages on his lots near his home that have been used several years as a baseball park.

Mr. T. W. Robinson and Mr. J. I Foss are each building a substantia addition to their home.

Mr. Guy H. Gerald has rented hi house to Miss Tompkins, of Prat City, who comes to educate her nephew in Thorsby Institute. Mr. Geral and family are now boarding at Jemison, he having business there tha requires attention a part of each da in connection with the new bank soo to be opened at Jemison.

Our merchants are getting in the stocks of holiday goods preparator to getting a share in the general prosperity that is abroad, and also seeking to foster the Christmas spirit of giving.

The Ladies' Guild of Thorsby i busy making preparations for thei annual bazaar, which will be held thi year in the building formerly occupied by the Lucas meat market, opening at 2 p. m. on Friday, Decembe 9, and continuing all next day an evening. An oyster supper will b served from 6 to 8 p. m. on Saturday the 10th. From the number of ladie interested and the enthusiasm the are putting into it, the prospect i good for the most attractive and successful bazaar they have ever held.

Thorsby Institute has recently received several very substantial donations from friends at the North where they have a financial agent in the field. This school is now in it fifth year, the most prosperous since it was started, but is of no benefit whatever to the young people of Chilton county, who are not availing themselves of the opportunity offered to secure an education.

JEMISON.

Misses Lottie and Willie Sawyer, of Birmingham, and Mr. J. K. Thompson, of Valley Grove, were the guests of Miss Adams last Sunday.

Mrs. McGahay, of Tuscaloosa, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Crysel.

Mrs. Cawthon left last Sunday for Georgia on a visit to her old home.

The Rev. Mr. Swain, of Montgomery, returned to his home last Monday after conducting a series of meetings at the Presbyterian church here. Ten members were added to the church roll during the meeting.

Mr. T. G. Mackey, of Clanton, was a visitor to Jemison friends Sunday.

Rev. S. M. Adams, of Thorsby, has accepted the call as pastor of the Baptist church at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Cooper, of Clanton, were the guests of Mrs. Crysel last Sunday.

On Thanksgiving evening the ladies of the Methodist church gave a "silver tea" at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Reynolds. The entertainment was quite a success from every point of view.

Mr. Ross Mullins left last Tuesday for a visit to friends in Mississippi.

Cold cream, chapped hands, camphor ice—one's the disease; the other two are excellent remedies. Got any? Upchurch Drug Co. has. Try them. tf

Look at this array of Christmas presents. If you cannot be suited from this assortment, we have others that are bound to please. We mention Hand-Bags (exquisite patterns), Comb and Brush Sets (all kinds), in cases or loose), Silverware (sterling and guaranteed for a lifetime), Shaving Mirrors (just the thing for a young man who is beginning to sprout a little down on his upper lip). Upchurch keeps all these and more. See his line of Christmas goods—the most complete in town. tf

Mrs. R. M. Vines is resting nicely since she went to the Hayes-Hopkins Infirmary for treatment. This will be gratifying intelligence to her friends.

Friends, put away one-horse farm utensils. Remember that the next five years will see two-horse farm machinery instead. My forty years of experience is free for the asking at my store in Thorsby. A. ALTMAN. 2t

Mr. J. A. Sample, an old friend of the editor, was in Clanton last Tuesday, and left his subscription to The Press for another year. Mr. Sample is one of the substantial citizens of Riderville.

Gentlemen's Novelty Sets in profusion at Upchurch's. Just the thing for your "steady." See them, young ladies, and give "your feller" a surprise during the Christmas festivities. Upchurch's is the place. tf

The many friends of Mrs. Josephine Askins are glad to greet her again on the streets after her recent severe illness.

If you wish to see the finest selection of Christmas goods ever brought to Clanton, you will have to call at Upchurch Drug Co. They have 'em. tf

The news came out on the streets the other day that a change had been made in one of the big mercantile houses of the city. Mr. Ross Mullins has purchased the interest of Mr. W. A. Kemp in the firm of J. C. Jones & Co. The friends of this sterling young business man will be glad to know that he is climbing the ladder of commercial life.

Pansy lotion for chapped hands. Just the thing to use after shaving, too. Upchurch Drug Co. tf

Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Ray and two children, who have been in Clanton for the past six or eight weeks, left Tuesday morning for Columbiana, where they will remain for some days.

News comes of a small-sized scrap that took place in the classic little town of Thorsby last Monday between two prominent gentlemen. The cause of the misunderstanding seems to have been the stock law now in force in that section. Glad to hear no serious damage was done either party.

If it's Military Brushes you are looking for to present "HIM," then you want to look over the line at Upchurch Drug Co.'s. They have them in profusion. tf

Notice to Philatheas.

The Philathea Class of the Baptist Sunday school will meet on next Friday night (December 2nd) with Miss Nell Mullins. All members will please take notice.

MeSS EMMA GUINN,
President.

Mrs. P. I. Hopkins, Mrs. S. C. Matthews and Miss Jatie Lawrence spent last Saturday and Sunday with relatives in Montevallo.

Mr. William Horsely, from up Jemison way, was a pleasant caller at The Press offices this week. We are always glad to see our county friends. A cordial welcome awaits them whenever they see fit to call.

Get a clock and keep up with the times. It might assist you also to keep up with the "old man." Upchurch has some beautiful designs, perfect timers and guaranteed to please. Remember it's UPCHURCH. tf

The Press regrets to state that the little girl of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson DeVaughan does not seem to improve as rapidly as her friends had hoped. The little miss has been suffering for several weeks, and seems not to yield to treatment.

Ladies, are you in need of a good cooking range? If so, call on A. Altman at Thorsby for the best and cheapest. Forty years of experience is behind all the goods that he handles. 2t

The Press is going to say just one more word about the PIC...ENS. They don't SMELL good and they don't LOOK good. All who agree with us on this subject hold up their hands.

Hammond Brant has the best notes fellas have—that's just because brass—but Upchurch has a swell line of the real article. It's the up-to-now thing for a present. Say HAMMERED BRASS to Upchurch and see him smile. tf

Mr. Gaston Scott has returned to Clanton after an absence of several weeks. Mr. Scott reports that he is going actively to work to get out that ore.

Miss Ruth Kate Mullins has gone to Centre, Cherokee county, where she is now engaged in teaching. The Press follows her to her new address.

Mirrors, Safety Razors, Shaving Mugs, Military Brushes, Smoking Sets—What more to make HIM happy at Christmas time? See Upchurch; he has the best line ever shown here. tf

Esquire J. D. Sims, of Mountain Creek, came to Clanton Tuesday on business, returning in the evening. While here he paid The Press a visit.

Henty books for the youngsters. Dolls for the children, Toys for all. That's the way we keep up our assortment—it's complete. UPCHURCH. tf

If it's chafing dishes or baking dishes you want, go to Upchurch; he has them in endless variety and at prices that will make your eyes bulge with delight. tf

The following marriage licenses have been issued this week:

Mr. J. W. DuBose and Miss Beulah Patterson.

Mr. L. F. Brown and Miss Dera Brown.

Mr. Jady Davis and Miss May Davis.

Mr. L. M. Avery and Miss A. M. Northcutt.

Mr. J. L. Collins and Miss Anna McCary.

Charley Dudley, colored, and Luna Williams, colored.

Last Friday Mrs. M. L. White entertained a party of friends at an elegant Thanksgiving dinner. The guests were all out-of-town friends, who enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. White. A seven-course dinner was served, and the guests were enthusiastic in their praise of the fair hostess. Those present were: Mrs. G. C. Bird and children, Misses Minnie Lee and Cecilia Dennis of Montgomery, Mrs. A. J. Dennis and Miss Mabel Jones of Verbena.

Hon. F. A. Gulledge, of Verbena, was among the prominent visitors to Clanton this week.

Don't forget that Upchurch Drug Company has rented headquarters to Santa Claus for this season, and will handle all kinds of Christmas goods. tf

The PIANO contest closes Monday, December 5th, at NOON. REMEMBER THAT.

Prof. J. M. Trosper, of Thorsby enstitute, was among the visitors to Clanton last Tuesday. During his stay in the city he paid The Press offices a pleasant visit.

Hon. J. Fritz Thompson, solicitor of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, was among the prominent visitors to Clanton this week.

Quite a gay party of young gentlemen from Mountain Creek came up last Sunday to enjoy the day in Clanton. Among the visitors were Messrs. William Snyder, G. A. Ligon, B. M. Roberts, R. T. Nold and J. J. Rollo. While here they came in to see The Press man, and spoke encouragingly of the reception of The Press in their section.

Every meal eaten at Roper's Cafe is served up to a standard—not down to a price. tf

News from the bedside of Mrs. Dr. Pow, whom everybody remembers as Miss Patti VanDerveer, continues to be encouraging. For several days her life was despaired of, but by careful nursing and scientific treatment she has steadily grown stronger until now the danger is past.

Make somebody happy at Christmas time with a KODAK. For sale at Alred Drug Company's only. tf

Mr. Grady Reynolds, who is attending the State University at Tuscaloosa, went to Birmingham to take in the great football game on Thanksgiving and then run down to spend the week end with his parents.

Roper's Cafe and Bakery opens at 5 a. m. and closes at 11 p. m. We never sleep. tf

Mr. Ed Smitherman went over to Maplesville last Friday on business.

To Visit Our Store

To introduce our business into every home in Chilton County we thought it would be a good idea to use BRUTON'S SCOTCH SNUFF. This article reaches nearly every home in the entire county.

We are going to give a reduction from the usual price of TWO CENTS on each can sold by us—in other words, while you pay OTHERS ten cents per can, we are going to charge you only EIGHT cents per can. This is a small amount, but in the aggregate it counts up. We positively will NOT sell over six (6) cans to any one person at the same sale.

Remember, we are not doing this to cut prices or as a cut-throat proposition; we are doing this MERELY to introduce our GROCERY DEPARTMENT. Give us a call; it does not cost you one cent. Warm by the red-hot stove these cold days. It's at

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS.

Mr. Kicker—Your bill actually makes my blood boil.

Doctor Slick—Then, sir, I must charge you $20 more for sterilizing your system.

BABY'S SCALP CRUSTED

"Our little daughter, when three months old, began to break out on the head and we had the best doctors to treat her, but they did not do her any good. They said she had eczema. Her scalp was a solid scale all over. The burning and itching was so severe that she could not rest, day or night. We had about given up all hopes when we read of the Cuticura Remedies. We at once got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and followed directions carefully. After the first dose of the Cuticura Resolvent, we used the Cuticura Soap freely and applied the Cuticura Ointment. Then she began to improve rapidly and in two weeks the scale came off her head and new hair began to grow. In a very short time she was well. She is now sixteen years of age and a picture of health. We used the Cuticura Remedies about five weeks, regularly, and then we could not tell she had been affected by the disease. We used no other treatment after we found out what the Cuticura Remedies would do for her. J. Fish and Ella M. Fish, Mt. Vernon, Ky., Oct. 12, 1909."

A physician at a dinner in Denver sneered at certain Biblical miracles.

"Lazarus," he said, "was raised from the dead—and yet I don't see any dead folks being raised in our time."

"No," said Rev. Herbert H. Tresham, the Biblical scholar, with a smile. "Modern medical science has progressed too far for that, eh?"—Washington Star.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman.

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

OFFERS FREE FARMS

Motley Horde Seeks Man Who Promises Home Comforts.

Texan Advertises for 4,000 Settlers—Promises to Furnish Expert Teachers, Seed, and Tools for Working Land.

New York.—Manager Copeland Townsend of the Imperial, is trying to figure out whether Theodore Hook, the practical joker, who almost a century ago sent half the tradesmen of London to the houses of modest citizens, with wagons and drays, bearing everything from hairpins to pianos, has not come to life in the person of a man, who described himself on the register of the hotel as "O. L. Williams, of Texas."

Meantime George Burrell, the room clerk, and Adam Lauder, the Scotch laird who presides over the information desk, are growing gray telling inquirers that Mr. Williams has left the hotel; that they know nothing about the 4,000 five acre farms in Texas which Mr. Williams says he is giving away.

Letters and notes accumulate by the stack every day, and citizens of every origin under the sun and would-be citizens who have been here only a week are making the lobby of the Imperial look at times like Ellis Island just after a ship from Libau has discharged its human cargo.

Mr. Williams arrived at the Imperial on October 27 and took a modest $2 room. After a few days, he was changed to a large room and bath, and then he notified some of the papers that he was in town and had some news. He paid his bill about 5 o'clock on the afternoon of the day before the story appeared and has not since been seen. When he left he gave the address of a little town in the extreme north of Texas near the Oklahoma line.

In an interview with Mr. Williams which appeared last Saturday, he was described as the representative of an alliance of commercial and industrial organizations and boards of trade and said he wanted to find 4,000 young men who were not afraid to work.

"Our association," he said, "will give each a deed to a five acre farm and expert farmers will teach him agriculture, horticulture and the art of getting enormous crops from the Texas soil and not only land, but a four room cottage with each five acres, without a dollar of expense.

"Besides, we will furnish teams, tools, seeds and other equipment for working the land, supply provisions, medical attendance and library facilities for one year free. The title to the homes and lands is to be permanent."

Inquiries for Mr. Williams started coming to the hotel early Saturday morning. The earliest comers seemed, according to the clerks, to be just the kind of colonists Mr. Williams said he was seeking, young men of American birth. Some of the local foreign papers copied the story Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning and the result was that a steady stream has been pouring into the Imperial lobby ever since, and then out.

One caller was a long-whiskered man, from the lower east side. He said he wanted a farm. He was told there was none in the hotel just then.

"Who has the farm for you," asked the clerk.

"Villyums," was the reply.

"He's in Texas," said the clerk.

"Vere is dot?"

"On the railroad."

"Den I get a ticket," and he was directed to a railroad office down the street.

Two young Italians came in. One could speak English, the other could not. The first said that he had been scurrying about among his friends and had got a colony of fifty young men, including a doctor, who were prepared to accept the farms and go to Texas immediately provided Mr. Williams would add the railway fare to other allurements held out.

First Aerial Stowaway.

Berlin.—A workman of the name of Hase has achieved the distinction of becoming the world's first stowaway on an airship.

Impelled by a longing to experience flight through the air Hase crept under a tarpaulin covering the benzine tank of the Parseval VI., which ascended here bound for Keil.

He crawled out in the course of the voyage and apologized for his presence.

EXCITING TIME WITH BEES

Little Honey Gatherers Capture Grocery Store, Driving Proprietor and Customers Out.

Troy, N. Y.—E. J. Bouchard, a grocer of Cohoes, had an exciting time with a swarm of bees in his store. Mr. Bouchard had on hand 100 pounds of honey and was attracted to the rear of his place by the continual buzzing. Several customers were in the store, and the grocer excused himself until he investigated.

He was greatly surprised to see the great swarm flitting about his honey stock, and for a few minutes watched them come in and go out through a small hole in the rear window.

When Bouchard endeavored to drive the bees away they retaliated, and succeeded not only in driving back the grocer, but in clearing the customers out as well. The grocer was obliged to resort to a smoking process to drive out his unwelcome visitors, and after they had gone he found that all but one or two of his boxes of honey remained untouched.

The bees had evidently been working some time and were buzzing their approval at the completion of the job when the grocer's attention was attracted.

COW MOOSE IS QUITE TAME

Wanders Far From Usual Haunts of Big Game in Cobbosseecontee Lake Region of Maine.

Kennebec, Me.—A lone cow moose far away from the usual haunts of the big game animals, has for some time frequented the Cobbosseecontee lake region of Maine. Deer are occasionally seen in that part of the state, which is in Kennebec county, about half a dozen miles west from Hallowell, Gardiner and Augusta. Cow moose are perpetually protected, and not being legal game they have increased in recent years far in excess of the bulls. When not molested they become very tame and will walk into a farm yard just to mingle with the cows or join them in the pastures, where the moose seeks out any delectable browse that trees or shrubs may happen to offer.

CHINESE "SUGAR-CANE" DAY

Observed in Chicago Chinatown by Consumption of More Than Ton of Saccharine Article.

Chicago.—"Sugar-cane" day was observed in Chicago Chinatown the other day by the consumption of more than a ton of the saccharine article, which is the Chinese favorite confection.

When the first shipment of cane arrived from New Orleans every Chinaman in town came to Clark street to gorge himself on the sweet stalks. In some of the stores where cane was sold there were contests among the gourmands as to which could eat the most.

"Chinamen seldom eat candy," said Frank Woy, the mayor of Chinatown, "but I never knew one who wasn't crazy about sugar cane.

"Chinamen have a weakness for chocolate ice cream soda, perfumed soap, sugar cane and having their photographs taken. It is nothing unusual to see a Chinaman buy perfumed soap at 25 and 50 cents a cake. Some of them take a trunkful of it back to China when they go on a visit."

Fat Policeman Quits.

Kansas City, Mo.—Herman Hartman, who weighs 305 pounds, quit the local police force the other day because he became too fat on his job.

"When I joined the force five years ago I weighed 240 pounds," said Hartman. "Regardless of my efforts to keep down to my normal weight I put on flesh. I was turning in my shirt one day and was going into the Cronin when I saw Cole Aver-

EUGENIE TO SELL PROPERTY

Former Empress to Convert Estates Into Cash to Save Prince Victor Napoleon Worry.

Paris.—Ex-Empress Eugenie, who is now in her eighty-fifth year, is selling all her property in the country over which she once held sway, in order that Prince Victor Napoleon, who was married the other day to Princess Clementine of Belgium, may have no difficulty in gaining possession of all that belongs to her after she passes away.

It is an open secret that she intends making her nephew, the imperial claimant to the throne of France, the principal heir to her great wealth, which has been estimated as high as $20,000,000. To relieve him of a repetition of those long drawn out and costly legal proceedings which worried her so much, forty years ago, when the newly formed French republic wanted to keep all the fallen emperor's domains, she wants to turn her landed properties in France into cash now, and leave him money.

Among the estates is that of the famous Solferino palace, in the south of France. That former imperial residence was to have gone under the hammer here recently, but the sale has been postponed, owing to "difference of opinion over the substratum upon which thereof be accepted." The ex-empress does not want to part with the palace for less than $100,000, but can it is understood accept no less in view of the extraordinary depression of property.

of 1866. Originally in a bleak part of the sparsely populated department of the Midi, a whole village has since sprung into being around its walls. The emperor was hardly ever in residence there, and all its fittings and furniture were long ago taken away.

CONTINUES SMOKING AT 98

Venerable Pennsylvania Woman Declares Tobacco Is Helpful to Her—Pleasing Pastime.

Earlville, Pa.—In Amity township that gave America the early ancestors of Abraham Lincoln and Nancy Hanks and sent Daniel Boone to the Kentucky borders, there was a gathering in honor of Berks county's most remarkable living woman, Mrs. Sallie Shirey. She celebrated her ninety-eighth birthday, and five hundred other Berks countians helped to make the event a happy one for this venerable woman, who had reared twelve children to manhood and to womanhood.

She could hardly believe that she was so near the one-hundredyear mark, and said it seemed but yesterday when she saw some of her sons go to the Civil war to fight for their country.

Five generations were present and saw her light her old clay pipe, the smoking of her pleasantest pastime. To the use of tobacco and trough living she attributes her longevity.

An Experience

Weak and delicate ladies need Cardui, to bring [color] into their pale cheeks and energy into their weary [frame]. Read this letter from Mrs. Albert Root, of Amanda, [Ohio], giving an account of her experience, and how she found relief:

"I was hardly ever without a headache, and often had a misery in my back and sides," she writes. "I was sick in bed half the time, and suffered a great deal from neuralgia of the stomach. Since taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, I have gained 10 pounds, and now I can do all my own house-work, and washing, and my friends say I look like a different person."

TAKE CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

No harmful effects can possibly come to young or old from the use of Cardui, the woman's tonic. Thousands of women have written, like Mrs. Root, to tell of the great benefit they obtained from its use.

Cardui is a reliable tonic. Its ingredients are mild medicinal herbs, acting mainly on the womanly constitution and building up both nervous and vital energy.

Pure, strictly vegetable, safe and reliable—Cardui is the ideal remedy, for delicate, ailing women.

Try it. At all druggists.

A Sure Cure.

Whether from Colds, Heat, Stomach or Nervous Troubles, Capudine will relieve you. It's liquid—pleasant to take—acts immediately. Try it. 10c., 25c., and 50 cents at drug stores.

Feminine Logic.

Her—A woman is always right.

Him—How do you figure that out?

Her—Well, a woman is, isn't she?"

Him—Yes, I suppose so.

Her—And Pope says: "Whatever is, is right." See?—Chicago Daily News.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM
Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form. The Quinine drives out the malaria and the Iron builds up the system. Sold by all dealers for 50 years. Price 50 cents.

Not to the Wise.

Howell—A word to the wise is sufficient.

Powell—Then how do you account for the long-drawn-out speeches over the telephone?

A Sure Cure.

Mother—I'm afraid Gwendoline is setting her heart on that young Penniless.

Father—You think so?

Mother—I am almost sure of it.

Father—Well, he is not a fit person for her to marry. He is as poor as a rat and has no prospects. Something must be done to set her against him.

Mother—I have thought of that and have hit upon what I think is an excellent plan.

Father—Yes? What is it?

Mother—We must tell her that we want her to marry him.

Couldn't Be Thankful.

Bishop Charles W. Smith at a harvest dinner in Portland said of the harvest spirit:

"The harvest spirit is one of thankfulness, but there are some crabbed old farmers who couldn't be thankful if they tried.

"I said to such an old fellow as he conducted me over his farm on a golden autumn afternoon and showed me a record harvest:

"'Well, sir, this year, at least, you've got nothing, nothing whatever to complain of.'

"'I don't know about that, bishop,' he answered, with a shake of the head. 'I'm afraid there'll be no spoilt hay for the young calves.'"

McLean Met His Match.

John R. McLean stepped in front of a lurching Irishman one evening and obstructed the sidewalk so that the Irishman was obliged to stop and look at him. McLean said:

"Here's that half dollar I borrowed of you. Now you must quit telling the neighbors that I never pay my debts."

Half drunk, and wholly dazed, the Irishman took the silver piece, looked at it intently, and then said:

"Be dad, yez can't get off thot slay. It wor a whole dollar that yez borryd; so fork over."

And he forked over another half dollar, and went his way, laughing heartily at the quick wit of the Irishman.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Hardly a Compliment.

In the excitement of the moment public speakers often say the opposite of what they mean to convey, and "when Henry Irving gave a reading in the Ulster hall, in 1878," says Bram Stoker, in "Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving," "one speaker made as pretty an Irish bull as could be found, though the bull is generally supposed to belong to other provinces than the hard-headed Ulster. In descanting on the many virtues of the guest of the evening he mentioned the excellence of his moral nature and rectitude of his private life in these words: 'Mr. Irving, sir, is a gentleman who never took a life or [illegible]

NO UNIFORMITY IN THE LAWS IS BAD

SO SAY THE SPEAKERS AT CONVENTION IN NEW ORLEANS, LA.

THE GATHERING WAS GOOD

Necessity of Cleanliness in Food and Dairy Products Throughout the Nation is the Cry.

New Orleans.—Need of uniformity in the food and dairy laws of the various states was urged by President George L. Flanders of Albany, N. Y., at the opening of the annual convention of the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments. Progress in this direction had been made, he said, within recent months, but there yet remained much to be done.

In an address on sanitation Dr. H. E. Beranard, food and drug commissioner of Indiana, declared that "food though chemically pure may be sanitarily unfit to eat." He expressed a belief that the work of food departments will be less and less given to controversial discussions of labels and manufactures and instead be devoted to "promulgation of a new version of an old maxim, 'cleanliness is akin to godliness,' among food distributers and producers.'

Among other speakers were Lucius P. Brown, food commissioner of Tennessee, and E. W. Burke, food and dairy commisisoner of Wyoming.

A letter was read from Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, who expressed regret at not being able to attend the convention and commended the work of the association.

Representatives from more than 36 states gathered to attend the convention, which will be in session for four days.

A number of important subjects relating to the purity of food products are scheduled for discussion and one of the principal questions which is expected to claim attention will be that of uniformity in state and national pure food laws. Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, who, it had been expected, would address the convention, will be unable to attend according to announcement made Monday morning.

Among prominent federal officials present is George B. McCabe, solicitor of the department of agriculture. In discussing the workings of the pure food statutes, Mr. McCabe said, previous to the opening of the convention:

"We have reduced the percentage of adulteration down to such a small margin that it is almost negligible by the enforcement of the pure food laws. This is not accomplished so much by the fines that are imposed but by the provision of the law which permits us to print 20,000 copies of this judgment for general circulation. The manufacturers have learned that this hurts their business, especially when their competitors have taken advantage of the printed matter to flood the country with copies of it. The great trouble seems to have been in misbranding. This is the rock on which the manufacturers break. Some of them cant' tell the truth and the work of forcing them to do it is tedious but the convictions by the department are doing much to teach them.'

Fourteen Men Killed

Fort Worth, Tex.—A telephone message received here tells of a gas explosion in the Jumbo coal mine, 18 miles from Antlers, Okla., which resulted in the death of 14 men. The force of the explosion was so great that five of the men were blown out of the shaft, 200 feet deep. The other nine dead are buried in wreckage at the bottom.

Founder of Packing Plant is Dead.

Chicago.—Michael Cudahy, founder of the packings firm bearing his name, died in a hospital here of pneumonia. Mr. Cudahy had been ill five days, the disease ecoming serious November 26. Members of his family were at his bedside when death came. Mr. Cudahy was born in Callan county, Kilkenny, Ireland, December 7, 1841. He came to the United States with his parents in 1847, the family settling at Milwaukee.

Bubonic Threatens Chinese Millions.

Pekin.—Bubonic plague has swept across the northern border from Manchura and the hundreds of millions of people in China are threatened with extermination. Horrifying details of the plagbe's sweep throughout Manchuria, especially in the western part, were received here from Mukden and Harbin. China will act in concert with Russia in an attempt to stamp out the dread affliction.

She Coverdd Her Head.

Scene, a country church of Episcopalian denomination in process of being decorated for the Christmas season. The rector, who has a strong leaning toward forms of all kinds, is fastening a festoon of evergreen about the baptismal font, when, enter Miss Dymple, who unceremoniously flings her hat upon the seat of a pew and comes to his assistance. The rector suddenly observes that she is hatless and remarks severely:

"Miss Dymple, it is particularly forbidden that women shall come into the church with uncovered heads."

"Oh, bother, I forgot!" responded the young lady irreverently. "Well," grabbing up the rector's derby and setting it jauntily on her pert little head, "will this do?"

AS REPRESENTED.

Patient—Look here, doctor; you said if I took a bottle of your tonic I would have a remarkable appetite. Why, I only eat one soda cracker each week.

Doctor—Well, don't you call that a remarkable appetite?

END STOMACH TROUBLE NOW

Dyspepsia, Gas, Sourness or Indigestion Go Five Minutes After Taking a Little Diapepsin.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or you feel bloated after eating, and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure Indigestion.

A large case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents at any drug store here in town, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Dyspepsia, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at your drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order Stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly, without any fuss or discomfort, all of any kind of food you eat.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure any chronic case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Gastritis or any other Stomach trouble.

Should you at this moment be suffering from Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or any stomach disorder, you can surely get relief within five minutes.

NOTHING SORDID ABOUT HIM

Poet Was Looking for Appreciation of the Ages That Stretched Into the Future.

The editor looked at the poetry and then he turned back to the poet.

For a moment his customary assurance failed him. The poet was so thin and seedy and hollow-eyed.

"See here, my friend," he said in as gentle a voice as he could assume on short notice, "I don't want to discourage you, but while your stuff here is fairly good—and perhaps a little better—it is a standing rule of this paper never to buy poetry."

The poet drew himself up with a sudden snort.

"Why, suffering Dante," he cried, "you don't suppose from my appearance that I was out for the filthy simoleons, did you? Why, bless your journalistic soul, all I'm working for is a plain niche in the Hall of Fame!"

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

General News

Court Proceedings.

The fall term of the circuit court convened on Monday last, with Judge W. W. Pearson presiding and Mr. F. Loyd Tait acting solicitor.

The grand jury was drawn, and is composed of the following gentlemen, who will examine into the affairs of th county and pass upon the violations of the law:

F. R. Woodyard, foreman; Manley Smith, Eugene Evans, C. H. Plier, Joseph Waldrop, John W. Reynolds, E. Cass Lawrence, J. S. Kindricks, P. W. Barnes, J. M. Price, H. M. Mims, J. O. Wesson, W. H. Wells, J. Peter Stonecipher, J. Frank Marcus, J. Tom Reynolds, L. A. McGraw and J. M. Hayes.

The following compose jury No. 1: C. C. Ray, R. J. Williams, W. Jeff Ruffin, John A. Sammon, Enoch N. Wilson, T. N. Easterling, T. J. Tillery, B. W. Tyus, G. Newt Mims, A. E. Teel, W. R. Scott and Gordon S. Jones.

Jury No. 2—E. L. Glasscock, J. P. Wilson, Wade Harris, W. O. Durbin, E. B. Calloway, J. M. Ward, J. M. McCorcle, J. W. Lawrence, J. W. P. Murphy, W. P. Williams, J. E. Melton and John D. Cooper.

After an able charge by Judge Pearson to the grand jury, in which this learned jurist set forth the statutes as to violations of the law, particularly stressing that law which prohibits the making of bets or wagers on results of elections, the grand jury filed into the room set apart for their use and immediately begun the business assigned to them.

The judge begun the sounding of the docket and went into the trial of several cases. The district solicitor, Mr. D. D. Askew, has been unwell for some months, and as he is soon to be succeeded by Mr. F. Loyd Tait, the newly elected solicitor, the duties of that office have been turned over to Mr. Tait. County Solicitor Adams is also absent from court, being at present a sojourner at Hot Springs, where he hopes within a few weeks to regain his lost strength.

There is another regular officer absent from the court, or rather there is a gentleman recently elected to office who is filling the place of the regular officer. Mr. Sam W. Collins, the regular clerk of the court, has turned the affairs of the office over to Mr. Marion Foshee, the newly elected clerk, and he is conducting the business of that office with Mr. Collins as assistant.

The following cases were called Monday and disposed of as indicated:

J. E. Garrett vs. Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company; dismissed by plaintiff.

Catherine A. Boyd vs. J. W. E. Gulledge; dismissed by plaintiff.

The Old Woolen Mills vs. R. H. Martin; judgment for plaintiff by default, with remittance.

F. D. Jones vs. Mrs. Pat Smith; dismissed for want of prosecution.

W. C. Edler vs. A. T. Baker; judgment for plaintiff in sum of $3.50.

W. C. Edler vs. J. W. Headley; judgment for defendant.

C. M. Grubbs vs. W. I. Shivers; judgment for plaintiff by consent in sum of $220, with exemptions as to personal property.

P. D. Wilson vs. G. W. Wilkins; dismissed and costs paid.

Monday was not a busy day in court, as most of the day is usually taken up in the charge to the grand jury, the organization of petit juries and in "sounding the docket" for the setting of cases for trial.

Tuesday the court went to regular business and disposed of most of the civil cases on the docket. A number of cases were postponed on account of the illness of Mr. Adams and his enforced absence. The grand jury has not yet made a partial report, so that cases indicted by that body are not yet set for trial.

Next week there will be several criminal cases for trial, and the sessions of the court will be extremely interesting.

A Beautiful Entertainment.

Mrs. Gamma Anderson entertained beautifully last Thursday evening, when she complimented her brother, Mr. James Middleton, and her charming cousin, Miss Edwina Moore, of Montgomery county.

The home presented a brilliant scene for the occasion. The three apartments thrown open to the guests were lavishly decorated with gorgeous white and yellow chrysanthemums, with palms and ferns forming the back-ground for the attractive gathering.

The affair was charmingly informal. At 7:30 o'clock the dining room was thrown open and the guests were invited to partake of a delicious five-course dinner. The table was notably lovely. Red and white carnations in combination with plumosa ferns filled a cut-glass vase and bowl resting upon a handsome embroidered and Cluny-lace centerpiece, which occupied the center of the table.

The pleasure of the dinner hour was greatly heightened by sweet strains of music by the Clanton band.

After dinner a floral contest was entered into. A basket containing cards was passed to the young men and another to the young ladies; the cards held by the young men bore the first lines of a quotation, and the cards of the young ladies the remaining line of the quotation.

Much pleasure and excitement and fun was occasioned by matching the quotations so as to make them complete, and thereby discover who were to be partners in the contest that followed. Pictures representing flowers had been pasted on cardboard; these were handed to the guests, who were required to name the flowers represented.

The judges awarded the prizes to Miss Nell Mullins and Mr. Tom Woods as being the most successful contestants.

Mrs. Anderson received her guests with charm, wearing an exquisite gown of yellow Moire trimmed with black velvet.

Miss Moore's gown was of opal blue messaline, with spangled lace overdress. The other guests were superbly gowned, the smartness and color of their costumes adding much to the beauty of the decorations.

Those fortunate enough to enjoy Mrs. Anderson's hospitality were: Misses Edwina Moore, the honoree; Nell Mullins, Jatie Lawrence, L. E. Morgan and Willie Florence; Messrs. James Middleton, who shared the honors with Miss Moore as honoree; C. Fenn Jones, Amzi Gowan, Tom Woods and Clark Harper.

During the wee sma' hours of Thanksgiving night the delighted guests took their departure, proclaiming Mrs. Anderson not only a delightful hostess, but an unusually brilliant and versatile entertainer.

An Untimely Death.

On last Friday afternoon at a local infirmary Mr. Sanford DeLoach, a highly respected young man living near Deatsville, Autauga county, breathed his last.

Mr. DeLoach had been a sufferer, more or less, all his life from tuberculosis of the stomach, but his great fortitude and indomitable courage stood him in great stead until within a few days of his death.

Fearing that the end was near, he was brought to Clanton in the hope that local physicians might restore him to health, but the disease from which he suffered had gained too great a hold upon the young life to expect permanent recovery. After remaining under the care of physicians here for three days, his spirit was called by the Master who gave it. Surrounded by loved ones, he breathed his last just as the sun was sinking in the west.

The remains were taken to the old home near Deatsville Friday night, where the interment was had Saturday.

Mr. DeLoach was about 15 years of age, the youngest of seven children born to Mr. and Mrs. F. M. DeLoach. A brother, Mr. Julien DeLoach, is now a resident of Clanton, holding a position with Headley & Co.

To the bereaved ones The Press extends profound sympathy.

A CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. Editor:

Kindly give me space in your paper to express my gratitude to my friends for their loyal support during the campaign and recent election. It may occur to some of my friends that I am a little tardy in rendering thanks, but I wish to recall that there were rumors of a contest in the wind, and until this was finally settled it seemed to me to be best to remain silent. While we did not succeed in securing the office to which I aspired, I am none the less grateful to my many friends for their support, and I wish now and here to pledge myself to work unceasingly for the interest of the party which has honored me.

I feel that though victory was not ours in all respects, the victory we did achieve will redound to the good of the county and to the happiness of our people.

Let me suggest that our people now close ranks, pay up poll taxes and prepare for the conflict which is to come two years from now. Victory is ours if we will but hold out our hands and grasp it.

Again thanking my friends, I am,

Respectfully,

J. ARKIE MAHAN.

Red Men Have a Time.

Last Tuesday night was a night of nights for the vermillion-hued boys of Clanton. They captured three pale-faces wandering about their preserves and proceeded to put them through the rites which make them red—red in the face and otherwise.

After the initiatory service the boys had a war dance in approved Indian style. The night was greatly enjoyed.

On the Home Stretch.

Next week winds up the PIANO contest which The Press put on last May. In the beginning the race was exciting, and was entered into by many sweet young ladies, but most of them soon became disheartened and retired, much to the regret of The Press man. He saw in that scheme an opportunity to advertise his paper, and incidentally to make a few scads to tide over the long months of the summer; these glimpses of money and popularity soon faded. Nevertheless, the race has been an interesting one. The paper scarcely reaches the printer's office before a score or more are ready to glance over the list to see who is "ahead in the race."

There will be but one more accounting. The race closes tight on Monday, the 5th of December, at noon. Remember, at NOON. Do not bring tickets after that hour and expect them to be counted. Do not ask how contestants stand. We cannot in fairness tell how any contestant stands except as is published in the paper this week. If you have tickets reserved and want them counted, they must be in our hands by NOON on Monday. To request that we tell you how others stand so that you can put in more votes for "your" candidate is manifestly unfair both to the contestants and to the management. We have tried to be absolutely square. There has been no juggling so far as we know. The PIANO is going to that one who wins it fairly and squarely. The Press has half a million or more tickets on hand; if you want to vote them for your friends, the way to get them is to send us job work, give us subscriptions to the paper (the best in the county), or else trade with merchants who are handling our tickets. The next few days will see much "trading" in tickets. We cannot sell them to individuals; we promised in the beginning not to do that. The box at Upchurch Drug Co.'s will be opened promptly at noon on Monday and the tickets removed; after that no tickets can be deposited there. The count will begin some time Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning. All the tickets thus far voted have been kept. Any one who feels that the count has not been absolutely correct and strictly fair shall have the right to demand a recount. Any mistake made will be corrected.

Any one interested can see the final count Monday or Tusday. There will perhaps be half a million tickets the last week; it will take a day to do the counting. In addition to that, The Press man must get out his paper; therefore, you see he will have little time for idle hours.

One final request: Get your tickets in early; do not crumple or twist them—that makes them hard to count. Don't seek information as to the final result, but wait for the announcement in the paper. That's a part of the profit to the paper in the contest.

YOU'VE GOT FIVE MORE DAYS, counting today. HUSTLE!

Increased Business Forces Additional Help.

The business of the Peoples Telephone line has so increased within the past few weeks as to force the employment of additional assistance in the operating department. More than six hundred phones are now in use, and more than sixty lines are concentrated in the central office here in Clanton. The work has been so heavy that those who have heretofore conducted the affairs of the office found it necessary to employ help. Miss Lake Jones, one of Clanton's accomplished young ladies, is now engaged as assistant in the "hello" office, and will doubtless give universal satisfaction to the patrons of the line.

We Salute the New Postmistress.

For some time past Mr. W. A. Kemp has been the assistant postmaster at Clanton, though not in active service. Mr. Kemp was once an efficient officer of the mail department, but retired some time ago. Since that time the Clanton postoffice has been without an assistant postmaster. Last week Postmaster Dudley forwarded the name of Miss Florence Hopkins as his official assistant, and following the rule of the postal department, Miss Hopkins will soon become the second in command of the mail department in our city. This is a position of honor and trust, and though Miss Hopkins is yet a very young lady, she possesses every quality and characteristic that goes to make a thoroughly competent and acceptable assistant postmistress.

We congratulate Miss Florence, but above all, we offer our congratulations to Postmaster Dudley in having made such a capital selection, and the patrons of the office in having such an efficient officer as we know Miss Hopkins will prove to be.

Death of an Aged Citizen.

The Press regrets profoundly to chronicle the death of Mrs. Mary Oates, who died at her late residence in Clanton on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock of consumption, after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Oates had been a long but patient sufferer, always looking forward to the time when she should regain her strength and be able to go about her accustomed duties.

She was a consistent member of the Methodist church, and though her health would not permit her attendance upon the services, she was always there in spirit.

The deceased was in the 63d year of her age. She was the mother of five children, all of whom survive her, one son and four daughters.

The interment took place yesterday at the Clanton cemetery, Rev. R. J. Mills conducting the funeral services.

To those loved ones whom she leaves behind The Press, in common with their many friends, extends profound sympathy.

The columns of The Press are open to you gentlemen free of all cost, and we respectfully invite you—not for the sake of office, understand, but for the good of the people—to announce a platform of public improvements and such other matters as pertain to the good of the people, and after that has been done, we confidently believe that the difficulty will have been solved; that every citizen will walk up as one man and vote for that one whose sole policy tends most to the betterment of the WHOLE town and to the good of the people.

We reserve six columns next week to each.

STRICKEN IN DEATH.

The Press regrets to chronicle the death of Mr. Clifford Baker, which sad event occurred last Monday at his late residence near the corporate limits of Clanton.

Mr. Baker was a most worthy young gentleman, a tireless worker and an affectionate father and husband.

Ae leaves to mourn his untimely death a wife and little child.

Mr. Baker was one of the trusted employes of the postoffice department in Clanton, having been connected with the service for some time. He was carrier on route No. 5, and those who have been accustomed to his familiar face and cheery voice will sadly miss him when in the future they meet the mail man.

Mr. Baker was about twenty-five years of age and in the very flush of young manhood when he was taken with typhoid fever. For weeks loved ones worked and prayed that he might be restored to perfect health again, but it seems that He who doeth all things well willed otherwise, so the spirit of Clifford Baker went to the God who gave it.

The funeral services took place last Tuesday afternoon from the late residence, and were conducted by the local lodge of Odd Fellows, of which he was a consistent member.

Peace to his ashes.

OUR MT. CREEK LETTER

The Old Soldiers Rejoice at the Success of the Press.

Editor Clanton Press:

I must trespass on your pages again, and perhaps upon your patience, by sending you a word of congratulation, in regard to the organization of your company. The news was received here with a great deal of interest. One of the subscribers to the "other" paper expressed to me his intention to drop his subscription just where it is and to take the Press. This gentleman, too, is one of some standing and influence in the community. His remark was not elicited by anything said to him. Again I say "long live the Press"; may it prove a wise guide and a victorious leader to the people of Chilton county.

The old soldiers enjoy reading your paper and they look forward to its coming with pleasant anticipations.

We old heroes of the lost cause are doing nicely now; we are comfortably housed for the winter and are prepared to have pleasant dreams of the days long agone.

Sincerely. W. B.

SAMARIA.

We are here again asking that you print for us the program of our literary society meeting which is to take place on Saturday night, Dec. 10th.

These debates have proven instructive as well as entertaining to our young people. We sincerely hope that more of our people will take an interest in them and that we may thereby be enabled to build our society up to the highest key of proficiency.

The following is the program for our next meeting (Saturday night):

First, debate on the subject: Resolved that the rod should be banished from the school room.

Affirmative—Prof. T. E. Williams, Miss Ruby Downs.

Negative—Prof. J. Z. Mims, Miss Dezzie Headley.

2nd. Recitation by Miss Cora Foshee.

3rd. Recitation by Miss Paralee Jones.

4th. Recitation by Miss Rosa Tyus.

5th. What it takes to constitute a lady—by Prof. W. C. Scarbrough.

6th. What it takes to constitute a gentleman—By Miss Ennis Aldridge.

We cordially invite all to come and hear the discussion of these subjects.

MACEDONIA.

There seems to be a splendid sentiment prevailing among our people, due to fine health, splendid prices and the reign of democracy.

Prof. C. C. King is teaching a fine school here, for which our appreciation is hoisted above the minor tone.

Mr. Will Plier has purchased the Mims mill and farm and moved his family here from West Chilton. We welcome them in our midst.

The infant of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Littleton was buried at Macedonia Monday evening, and our sincere sympathy is extended to the bereaved parents in this their hour of affliction.

Mr. Ed Gandy, of Nowhere, is here enjoying one of his accustomed visits.

Prof. C. C. King and brother, Prof. O. K. King, entered into a joint pursuit for pleasure, and took in an entertainment at Talladega Springs last week.

It is rather odd that some of our preachers have to appear before the grand jury: been among the wolves, I guess. E. D. S.

A LETTER FROM MR. ADAMS.

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 3, 1910.

To the People of Chilton County:

I am gratified to say that my trip here has greatly benefited me. I believe that I will return in about ten days a strong and well man, prepared to resume my professional duties.

I will be truly thankful to be permitted to return to the midst of my people. It has been a source of regret to me that I had to be absent at this season of the year.

With best wishes for Chilton county's every interest, and believing with absolute faith in the county's future greatness, I am for a reunited people,

Yours truly,

W. M. ADAMS.

GEMS DYED WITH RADIUM

Artificial Color Can Be Given to Precious Stones by Use of the Costly Metal.

With chloride and bromide of radium at $100 a milligram, or $6,500 a grain, the use of radium to give artificial color to precious stones has little industrial promise. To give a more accurate idea of the possible changes, Armbrecht, in London, has been experimenting for many months, and has produced some remarkable effects upon color. About 200 white sapphires—pure oxide of aluminum—were kept in contact with radium two or three weeks. About 70 per cent. turned yellow, the shades ranging from lemon to dark orange; a few, apparently from another locality, became green, pinkish or amethyst color, and a very few changed to rose color. A light blue was imparted to two or three—too light to give value, approaching that of the much-prized deep blue sapphires. Pale emeralds were somewhat darkened by radium, but were not given the deep green of the expensive stones. Brown diamonds were bleached almost white, nothing being obtained like the beautiful blue gem into which Sir Wm. Crooks transformed a yellow diamond. Amethysts were altered by radium into smoky or yellow quartz, dirty-appearing pearls were cleaned by a shorter while, but opals were not amenable to treatment.

TRYING TO FIND OIL

Abandons Newspaper Work—Negro May Prove Claim to Land—Big Anniversary For Sheffield.

Trying to Find Oil.

Decatur.—The Central Mortgage & Trust Co. of Birmingham has filed in the office of the probate judge in Decatur oil and gas leases to the number of 254 and covering about 30,000 acres of land in Morgan county. It is expected that this company will secure options on at least 10,000 acres more in this county. Much of this land lies near the two Decaturs. It is stated authoritatively that the actual work of drilling wells for gas and oil will commence here near the two Decaturs within the next few weeks by this company. The superintendent of the company is now in Pittsburg, Pa., where he has gone to order the machinery for the sinking of the wells and just as soon as this machinery arrives work will commence. The company will spare no expense and will sink a number of wells in this county, some of them near the Decaturs, in an effort to find gas and oil. Experts who has examined this field recently say there is no question but that both gas and oil exist in this locality in largely paying quantities, the only thing is to find it. This company is confident that they will be able to find it and they will spend many thousands of dollars in the effort.

Abandons Newspaper Work.

Russellville.—After being for the past half century directly connected with the management of the Moulton Advertiser, one of Alabama's oldest newspapers, at Moulton, Lawrence county, Jourd White has announced his retirement from active work and has given the management of the paper to his son, Paul White. This paper has been in the White family for about 100 years, and under this management has developed into an excellent weekly newspaper property. Mr. White has been owner of the paper for the past 50 years and during this time has given his entire time to the work of publishing the paper. He is regarded by the press of Alabama as one of the ablest of Alabama editors, but by his advanced age and failing eyesight will now relinquish control of the paper to his son, though Mr. White will continue as owner.

Negro May Prove Claim to Land.

Anniston.—According to a story related to Chief of Police Nath Glossen, an aged negro who is in this city, by the name of Bell, is the owner of five acres of land in Avondale which he purchased from a Confederate soldier for $50 in 1869. He says that he was compelled by the Ku Klux Klan to leave the city and that he left his property in the trust of a white friend. He went to Arkansas, accumulated money and returned recently to claim his holdings, but found that it had been annexed as a part of the Magic City. He failed to substantiate his claim, but has placed his case in the hands of an attorney, he says, and will make a fight to recover the property.

Prairie Fire Rages.

Bay Minette—Word has been received here from the vicinity of Summerdale and Foley to the effect that the fires starting from burning stumps have spread out over a great acreage, burning the growth of grass and doing considerable damage. The smoke was so thick Thursday afternoon that the engine crew of the Fort Morgan branch of the Louisville and Nashville train could not see ahead of the engine. The fire is spreading rapidly and a number of homes are endangered. Several people from this place who have interests in that vicinity left on the train to look after their places.

Trip Has Proven Failure.

Selma.—R. F. Rhodes of Dallas, Tex., known as "Buckskin Bob," arrived in Selma on a trip from Dallas to New York on horseback. Mr. Rhodes abandoned his trip after reaching Selma and will return to his home in Texas within the next few days. On a wager of $1,000 Mr. Rhodes undertook to cover a distance of 5000 miles on horseback between the two places. The bet was that he was to ride but one pony the entire distance. He left Dallas on September 7 and reached New Orleans in good shape. At Marion Junction Thursday the horse which he has been riding began to weaken and he was compelled to ride his lead horse into Selma. Under the conditions of the bet, by riding his lead horse he has lost his wager, and will return to his home and make another start next spring.

MEET NEXT IN FLORENCE.

Birmingham Beaten in Fight for Conference.

Huntsville.—The North Alabama conference voted to hold its next annual meeting at Florence. Bishop Kilgo announced that owing to a great deal of time having been consumed by the special report of the educational commission the conference would not likely adjourn until late Tuesday.

Friday evening was given over to missions. R. M. Archibald, missionary secretary of the North Alabama conference, read a report of his work for the year. He reported having delivered 291 missionary addresses, organized seven mission study classes, placed nine missionary libraries, sold $319.60 worth of missionary books and secured 893 subscriptions to the missionary paper. He raised during the year $1,405 for foreign missions and secured from the laymen of Birmingham a pledge of $15,000 for the school at Sougdo, Korea.

In this conference three new missions have been organized, twenty churches organized, thirty-seven abandoned churches reorganized, and twenty-five new preaching places established.

Dr. S. L. Dobbs, treasurer of the mission board, read his report which showed the following amounts raised this year: Foreign misisons, $18,260.10; home missions, $8,575.42; special missions, $3,966.26; total, $25,801.75.

Mrs. J. B. Simpson, president of the Woman's Home Missionary department of the conference, made an interesting address on the work of her department. She told of the efforts to form a mission school on the forty acres of land owned by the conference at Flat Rock on Sand Mountain, and urged that the conference come to the support of the enterprise. This mountain work is in charge of Dr. F. H. Gardner and is an experiment in missionary school work.

Miss Mary N. Moore, president of the foreign missionary society, charged the audience by the recital of the life story of Virginia Atkinson, an Alabama girl who went as a missionary from Alabama to China.

Dr. John C. Calhoun Newton, a missionary to China, who is supported entirely by the First Methodist church of Huntsville, delivered the principal address bringing out many interesting and important facts relative to the work in his field.

The Finance Committee reported and made a nassessment for Conference claimants of $13,000; for bishops, $3,789.

Negro Tries to Kidnap Child.

Greenville.—A negro whose name is not known attempted to kidnap a child of Sam Hickman, who lives about seven miles from town. The little girl, who is about three and one-half years old, was playing alone in the front yard of the home. A negro man driving two mules passed, and, stopping near the child, asked her if she did not want to ride a piece. He picked her up, put her in the buggy and hid her with the lap robe. The child began crying and begging to go home. Her screams became so loud that the negro put her out of the buggy after carrying her half a mile or more. The particulars of who carried her back home have not been learned. A posse of a large number of indignant men went out to the neighborhood, the report being that the negro had been caught. But it proved to be the wrong one. The search for the negro will be prosecuted.

Wedding Party Was Ducked.

Tuscaloosa.—While crossing the Warrior river at Moundville Wednesday on their way to attend the Patton-Beckman wedding at that place, a party of people from Tuscaloosa county were given a cold plunge into the river and narrowly escaped drowning. The wagon with its freight of young people had been driven aboard the ferryboat and the craft was nearing midstream, when one of the mules that pulled the wagon became frightened and backed the wagon into the water. The driver has forgotten to unhitch the traces as the law requires, and so the frightened animal easily dragged the loaded wagon with him. With some difficulty the unfortunate ones were fished from the river and carried to a nearby house, where the necessary attention was given them.

Livery Stable Burns.

Jasper.—The livery stable of W. Ed Hall burned here. Seven horses and mules perished in the flames. A considerable quantity of hay and other feed stuf was also consumed. Loss is estimated at $5,000 with no insurance.

Mexican Close Marlow School.

Bay Minette.—Word has been received here from Marlow to the effect that the public school of that place had been closed for several weeks owing to a number of cases of measles that have broken out among the students of that district.

DEATH OF EX-MAYOR GRANT

Twice Chief Executive of New York and a Man of Great Prominence.

New York.—One of the most prominent figures in the political life of New York City 20 years ago was Hugh J. Grant, who died in the metropolis recently, at the age of 55. He was a native of the metropolis and received his education at St. Francis Xavier College and in France and Germany, where he studied languages and music. Afterward he studied law at the Columbia Law School and engaged in real estate and legal business.

In 1883 he entered politics, being elected alderman, and his course in the board the following year in opposition to boodle legislation made him a candidate for mayor on the Tammany ticket in 1884. He was defeated, however. In 1885 he was elected sheriff and three years later was chosen mayor, and was re-elected in 1890. It was Mayor Grant who made the telephone and telegraph companies take down their overhead wires. The wires formed a network over the city, interfering with firemen and forming a danger and a nuisance. When the subways were ready and the wires did not come down Mayor Grant settled the controversy in a characteristic way. He went out with gangs of linemen, laborers and axmen and chopped down the poles and tore down the wires.

Hugh J. Grant.

In 1894 he was again a candidate for mayor, but met with defeat at the polls. He then withdrew from active participation in politics.

Mayor Grant was a man of fine physical proportions and was big intellectually. He was fond of outdoor life, took a deep interest in trotting horses and was a member of several golf clubs. He married a daughter of ex-Senator Murphy, of Troy. In business he amassed a large fortune and was charitable during his life in its disposition. At Christmas time he spent large sums in charity. While Mayor Grant like his great namesake, Gen. Grant, was a man of silence, he was not in the least morose.

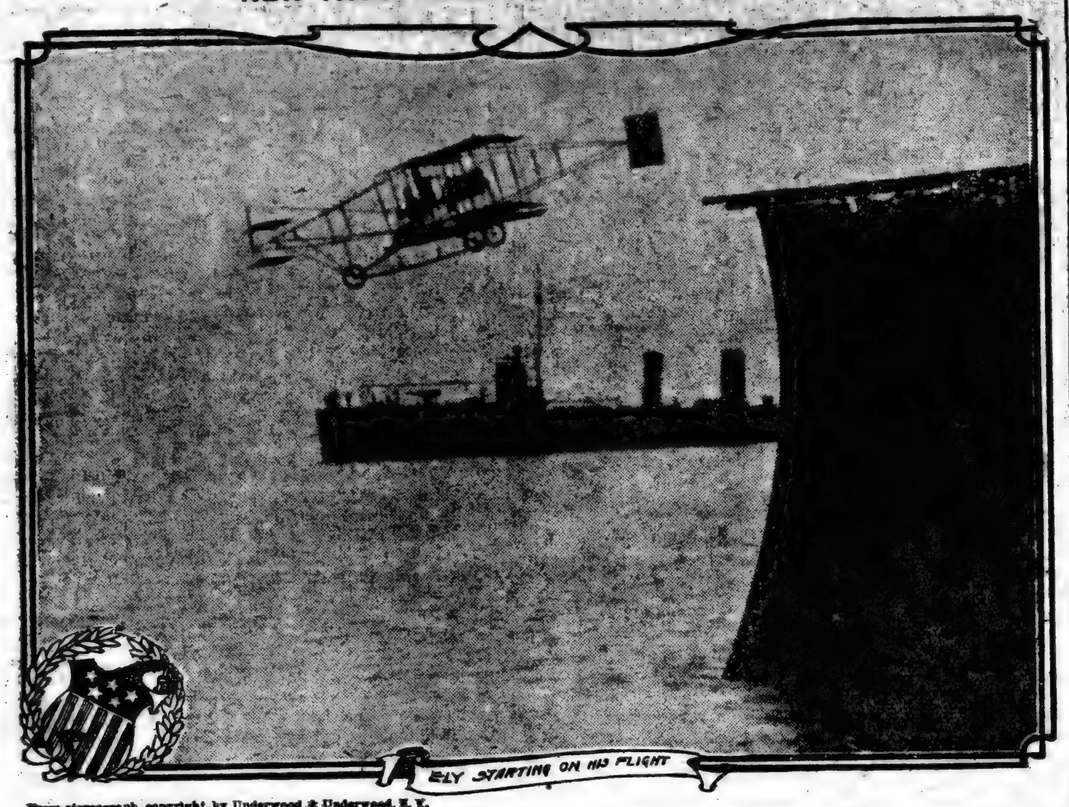
Alfonso's Silver Jubilee.

Madrid.—Early next spring King Alfonso will celebrate his silver jubilee, the 25th aniversary of his accession to the throne, and already elaborate preparations are being made for festivities of all kinds in connection with the event.

The jubilee will coincide with the young sovereign's 25th birthday. He, alone among the monarchs of Europe, commenced his reign on the very day, indeed, at the very hour, that he came into the world, having been born six months after the sudden death of his father. During the interval his elder sister, the late Infanta Mercedes, had occupied the throne, from which she stepped down to make way for him on his birth, becoming thus, at the age of 6, the very youngest of former queens.

Woman With Short Name.

Brockton, Mass.—What is believed to be the shortest name in the world for any person is borne by Miss Eda Ek, aged 20, daughter of Peter G. Ek of this city. Ek is a gold old Irish-Swedish name and it was borne with honor by the famous explorer, John Ek, who sailed into far seas and made important discoveries. It is from this man that Miss Ek is descended.



Cat's Ninety-Mile Walk.

About two months ago a cat belonging to Mr. J. Love of Wycombe March was missed. The owner surmised that the animal had been stolen or had strayed away, but on Tuesday last a communication was received from some friends to the effect that the cat had returned to its old home at St. Neots, Huntingdonshire, a distance of about 90 miles.—London Evening Standard.

A Decided Difference.

The man who takes to his beds is a coward, but it is different with a mule.—Philadelphia Record.

NEW ACHIEVEMENT IN AERONAUTICS

From stereograph, copyright, by Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.

EUGENE ELY, one of the leading American aviators, has accomplished something new in the history of flying. In a Curtiss biplane he started from the deck of the United States cruiser Birmingham in Hampton Roads and flew to Willoughby Beach, seven miles distant. Despite a dense fog he kept his course and landed safely. Officers of the navy who watched the experiment predicted that before long every warship would be equipped with an aeroplane.

ROB LAKE OF FISH

Largest of Inland Seas Fast Losing Its Supply.

What Has Become of Trout and Whitefish in Lake Superior Is Question That Has Been Agitating Many Fishermen.

Marquette, Mich.—What has become of the trout and whitefish in Lake Superior?

This is a question that Marquette fishermen, in common with others on the south shore of the lake, are asking. Catches have never been so light. The result of an all-day trip with one of the fish tugs is often not more than 300 pounds of fish, which is not enough to pay the operating expenses. A half ton is considered an average catch on a single day.

That Lake Superior, known as the abode of the finest whitefish in the world, is fast becoming a fishless sea, is a startling statement, but that is what the fishermen assert. The fishermen have been doing less and less business each year for some time. The tugs have been going farther and farther out each succeeding season, and now the nets are set as much as five hours' run out of Marquette, and even in those unfrequented waters there are very few fish.

The scarcity of fish in Lake Superior is even more remarkable when it is considered that there are not more than half a dozen fish tugs on the south shore, while no fewer than 126 tugs started out to fish on the south shore of Lake Erie this season. Of course there are many gasoline fishing boats in addition to these, but their numerical proportion on the two lakes is probably about the same as in the case of the steam tugs. There are fewer steam tugs on Lake Superior now than in the past. No tugs are now operated out of Ontonagon, while last year there were two.

In commenting on this condition of affairs, August Anderson, operator of the tug Columbia, stated that the reason fishing was so much poorer in Lake Superior than in the other great lakes was that the government was not replanting fast enough to take the place of those fished out each year. Lake Superior is now declared to be the poorest of the Great Lakes, as far as fishing is concerned, and this in the face of the fact that it is fished the least. Until the states and the federal government began planting by the millions and billions, however, there was the same scarcity of fish in the lower lakes. By liberal propagation Lake Erie and Lake Ontario have become restocked until the fishing interests there report that this has been a very good season.

This year the government has planted in the vicinity of Marquette about seven million fish; which is a somewhat larger number than has been planted in past years. The total number of fry planted this year on the south shore of Lake Superior is probably not far from 25,000,000. At first thought it would seem that this was a pretty liberal allowance, but as a matter of fact it is only a drop in the bucket. In comparison, the fish hatchery of the state of Pennsylvania produces an annual output of over one billion, a large proportion of which are planted in Lake Erie in the vicinity of the city of Erie, while the government hatcheries add considerably to this quota. When it is considered that Pennsylvania is not a fishing state, these figures are quite remarkable and go to show that the mar quette fishermen are not far from right when they say that Lake Superior has been fished out.

FRIGHTENED BY SMALL CHECK

Shopkeepers in Long Island City Scared by Document Calling for Insignificant Sum.

New York.—A check for one cent caused amusement in Long Island City. It had been drawn by John W. Penchon of the Title Guarantee and Trust company in favor of Ludwig Sikora, in payment of a balance due.

Sikora, anxious to invest the proceeds in real estate, lost a day's work trying to get the check cashed. Desperate at last, he offered it in exchange for an evening paper. The newsboy made a derisive gesture, the Long Island City equivalent of "No checks cashed here."

After an outlay on hospitality, Sikora persuaded a friend to run any risk there might be in converting the paper into specie.

Peddler Pays Tax With 670 Pennies.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Clarence Weeks, a peddler, dumped 670 pennies on the counter at the county treasurer's office when he paid his $6.70 taxes. "Just saved them out of odd change from customers for six months, purposely for tax money," he said.

HOBBLE SKIRT HALTS SHIP

Impedes Progress of Wearers, One Disembarking and Other Going Aboard Liner.

New York.—Two hobble skirts delayed for twenty minutes the sailing of the Venezia of the Fabre line from South Brooklyn for Marseilles.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoth, a newly wedded couple from Harrison, N. J., gave a reception on board for friends. At 3 o'clock, the time to cast off the lines, a Hoth guest who wore a black velvet skirt of the contracted variety, tried to descend the gangplank. She slipped and fell and her skirt became caught. It took several minutes to liberate her.

Mr. and Mrs. George Linger of Chicago, also newlyweds, were to sail. The pier is nearly a quarter of a mile long and Mrs. Linger could not walk swiftly. When the two reached the ship lines had been cast off and the plank drawn up. The crew lowered a ladder.

Monkey Hangs Himself in Cage.

Allentown, Pa.—"Jacko" Mack, a monkey sent last year as a mascot to Mack Bros.' Motor Car Co. from a friend in Chicago, hanged himself in his cage. He had found a stout piece of wrapping twine and made a noose just as a man would do.

RATS AND GUINEA PIGS STIR

Girls Employed in New Jersey Capitol Object to Health Board's Exhibit on Roof.

Trenton, N. J.—Within a few days the New Jersey capitol will house a dozen guinea pigs, 25 rabbits and a number of rats, cats, dogs and other animals that the state board of health may find necessary to carry out its new program of vivisection. In spite of the dissatisfaction manifested by some of the pretty stenographers at the state house the capitol commission granted permission to the health board to build a home on the roof of the building to shelter animals to be used for scientific purposes.

The board has been fighting for this privilege for a long time, it being understood that such quarters were to be arranged when the new wing was started three years ago. The capitol commission did not like the idea of having animals in the building, realizing that if any of them, particularly the rats, escaped, havoc would follow. The state health board has insisted that sheltering of animals about the dome of the capitol, where they could get plenty of fresh air, was absolutely necessary, and the capitol commission, with many misgivings, instructed State Architect George E. Poole, to prepare plans for a "pig pen" within five feet of the gilded dome.

The news relating to the concession spread rapidly about the statehouse and there was much excitement among the employes. "Will you have rats in the animal house?" This question was asked the officials of the health department by girl stenographers more than a hundred times. The employes were much incensed by the answer.

"We intend to keep all animals necessary for our use in scientific investigations."

The officials in the health board promised to see that none of the rats escaped, but even this did not satisfy the female employes of the building, who immediately made a protest to the capitol commission, saying they did not want to work in the same building with a lot of animals. Their complaint was unheeded and a strike may result in case any of the inmates of the animal house succeed in getting liberty enough to walk about the corridors, which are a popular promenade for Jersey statesmen.

BUILDS LAKE FOR DAUGHTER

Massachusetts Millionaire Constructs $30,000 Pond So Girl May Skate at Will.

Leominster, Mass.—That one little girl devoted to skating might have her heart's dearest wish, a real pond in her own yard, a Massachusetts millionaire, former Representative Harry L. Pierce, has just started on his vast estate here what promises to be the largest artificial lake in Massachusetts.

This toy lake when finished will be large enough to float a large section of the United States navy. Added to the incentive of his small daughter's love of skating, the millionaire's decision to gratify her whim has been strengthened by his own boyhood love of building dams.

The lake is to be built by damming a brook. It is to cost $30,000 and will involve the labor of a large body of workmen. It will easily outrival anything of its kind in Massachusetts.

King Dislikes Snapshots.

London.—One reason why King George does not relish the return of the court to London is because his majesty has an emphatic objection to the casual snapshot photographs which may be published.

It annoys the king to see pictures in which the poses are far from dignified, and he was angry when a photographer snapped him with his helmet off. When the king or queen gives permission for photographs to be taken they always stipulate that only such prints as they approve shall be published.

Their majesties also keep a sharp eye on the newspapers and cuttings in reference to the royal family, which are supplied every week.

Bigger War Vessel.

London.—The admiralty has invited tenders from Clyde shipbuilders for the construction of a large armored cruiser with speed and gun power surpassing any vessel in the British navy.

Another fashion abomination, as the girls is that the "cute little things" are to be tortured and killed in the capitol. It is probable the legislature in the coming winter will grant the health board an appropriation sufficient to provide other quarters for its menagerie.

1 42 1-3 BUSHELS PER ACR E

Boys Make a Good Showing, Too, Winning Prizes in Thirteen Counties.

Montgomery, Ala.—G. D. Howell, of Marion County, raised the largest number of bushels of corn per acre in Alabama this year, according to the list of awards given out by the State Department of Agriculture Thursday. Mr. Howell raised 142 1-3 bushels to the acre, and will receive a prize of $25 from the State.

A. J. Langley of Elmore County was second, with a yield of 137 bushels per acre, while W. J. Jackson, of Shelby County, was third with 136 bushels per acre.

The judges who passed on the awards were: B. L. Moss, C. H. Billingsley and L. N. Duncan, State corn experts.

While a number of counties failed to send in reports, general interest was taken in the contest and those counties which did report showed fine results. Each prize winner in his respective county received $25 donated by the State. Prominent among the prize winners were boys who were members of Boys' Corn Clubs, prizes being won in thirteen counties by boys.

Big Paper Will Be Issued.

Cullman.—J. R. Rosson, who is one of the most prominent newspaper men in the state, and editor of the Cullman Democrat, is making preparation to issue two numbers of his paper during the Chirstmas holidays that will exceed anything in this line that has ever been gotten out in Cullman. The cover pages will be in elaborate colors, depicting Santa Claus in all his Christmas togs. One issue of this special edition will be given on December 15, in order that the advertisers in the paper may have the benefit of the advertising before Christmas. Editor Rosson is a newspaper man of wide experience and his efforts are meeting with success.

Deposits in Alabama Good.

Washington.—The abstract of the condition of the national banks of Alabama at close of business November 19, as reported to the comptroller of the currency, shows the average reserve held at 12.41 per cent against 10.19 per cent on September 1. Loans and discounts decrease from $32,914,091 to $31,965,753; gold coin from $677,125 to $617,645. Lawful money reserve increased from $3,632,170 to $3,972,699. Individual deposits increase from $28,129,578 to $28,911,446.

Goes Under Civil Service.

Birmingham.—The office of assistant postmaster in all the big postoffices of the country was placed under the civil service regulations. Prof. A. D. Smith, who became assistant postmaster of the Birmingham postoffice Tuesday, is now under the civil service commission. Hereafter in case of a vacancy in the office of assistant postmaster, the place must be filled from ranks of the clerks in the postal service. The order placing assistant postmasters under the civil service iswas issued last summer by President Taft.

Census Report Pleases Gadsden.

Gadsden.—The announcement of Gadsden's census, showing the population to be over 10,000, has been hailed with delight. While a few were hoping that the count would show 12,000, the official figures are very satisfactory. The growth here during the past few months since the count was made has been greater than at any time in history and while this does not enter into the statistical record the home folks know that they have fully 12,000 people if not more.

$20,000 For Schools.

Mobile.—Tax Collector Phelan B. Dorian made the first payment of funds for the Mobile County public schools from the State monies to Superintendent B. S. Murphy.

Two Tornadoes in Fruitdale.

Mobile.—Two tornadoes struck Fruitdale, sixty miles north of Mobile demolishing the home of Dennis Dulcy, ruined timber to the ground for miles around, unroofed buildings and did considerable other damage.

NEW ERA IN FINANCE

ACCURACY AND PUBLICITY PROVES TO BE A POPULAR MOTTO.

Prompt Response to Bold Move of President Vail.—"Accuracy" Reduced Western Union's Surplus $13,000,000.—"Publicity" Restored Confidence and Its Stock Went Up.

Are the great financiers of the country beginning to see a new light? Time was, until recently in fact, when the men at the head of the big corporations "kept their business to themselves," as far as the law would allow. Capable men at the head of the big concerns, long realized the weakness of their position, but what was needed obviously, as in all great reforms, was an unmistakable occasion and a courageous man. The occasion arose in the purchase of the Western Union Telegraph company by the American Telephone and Telegraph company, and the man appeared in Theodore N. Vail, President of the purchasing corporation.

It was last December when public announcement was made that the Gould holdings of Western Union had been taken over by the Telephone company.

On account of the high esteem in which the management of the telephone company is so generally held, great things were predicted as a result of the absorption of Western Union. By the press of the country the "deal" was most favorably commented on, it being widely pointed out that under the direction of such men as Theodore N. Vail and his associates, the telegraph company was bound soon to work itself into a position where it could offer the public far more efficient service than it had ever before been able to offer.

But a very few months had elapsed when it became apparent to the new management that a modern and up-to-date appraisal of the company's assets would make possible a far greater degree of efficiency of operation. "Here," they said to themselves, "we've bought control of this property and we know it's immensely valuable, but we don't know just how valuable. These appraisals of real estate and securities owned were made a long time ago. If we have a complete inventory made of every thing we've got we can announce the facts to the public, start a new set of books, and begin our responsibility to stockholders right there."

How Inventory Was Taken.

The most expert accountants and appraisers to be had were put at the task. Their labors lasted over eight months. Their report and its publication by the company marks an epoch in finance.

It began by recommending an adjustment of the difference between the appraised and book values by a charge of $5,595,089 against surplus. Book values of securities held were reduced to market values, bad and doubtful accounts were "charged off," an allowance of $2,000,000 was made for "depreciation," another of $500,000 for "reserve," and so on, until the old surplus of $18,867,000 came down to $5,136,000.

It required courage, the publication of this statement to stockholders, saying in effect: "The property of your company has been revalued: the surplus isn't nineteen millions, as you have been led to believe, but five millions," but it was the truth, and President Vail did not flinch. "Accuracy and publicity," he declared, was essential. "The stockholder has a right to know. The shares of this company are scattered from one end of the Union to the other. This is more than a private corporation. It is a great national enterprise. The public is entitled to the facts."

The report was ordered published forthwith. Financiers of the old school and speculators generally were aghast. What would happen? Would the bottom drop out of Western Union when the shareholders realized that their propetry was worth $13,000,000 less than they had supposed? But the amazing thing happened. The stock went up and stayed up. The public had responded to this remarkable display of frankness and confidence; to the new motto, "Accuracy and Publicity."

The full significance of the action of the new board is stated concisely by Harper's Weekly in these words:

"Is this policy of publicity and of open-handed dealing with shareholders and public the forerunner of a similar movement on the part of other big corporations? Certainly it is to be hoped that it is. In the case of these big companies, dependent upon public patronage and doing business under public franchise, can there be any question of the right of the people to know?

"That right is being recognized. It is recognized now in this epochal act on the part of the telephone and telegraph interests. It is the dawn of a new era in corporation finance."

Timeliness.

All measures of reformation are ineffective in exact proportion to their timeliness; partial decay may be cut away, and cleansed; incipient error corrected; but there is a point at which corruption can no more be stayed, and wandering recalled. It has been the manner of modern philosophers to ascribe passing perils that

ECOMONY IS URGED IN TAFT MESSAGE

PRESIDENT POINTS OUT NECESSITY OF CURTAILING EXPENSES TO LAWMAKERS.

ANNUAL DOCUMENT IS READ

Conservation, Ship Subsidy and Fortification of Panama Canal Leading Topics Discussed—Has Little to Say About Tariff.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Economy in government affairs is the keynote of President Taft's annual message read before both houses of congress today. The message approximates 40,000 words and is one of the longest ever submitted by a president.

Conservation of the public domain, ship subsidy, fortification of the Panama canal and the continuation of the present tariff board are the leading subjects touched upon. He also reviews the work of the various government departments and concurs in recommendation, tending toward the bettering of the service, made by several of the members of his cabinet.

Economy Is Urged.

In dwelling on the urgent need for economy in government expenditures, the president says: "Every effort has been made by each department chief to reduce the estimated cost of his department for the ensuing fiscal year ending June 30, 1912. I say this in order that congress may understand that these estimates thus made present the smallest sum which will maintain the departments, bureaus and offices of the government and meet its other obligations under existing law, and that a cut of these estimates would result in embarrassing the executive branch of the government in the performance of its duties. This remark does not apply to the river and harbor estimates, except to those for expenses of maintenance and the meeting of obligations under authorized contracts, nor does it apply to the public building bill nor to the navy building program. Of course, as to these congress could withhold any part or all of the estimates for them without interfering with the discharge of the ordinary obligations of these functions of its departments, bureaus and offices.

"Against the estimates of expenditures $640,494,013.12, we have estimated receipts for next year $680,000,000, making a probable surplus of ordinary receipts over ordinary expenditures of about $50,000,000, or taking into account the estimates for the Panama canal, which are $56,920,847.69, and which will ultimately be paid in bonds, it will leave a deficit for the next year of about $7,000,000, if congress shall conclude to fortify the canal."

Wants Forest Limitation Removed.

On the subject of conservation he devotes considerable space to forest, coal, oil and gas, phosphate lands and water power sites. As to the reservation of forest lands he says: "The law now prohibits the reservation of any more forest lands in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Colorado and Wyoming, except by act of congress. I am informed by the department of agriculture that the government owns other tracts of timber land in these states which should be included in the forest reserves. I recommend to congress that the limitation herein imposed be repealed.

"Congress ought to trust the executive to use the power of reservation only with respect to land most valuable for forest purposes. During the present administration, 62,250,000 acres of land largely nontimbered have been excluded from forest reserves, and 3,500,000 acres of land principally valuable for forest purposes have been included in forest reserves, making a reduction in forest reserves of nontimbered land amounting to 2,750,000 acres."

Wants Canal Fortified.

Regarding the Panama canal, the president asserts that unless unexpected obstacles arise the waterway will be completed well within time limit of January 1, 1915, and within estimate of cost, $375,000,000. Suggestions for levying of tolls and management are made, and regarding fortification of the canal, he says:

"Among questions arising for present solution is the decision whether the canal shall be fortified. I have already stated to the congress that I strongly favor fortification and I now reiterate this opinion and ask your consideration of the subject in the light of the report already before you made by a competent board.

"Failure to fortify the canal would leave the attainment of both these aims in the position of rights and obligations which we should be powerless to enforce and which could never in any way be absolutely safeguarded against a desperate and irresponsible enemy."

Ship Subsidy.

The president urges such action as he believes will increase American trade abroad, and says::

"Another instrumentality indispensable to the unhampered and natural development of American commerce is merchant marine. All maritime and commercial nations recognize the importance of this factor. The greatest commercial nations, our competitors, jealously foster their merchant marine. Perhaps nowhere is the need for rapid and direct mail, passenger and freight communication quite so urgent as between the United States and Latin America. We can secure in no other quarter of the world such immediate benefits in friendship and commerce as would flow from the establishment of direct lines of communication with the countries of Latin America adequate to meet the requirements of a rapidly increasing appreciation of the reciprocal dependence of the countries of the western hemisphere upon each other's products, sympathies and assistance.

"I alluded to this most important subject in my last annual message; it has often been before you and I need not recapitulate the reasons for its recommendation. Unless prompt action be taken the completion of the Panama canal will find this the only great commercial nation unable to avail in international maritime business of this great contribution to the means of the world's commercial intercourse."

Criticism of the Tariff.

In the space devoted to the tariff the president says:

"The schedules of the rates of duty in the Payne tariff act have been subjected to a great deal of criticism, some of it just, more of it unfounded, and too much misrepresentation. The act was adopted in pursuance of a declaration by the party which is responsible for it that customs bill should be a tariff for the protection of home industries, the measure of the protection to be the difference between the cost of producing the imported article abroad and the cost of producing it at home, together with such addition to that difference as might give a reasonable profit to the home producer. The basis for the criticism of this tariff is that in respect to a number of the schedules the declared measure was not followed, but a higher difference retained or inserted by way of undue discrimination in favor of certain industries and manufactures. Little, if any, of the criticism of the tariff has been directed against the protective principle above stated; but the main body of the criticism has been based on the attempt to conform to the measure of protection was not honestly and sincerely adhered to."

The president also refers to the appointment of a board of experts to investigate the cost of production of various articles included in the schedules of the tariff, and concludes:

"Whether or not the protective policy is to be continued, and the degree of protection to be accorded to our home industries, are questions which the people must decide through their chosen representatives. But whatever policy is adopted, it is clear that the necessary legislation should be based on an impartial, thorough and continuous study of the facts."

Recommends Parcels Post.

The adoption of the parcels post is again adopted. On this subject President Taft says: "With respect to the parcels post, I respectfully recommend its adoption on all rural delivery routes, and that 11 pounds—the international limit—be made the limit of carriage in such post. The same argument is made against the parcels post that was made against the postal savings bank—that it is introducing the government into a business which should be conducted by private persons and is paternalism. The postoffice department has a great plant and a great organization, reaching into the most remote hamlet of the United States, and with this machinery it is able to do a great many things economically that if a new organization were necessary it would be impossible to do without extravagant expenditures."

Department of Justice.

Discussing the affairs of the department of justice, the president says:

"I invite especial attention to the prosecutions under the federal law of the so-called 'bucket shops,' and of those schemes to defraud in which the use of the mail is an essential part of the fraudulent conspiracy, prosecutions which have saved ignorant and weak members of the public and are saving them hundreds of millions of dollars. The violations of the anti-trust law present perhaps the most important litigation before the department, and the number of cases filed shows the activity of the government in enforcing that statute.

"In a special message last year I brought to the attention of congress the propriety and wisdom of enacting a general law providing for the incorporation of industrial and other companies engaged in interstate commerce, and I renew my recommendation in that behalf."

The crying need in the United States of cheapening the cost of litigation by simplifying judicial procedure and expediting final judgment is pointed out and action looking to correction of these evils is urged.

The president recommends an increase in the salaries of federal judges.

Postal Affairs.

In regard to postal matters the president points with pride to its present efficient management and the recent reduction in the deficit. The present unrestricted franking privilege comes in for comment with a suggestion for the adoption of better methods for its regulation.

Abolish Navy Yards.

The president calls attention to certain reforms urged by the secretary of the navy which he recommends for adoption, and continues:

"The secretary of the navy has given personal examination to every navy yard, and has studied the uses of the navy yards with reference to the necessities of our fleet. With a fleet considerably less than half the size of that of the British navy, we have shipyards more than double the number, and there are several of these shipyards expensively equipped with modern machinery, which, after investigation the secretary of the navy believes to be entirely useless for naval purposes. He asks authority to abandon certain of them and to move their machinery to other places, where it can be made of use."

Speaking of our foreign relations the president says: "During the past year the foreign relations of the United States have continued upon a basis of friendship and good understanding.

"The year has been notable as witnessing the pacific settlement of two important international controversies before the permanent court of The Hague.

"The arbitration of the fisheries dispute between the United States and Great Britain, which has been the source of nearly continuous diplomatic correspondence since the fisheries convention of 1818, has given an award which is satisfactory to both parties. This arbitration is particularly noteworthy not only because of the eminently just results secured, but also because it is the first arbitration held under the general arbitration treaty of April 4, 1908, between the United States and Great Britain, and disposes of a controversy the settlement of which has resisted every other resource of diplomacy and which for nearly ninety years has been the cause of friction between two countries whose common interest lies in maintaining the most friendly and cordial relations with each other.

President Taft makes a few recommendations for changes in the interstate commerce law and says:

"Except as above, I do not recommend any amendment to the interstate commerce law as it stands. I do not now recommend any amendment to the anti-trust law. In other words, it seems to me that the existing legislation with reference to the regulation of corporations and the restraint of their business has reached a point where we can stop for a while and witness the effect of the vigorous execution of the laws of the statute books in restraining the abuses which certainly did exist and which roused the public to demand reform."

A Quick Recovery.

"It seems that prizefighters never 'come back.'

"Maybe not, but 'Blind Tiger' Jo. One rammed perhaps the other day in 15 minutes after it had been raised."

Bound to Make a Hit.

Willie—So the play will appeal to all classes? Gillie—Yes, indeed. It's three-quarters full of up-to-date slang to catch the young people, and one-quarter full of old, reliable rural words to get the old fellows.—Punch.

An ALL HOME PRINT paper for Clanton! What do you think of it?

Chilton ought to have the best roads of any county in the state. She has enough rock and gravel in almost every section to make roads equal to those of the old Roman days.

The Press man has been so busy with the piano contest this week that he has had no time to figure on that "Farmer's Bill" which he proposes for the stalwarts of Chilton; there is sufficient time yet, however.

The wise ones are somewhat balked at Gov. O'Neal's determination to abolish the purchasing agency for the convicts. This means a saving of several thousand dollars each year to the state. Its the little leaks that break the strongest dam.

The meeting of the democratic executive committee called elsewhere in these columns is expected to bring together a number of men who accomplished things for Chilton county and who will in the days to come accomplish even more.

The grand jury did a wise thing in finding a few indictments against road overseers. We do not know who the unfortunate ones are but it means much to our country friends to know that hereafter road overseers who take the place are expected to accomplish something.

Mrs. Mary Baker Clover Eddy passed away at her late residence in Boston last Sunday night at the ripe old age of eighty nine. Mrs. Eddy was the founder of the sect known as the Christian Scientists and to the day of her death retained the leadership. What the result of her death will be upon the remainder of the sect is problematic. Who the new leader will be is yet to be decided.

And now that the piano contest is a thing of the past lets bend our efforts in a new direction. Lets put in a system of sewerage and water works before the summer season opens. It may save much typhoid fever in the future; it will be a great convenience and a sure enough luxury all combined. We are going to hammer on this proposition for some time to come unless something definite is accomplished. The way to keep the Press man quiet is to be up and doing.

Senator Screws of Montgomery has evolved a bill for commission form of government in cities of over ten thousand that he thinks will be perfectly satisfactory to every city of the state containing that many citizens. The bill even provided for the city by the sea—Mobile. She doesn't want any commission in "hern" and so the bill practically exempts her from its provisions oy providing that a petition with twenty-eight hundred signatures must be presented to the probate judge before an election can be called to establish commission. Mobile couldn't muster more than a tenth of that number who desire commission form, hence she is "immune."

MAYOR POTTS RESIGNS

Clanton Now Without an Executive Head.

Several weeks ago Mr. Potts was elected mayor of Clanton for the term which begun on October 1st, 1910. In the latter part of October Mr. Potts found that his personal affairs were of such a nature as to require all of his time. He felt that he could not do the city justice in administering its affairs unless he neglected his own personal business and this he was not inclined to do since the salary attached to the office of mayor amounts to but one little silver dollar per year.

In the latter part of November he tendered his resignation to the city council to take effect as soon as possible thereafter but the council hesitated to accept the resignation because of the fact that the tax rate had to be fixed and other important matters to the city had to receive attention which could not be legally transacted without the mayor—hence the resignation was deferred. However, Mr. H. M. Mahan has been acting mayor for some days, and right gracefully does he adorn the chair of chief executive of the city.

A meeting of the council was held last Monday night at which routine business was transacted. A called meeting will be held within the next day or two at which time an election to fill the vacancy will be called.

The notice, as usual, will be posted on trees and telegraph poles about the city, but the tax collector will call upon the poor printers for three nevertheless.

WE WANT TO SAY WE'RE HERE TO STAY

An All Home Print Paper That Will Be a Paper.

Chilton County First Clanton Next, Then the World at Large.

On last Saturday there was filed in the office of the Probate Judge of Chilton county papers incorporating the Clanton Press company, an organization or company whose purposes are to own and operate printing presses, to do a general newspaper and job printing business and to own and dispose of such materials as are necessary for the proper conduct of such business.

The capital stock of the company is fixed at three thousand dollars and is divided into three hundred shares of ten dollars each.

The incorporators, twenty-nine in number, met at the offices of the company last week and perfected all arrangements looking to the installation of a new power press, new type and all necessary supplies and materials to give Chilton county the best and newsiest newspaper that she has ever had.

The stock of the new company was quickly subscribed and the company absorbed the old Clanton Press under the corporate name of the Clanton Press company.

A transfer of all the property of the old concern was made to the new company and such laws and regulations adopted for the proper management of the new concern as will safeguard each individual stockholder whether his interests be great or small.

A board of directors was elected at the first meeting; the personnel of the board is as follows:

Mr. C. Fenn Jones, of Gamble Hardware company, president.

Mr. Guy Higgins, of Clanton Hardwood and Forest Lumber companies, vice president.

Dr. N. S. Johnson, physician and surgeon.

Mr. E. M. Pinckard, wholesale and retail merchant and cotton buyer.

Mr. W. H. Strock, (Verbena), general merchandise.

Mr. P. D. Wilson, lumber manufacturer and insurance.

Mr. F. M. Wood, (Secty and Treasurer), editor.

Thus it will be seen that the Clanton Press Company starts out well fortified with a superb board of directors whose interests are varied and yet every one of whom are identified with the material, social and industrial progress of the county. They are all business men of high standing in the commercial world and such as give prestige to any business venture with which they may be connected.

The present editor of the Press has been retained, for the time being, as manager and editor, and into his hands will fall largely, the conduct of the affairs of the paper and the new company, but each and every director and stockholder is personally and financially interested in the success of the paper and will bend every effort to bring it up to a standard of excellence not heretofore attained by any paper ever published in the county.

The policy of the paper will not be changed in so far as its politics are concerned. It will be democratic to the core, under any and all circumstances. While it holds a warm place in its heart for our republican and socialist friends it shall claim the same right to differ with them as they claim to differ with us. We are happily situated now; we have just come through a long and strennous campaign; no scars were made by us intentionally and none were left upon us by our friends of the opposing sides. We fought a friendly, if intense battle, and we feel that we made some friends during the conflict; we are not conscious of having made an enemy; we want to make none and in so far as we are able to avoid it none shall be made.

Our purpose is to deal fairly and honorably with all men; to win them to our way of thinking, politically, by kindly treatment and clear cut argument. We do not intend to wound the feelings of the most sensitive except that feeling is super-sensitive to the facts and truth.

And now that the paper is on a sure footing, now that it has the encouragement and endorsement of so large a number of reputable citizens, we look forward to a rapidly increasing subscription list.

As before stated, the paper will be devoted mainly to the up-building of Chilton county, one of the best, if not the best, counties in the state.

There ought not to be a home in the county in which the Press does not gladly find its way; surely there ought not to be a democratic home in all this broad land that does not read it regularly and pay for it gladly.

Before you have had an opportunity to read this article orders will have been placed for a press and all necessary equipment; the [illegible] will have an [illegible] paper; it will be made by Chilton county boys and will expect many Chilton county readers to join the ranks of those who are already subscribers. We are counting confidently upon our democratic friends in every section to bestir themselves in behalf of the paper.

Vigilence is the price of liberty, so said, and if that be true it is equally true that political success is the reward of activity, therefore it behooves every democrat who wishes the success of his party to keep in vital touch with the only organ in the county through which they can gain information or speak for the principles which they espouse.

THE GRAND JURY

recommends the enlargement of the Court House and the betterment of the jail building. It has a word to the Overseers of public roads; pays a deserved compliment to the sheriff and other officers.

Perhaps the shortest session ever held in the county for some years.

Twenty-nine true bills found and one prisoner released from jail.

State of Alaoama, Chilton County—
In the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Fall Term, 1910.

To the Hon. W. W. Pearson, Judge the 15th Judicial Circuit.

We, the Grand Jury, regularly empanneled and sworn for the Fall Term, 1910, of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, Alabama, beg leave to make the following report:

We have investigated fifty-eight alleged violations of the law, examined 160 witnesses and returned twenty-nine true bills.

We are glad to report that general lawlessness seems to be on the decrease. The prohibition laws, seem so far as we can gather, to be violated generally; but, we are unable to get such evidence as will warrant indictments.

The general condition of the public roads is about as usual, however, there are instances in which the overseers seem to have been derelict, and have failed to work them in the manner needed or to have the time put upon the roads which the law requires.

Wherever the evidence warranted we have returned indictments against such overseers who have failed in their duty.

We have inspected the jail and find the same in a clean and sanitary condition. However, we do not think the bedding in the jail is as clean as it should be, in fact we saw a mattress which was filthy in the extreme, merely a bunch of dirty rags and straw.

We insist that the sheriff supply the jail with such bedding as may be needed for the comfort of the prisoners, at once, and present the bill for the same to the commissioners' court.

We have investigated the books of the several county officers, as required by law, and so far as we have been able to determine, all are correctly kept and the balances on hand are such as they should be.

All the officers were extremely courteous and gave us such assistance as was requested.

A committee of the grand jury visited the Poor House and report that they found the poor of the county amply and comfortably provided for, and that the inmates of the same expressed temselves as being as contented and as happy as their condition would permit—that they were well fed and humanely treated. There are in the poor house eleven inmates, eight females and three males—all white.

We have investigated charges against all unindicted parties confined in the jail, and have returned indictments against all of them except James Bishop, charged with arson. There being no indictment found against him we recommend his discharge or release from jail.

As to the condition of the county property we beg to say that all the property seems to be in good condition except the basement of the jail.

We find that there are several lights out of the windows in the basement and some of the wood work torn from the windows. We recommend that the commissioners' court have such repairs as are needed made at once.

We would recommend also, it being brought to our attention, that the vault room for public records is inadequate, that the Court House be so changed as to provide sufficient fire protection and room for the public records and in so doing we would also recommend, should the finances of the county permit, that any additional office room needed for the county officers, who are required to have offices at the court house, be provided at the same time, as money would be saved by doing both at the same time.

Having completed our labors we respectfully ask that we be discharged.

However, we feel that we should compliment the sheriff, J. S. Catts, for the manner in which he has assisted the grand jury in their labors, we again request that we be discharged.

Respectfully submitted,
F. R. WOODYARD,
Foreman.

MISS ROPER WINS

Mrs. Hays Runs a Close Second.

MISS FOSHEE COMES THIRD

The Last Day of the Race Was a Strenuous One On the Part of Miss Roper's Friends.

Had any one walked into the Press offices about 8 o'clock Monday morning, not knowing it was a printing office, they would have been persuaded that it was the counting room of some great circus establishment or else the place of some railroad system making a yearly accounting of its ticket department. This scene lasted up to the very minute when the whistle blew announcing the hour of noon.

Early in the morning the friends of Miss Roper begun to bestir themselves and the grim visage of J. D. Sims, the set determination of Arkie Mahan and the hustle and bustle of others betokened early in the day that if Miss Roper did not capture the coveted prize she would at least let the winner know she was strictly in the race to a finish.

Scouts were on the streets trading Banner tickets for Piano tickets, making purchases wherever piano tickets were given and otherwise securing votes for their favorite. All the while the friends of the other candidates were "setting steady in the boat." They had practically given up the contest in favor of Miss Roper—though she had no idea that such was the case. Yes, they realized that she had too many friends working for her for them to expect to stem the tide to victory. Then besides, they felt that she was the popular choice and desired to do nothing to put obstructions in the way. In a graceful way Mrs. Hayes retired from the race several days ago but said nothing to interfere with the successful termination of the contest. For a long time she added spirit and excitement to the race and it was thought that she would be a sure winner but in the end she, like many others, desired victory to go to "the country girl" and threw no obstructions in the way.

It was a graceful compliment neatly, yet unostentatiously paid to a young lady by a noble hearted matron.

Nevertheless, the contest went madly on. Tickets were at a premium and those who had hoarded them were persuaded to bring them forth and vote them for the young lady "from the rural district."

At one time there were seven gentlement occupying seats in the Press office stamping and assorting and counting tickets to be sure that "their candidate" should win in a canter.

Promptly at the noon hour the boxes were closed. Many tickets held by friends of the victorious candidate remained unvoted because they were unable to reach the voting places in time.

At the noon hour the Press man asked Dr. Hayes if he had any votes to cast and he announced that he had not, the Piano must go to Miss Roper and we shall offer no obstacles to its being voted to her.

All this time the friends of Miss Roper were in ignorance of the movements of the other candidates; they thought that there would be at least half a million votes cast for others and were preparing against the impending tide. It was not the business of the Press man to give out information and so the activity of the friends of Miss Roper was more than amusing to him. However, it helped the merchants some and it helped the Press considerably.

The result of the victory brings gladness to more than one heart; not only is Miss Roper the winner of a handsome piano and her heart, and the hearts of her friends, made glad thereby, but the Methodist church at Mount Nebo becomes the owner of Miss Roper's organ which she has generously donated to the church since she became the possessor of the piano. For years this congregation has been without an organ and unable to purchase one—though we are inclined to think that the personal polularity of the young lady herself was the mainspring which kept things moving.

None, we feel sure, rejoice more than those who were next in the contest; none have shown a more beautiful and friendly spirit. It was a laudable ambition to be first in the race—an ambition that should be shown in every department of life and emulated on all occasions, yet it was a far more beautiful spirit to bow in kindliness to the popular vote and to retire before possible wounds were made.

The Press offers unstinted praises to Miss Roper and her band of loyal friends, who through the long contest have stood so nobly and valiantly by her, but we cannot refrain from saying that the magnanimous spirit shown by Mrs. Hayes and her friends call for more than ordinary endorsement. There was a thing in the race, when, perhaps if she had voted all but defeat the contestant [illegible] those who helped to bring the "country girl" under the wire a sure winner.

We are sincerely glad the contest is over; we have had lots of fun out of it; have lost a little money on it and have passed many vexatious hours counting tickets and preparing to announce the result.

It gave the Press much pleasure to put the contest on and though we have lost some money by the deal we have made many friends and gained some advertising which we would not have otherwise gotten.

It gives us peculiar pleasure to say that no wounds have been made; the spirit of rivalry has been a spirit of friendliness; the conclusion has been received with unanimous consent by all concerned.

So mote it be.

COURT NEWS.

The following cases have been called in the circuit court this week and disposed of as indicated. It is impossible for the paper to get the entire proceedings of the court because of the fact that we have to set up our news service while the court is busily engaged in trying cases, but we give you the complete docket for this week and the disposition of cases up to the time of going to press.

This is criminal week with the court, all the civil cases having been disposed of either by trial, continuance or otherwise:

The State vs. Herman Hodgens, assault to murder; continued by defendant on account of sickness.

The State vs. Herman Hodgens, carrying concealed weapons; continued as in above case.

The State vs. Sam Parrish, grand larceny; continued; defendant now in penitentiary.

State vs. William Broadhead, grand larceny; continued by defendant.

State vs. George Jones, selling whiskey without license; nolle prossed.

State vs. Arthur Green, selling whiskey without license; not guilty.

State vs. Arthur Green, A. I. O. L.; continued.

State vs. Arthur Green, Tom Cole and Cleve Hitchcock, D. R. W.; continued by the State as to Green; for Hitchcock.

Hittchcock.

State vs. S. W. Andrews, bigamy; nol prossed.

State vs. Alice Shepherd, murder in first degree; in supreme court.

State vs. Buck Davis, selling whiskey without license; continued by State.

State vs. Nathan Rush, petit larceny; verdict of guilty and fine of 1 cent.

State vs. Pink Cleckler, D. R. W.; jury and verdict of not guilty.

Up to the last hour at which we could secure court news the court had not disposed of the cases of the State vs. Henry Kennedy, A. W. I. to M., and the State vs. J. D. Bean, A. W. W.

The following cases are also on the docket, but it is scarcely probable that they will all be disposed of this week, as the Pope case and the Aldridge cases are both set for Wednesday, each requiring a special jury, and it is likely that these two cases will occupy the greater part of the court's time for the remainder of the week.

However, we give the remainder of the docket as entered:

State vs. Perry Kennedy, perjury; jury and verdict of guilty.

State vs. Jim Parker; assault to R.

State vs. Ben Childress, selling whiskey without license.

State vs. Nick Hall, selling or exchanging choking horse.

State vs. Allen Brown, trespass.

State vs. Cleve Boyd, A. to M.

State vs. Rufus Robbins, selling whiskey without license.

A HEAVY LOSS TO A GOOD CITIZEN.

On last Friday night Mr. Dan Wyatt, living about a mile east of Clanton had a destructive fire to visit his place. Just how the fire originated is yet a mystery, Mr. Wyatt not knowing any cause to assign for it. The barn, containing about three hundred bushels of corn and eleven hundred and fifty bales of fodder was entirely destroyed with its contents. The loss falls heavily upon Mr. Wyatt as he carried no insurance whatever. Besides the corn and fodder, Mr. Wyatt had stored in the barn a large quantity of hay which was also destroyed.

Who said anything was more beautiful or more appropriate than a dainty or even a massive piece of CUT GLASS? Upchurch has both to select and sells them cheap.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

The annual session of the Alabama conference, Methodist Episcopal church, is in session this week at Troy. Rev. R. J. Mills, who has so acceptably filled the pulpit of the church at this place, is in attendance as are also all the other Methodist preachers in this section of the state.

Bishop Alpheus W. Wilson, the senior Bishop of the College of Bishops is presiding and Dr. A. P. Lamar is secretary.

Just who will be sent to Clanton circuit for the next year is problematic; Rev. Mr. Mills will probably be returned for another year at least and yet that is by no means certain.

Mr. Mills has made many warm friends during his residence here, all of whom would be delighted to have him returned. Then, too, his estimable little wife has gathered about her many dear friends who would regret in the extreme to see them leave Clanton.

What you want and don't see ask Upchurch Drug Co.'s tell them about it, and they'll get it for you on short notice.

ATTENTION DEMOCRATS.

Executive Committee Meeting Called.

A meeting of the executive committee of the democratic party of Chilton county is hereby called for Friday the 6th day of January, 1911, at the Court House in Clanton at noon.

This is an important meeting of extreme importance—and it is urgently requested that every member of the committee be present. The day has been selected with a view to accommodating every member of the committee. If for any reason you or a member of the committee cannot attend then be sure to send a written proxy, so that your precinct may be represented at the meeting.

Don't forget that Upchurch Drug Company has rented headquarters to Santa Claus for this season, and will handle all kinds of Christmas goods. tf

Everything here for the gentleman who shaves himself, and many a man will be pleased this Christmas with a gift from our store, for he will know that it was the best to be had for the amount that was invested. Alred Drug Co. tf

Mr. and Nrs. J. R. ScDaniel spent Sunday with the parents of the former, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McDaniel.

Ladies, are you in need of a Sewing Machine? A. Altman, of Thorsby, sells the best ball-bearing, latest improved, with a guarantee for ten years. He can save you from five to ten dollars on any machine purchased, and he guarantees to do so. tf

Mr. Murray Gwin, who has been clerking for T. G. Mackey & Son for some weeks past, left last week for his home in Newtonville.

Friends, pay cash for all you buy. Remember that credit goods keep you poor, Come to A. Altman, at Thorsby, and get figures and facts before you buy elsewhere. Remember he has forty years of experience in merchandising, and is always ready to share that experience with you. tf

Alred's are ready for the big Christmas rush. Our BIG STORE is better prepared than ever before to take care of your wants during the busy holiday season. The enlargement of our stock makes it possible for us to show you an assortment that cannot be surpassed by the CITY DRUG STORES. tf

Mrs. T. G. Mackey as returned home after a pleasant visit of several days to her son in Ensley.

Please bear in mind that Upchurch has the handsomest line of jewelry cases ever brought to the city of Clanton. One of them, young man, would make your best girl smile with joy if presented to her with your compliments at Christmas time. tf

Last Monday afternoon that courteous gentleman, Dr. Matthews, stepped into The Press offices and presented the editor with one of the handsomest calendars that it has been his pleasure to see in many days. The calendar, besides being beautiful, is useful. It carries on its face the advertisement of the Clanton Bank, one of the live institutions of the town. We thank you, doctor, for the remembrance.

See Upchurch's new line of jewelry, and remember in buying that they stand back of every piece of it—with the cash—should it not prove entirely satisfactory. tf

Boys, we have a large line of handbags, comb and brush sets, manicure sets, bracelets, rings, brooches, jewel boxes, books, perfumery, candy and many other acceptable gifts. Just the thing SHE wants for Xmas. Alred Drug Co. tf

Mr. W. J. Parnell, of Stanton, was in town the early part of the week attending court. While here he left his name and address with The Press man for the paper.

Bibles and Testaments—we have them in all sizes and prices, from 10 cents to five dollars. They make very appropriate and useful gifts. Alred Drug Co. tf

The display of Christmas goods shown at the several stores in Clanton indicates that the merchants are keeping abreast of the times. They realize that the farmer has made an abundant crop, and is prepared as never before to enjoy the holiday season. Higgins, Upchurch and Alred have displays that would do credit to a city of much larger proportions than Clanton. Do not fail to visit these places when in town.

Roper's Cafe is kept busy serving its customers these days. They flock there at all hours of the day and night—and they usually get what they want.

Mrs. J. C. Jones went down to Montgomery last Monday on a shopping tour.

Mr. Harry Kanjutzky had occasion last Tuesday to eject a disorderly man from his place of business. It seems that the man in question went into the store and began to abuse Harry about a cloak which he said he had purchased at the store. Harry claimed that he did not know the man, and had never sold him anything whatever. The man grew somewhat boisterous, and so Mr. Kanjutzky had to handle him a little roughly.

The postoffice inspector was in Clanton last Tuesday looking into the affairs of the Clanton postoffice.

Lost.

A black and white setter puppy, with two or three inches cut from end of tail. Answers to the name of Jack. A reward of TWO dollars if returned to Cleve Headley, Clanton, Ala. tf

Miss Jessie Mae Lewis, of Wetumpka, is visiting the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kemp.

Look at this array of Christmas presents. If you cannot be suited from this assortment, we have others that are bound to please. We mention Hand-Bags (exquisite patterns), Comb and Brush Sets (all kinds), in cases or loose), Silverware (sterling and guaranteed for a lifetime), Shaving Mirrors (just the thing for a young man who is beginning to sprout a little down on his upper lip). Upchurch keeps all these and more. See his line of Christmas goods—the most complete in town. tf

Mr. E. M. Pinckard made a proposition to The Press man this week that we are working upon and propose to accept. It will be hailed with pleasure by the farmers of the county. You mustn't ask about it yet. Pink and The Press man are working on the details now, and until they have been evolved it's our secret. However, we will give it to you in good time.

If you wish to see the finest selection of Christmas goods ever brought to Clanton, you will have to call at Upchurch Drug Co. They have 'em.

Mr. E. L. Thornton, one of the prominent citizens of Mountain Creek, was a visitor to Clanton this week, having been called here in attendance upon court.

If it's Military Brushes you are looking for to present "HIM," then you want to look over the line at Upchurch Drug Co.'s. They have them in profusion. tf

The many friends of genial Joe Foshee will be glad to see him again upon the streets fully restored to health, after a visit of some weeks to Hot Springs, Ark.

Get a clock and keep up with the times. It might assist you also to keep up with the "old man." Upchurch has some beautiful designs, perfect timers and guaranteed to please. Remember it's UPCHURCH. tf

The Press wishes to announce that it is now perfecting arrangements to have a weekly service from every section of the county. We have gone slow in this matter until our OWN presses arrive, but with the advent of the New Year we hope to have each section prominently represented in each issue.

Ladies, are you in need of a good cooking range? If so, call on A. Altman at Thorsby for the best and cheapest. Forty years of experience is behind all the goods that he handles. 2t

The Special Edition of the Advertiser which comes out next Sunday will have several handsome cuts of Clanton homes and an elegant "write-up" of Chilton county by local talent.

Hammered Brass isn't the kind some folks have—that's just natural brass—but Upchurch has a swell line of the real article. It's the up-to-now thing for a present. Say HAMMERED BRASS to Upchurch and see him smile. tf

If you have never visited our store, you should make haste to do so, for it is undoubtedly the largest and most comfortable country drug store in Alabama. We are "the home of quality" even in toyland. Alred Drug Co. tf

The following marriage licenses have been issued this week:

Mr. C. C. Scott to Miss Pearlie Jones.

Mr. W. J. Bean to Miss Ida Gentry.

Mr. J. A. Scott to Miss Ludie Eddings.

Mr. T. W. Jones to Miss Mary Roy.

William Bokes, colored, to Paralee Fuller, colored.

If you cannot solve the problem of what to buy your fellow Christmas, come to see us. Our experience enables us to help you greatly in solving the question. Alred Drug Co.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the interest of Mr. W. A. Kemp in the business of J. C. Jones & Co. has this day been sold to Mr. Ross Mullins, who becomes a member of the firm. The business will be conducted, as formerly, under the firm name and style of J. C. Jones & Co.

The new firm assumes all the liabilities of the old firm, and will collect all outstanding accounts.

Parties indebted to the old firm will please call and settle.

Respectfully,

IF YOU ARE WANTING A MONUMENT READ THIS.

In buying a monument to mark the last resting place of your dear one, you want to know that it will stand exposure to the elements; that it will not discolor, disintergrate or decay.

North Georgia marble meets these requirements.

Under examination with powerful glasses magnifying 150 diameters, this stone is seen to be composed entirely of crystals, with no openings for the absorption or retention of moisture.

This agrees with the results from the tests made by eminent chemists; therefore, for strength, durability, brilliancy and permanency of color, it stands second to none.

Close attention to details; the cutting, carving, polishing and clean, clear-cut lettering distinguishes our work at a glance.

We have in stock, or can build anything you want on short notice.

A suitable footstone is sent with each monument, but for a limited time we will send a marble eight inches by eight inches, and a marble pedestal with the initial letters or the word "Father" or "Mother" in place of ordinary foot stone with each single order for $100.00.

You will find our prices right. Drop me a card which will bring me to your home when you can and compare our goods and prices with others, or when in town call at the White Barber Shop.

I have just erected one for the Clanton Camp W. O. W. in the Clanton cemetery. Stop and see it.

Remember "procastination is the thief of time."

It Will Pay You

To Visit Our Store

To introduce our business into every home in Chilton County we thought it would be a good idea to use BRUTON'S SCOTCH SNUFF. This article reaches nearly every home in the entire county.

We are going to give a reduction from the usual price of TWO CENTS on each can sold by us—in other words, while you pay OTHERS ten cents per can, we are going to charge you only EIGHT cents per can. This is a small amount, but in the aggregate it counts up. We positively will NOT sell over six (6) cans to any one person at the same sale.

Remember, we are not doing this to cut prices or as a cut-throat proposition; we are doing this MERELY to introduce our GROCERY DEPARTMENT. Give us a call; it does not cost you one cent. Warm by the red-hot stove these cold days. It's at

GAVE UP BUSINESS.

So Weak He Could Not Work.

Philip Huber, 351 Cummunipaw St., Jersey City, N. J., says: "Three years ago I was compelled to sell my business. Kidney trouble had made me so sick that for eight months I was too weak to work and almost too miserable to live. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills at that critical period and the results were beyond my expectations. I have bought back my business and occasionally work 18 hours a day without ill effect. Doan's Kidney Pills have made this possible and I cannot recommend them too highly."

THEY GROW

Good Humor and Cheerfulness From Right Food and Drink.

Anything that interferes with good health is apt to keep cheerfulness and good humor in the background. A Washington lady found that letting coffee alone made things bright for her. She writes:

"Four years ago I was practically given up by my doctor and was not expected to live long. My nervous system was in a bad condition.

"But I was young and did not want to die so I began to look about for the cause of my chronic trouble. I used to have nervous spells which would exhaust me and after each spell it would take me days before I could sit up in a chair.

"I became convinced my trouble was caused by coffee. I decided to stop it and bought some Postum.

"The first cup, which I made according to directions, had a soothing effect on my nerves and I liked the taste. For a time I nearly lived on Postum and ate little food besides. I am today a healthy woman.

"My family and relatives wonder if I am the same person I was four years ago, when I could do no work on account of nervousness. Now I am doing my own housework, take care of two babies—one twenty the other two months old. I am so busy that I hardly get time to write a letter, yet I do it all with the cheerfulness and good humor that comes from enjoying good health.

"I tell my friends it is to Postum I owe my life today."

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

LIGHTNING DESTROYS NOVEL CATHEDRAL

RUINS OF UGANDA CATHEDRAL

LONDON.—The bishop of Uganda has appealed to the English people for $50,000 for the re-erection of the Cathedral of Uganda, which was struck by lightning recently and destroyed. This remarkable building, now a heap of ruins, could seat between 4,000 and 5,000 persons and was a center of great spiritual activity, being surrounded by schools, theological hall, hospital and dispensary. Having been erected before the coming of the railway, it had a thatched roof and could not be insured.

WOMEN CRAVE TOYS

Children Show Preference for Scientific Devices.

Youngsters Call for Aeroplanes, Kites and Models Where Electricity Supplies Power—Reason for Boom.

London.—Simple "silly" toys are all the rage just now.

The Teddy bear is responsible for the boom, and following him a host of simple, unbreakable, woolly animals, manikins and "babies" has sprung upon the toy market.

Cheap mechanical clockwork toys and things that "windup" seem to have temporarily lost favor with children.

Boys up to twelve years of age, girls of all ages, and even grown-ups have taken a violent fancy to the cloth or woollen toy which can be punched, kicked, sat on or kissed without ill effects, either to the owner or to the toy.

Inquiries made at the leading London toy shops show that during the coming winter season the simple toy will be the chief article sold.

At one large Regent street establishment one side of the shop is already stocked with "silly" toys, and in a few days' time hundreds more will arrive—lions, elephants, bears, sheep, dogs, rabbits, etc.—costing anywhere from 25 cents to $15 each.

"The simple toy is having an undoubted boom just now," said the manager. "These toys are really intended for babies, but I have known ladies to fall in love with them and buy them for themselves.

"While the craze is certainly affecting the sales of cheap mechanical clock-work toys, it has not hurt the scientific toy trade.

"It seems that children nowadays either like an extremely simple toy or a really 'brainy' amusement, such as making electrical experiments, putting toy aeroplanes together, or scientific kite flying."

Popular "silly" toys already selling well are "Baby Bumps," fitted with a "Can't-break-'em-head," and a very live looking duck called a "Puddle-duck." Each of these toys has been bought as a mascot by ladies and taken out in motor cars.

An interesting reason for the boom in simple animal toys was given by an enthusiastic theater-goer.

"Plays like the 'Blue Bird,' 'Pinkie and the Fairies,' and 'Peter Pan,' in which animals possessed of wonderful intelligence are seen on the stage, have a considerable influence over children," he said.

"In the 'Blue Bird' animals such as the cat, dog, and horse are made to possess a soul. They reason and argue like human beings.

"Now the successful toy manufacturer endeavors to put this live, soulful quality into his goods—he makes the cloth dog or rabbit as 'cute' and life-like as possible.

"It is the soulful quality of these toys—if I may so express it—which attracts. I have known ladies positively rave over a fluffy little cloth dog, making it sit by them at dinner and talking to it for hours in 'baby' voice."

Output of Alaskan Gold.

Seattle, Wash.—More than $10,000,000 worth of gold has been received by the United States assay office here since the first of the year, according to a statement by the assayer. The receipts from January 1 to November 8 from Alaska and British-American mines is given as $10,507,621.94. Of this $9,309,109.75 came from Alaska, $1,036,296.03 from British Columbia and $97,021.75 from the Yukon territory. Other sources in Canada contributed $64,994.41.

CAT IS DRUG FIEND

Savannah Tabby Sent to New York for Treatment.

Animal, Owned by Druggist, Contracts Morphine Habit in Store and Seeks Bottle Where Opiate Is Kept.

New York.—When the Savannah Line steamship City of Montgomery arrived here the other day from Savannah, Ga., she brought a most remarkable passenger to New York in the shape of a valuable Persian cat that has been credited in the dispatches from Savannah as being a confirmed morphine fiend.

The Persian cat is the property of a druggist in Savannah named Rollinsky, a man prominent in the southern city, and he sent his pet Persian to New York for treatment by specialists in the hope that the cat may be cured of the morphine habit.

Some months ago the cat sniffed at some morphine, powdered, that was being used in a prescription in Mr. Rollinsky's pharmacy. The animal acted peculiarly after that, and was constantly on the shelf on which the brownish bottle containing the drug stood. Several times Mr. Rollinsky found the morphine bottle open with the powder scattered about, and each time the cat acted in the same manner that a human being acts when under the influence of the opiate.

The morphine-stricken feline was taken on board the Savannah liner by Mr. Heaton, the druggist's assistant, and placed in a room on the City of Montgomery. There were many persons on the pier at Savannah to see the cat leave for New York, for tabby's fame had spread throughout the southern city, and it was considered very much of a local celebrity.

No provision had been made for morphine on board the the steamship, and the cat, frenzied because of the absence of the drug, made its escape from the cabin in which it had been placed and leaped overboard into the Savannah river. There was a thrilling rescue, and the Persian tabby was placed again in the room that had been reserved for it and for Mr. Heaton after much correspondence with the Savannah line officials, and securely locked up.

It was placed under a small allowance of the drug, and this was confirmed upon the arrival of the City of Montgomery, when the cat was taken, in fairly good shape, to a cat hospital in West Fifty-third street.

So well known is the cat in Savannah that there was much opposition to its being taken away.

Mr. Heaton watched tenderly over the four-footed passenger and superintended the transfer to the cat hospital.

While Mr. Heaton would not commit himself without first having consulted the veterinaries, he said he thought the treatment of the cat would be about the same as that given a human being under similar circumstances. By degrees the allowance of morphine will be discontinued and remedies administered that will cause the unnatural craving for the drug to disappear.

Decreased Grape Crop.

Rome.—According to the last official reports the vines in Italy will give about 54,000,000 quintals of grapes this year, as against 98,000,000 in 1909.

Admitted.

"Women already do a lot of governing," said Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, the brilliant suffrage leader, in an interview in New York. "Men, if they are observant and frank, admit that.

"An editor about to marry was asked by a friend:

"'What prompted you, old man, to propose to Miss Dash?'

"The editor, who was, like all editors, extremely observant and extremely frank, answered:

"'Well, to tell you the truth, I think Miss Dash prompted me more than anybody else.'"

Putting in the Time.

A gentleman was engaging a general man and telling him what he wanted him to do. "You will have to clean the windows and the boots and the knives, and go messages, chop wood, cut short grass, mind the horse and pony, look after the garden and keep the house supplied with vegetables and do any odd job that is required and if suitable you will get ten shillings a week."

"Is there any clay in the garden?" asked the man.

"What makes you ask that?" asked the gentleman.

"I was thinking I could make bricks in my spare time," said the man.

In Perplexity.

"Michael Dolan, an' is it yourself?"

"Yes; sure it is."

"Well, ye know that bletherin' spalpeen, Widdy Castigan's second husband?"

"That I do."

"He bet me a bob to a pint I couldn't swally an egg without breakin' the shell ov it."

"An' ye did it?"

"I did."

"Then phwat's ailin' ye?"

"It's doon there," laying his hand on the lower part of his waistcoat. "If I jump about I'll break it and out me stomach wid the shell, an' if I kape quiet it'll hatch and I'll have a Shanghai rooster scratchin' me inside."

Significance in Names.

In an Illinois town a workingman having been informed that a sixth baby had arrived at his home, exclaimed: "Sufficient," and his neighbors, referring to his having given that name—Sufficient—to the new arrival, credited him with originality. The incident resembles a case nearer home, adds the New York Tribune. A New York family was blessed with nine daughters, when the stork brought a tenth one. It was in the days when the slang term for an old told story was a "chestnut," and as the baby certainly came under that head she received the name, but for euphony's sake like French for the word, duly shortened, and she was called Marron.

PHEASANTS PEST IN FIELD

Toothsome Birds Thrive Under Game Law of Washington at Great Cost to Farmers.

Seattle, Wash.—Pheasants are a plague in the Nisqually river valley, and farmers are up in arms, not against the pheasants, but the members of the legislature who made the closed season law. The toothsome birds have eaten up the potatoes and much small grain and even attacked the apples and other fruits.

It is reported from that section of the state that these white-collared, vari-colored birds wing down upon the farms in large flocks. They scratch out the tubers and pick out eyes and centers, leaving but a shell of the former potato. The loss caused by the birds is large, and because of the semi-domesticated instinct of these oriental birds they do not fear scarecrows, dogs or firing of explosives. The farmers in their petition to have an open season declared state that they do not care to go gunning in their corn and potato patches when a dead pheasant means $50 fine and court costs.

The population of the Nisqually river valley is united on the petition to have an open season of two months declared, that hunters may have an opportunity of thinning the pheasant stock.

World's Oat Crop.

Washington.—The world crop of oats is nearly 3,700,000,000 bushels annually, according to a bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture today. The United States annual crop for 1908-1909 was about 800,000,000 bushels.

Actress Goes Home Ill.

London.—Nance Vanney is back in England after a five months' tour in the United States. She has traveled 26,000 miles, and on the way has purchased a fruit farm of 60 acres near Los Angeles.

CEMENT COTTAGES FOR POOR

Method for Construction of Cheap but Substantial Homes for Working Classes.

London.—Two neat little tiled cottages at Newlands Corner, near Guildford, stand for a practical and successful effort to deal with one of the most pressing questions of English rural life—the problem of cheap housing.

In building these comfortable, well ordered dwellings for two of his undergardeners at a cost for the two of $1,500, St. Loe Strachey, editor of the Spectator, has justified the faith which he publicly expressed and which moved him to promote the Cheap Cottage exhibition at Letchworth in 1905.

The argument which Mr. Strachey then advanced and has now established is this: The agricultural laborer cannot afford to pay more than $1.50 a week house rent out of his wages. Any improvement in his dwelling above that standard must ordinarily be provided by philanthropy. The obvious way to cope with this situation is to cheapen the cost of construction.

This Mr. Strachey, in co-operation with a local builder, has done, by using for the walls of his cottage concrete blocks made in molds on the spot. The ground floors of the cottages have a scullery, a pantry and a large kitchen sitting room, from which an open staircase leads picturesquely to the upper story of three bedrooms.

As Mr. Strachey points out, this extraordinarily low cost of $1,500 for a pair of cottages—$1,250 is the figure actually accepted—has been reached not only by the employment of cheap material but by rigid exclusion of dowry and unnecessary ornament, by dispensing with the architect, and by leaving only a small amount for profits. At the same time the landowner is enabled to put up the cottages at the same cost by employing the labor and material of his estate. Further, Mr. Strachey asserts, the addition of $50 to the sale value of the cottages would turn them into a profitable venture for the commercial builder.

BELLS ON WOMEN'S HOSIERY

Tinkle as Breezes Bare Them to View, Particularly in Vicinity of Big Buildings.

New York.—"Rings on Her Fingers and Bells on Her Toes" may become literally true if progress continues in women's hosiery. It is almost true now, as may be seen from some of the latest sensational designs from Europe.

"Classy" misses and mesdames in the continental capitals are actually wearing their hearts as well as tinklers on their hose. Facts! Some of the latest stockings are set with miniatures, so designed that the wearer may embellish them with photographs of those dear to them.

Many of the new styles are stockings that tinkle; they have bells on them. Bells once were worn on garters, but now they are in a position to be easily seen, particularly in the vicinity of the draughty flatiron building or Longacre square.

The bells may be arranged along the sides of the hose, or down the front. Bells also may be attached to the shoes, and some even have one tiny tinkler under the high instep. This is getting pretty close to "Bells on Her Toes."

MIX THIS FOR RHEUMATISM

Easily Prepared and Inexpensive and Really Does the Work, Says Noted Authority.

Thousands of men and women who have felt the sting and torture of this dread disease, Rheumatism, which has no respecter of age, persons, sex, color or rank, will be interested to know that it is one of the easiest afflictions of the human body to overcome. Medical science has proven that it is not a distinct disease in itself, but a symptom caused by inactive kidneys. Rheumatism is uric acid in the blood and other waste products of the system which should be filtered and strained out in the form of urine. The function of the kidneys is to sift the poisons and acids out and keep the blood clean and pure. The kidneys, however, are of sponge-like substance, the holes or pores of which will sometimes, either from overwork, cold or exposure become clogged, and fail to in their function of eliminating the poisons from the blood, they remain in the veins, decompose and settle about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and pain of rheumatism and backache, often producing complications of bladder and urinary disease, and general weakness.

The following simple prescription is said to relieve the worst cases of rheumatism because of its direct action upon the blood and kidneys, relieving, too, the most severe forms of bladder and urinary troubles: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, one pound. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be had from any druggist or reputable pharmacy, and are said to be inexpensive and safe to use at home.

The ONLOOKER by WILBUR D. NESBIT

The Weary Hands

Sleep comes to weary fingers first of all,
Though o'er the drowsy eyes the lashes fall
And soothing peace sweeps in upon the soul
As though the vast eternal ocean wide
Came in a silent, heart-enthralling tide
Upon whose breast no crashing billows roll.

Sometimes it seems that sleep creeps in and stands
And pityingly holds us by the hands
While day's hard tasks still linger in the mind—
But softly lie the fingers wan and worn
With all the heavy burdens they have borne,
For sleep is ever sweet and ever kind.

How gently fall the fingers that are tired—
Aweary of the quest of things desired,
Aweary of the labors of the day
They clutch at sleep insensibly; and rest
Comes to them in a portion doubly blest,
And toil and task are half a world away.

O, weary hands all over all the earth—
The hands that do the work that is of worth,
Or calloused hands, or hands both white and small—
When night sends us her mystic lullabies
That whisper in the murmur of the breeze,
Sleep comes to weary fingers first of all.

Conundrum Man at Home.

The man with the chenille whiskers sat at his library table in his home, casting up his accounts and endeavoring to ascertain how much money he would have left after they were paid. Across the table sat his fond wife, who had just announced the completion of her plans for a trip to the seaside.

With a long-drawn sigh the man with the chenille whiskers looked up and asked his wife:

"What is the difference between you and me?"

"Why—of course, we are one, but, then, you will acknowledge that my family——"

"You are going away for the summer and I am summing a way for the goer," interrupted the husband.

With pale face and set lips the fond wife wrote to her mother that she feared John's constant work was affecting his mind.

Unchanged.

"Yes," says the advanced farmer, who really should be called an agriculturist, "there has been a vast change in the methods of those who till the soil. As an instance, nowadays we have machines that cut, thrash and sack the wheat, whereas in other years we cradled it."

The visitor nods understandingly, but says:

"Yet I believe there has not been such great progress in other branches of agriculture. Am I not right in my opinion that you still put corn in a crib?"

Deceitful Men.

"My dear child, you cannot believe what the men say. Why, when I was your age five men told me that if I would not marry them they would drown themselves."

"And did they?"

"Not one of them. They all got married—and the only one of them that ever told me he meant the threat was my husband. He said he wished he had carried it out."

Looking Forward.

Sound a tattoo on the drum,
Bring the cracker and the bomb—
Show how much you love your land,
And you soop may have a hand
Shy two fingers and a thumb.

Speed Is Necessary.

"I tell you," sighs the returned tourist, "money goes mighty fast in New York."

"It has to," responds the man with the iridescent whiskers. "It has to if it goes any distance. There's a million people grabbing for it as soon as it enters."

LETTER FROM MRS. COOK

Entirely Recovered From Illness, And Now Growing Stronger Each Day.

Cave Springs, Ga.—"I sleep better than ever," writes Mrs. Kate Cook from this place, "and get stronger every day. Before I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic, I was very sick, and the doctor's medicine did me no good. I can never speak too highly of your medicine."

Sleeplessness and nervousness, from which many women suffer, often make living unendurable.

If you are ailing, no need to stay so. Most of the ailments peculiar to women are preventable, curable.

Others have obtained relief by taking Cardui. Why not you?

Cardui is a popular medicine with women. It is popular because it has been found to banish nervousness, relieve pain, bring roses back to pale cheeks, and strength to weak bodies.

Cardui acts specifically on the cause of most female ills, and thus it is a medicine especially useful in women's ailments, in the treatment of which it has a record of over 50 years of success.

At least it can do you no harm, to give Cardui a fair trial.

It may be the very medicine you need.

Benny on Benevolence.

Benevolence is a great thing. When you have benevolence you cannot rest until you do something to make other people feel grateful to you. The other day my mamma went up into the attic to find a lot of old clothes to give to poor people who could not afford to buy any clothing for themselves. While she was hunting around she found a gold-headed cane worth $25 that grandpa had put up there 18 years ago, and forgot all about. Thus we see, dear friends, benevolence brings its own reward.—Benny.

THE POLITE CHICKEN.

YOUR STOMACH FEELS FINE.

Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sourness, Gas and All Stomach Misery Ended in Five Minutes.

This harmless preparation will promptly digest anything you eat and overcome a sick, sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Get from any drug store here in town a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain regulator for out-of-order stomachs, and besides it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

Remember, if your stomach feels out of order and uncomfortable now, you can get relief in five minutes by taking a little Diapepsin.

Time to Think Over Suicide.

He took paris green to commit suicide. Too big a dose to kill him. Eminent specialist happened to be called in, and started to fix him up. "No use," said paris green performer, "I'll do it anyhow after you have done with me." Doctor got mad. "If that's the way you feel about it, you fool," he said, "I'll not waste my time on you." Paris green performer much astonished and grieved. "Well," he said, "give me 24 hours to think it over." Doctor gave him 24 hours and went away. At the end of the time paris green performer telephoned: "I've thought it over and want to get well; come and see me some more."

16 YEARS OF SKIN DISEASE

"For sixteen long years I have been suffering with a bad case of skin disease. While a child there broke out a red sore on the legs just in back of my knees. It waxed from bad to worse, and at last I saw I had a bad skin disease. I tried many widely known doctors in different cities but to no satisfactory result. The plague bothered me more in warm weather than in winter and being on my leg joints it made it impossible for me to walk, and I was forced to stay indoors in the warmest weather. My hopes of recovery were by this time spent. Sleepless nights and restless days made life an unbearable burden. At last I was advised to try the Cuticura remedies [Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills] and I did not need more than a trial to convince me that I was on the road of success this time. I bought two sets of the Cuticura Remedies and after these were gone I was a different man entirely. I am now the happiest man that there is at least one true cure for skin diseases. Leonard A. Hawtof, 11 Nostrand Ave., Brooklyn, N .Y., July 30 and Aug. 8, '09."

Triumph of Optimism.

"How are you feeling today, uncle?" asked the robust nephew of his aged and feeble kinsman.

"Pretty well, pretty well!" quavered that incurable optimist, "my rheumatis is bothering me a good deal and my erisipilis is worse than it was yesterday, I've got a slight headache and I went down to the dentist today and had all but two of my teeth pulled, but thank heaven those two are opposite each other."

You Look Prematurely Old

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.

In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.

In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.

In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.

We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.

But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.

The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.

Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.

Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.

They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries, Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

There's nothing to compare with KNOWLEDGE.

Knowing how to BUY is as great an art as knowing how to SELL.

We know both arts; we BUY wisely, we sell economically.

We spent two weeks in New York City inspecting styles, in order that you might have the latest from the most fashionable city in the world.

Our stock of Ladies' Furnishings is more complete this year than that shown by any other place between Montgomery and Birmingham.

We bought in New York at New York prices; we are going to sell in Clanton at UNPRECEDENTED prices.

Mrs. Breeden, a skilled trimmer of Nashville, who learned her trade under the masters of the larger cities and who assisted us in New York, will be with us this year to give you the benefit of her knowledge and skill.

There is nothing in the millinery art that cannot be found at our place.

Come to see our beautiful display—never before equalled in Clanton.

is something about the sing-college boys that nothing else als. It is not that they have so much better voices than profes-sional troupes of singers. They are just every-day Alabama boys, but they are chosen from a goodly num-ber of students, and are judged to have the best voices available. They have not much time for music study, but they are coached out of school hours as much as is consistent with their other work, and they manage to learn an admirable program in an in-credibly short time. There is a brightness, a jollity, a kind of swing about the singing of college boys that can be heard nowhere else. The very joy of living bubbles over in them, and it is reflected in their singing. College Glee Clubs are not expected to rival minstrel companies or vaude-ville combinations, but they do pro-pose to sing college songs of a lively nature in such a way that an audience is bound to wake up and enjoy it. Who that has heard these Alabama boys sing "Bones, Johnny Schmoker," is likely to soon forget it? The pro-gram of the club this season teems with good things, and an exceptional-ly clever set of boys will be along to sing these songs. There will be some solos, some quartettes, a bit of whistling and a whole lot of breezy, brisk and irresistible choruses.

A Word to Our Correspondents and Friends.

(This article was originally intend-ed for our editorial columns, but since it is to be a matter of general interest to all the men, ladies, boys and girls of the county, we decided it was best to put it in a column by itself, where it would attract general attention.)

We expect to have our new press installed by the first of the new year. We confidently hope to begin the year 1911 with an ALL HOME print paper. To accomplish this design we will be more or less dependent upon our county correspondents.

The form of the paper will be changed somewhat; we are going to adopt modern methods and use the form utilized by most of the weekly papers north, east, south and west. We do not mean that we are going to give you less paper and less news; we are going to give you more news than you have ever seen crowded into a Chilton county paper before.

We may not have quite so much "bought stuff," not so much "plate metal," not so much foreign adver-tisements; but we are going to give you more live county news and state news than you have ever before had in a home sheet.

It is no small task to get out an all-home print paper in a small town even once a week. The news some-times is scarce, our correspondents sometimes fail us, and then sometimes there's other hindrances; and hence we are going to ask our correspond-ents in every section of the county to send us in the news regularly and on time.

Do not wait 'till the last moment to mail your news letter in the hope that "something else" may turn up; keep the turn-ups 'till the next issue, and let us have your news articles prompt-ly. Remember your letter has to be "set up," proof-read and then copied. That takes time.

Send us all the local happenings of your community. Let them reach us not later than Tuesday morning of each week, please. Write on but one side of the sheet, and paragraph your articles as nearly as you can.

Do not send to the editor or em-ployes of the paper, but mail to the paper itself, and the proper person will get the letter and edit it.

Now Listen!

We have asked you to help us. We are going to help you in two distinct ways. They say a dog always turns around once before laying down to see if there are any sticks or stones in his proposed bed, and then he turns again because one good turn deserves another; but be that as it may, we are going to do you two good turns.

One Turn

is by giving you, your friends and your county the best paper that has ever been printed in Clanton. We want you to help us in this task by sending us newsy news, spicily spo-ken and tersely told.

Another Turn,

and it's a turn in which we invite all our friends to take a part and feel not only welcome, but cordially invited. We are going to bar no man because he is a man, no woman because she is beautiful, no boy because he is ener-getic, and no girl because she is win-some; it's open to all, regardless of faith, belief, politics, creed, social or commercial standing. We want cor-respondents, readers, critics, friends, allies and ALL to join in this winter's day scamper among your friends that is, all who would like to take a little turn that will likely put a few golden, shining within the warm lining of your purse, and make you feel satisfied with the world at large. It means a few days campaigning among your friends— that's all.

Our advertisements appeal mostly upon our merchants, who want to one thousand more before the first of February.

We must have them. We are go-ing to have them, for some of our con-tracts call for a certain number of readers, and we must get them.

They are to be secured right here in Chilton county if YOU will go out after them. We are going to give the paper that will justify your call.

The Plan,

then, is to get our friends, your friends and your friends' friends to help us in this great enterprise; and, to stimulate your activity and theirs so that you will not feel that you are doing charity work, we are going to offer to the person who brings or sends to us, between NOW and the FIRST of February, the largest number of paid yearly subscriptions.

A Ten-ollar Gold Coin

Surely this is worth a little time! Almost any boy or girl can get half a dozen subscribers in an afternoon. A ten-day campaign means sixty sub-scribers for our paper and TEN DOL-LARS IN GOLD for you.

Remember the proposition is for yearly subscribers, paid in advance; but to make it easy—for we feel con-fident that if we can get a Chilton man once to read the paper he will want it forever—we are going to count two six-months' subscriptions as equal to one yearly subscription, or four three-months' subscriptions as equal to one yearly subscription; hence you will have no trouble in se-curing the name of every person upon whom you call. We once knew a book agent who sold an old man at his store a set of books for cash, went to the house and sold his wife another set of the same kind, and then for a discount sold the son another set. He was "quick action," and left town early. We want you to do no such thing, but we want one of our papers in each home, and the winsome eyes of any young lady can secure a subscription from any one upon whom she chooses to call; the manly voice of any lad can pull the coin from the pocket of any kind-hearted gentle-man; the sonorous tones of any mat-ron can persuade any gentleman to assist in a worthy cause.

Each Week

during the month of January we will announce the standing of those who are assisting us, and at the same time competing for the prize.

We will not give the number of sub-scribers secured—oh, no! we tried that once, and it was a rank failure— but we will announce who is first, who second, who third, and so on in the race. This will enable each one to see just how he or she stands. You may be the last on the list the first week, and the first on the list the last week, so do not become discouraged. There may be a difference of only three or four subscribers between the leader and the last one on the list, so it behooves every one to hustle 'till the end.

If you do not wish your own name known, then use some short name. Do not use "Somebody's Sweetheart," "Nobody's Darling," and the like; they're too long, and, besides, if you should win you wouldn't like to have it announced that you were Nobody's Darling, would you?

We have a number of subscribers whose time expires in January. Re-newals will be counted just the same as new subscribers. You may get lots of your friends to have the paper sent to friends in distant states.

If you need sample copies, call upon us for them; we will gladly furnish you.

Send in subscriptions as rapidly as you secure them; we will keep a tab-ulated statement, and you shall have full credit for each subscription sent. We want to list the papers and send them out to subscribers, and this we cannot do 'till we receive the names and addresses.

Watch the paper each week in Jan-uary for the list, but do not hold back names of subscribers. If cuts your friends out of the paper, cuts us out of the money, and does you no par-ticular good, for you cannot tell how far behind or how far in the lead any other person may be.

The canvass closes with the last day of January. Subscriptions received after that date, unless POSTMARK-ED as early as January 31st, will not be counted. If you are at a distance from Clanton have the postmaster to mark your letter plainly so that the date will show when it was mailed, provided you secure subscriptions on the last day and wish them counted.

The result will be announced in the first issue of February, and the award made as soon as the winner calls for it after that date.

Now, it's up to you; get in the run-ning and make TEN DOLLARS for yourself, a bright paper for your county, and a friend of your sub-scribers.

A Card of Thanks.

In the last few days, our family has been made to appreciate the kind remembrance of [illegible] Clanton.

handed us $41 in cash; the next, a very liberal "pounding," composed of many good things for the inner man to accompany a fine turkey arrested by the high sheriff and imprisoned in our coop, and last, an annual card by some "noble" or nobles for 1911.

Our sincere wish for each of you will be found in the first four verses of the 20th Psalm. Read it.

Teachers' Institute.

The Chilton County Teachers' In-stitute convened at Mt. Nebo church on December 9th and 10th.

The institute was called to order by Supt. J. W. Moore.

Devotional exercises were conduct-ed by Mr. J. D. Culp.

A hearty welcome address was made by Mr. E. C. Popwell, being fol-lowed by Mr. J. J. Mims.

After the addresses the regular or-der of exercises was taken up and fol-lowed throughout the day.

1. "How to Teach Pupils to Study," was most ably and forcibly discussed by Prof. J. Harvey Williams. The three principal points in his argument were method, interest and explana-tion, all of which he presented in a most masterly way. So thoroughly did he discuss the question that little was left for the next speaker, Miss Nelia Johnson, to say upon the sub-ject. However, she entertained her audience with some timely suggestions and pertinent remarks.

2. "Necessity for Uniform Gradation in Our Schools." This subject was thoroughly discussed by Prof. G. L. Speer. Professor Speer presented the advantages to be gained in the uniform gradation by stating that if this were done it would save much to the parents in the cost of books for their children. This was the first thought presented; then came in reg-ular order the other ideas: State as-sistance in helping teachers in grad-ing work; the concisive manner in which lessons are framed; the disad-vantage of planning by inexperienced teachers.

A paper on this same subject was also presented by Miss Sadie Belle Johnson.

This brought the forenoon session of the institute to a close.

At this hour a bounteous dinner was spread and quickly dispatched by teachers and visitors.

The afternoon session was begun with a song by the audience.

The first paper of the afternoon was upon the subject, "The Making of a Man," and was ably discussed by Prof. J. L. Johnson. Professor Johnson re-ceived the hearty cheers and congrat-ulations of his entire audience upon his excellent presentation of the sub-ject.

"The Advantages of the Debating Society" was ably presented by Profs. Oden, Williams, Bone, Hicks, Speer, Moore and Hunter.

Prof. Henson, of Thorsby Institute, was present, and made a pleasing ad-dress. He noted the advantages of the institute, and made an appeal to the teachers in regard to their circular library.

The following teachers were en-rolled: Misses Nora Armstrong, Min-nie Batton, Messrs. J. W. Barker, J. F. Bone, W. R. Baker, C. M. Baker, R. R. Cherry, D. C. Culp, J. C. Dennis, W. Z. Dennis, R. L. Duffey, H. L. Hicks, J. A. Hunter, Grady Harris, J. L. Johnson, C. C. King, J. W. Moore, J. J. Mims, Stanley McNeill, Howard Oden, Lee Popwell, W. L. Parrish, J. M. Parrish, F. I. Popwell, E. C. Popwell, W. E. Robinson, R. A. Smith, J. W. Samuels, W. C. Scar-brough, G. L. Speer, B. J. Sessions, T. E. Williams, J. H. Williams, J. L. Lambert, Misses Dezzie Headley, Sa-die Belle Johnson, Nelia Johnson, Al-ma Lefstead, Rosalie Moore, Gertie Mae Moore, Margaret Moore, Ola Mabry, Lottie Perry, Belle Popwell, Clyde Rayfield, Elizabeth Sealey, Le-na Sawyer, Ada Walker, Maggie Wood and Mrs Lelia Mullins.

This was about the best attended institute that the county has ever had.

Owing to the unfavorableness of the weather on Saturday and a burial in an adjoining community, the ses-sion of Saturday was not so well attended. However, quite a number braved the weather and were present at the opening exercises.

A very forceful paper was read by Miss Alma Lefstead upon "The Dis-advantages of the Rural Teacher." Responses were made by Profs. Bone, Moore and Hicks.

Prof. Hicks opened our eyes to a great extent by showing the way in which the rural teachers were [illegible] of his argument by Professor Bone, who was the very incarnation of dignity itself.

A laughable rejoinder was made by Professor Hicks, which provoked the laughter of the entire audience.

Miss Lottie Perry read quite an in-teresting paper upon "Attention, and How to Hold It." To her admirable paper Professor Hicks added many important suggestions.

After the remarks of Prof. Hicks and the introduction of the following resolutions the institute came to a close, to meet next year at Cooper, where we hope to see all the old teachers who were present and many more:

Resolutions.

We, your committee on resolutions, desire to present the following report:

1. We, the teachers in this institute assembled, wish to tender our sincere thanks to the people of Fairview and Mt. Nebo community for the interest they have taken in the institute work, and the generous hospitality shown us in their homes.

2. We commend the teachers for the large attendance and the well pre-pared papers and talks rendered.

3. We wish to commend our effi-cient superintendent of education for his untiring efforts in the cause of ed-ucation in Chilton county; for the dis-tribution of placards, which we know will result in great good for the cause of temperance in our county and state.

4. We deeply appreciate the fact that so many districts are calling for the next institute to assemble in their midst, which is a proof conclusive that the masses of the people are realizing the importance of an education.

Respectfully submitted,
J. L. JOHNSON,
J. F. BONE,
ADA WALKER,
LOTTIE PERRY,
NELIA JOHNSON, Sec'ty.

Preachers' Appointments.

The annual session of the Alabama Methodist conference, which was held last week at Troy, adjourned on Mon-day afternoon last.

Before adjournment Bishop Wilson fixed the stations of the preachers for the coming year. Our people are in-terested in a number of these appoint-ments, so we give the locations of a few for their information.

Rev. J. B. Cummings, who has been presiding elder of this district, as-sumes the editorial chair of the Chris-tian Advocate, and retires from active service as a minister.

The new presiding elder of this (Prattville) district is Rev. C. A. Cor-nell, a most polished gentleman and a consecrated Christian. Our people will be delighted with him.

Rev. R. J. Mills, much to the de-light of his churches, is returned to Clanton.

Rev. D. B. Dismukes is also re-turned to Verbena. Rev. P. M. Guth-rie returns to Fifth Avenue, Mont-gomery. Rev. J. A. McBride goes to Randolph. Rev. S. U. Turnipseed is sent to Camden. Rev. J. F. S. Ste-phens goes to Shady Grove. Rev. J. F. Price is returned to Fitzpatrick. Rev. H. T. Johnson is returned as pre-siding elder of Dothan district.

The New Postmaster.

On last Monday afternoon the heart of Felix O. Dudley beat just a little faster than usual, and his smile was just a little broader and more capti-vating than that which he usually wears. And well it might be, for it was at this time he received news of his reappointment as Clanton's post-master. For eight years this sterling young man has served the patrons of Uncle Sam in the capacity of post-master at Clanton, and a good one he has made, too.

For more than two years he has been working on "borrowed time." That is, his commission as postmaster expired many months ago, but his suc-cessor had never been appointed, so he continued in office.

There has been a mighty war waged for this particular flesh-pot, politically speaking. Trip after trip has been made to Washington in the hope of securing the job and ousting Mr. Dud-ley.

He has himself hied to the capital city more than one time, mending his fences and putting in a new post oc-casionally.

The fight has been unseen by the world, nevertheless, it went on madly, if quietly.

Dudley set "steady in the boat," knowing that his friend, Prelate D. Barker, the President's referee, was his friend, and that he knows no such word as fail when it comes to picking political plums and distributing them among his friends.

Mr. Dudley enters upon his new term of four years with the hearty [illegible] of all of his friends. He [illegible] and faithful officer, and the [illegible] with this giving him the glad hand, and he is wearing the smile that "won't come off."

A little book called "The Road to Wellville" says: "There's a reason," and the reason in Jeff's case is a beau-tiful young lady who has told him that she loves him and will be his bride.

That's calculated to make any man happy. Jeff is a man.

Announcement was made to his friends that on Wednesday, the 28th of December, in the quiet little town of Equality, Elmore county, Mr. Ruf-fin will lead to the marriage altar Miss Maud Darby.

Mr. Ruffin is receiving the congrat-ulations of his friends gracefully.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank, through the col-umns of The Press, all those who helped me in the piano contest.

I assure you it has been highly ap-preciated.

I also feel grateful for the kind expressions and good will of those who stood so nobly by me in the con-test.

Assuring you that I will endeavor to use the beautiful gift to the very best advantage, I remain, sincerely, (MISS) EULA F. ROPER.

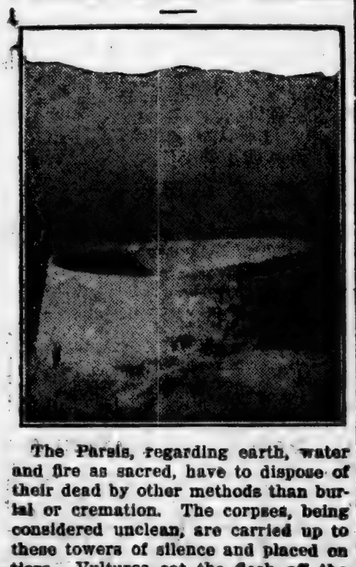
MARVELS of THE EARTH



CURIOUS, ODD AND INTERESTING OBJECTS AND PLACES

Mail for Fernando Noronha

There are few places on the globe so curiously situated as the little island of Fernando Noronha in the South Atlantic ocean, named after the Count of Noronha, commander of the ships which first sighted it in 1503. The illustration shows the dropping of the mail from the R. M. S. V. Amazon for its inhabitants. When a vessel does not call at the island the letters are enclosed in a cask to which a flag is attached; this is flung into the sea in the manner depicted above and left floating until a boat dispatched from the solitary island picks it up, thus obviating any stoppage of the vessel. The island of Fernando Noronha lies 125 miles from the eastern extremity of Brazil, to which it belongs, and is about eight miles in length. It lies in the wayside of the commerce of the world, and is sighted by more ships and visited by fewer than perhaps any other spot on earth. The island is a convict station of the Brazilian government, about three-fourths out of a population of 3,000 being convicts. Females are prohibited from landing there. It is a broken, picturesque volcanic rock in mid-ocean, covered with verdure, including trees of some size, and the top of the main island is covered with small farms.

PERSIAN TOWER OF SILENCE

The Parsis, regarding earth, water and fire as sacred, have to dispose of their dead by other methods than burial or cremation. The corpses, being considered unclean, are carried up to these towers of silence and placed on tiers. Vultures eat the flesh off the bones, which are then placed in the center of the tower, where they remain until they crumble away.

RATS FORM TOBACCO HABIT

Rats have been accused of many things since the days of the Pied Piper of Hamelin, but it remained for a Big Stone (S. D.) resident to accuse the rodents of chewing tobacco.

A Big Stone woman keeps a grocery store. The building had a wooden floor, and rats gained entrance, carrying off large quantities of groceries.

Recently to remedy the annoyance Miss Schnacke, the grocer, had the floor torn up and a cement floor installed. When the boards were removed and the haunts of the rats uncovered, remains of quantities of groceries were found, and in the assortment were parts of several plugs of tobacco, partly eaten, indicating that the rats had formed a liking for the weed.

BONDS KICKED ON STREET

The police of an uptown station in New York City have in their possession a parcel of bonds worth about $55,000, which was picked up by a patrolman, after it had been kicked two or three blocks by a squad of school boys.

One boy gave the parcel a final kick which sent it under the stairs leading to a subway station. There the policeman found it. The bundle was addressed in pencil on the manila wrapper: "Don A. Dodge, Yonkers, N. Y."

The Yonkers police were notified, but were unable to find the owner. A man of the name given they said lived in Yonkers a year or two ago, but had moved away, leaving his present whereabouts unknown.

RAT TRAP SAVES TWO LIVES

Awakened by the snap of a rat-trap and the squeals of a big rodent, Andrew Sullivan of New Jersey awoke at 1 o'clock in the morning to find his home in flames. Jumping from a window, clad only in their night clothes, he and his wife barely escaped.

The house, on a farm owned by Mrs. M. Comegys, on the Oxmead road, was burned to the ground, the Sullivans losing everything, including $40 which Sullivan had in a bureau.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, but it is believed that the rat, the capture of which awakened Sullivan, gnawed matches, starting the blaze.

WHALE STRANGLED ITSELF

The crew of a cable-repairing ship working in the Pacific recently brought back a remarkable story of a whale.

The vessel in question had been sent north along the coast of Alaska to repair the cable, because during the last winter difficulty had been experienced in sending and receiving messages. The ship picked up the cable connecting Valdez and Sitka, in Cass Inlet, not far from Sitka. The crew never had such a time hauling a cable on board as they did that day on the the Alaska coast. Finally the cause of the great weight was made known.

Some time during the winter a whale feeding on the bottom of the ocean, with wide-open mouth, collided with the wire rope. Unable to shape the big wire from the mass of whalebone in its jaws, the big mammal "turned turtle," rolled over once, turned round, rolled again and dived.

In these few movements the fish proved himself his own hangman, for the cable was twisted tighter about the head of the whale than any man could have twisted it with the most powerful machinery. The whale drowned, and the carcass was devoured on the bottom of the ocean by fish. The crew of the cable ship hauled up an immense load of whalebone, and found a great twist in the government cable that had been the cause of the unusual difficulty in sending messages to and from either end of the rope.

FREAK IN KITTEN TRIPLETS

Tigress, a large cat owned by James Albone of Middleport, N. Y., gave birth a few days ago to three kittens, which were all fastened along the length of their sides to one another. Their heads are all faced one way and almost in a line, and they are perfect in head, body and legs, all three being able to stand at the same time and walk.

They are very active and bright and were it not for the fact that they are attached to each other by a thick strip of flesh about an inch and a half in length along their sides, they would not seem different from ordinary kittens. Owing to their peculiar color, being reddish calico, white and maltese, they have been named Red, White and Blue.

Two other kittens complete the litter. The white kitten is the center of one of the trio and seems to be the largest and the strongest.

UNDERMINED BY THE INDUS

The once beautiful city of Dera Ghazi Khan in the Punjab has sustained incalculable damage by the overflowing of the river Indus, no fewer than 5,000 out of 6,000 dwelling houses, besides many mosques, temples and markets, having been destroyed. Some 3,000 people have been rendered homeless and 12,000 more are crowded in a destitute state in temporary huts awaiting the completion of a new city which is being laid out for them nine miles west of the river.

Rebuilt After an Earthquake

The reconstruction of Kingston, Jamaica, on the reinforced concrete system has been completed with great rapidity since it was devastated by the terrible earthquake of January 14, 1907. This was the second great quake in the history of Jamaica which completely destroyed the capital. The damage done in Kingston alone was estimated at [illegible] lain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.
In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.
In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.
In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.
We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.
But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours e busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our ess relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.
The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.
Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.
Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.
They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the way, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

rniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries,
Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

Ten more days 'till Christmas. Shop early and give the clerks a rest.

We haven't noticed the trees and poles lately, but presume that the election notices will soon be poled or treed.

The Democratic love-feast in Baltimore is to be turned into a Democratic turkey feast. Golly! how we wish we could go!

Who's going upon the sacrificial altar and become a candidate for mayor? Don't all speak at once, gentlemen; folks'll think you really want it.

Even the "limited" system of waterworks we have is giving away. The hand pump in front of the store of W. L. Mullins fell down the other day of its own accord.

The railroads of the county and the towns and villages pay more than two-thirds of the taxes. Can any one living in the country object to good roads if these forces pay for them?

Have you paid your poll tax yet? Any day may bring forth an election of some kind. If you are short on the poll tax book, you cannot vote even in a stock law election. Pay NOW, democrats!

What would the farmers of Chilton county say if The Press should offer them a hundred dollars or more for the best individual acre of corn next year, and an equal amount for a test acre of cotton? Would they get angry, you reckon?

Whether or not there be any such thing as death, which is denied in theory by the Christian Scientists, Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the founder and head of that sect, has been shrouded, coffined and entombed. Inhuman treatment, say we, if she wasn't in reality graveyard-dead!

The editor has noticed in the past few days much indiscriminate shooting of fireworks about town by the frolicsome small boy, and since we have no adequate fire protection, would it not be a good idea for the city council to call a meeting at once and adopt an ordinance forbidding the discharge of fireworks within the business districts? We just ask!

Again we revert to the grand jury report to insist upon the necessity and county-wide demand for better roads. Old systems of road-working are obsolete, worthless, expensive and damaging. A new system, in keeping with the trend of events and becoming a rich agricultural county, must be adopted. We are working now on a plan, and we believe the good people of Chilton will be glad to see some new method adopted. They're doing it all over the State, and we must not lag behind.

The pig pens do not smell quite as loud as they once did. Hog-killing time has arrived. But then, hog-killing time or not, they ought not to be permitted to smell at any time—in the city. Here's work for the council.

The grand jury in its report insists upon additional room and protection at the court house for the county records. It also insists upon better jail facilities and equipment and better roads. Of course, this is all going to be charged to a change of administration. We bound you it will, and we democrats are ready to admit the charge.

We know a fellow by the name of Cannon. He is singing that little refrain, "Show Pity, Lord; O Lord, Forgive!" Remember that song? But Cannon's habitat is in far-off Illinois, and he "uses" around Washington sometimes.

Champ Clark, the next Speaker, and Harmon, the next President, were each given an ovation at the recent waterways convention. This was appropriate. We didn't hear of any song being sung to Roosevelt or Taft.

A town hall for Clanton with adequate facilities for public amusement exhibitions is the cry of the town. Who'll start the ball rolling? The Press would, but it's too busy with the waterworks, sewerage and public road movements. Let's get together and have them all in a bunch like a dog's breakfast. Towns half our size have all these things and more. Wake up, Clantonites!

The correspondents of The Press are respectfully requested to read carefully the article which appears elsewhere in this issue headed "A Word to Our Correspondents and Friends." It's up to you to do the rest; we've done our part.

Haven't seen anything of those notices yet, have you? Election notices, we mean? Maybe they haven't treed 'em yet.

Should Taft appoint C. J. Hughes chief justice, as it seems now will be done, then William Howard Taft is not the astute politician we took him to be.

Last Sunday was a notably dull day in Clanton. No preaching service at either church, and the L. & N. engines tried to make the quietude all the more profound. They didn't blow more than seven hundred times that day—an unusually small number.

We call the attention of our readers to the full-page advertisements which appear in this issue of The Press. If that doesn't show that we are alive, and that our friends realize that advertising in The Press pays a handsome dividend, then call at our offices and tell us what you do think.

Drs. Perry and Orr, who are the Alabama field agents of the Rockefeller hookworm commission, state that at least 35 per cent. of the school children of Dothan are infected with hookworms. That's calculated to revive the old expression, "He's wormy," down in Houston.

The figures announced by the Federal census office show that the United States, including colonies, has a population of 101,100,000. The United States alone has 91,972,268. Alabama has 2,138,093. Alabama ranks 18th out of 52 states. Come to think of it, that's some people.

Chilton county holds a unique position in the history of criminal jurisprudence—not an enviable one, either: A daughter charged with murder of her mother, and a son indicted for the slaying of his father. That's a record not to be proud of, and to which we do not refer with exultation.

The Anniston Star, which recently became the property of Mr. Lloyd, an Illinois democrat, is one of the best edited and best printed dailies which comes to our sanctum. Anniston and Alabama are to be congratulated upon the acquisition of Mr. Lloyd as a citizen and an editor.

Prelate D. Barker, the national committeeman whom the Thorsby convention refused to endorse, is yet in Washington. He is in close touch with the "powers that be," and as soon as Mr. Taft gets the supreme court appointments off his hands, together they will go over the list of Alabama postmasters to be appointed. Marse Jody Thompson is at his plantation near Comer.

Representative-Elect Lavender, of Bibb, proposes to introduce a bill in the next legislature for the establishment of a court to sit alternately at Mobile, Montgomery and Birmingham to relieve the congested docket of the state supreme court. It is to have jurisdiction in cases involving $1,000 or less, and there are other restrictions. The bill is a good one if it succeeds in relieving the congestion and in giving speedy justice.

The special "Booster" edition of the Montgomery Advertiser last Sunday was a grand conception of a great idea, and right masterfully was it put into execution. Besides many other attractive and notable features too numerous to mention, and all deserving praise, it contained an elegant write-up of Chilton county and some specially good cuts of several Clanton homes. The paper should be filed away and kept, for it is a long chapter in the history of the state, as well as of Alabama journalism.

If the next legislature does nothing more, it ought to frame and pass a bill correcting the discrepancy between the constitutional and the statute laws as to when terms of office begin and expire. All over the state contentions have arisen along this line. Here in Chilton we have an officer who six years or more ago surrendered his office to the present official, upon demand, less than a month after the election; now that same official holds on to the office 'till January, contending that his term does not expire 'till then, notwithstanding the fact that the same man whom he defeated six years ago is the one by whom he was defeated a little over a month ago. Straighten it out, Mr. Legislators!

Now comes the news that President Taft has decided to withdraw the nomination of Governor Hughes for chief justice, and substitute the name of Justice White, of Louisiana. In all probability Justice White's nomination will be confirmed before our paper reaches its readers.

Justice White is a Southerner, a native of Louisiana and a life-long democrat. In classing him, however, it is well to say that he is a Hamiltonian democrat, for he is inclined to be ultra in his views of states' and national rights. This is the first time that a President has ever gone out of his own party to nominate a man for so high and distinguished an office, except, perhaps, in the case of Cleveland, who selected Gresham for Secretary of State. The selection of Justice White reflects favorably upon the broad statesmanship of President Taft, who, recognizing the fitness of the man, disregarded political lines and appointed that one best suited to the office.

The farmers' friend—The Clanton Press—is going to give the old fogies an object lesson in the next few days. A hundred dollars for an acre of good corn, and you keep the corn; a half hundred dollars for an acre of good cotton, and you keep the cotton and the seed, is a proposition that we are working upon for you, Mr. Farmer.

Cotton has not gone down a red cent lately, and yet the Democrats have been elected more than a month! Isn't that strange, ye Republicans? In another month Deason and Jones will take active charge. Better hurry up, Mr. Cotton, and go down some, or the Republicans will be stampeded. Referring to the above, we wonder how our Republican friends will explain the lower price of meat? Guess they brought that on themselves by electing an officer or two.

But if these two propositions are true—and to a Republican they must be as true as Holy Writ—then what we want to know is: What would have been the price of bee's wax if the Socialists had elected a part of their ticket? And, would the price of goose grease increased if the lily—the Scott—ticket had slipped a cog and got in a man, too? In other words, if the Republicans of Chilton control the price of cotton, why is it they don't also control the price of humming birds? And, if they don't control the price of cotton, how come meat to go down? And also, why is it a camel has a wart on his back? Come on now, Mr. Republican, and tell us all these things, 'cause we want to know.

ANOTHER CHILTON COUNTY CITIZEN CONVINCED.

Another of our citizens was convinced that Dr. Higgins, of Clanton, understands thoroughly the human eye. A few days since a certain citizen came into Dr. Higgins to have his eyes examined, and upon examination Dr. Higgins diagnosed the case as an excessive use of tobacco or other toxicants (Toxic Ampliopia), destroying the eyesight.

This patient was somewhat dissatisfied with Dr. Higgins' diagnosis, and so went to Atlanta to consult Dr. Calhoun, Georgia's famous eye specialist. After paying his fare to Atlanta and other incidental expenses, this same citizen returned to Clanton and, walking into Dr. Higgins' office, was asked by the doctor what could be done for him. "Nothing," said the gentleman. "I merely called to congratulate you upon your perfect understanding of my case and of the human eye generally. I went to Atlanta and consulted with Dr. Calhoun; he told me that your diagnosis of my case was entirely correct, and I thought that, being a young man, you would appreciate knowing that your understanding of the science of the eye is equally as great as that of the noted specialists elsewhere. You are on the right road, and I wish to add my endorsement and encouragement to those you have already received."

Now, after reading the above and many other congratulations extended to Dr. Higgins, such as the kindly remarks of Mrs. J. M. Pool near Montevallo, who says she would not take $50 for a pair of $4 glasses fitted by Dr. Higgins; the letter of recommendation by Judge Reynolds, recently published; the letter of Mr. Moore, Verbena, Route 2, and of Mr. Wells, Verbena, Route 2, can there be any doubt as to the ability of Dr. Higgins to fit glasses to any eye? By calling at Dr. Higgins' office you can get the address of more than 140 others who have been fitted with glasses, and who are entirely satisfied with the treatment Dr. Higgins has given them, feeling that they have been greatly benefited.

If, however, you are not satisfied then, pay your fare to Atlanta and consult Georgia's great specialist, and after returning let Dr. Higgins make the examination, and you will be convinced that he understands the human eye equally as well as do the others.

The railroad will be glad to receive your pocket change, but by consulting Dr. Higgins first you will be enabled to save that change to put into glasses or buy a useful present for your loved ones. Respectfully,

DR. J. V. HIGGINS,
The Up-to-Date and Reliable Watch and Eye Man. tf

COOPER'S CROSS ROADS.

For some time since the election we have remained quiet, not because we were dissatisfied with the way things went, but because we have been so overjoyed. Our nerves have not yet assumed their normal tension, but we are able to write a little.

Pope says: "Once in the lifetime of an individual, state and nation comes the time to decide." We congratulate the voters of Chilton county upon their recent decision. Stand firm, democrats of Chilton. There is coming another day; let's think three times before acting once. Democracy spells prosperity. Look at Switzerland, if you please, ye members of the G. O. P. It is the purest democracy in the world, because its people are, as a rule, highly educated.

The democratic converts down this way are few and far between, but there are enough of them to make us rejoice when the time comes.

Mrs. Tom Rockett spent a few days of last week with relatives at Jemison.

Mr. John Barrett, Cooper's most prosperous merchant, is on a few days' business trip to Coosa county. He has recently employed a fourth clerk, Mr. Sidney Driver.

Rev. Mr. Hughes, the pastor of Chestnut Creek church, has bought Mr. Dock Jones' place, and moved to it last week from Coosa county. We are always glad to welcome such men as the Rev. Mr. Hughes into our midst.

Our community is now enjoying a season of great prosperity. Good crops have helped us out materially. Several new dwellings are in course of construction; a new school house is being erected; the moving in of several new families and the increased membership of the church and Sunday school all give ample proof of our success.

Our Sunday school last Sunday was not well attended, owing to the inclement weather. Come next Sunday and make up for absences.

Our secular school is progressing very nicely, despite the bad weather.

Mr. W. H. Jones is now on the sick list. With this exception, the health of our section is exceedingly good.

Everybody subscribe for the first ALL HOME print paper in the county. Success to The Press and its many readers. ELIAS BURK.

RIDERVILLE.

We are looking forward with much pleasure to the erection of our new school house, which is to be built through the beneficence of Jackson Brothers. The building is to be erected upon one of the most desirable lots in Riderville. Special provision is to be made for the education of each child of workmen employed by the lumber company. We long to see one of the very best schools in the county established in Riderville, and we believe that the day is not far distant when our hope will be realized.

Riderville is one of the most desirable little towns that we know of in all this section of the state. We boast of one of the largest sawmill plants in the state. The citizenship here, taken as a whole, is made up of noble, refined and aspiring people. A strong Sunday school is one of the admirable features in the religious life of the community. We have preaching twice a month—in the evening by Rev. F. M. Woods, of Clanton, and the Methodist minister residing at Plantersville.

The Jackson brothers are spending some time here in the interest of the great sawmill plant owned by them.

Mr. Dean, one of the late employes, has accepted a position at Hull, and has removed to that place.

Miss Bonnie Jenkins was called to Verbena to attend the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. R. M. Jenkins, on last Thursday.

Misses Mollie Reynolds and Nelia Johnson attended the Teachers' Institute last Friday and Saturday at Mt. Nebo, returning Sunday afternoon. They spent Saturday night and Sunday with the uncle of the latter, Mr. D. M. Martin, en route to Maplesville.

Messrs. Perry Milam and Ernest Rouse made a dashing trip to Stanton last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Hay and daughter, of Centerville, are visiting the daughter of the former, Mrs. Parker, of this place.

The Merrymakers were delightfully entertained last Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gay. The dining room and parlor were beautifully decorated with a profusion of holly, typifying the early approach of Christmas joys. After a few hours of merrymaking, we were invited to a table most elaborately piled with luscious grapes, oranges and apples. Not only were we to feast our eyes on this beautiful scene, but to partake to our hearts' content. After much feasting and joking, we bade our genial host, Mr. Luther Gay, adieu, each member feeling that it had been quite a pleasure to be present.

We wish The Press untold success.

Mr. Editor.

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words for the people of this section.

Just now our community is enjoying exceedingly good health. There is not a case of serious sickness in the entire community.

Our school is progressing finely, and we have every reason to be proud of the record that this institution is making.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Robuck are spending a few days pleasantly with the sister of the former at Searles.

The Institute at Fairview was especially good; over forty teachers were enrolled.

Mr. W. C. Dickinson is making arrangements to spend the Christmas holidays with his wife and children at Troy.

Mr. T. L. Dickinson is now preparing to put up a large sawmill in our community, which will give work to a dozen or more hands. We welcome such evidences of enterprise among us. S. S. S.

THORSBY ITEMS.

Ira E. Sarber, of Elmore, was in Thorsby last week negotiating with the town council for the purchase of his property here, including the waterworks plant. The deal is not yet closed, but there is fair prospect that we shall soon have a water supply system run by the town authorities.

On Friday and Saturday of last week the Ladies' Guild of Thorsby held their fifth annual bazaar, closing with an oyster supper Saturday night. This is an organization in which the qualifications for membership do not consist of affiliation with any particular church, but in the manifestation of a "get-together spirit, working for a better Thorsby." This year, as for several years past, they have considered Thorsby Institute the most worthy beneficiary of their efforts, and have been a most efficient force in helping to maintain the school, in which they are not alone when considering a worthy cause for their help. During the past two months Thorsby Institute has received donations amounting to about $1,000 from people who believe in the substantial benefits of education.

With one of the best preparatory schools in the state, under a management of local trustees who place the expenses to the student far below the actual cost and then hustle to collect the deficit, and with no other standard high school in Chilton county, the attendance of our boys and girls indicates a great lack of appreciation of the opportunities that lie at their door.

On Friday night, December 16, at 7:30, at Bates' Hall, in Thorsby, the Rev. George Eaves, D. D., of Birmingham, Ala., and England, will deliver a very interesting discourse on "Gladstone—the Man, the Statesman and the Churchman." Dr. Eaves is peculiarly fitted for this work, as he was a personal friend of the "Grand Old Man" of England. Furthermore, he is a pleasing and forceful speaker, who, although heard in Thorsby many times, is always welcome. An admission will be charged. Adults, 20 cents; children, 10 cents.

EAST LAKE.

A Letter From an Old Chiltonite.

I will ask you to extend to me the courtesy of a few words through the columns of your interesting paper, which, on account of its pure and interesting reading, ought to be a household companion of every citizen of Chilton county. Then, too, the paper has manifested such an interest in the people and affairs of the county that it ought to be a welcome guest in every home. I love the paper because of what it has done for the people

Chilton county has been my home for 42 years, and it is but natural I should love every section of dear old place and all of its people

When I left there to make home at East Lake I felt that I leaving hundreds of sincere friends and companions behind me. Now them will be forgotten, and I that I may always hold a warm in the hearts of my boyhood

I want to congratulate Chilton county upon having a clean-cut ocratic paper. It is what we needed all these days, and I sincerely hope that our people will rally to support of The Press and keep the tidal wave of success.

Well, now, as to East Lake: a fine place. It has some of the people in the world living here. I am perfectly satisfied to be counted among its citizenship, yet I can't feel that it is my home.

Every path in Chilton is dear to heart. I recall the days of my childhood and young manhood in Chilton and I feel that, though I may be so pleasantly situated elsewhere, after all there is "no place like home" and to me Chilton will always be home.

With best wishes for The Press and the people of my home county, I am yours. J. P. PARRISH.

EAST PLANTERSVILLE.

Hog-killing is the order of the day in our section, and I am glad to report that most of the farmers will save enough meat for the entire year. And, to add to this, they have corn enough gathered to supply their demands for the next twelve months. The farmers of south Chilton are men who have learned to live at home.

Messrs. John T. Moore and Gordon Jones went squirrel hunting last Saturday afternoon. They returned elated over their success, having bagged three squirrels and a rabbit. They also had a glimpse of a wild hog, but did not get near enough to kill it.

Miss Minnie Hatton and Mr. John Moore attended the Teachers' Institute at Mt. Nebo last Friday and Saturday, and report having heard a number of fine speeches and papers. The dinner, too, they say, was most bountiful and appetizing.

Listen for wedding bells! We hear that Miss Lula Lavender is to be married on Christmas day, but the name of the groom is kept a secret. Guess we could find out by writing to Mr. Trell Moore.

Mr. Jesse Jones has made quite an addition to his home, having erected a new gallery and other improvements are going forward on this commodious home.

Mr. John Jones has been quite sick for the past few days, but we are glad to report that he is now rapidly improving.

Mr. Oscar Weaver and Miss Lula Wright were happily united in wedlock on December 4th. We extend our hearty congratulations to each of them.

Mr. Walter Herrod, who carries the mail for Uncle Sam, always wears the smile that will not fade.

CANDICE.

COOPER.

As we appreciate the value of your most excellent paper in our section—as, of course, the entire county does, for that matter—I am going to ask for just a small space to write a few lines from our immediate neighborhood.

As all the correspondents start out with a statement about the health of the community, permit me to say that we are enjoying most excellent health at this time.

SUPPOSE YOU FIGURE THIS OUT

Now Hurry, Hurry, Hurry, Hurry.

Can you prove that you ought to buy a wedding present somewhere else? Can you prove that you ought to buy a Christmas present somewhere else? My opinion is that if I loved my friends at all I would think enough of them to give them something nice, and, if we mistake not, you are the same way, hence we are going to make a few suggestions that will enable you to make glad the hearts of your friends and loved ones at Christmas time and on wedding days.

A sweet little ring for the baby; a sweet little locket or necklace for the daughter. A DOLLAR WATCH for the boy. A nice bracelet, set signet or band ring for the young girl, or, if you prefer, get her a locket, a silver purse, a necklace and locket with her monogram engraved thereon. Surprise your husband or friend with a pair of link cuff buttons, a stick pin or a tie clasp. Delight the heart of your girl with a diamond ring—we have them in all prices from ten dollars up.

If you do not wish to invest in diamonds buy her a handsome signet or set ring—just the thing for Christmas.

FOR WEDDING PRESENTS

We have an elegant selection of Cut Glass, Silver Ware, Carving Sets. Nothing is more appropriate and nothing would be appreciated more.

Again asking for a share of your patronage at the place where your money counts and where we do engraving FREE of cost to those who purchase from us, and wishing each and all of you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, I am, yours for low prices and high quality.

NOTICE.

Have you seen Higgins', the JEWeler's place lately? It's a beauty. Buy your Christmas presents from Higgins' Jewelry Store, the place where goods are sold under a strict guarantee. tf

IF YOU ARE WANTING A MONUMENT READ THIS.

In buying a monument to mark the last resting place of your dear one, you want to know that it will stand exposure to the elements; that it will not discolor, disintergrate or decay.

North Georgia marble meets these requirements.

Under examination with powerful glasses magnifying 150 diameters, this stone is seen to be composed entirely of crystals, with no openings for the absorption or retention of moisture.

This agrees with the results from the tests made by eminent chemists; therefore, for strength, durability, brilliancy and permanency of color, it stands second to none.

Close attention to details; the cutting, carving, polishing and clean, clear-cut lettering distinguishes our work at a glance.

We have in stock, or can build anything you want on short notice.

A suitable footstone is sent with each monument, but for a limited time we will send a marble vase eight inches by eight inches, and a marble pedestal with the initial letters or the word "Father" or "Mother" in place of ordinary foot stone with each single order for $100.00.

You will find our prices right. Drop me a card which will bring me to your home when you can see and compare our goods and prices with others, or when in town call at the White Barber Shop.

I have just erected one for the Clanton Camp W. O. W. in the Clanton cemetery. Stop and see it.

Remember "procastination is the thief of time."

Finds No Hymns for Men.

The Rev. Dr. William E. Barton of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, has discovered that there are no hymns for men in the hymn books. "In looking over the hymnals for hymns that would be suitable to go with a sermon on Christian Manhood" he said, "I found material about 'Mother's Bible,' 'Mother's Prayer,' 'Mothers in Heaven,' but so far as men are concerned either the fathers of the church had no religion or the writers of hymns have not discovered it."—Los Angeles Examiner.

STUDY OF CRIMINALS

Bavarian State's Attorney Writes Article on Juvenile Courts.

Munich Prosecutor Finds Less Than 500 Youthful Offenses In One Year Among More Than 600,000 People.

New York.—States Attorney Rupprecht of Munich, Bavaria, has written an article for the Munchener Medizinische Wochenschrift on juvenile courts and the study of the juvenile delinquent as the result of his experiences as a practitioner in the children's court in Munich, concerning which the Medical Record says:

"One result of the establishment of children's courts should be a more intelligent study of the juvenile delinquent. The boy criminal differs radically from the girl offender. Youthful offenders differ from adults. The children also differ, as to the relative frequency of offenses, according as they dwell in agricultural, manufacturing or commercial communities.

"In that city (Munich) the children's court takes cognizance of all offenders between the ages of thirteen and eighteen, inclusive. The lad or girl of healthy stock must at this period be regarded as potentially a criminal, because character and will are undeveloped, and experience has not yet had its innings. Such must not be confounded with defectives.

"Munich has but a small contingent of youthful criminals. In a population of nearly 600,000 there are less than five hundred serious offenses a year committed by juveniles. Petty offenses multiply this five fold, but with these we are not concerned.

"Theft is the great offense of youth. It overshadows all others so far that the latter appear almost freakish. The boy steals in an unpremeditated fashion, while the girl has a plan. Boys tend to steal 'junk'—not to sell, but for making playthings. Girls tend to appropriate cosmetic articles.

"We have heard much as to moving picture shows tempting boys to pattern after burglars and highwaymen. This theoretical position may be quite offset by the actual knowledge that in Munich boys steal to be able to visit these entertainments, which, for all we know, may be highly moral. The temptation is so strong that even a 'good' boy may pilfer the price of the entertainment. He will do as much to get hold of a Nick Carter or Sherlock Holmes story.

"The boys in Munich also steal in connection with deep laid plans for visiting the frontier and fighting savages. But the Bavarian youth must be much more long headed than the Anglo-Saxon in this respect, for he usually steals a horse and firearms before sallying forth. He robs the family strong box for the sinews of war.

"Girls sometimes steal to make a present to a favorite school teacher. One took the flowers off a grave for this purpose.

"When caught in the act of a theft a boy usually confesses, repents and refuses to betray his associates. A girl lies until the last minute, and then endeavors to throw the blame on some one else. Boys almost always rob in bands; girls usually act alone.

"A boy seldom robs his employer, but some outsider; the reverse is the case with girls, who, since they pilfer cosmetics, adornments, etc., must almost necessarily rob their mistresses.

"The chief value of Rupprecht's study is that it deals with normal subjects, the policies advisable in dealing with whom have hitherto received comparatively little attention."

CHICAGO'S MONUMENT TO GOETHE

THE GOETHE MEMORIAL

CHICAGO.—Preparations for the erection of the memorial to the poet Goethe in this city are progressing, and art lovers are congratulating themselves on the fact that Chicago is to have a monument that is at once unique and artistic in design. The model selected was the work of Prof. Hermann Hahn of Munich. It is surmounted by an ideal figure of Youth, and bears a portrait of the poet in relief.

IGNORANCE OF LAWS

Much Money Lost Through Carelessness in Using Coins.

Jewelers Guilty Every Day of Committing Criminal Offense In Filing One Side of Coin Smooth—Other Offenses.

Chicago.—Thousands of dollars are lost yearly by big firms through ignorance or carelessness in observing the federal laws governing abuse of coins.

Just lately in Chicago a piano company came to grief in this way. Had they asked the proper authorities (the information would have been furnished gratis) or had they looked up the law they would have found in Section 165, public act No. 350, these words:

"Whoever fraudulently, by any art, way or means shall deface, mutilate, impair, diminish, falsify or lighten . . . the gold or silver coins which have been or which may hereafter be coined in the mint of the United States . . . shall be fined not more than $2,000 and imprisonment of not more than five years."

Much trouble and expense would have been saved the firm and the government had the law only been read.

It all happened in this way: Some clever advertiser conceived the idea of an "ad" of metal just the size of a dime, with the wording and printing placed in such a way that at first glance it would appear as a dime The idea was cleverly executed. A fair imitation of the head of Liberty was on one side and the advertisement on the other. The number was placed where the date on a dime is and the first glance certainly impressed one as the real coin. The other side had a sheaf of wheat and in the center the words "On Time."

The firm had no desire to defraud the public. But unscrupulous people who had access to them did. Several waiters at a summer park lost money by accepting the advertisement for real money, chewing gum machines were filled with them and at last the secret service learned how matters were and began an investigation.

There were 150,000 of the metals confiscated. Some stray ones, however, were in circulation and it took almost a year to "hunt them down."

Jewelers are guilty every day of committing a criminal offense. Every day some one of them lays himself liable to the law. According to the ordinance quoted above, to mutilate money is an offense in the eyes of the law. Jewelers file one side of a coin smooth and monogram it. The other side is perfectly good. Pins, bracelets, lockets and numerous other things are made. The owner never means to use the article for money. But some one gets hold of the pin or locket. He thinks the money would be more useful and so passes the coin with the pin or ring pulled off and the good side up.

To "change the complexion" of a coin also is an offense. That means to dip silver in gold. Only a few days ago a "lot" of shirt sets were confiscated and sent to Washington. The sets were made of Panama halfpennies gilded. Carelessness of the law again.

The only kind of coin that can be worn is that so completely mutilated that there can be no chance at all of passing it; for example, the filigreed dimes that the Mexicans make.

CHINESE SAILORS FEED FISH

Crew of Steamer Chatham Throw Food Overboard for Member Lost by Drowning.

Boston.—So that their drowned brother might not feel the pangs of hunger while on the spiritual highroad to the other world, 23 Chinese sailors, comprising the crew of the British steamer Chatham, which reached Boston the other day from the west coast of South America, threw rice and other foodstuffs into the sea all the way from off the coast of Brazil to Boston lightship. Li Chow was the late lamented. Chow fell overboard while engaged in boat drill when the steamer was off the coast of Brazil. The Chatham was stopped and lifeboats launched, but before the speediest of them got within twenty feet of Chow he disappeared beneath the waves. Almost immediately after the steamer resumed her way the rest of the Chinese on board began stinting themselves and casting overboard what they saved from their own fare so that Chow might not go hungry.

That the Chatham encountered severe weather in her 10,000-mile journey was amply testified to by damaged deck fittings and smashed deck houses. The steamer was very hard hit when passing through the Straits of Michigan, sustaining most of the damage at that period. She was caught in a blizzard that kicked up waves, which in washing over her decks tore up steampipes and washed all movable objects overboard. The steamer's hospital was smashed in by one comber and several of the crew had to cling with all their might lest they be carried overboard by the receding water. Throughout most of the passage from Chile to Magellan the steamer was covered with ice and snow, winter weather prevailing.

The Chatham started from Junin, Chile, on August 22, and called at five ports while en route. At Antofagasta she took on 2,010 tons of silver ore, valued at $500,000, and thus her cargo was one of the most valuable ever brought to Boston from South America.

COWS IN HILARIOUS FROLIC

Make Bacchanalian Raid on Cider Mill, Easily Accumulating Joyous Old Jag.

Rockaburg, N. J.—When the workers at the Warren county cider mill, near here, went home the other day at noon they left the trough of apple mash uncovered, with the result that a herd of ten cows from an adjoining farm, wandering in from the inclosure, ate most of it. Farmhands were attracted to the place a short time later.

The cows were frisking about, kicking into the air and assuming attitudes that in a human being would have been described as hilarious. Puzzled at these antics, the farmers became worried when one after another of the cows sank to the ground. Believing the prevalent epidemic of hog cholera had reached the supposed immune cows, they summoned a veterinarian, whose diagnosis relieved the anxiety of the situation.

"Just a Jersey cider jag of unusual proportions," said his verdict. The cows' heads were bathed in ice water and in a short time they recovered their senses, which they have retained till now. Something has disagreed with the cows, however, and they are not giving down their usual quantity of milk.

SILK FARM STARTED IN U. S.

Syrian Is Raising Worms and Will Erect Looms in Louisiana—First In South.

New Orleans.—An experiment in silk culture which is watched with interest by the United States department of agriculture as well as the silk industry at large has been started by a Syrian, Kalil Joseph, near Picayune, La., about 72 miles from New Orleans.

Mr. Joseph has raised many thousands of silk worms from eggs hatched on a farm two miles from Picayune. He says Picayune is an ideal section for silk culture on account of the numbers of wild mulberry trees there. The silk made from the cocoons is as fine a quality as any made in Syria, which is famous for its silk worm farms.

Mr. Joseph has formed a company capitalized at $100,000, and will erect looms and handle the silk in much the same way as it is manufactured in the great silk centers. The officers of the company are: Kalil Joseph, president; Elias Saik, vice-president; W. A. Stockstill, secretary, and Charles Marcello, treasurer.

The Kalil plant will be the first towards silk farm in the south, and the factory will be the first in the country where the raw silk is transformed into the finished product at the same place where the silk is spun from the cocoons.

The Human Heart

The heart is a wonderful double pump, through the action of which the blood stream is kept sweeping round and round through the body at the rate of seven miles an hour. "Remember this, that our bodies will not stand the strain of over-work without good, pure blood any more than the engine can run smoothly without oil." After many years of study in the active practice of medicine, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that when the stomach was out of order, the blood impure and there were symptoms of general breakdown, a tonic made of the glyceric extract of certain roots was the best corrective. This he called

Being made without alcohol, this "Medical Discovery" helps the stomach assimilate the food, thereby curing dyspepsia. It is especially adapted to diseases attended with excessive tissue waste, notably in convalescence from wasting fevers, for thin-blooded people and those who are always "catching cold."

Shaking! Aching!! Shivering!!! Quivering!!

THAT'S malaria. Malaria is murderous. It kills the vital powers. To cure malaria you must do more than stop the shaking and aching. You must stamp out the last spark of disease and put back into the body the strength and vigor that disease has destroyed.

OXIDINE

—a bottle proves

does this so quickly and surely that it stands alone among malaria medicines as a perfect cure. It drives out Chills and Fever, and then begins its tonic action, rebuilding and revitalizing the entire system.

The tonic body-building properties of OXIDINE make it the most effectual of all remedies for disorders of Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels when these organs are failing in their functions.

If you want to cure malaria, get OXIDINE. If you are weak, get OXIDINE and be strong.

EAGER TO WORK, Health Regained by Right Food.

The average healthy man or woman is usually eager to be busy at some useful task or employment.

But let dyspepsia or indigestion get hold of one, and all endeavor becomes a burden.

"A year ago, after recovering from an operation," writes a Michigan lady, "my stomach and nerves began to give me much trouble.

"At times my appetite was voracious, but when indulged, indigestion followed. Other times I had no appetite whatever. The food I took did not nourish me and I grew weaker than ever.

"I lost interest in everything and wanted to be alone. I had always had good nerves, but now the slightest trifle would upset me and bring on a violent headache. Walking among the room was an effort and prescribed exercise was out of the question.

"I had been Grape-Nuts advertised, but did not believe what I read at the time. At last when it seemed as if I was literally starving, I began to eat Grape-Nuts.

"I had not been able to work for a year, but now after two months on Grape-Nuts I am eager to be at work again. My stomach gives me no trouble now, my nerves are steady as ever, and interest in life and ambition have come back with the return to health."

HAT FACING IS DIFFICULT

Few Words on Subject That Causes Amateur Milliner Much Anxiety.

Nothing is more difficult to the amateur milliner than the facing of a hat—and nowadays every hat is faced, usually with silk or satin. A few words on the subject will not, therefore, come amiss.

Cut from tissue paper a pattern that is rather larger than your required size, and fold and crease it until it exactly fits the hat brim. Then cut out your velvet or satin form and baste in place. Always plenty of basting—remember that.

Then turn in the outer edge, baste it down and blind stitch it. Use tiny stitches and leave absolutely no gape. The silk facing may be plaited into shape, instead, and fastened down by a cord or braid or a velvet binding. The lace facings should be shirred around the crown, very full, to allow for the difference of circumference with the outer edge.

Even hat facings are veiled nowadays—tulle and chiffon over silk are frequently seen. Use extreme care, however, and even this delicate work will go off well.

Barbaric Dress of Today.

Perhaps the barbaric splendor with which we dress today asserts itself most in the belt, where large cameos and coral are introduced. Indeed, coral is very much to the fore just now in the way of ornaments. It is a color, too, which goes well with black.

Iridescent materials have found their way even to tailor-made gowns, and the multi-colored embroideries which savor of the moyen age are very frequently introduced, so that they accord in tint and in style with the ornaments worn. These barbaric belts are rivals to the bavarian, sometimes called venetian, belts, formed of panne velvet, with deep points in front and plenty of boning.

Chenille Scarfs.

New scarfs that should make their wearers indifferent to any degree of cold less severe than that of the Arctic are of chenille. They come in navy blue, old blue, amethyst and other fashionable shades, have chenille fringes and are further adorned with Persian borders. They sell at from $14.75 to $19.50.

PERFUME FAVORED BY QUEENS

Royal Family of England Remain Faithful to "Ess Bouquet"—Czarina Is Fond of White Violet.

Queen Mary is not a lover of perfume. She uses eau de cologne occasionally, but avoids scents as much as possible. A west end chemist told the writer recently that neither is Queen Alexandra very fond of perfumes, although she remains faithful to the "Ess Bouquet," which has been in use by the royal family of England since 1832. This perfume is composed of amber mixed with the essence of roses, violets, jasmine, orange flowers and lavender.

On the other hand the czarina is passionately fond of perfume. Her apartments in the royal palace are daily sprayed with essences of lilac, jasmine, and white violet. Her majesty's favorite essence is violet, and for several weeks in the early spring hundreds of women and girls may be seen at Grasse gathering the blossoms from which the czarina's perfume is made. The finished product is tested, bottle by bottle, at the St. Petersburg Academy of Chemistry before being sent to the imperial store.

The Queen Mother of Spain uses as perfume eau d'espagne, manufactured in Madrid, and also obtains a perfume for her toilet from Paris. Its composition is a secret which the perfumer only half discloses. "It is made," he says, "of rosewater, cocoanut oil, and—the rest is a mystery."

The young queen of Holland is a great believer in the virtues of eau de cologne; while "Carmen Sylva," queen of Roumania, uses a special perfume made from the finest herbs, which she says "is the best tonic for the skin she has yet discovered."

SAVED OLD LADY'S HAIR

"My mother used to have a very bad humor on her head which the doctors called an eczema, and for it I had two different doctors. Her head was very sore and her hair nearly all fell out in spite of what they both did. One day her niece came in and they were speaking of how her hair was falling out and the doctors did it no good. She says, 'Aunt, why don't you try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment?' Mother did and they helped her. In six months' time the itching, burning and scalding of her head was over and her hair began growing. Today she feels much in debt to Cuticura Soap and Ointment for the fine head of hair she has for an old lady of seventy-four.

"My own case was an eczema in my feet. As soon as the cold weather came my feet would itch and burn and then they would crack open and bleed. Then I thought I would flee to my mother's friends, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I did for four or five winters, and now my feet are as smooth as any one's. Ellsworth Dunham, Hiram, Me., Sept. 30, 1909."

Literary Accuracy.

"You write of your hero as stealing home in the darkness," said the editor.

"Yes," replied the author.

"Well, you ought to know better than that. He couldn't steal home in the dark. If it was dark enough to be worth noticing the game would have been called."

How It Happened.

He was limping down the street with one arm in a sling and both eyes in mourning.

"What's the matter?" queried a friend. "Automobile accident?"

"No," replied the other, sadly. "I met a man who couldn't take a joke."

TWO WORLD FAMED GRANNIES

One of These Talented Women Is Sarah Bernhardt and the Other Ellen Terry.

Two famous grandmothers are distinguished visitors of this country. Referring to these talented ladies the Rochester Post Express says: "One of the grandmothers is Mme. Sarah Bernhardt; the other is Ellen Terry. Both actresses have reached an age when it is permissible to retire from active life; but the French actress is said to be as energetic as a woman half her age, while Ellen Terry is declared to be as young as ever she was in the palmy days when she and Henry Irving ruled the theatrical world of England. Miss Terry has retired from the stage so far as acting is concerned, and has taken to lecturing on Shakespeare's heroines. And who could do better than she who has played so many of the womanly women of the great dramatist? Readers of her breezy biography know what she thinks of Portia, Beatrice, Voila, Rosaland and other famous women of the tragedies and comedies, but no printed page could charm as does the wonderfully expressive features and the velvet voice of the greatest living English-speaking actress."

Why Do They?

Why women like the baldheaded man it is somewhat difficult to define. It may be because he appears to be:

Thoughtful and kind.

Trustworthy and confiding. Whimsical. Past the follies and frivolities of youth.

Usually successful.

A man of property.

Opinions why women like the baldheaded man obtained by the Daily Mirror are as follows:

He is not silly like young men.

He accepts refusals of marriage so nicely that one is sorry one did not accept him.

The bald patch looks so clean and nice. One would like to kiss it.

A doctor welcomes baldness when it comes to him, as it is a sign of sedateness and dignified learning, which invariably increases his practise.

Russia's Growing Population.

This year's census of the Russian empire adds another five millions to the population as enumerated in 1908. The czar's subjects now number 160,000,000 and increase every year by 2,500,000 despite wars, epidemics and internal disturbances. As there is no lack of cultivated soil in Russia there seems no reason why this big annual increase should not continue.

Why Kick?

Louis Wisna, the Newark artist, wore a gloomy look on his usually cheerful face.

"It has just struck me," he said to Charles Strasse, "that my shoes don't cost me as much as my youngster's."

"Then what are you complaining about?" asked Strasse.

BOYS' SHOES, $2.00, $2.50 AND $3.00. BEST IN THE WORLD.

The beneficial free hides, which apply principally to sole leather, and the reduced tariff on sole leather, now enables me to give the wearer more value for his money, better and longer wearing $3, $3.50 and $4 shoes than I could give him previous to the tariff revision.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, the superior workmanship and the high grade leathers used, you would then understand why Dollar for Dollar I Guarantee My Shoes to hold their shape, look and fit better and wear longer than any other $3.00, $3.50 or $4.00 shoes you can buy.

President W. L. Douglas Shoe Co.

Do you realize that my shoes have been the standard for over 30 years; that I make and sell more $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 shoes than any other manufacturer in the United States? Quality counts. It has made W. L. Douglas shoes a household word everywhere.

SECRET REPORT ON ARMY.

Secretary of War Dickinson Sends a Sensational Document to the House.

Washington.—A sensational report rom the war department showing ow the country was inadequately rotected against invasion from for- gn governments was sent to the ouse, and, after a number of confer- ices and hurried telephone mes- ges, was returned to the war de- rtment on the ground that the ouse could not receive a secret re- ort.

With 391 members of that body, the ontents of the report would stand a hance of leaking out to the public.

Members who sa wthe document be- ore its withdrawal say it is a report f Secretary Dickinson; points out hat the country is wholly unprepar- d; that there is a woeful inadequacy f men, of guns and of ammunition; hat the army should be reorganized, nd that a council of national de- nse, with the secretary of war at s head, should be created.

The report of General Wood, which was marked "confidential," dealt with these matters and gave official admis- sion to matters that are of more or less common knowledge among army and navy experts in this country and abroad. In fact, the real significance of the document is that it makes offi- cial admissions of these conditions.

General Wood, in his testimony be- fore the house military committee, furnished some of the most interest- ing information ever given before that body. He discussed the whole subject of national defense, told where the weak points lay, and laid particu- lar emphasis on the possibility of at- tack from the Orient. He did not give vent to any alarmist views as to danger of any immediate invasion, but talked confidentially of the need f changes as prudent and valuable o guard against trouble from Japan China.

ROOSEVELT A RADICAL.

Ex-President Makes First Speech Since Recent Elections.

New Haven, Conn.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, as the guest of the cham- ber of commerce at its annual ban- quet, made his first public address since the recent elections. He was cordially greeted by a gathring of up- wards of six hundrd men, representa- tives of the business and commercial interests and the professions of the state.

Colonel Roosevelt was greeted with cheers, which lasted fully a minute, when he rose to speak.

"It seems to me that nothing could be a better augury of the future of this country," he said, "than that a Republican president should appoint an ex-Confederate of the opposite po- litical faith chief justice of the Unit- ed States Supreme court and receive the unanimous applause of his coun- trymen.

"I am a radical, but I am a radical who most earnestly desires to see a radical program carried out by con- servatives. I wish to see great indus- trial reforms carried out, not by the men who will profit by them, but by the men who lose by them; by just such men as you around me. I believe most emphatically in the progress which shall be sane."

TEN MILLIONS FOR PEACE

FUND IS TO BE USED TO ESTAB- LISH WORLD PEACE BY AB- OLITION OF WAR.

Twenty-Seven Trustees Named by Andrew Carnegie to Care for the Fund.

Washington.—Surrounded by 27 trustees of his choosing, comprising former cabinet members, ex-ambassa- dors, college professors, lawyers and educators, Andrew Carnegie transfer- red $10,000,000 in 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds, valued at $11,500,000, to be devoted primarily to the es- tablishment of universal peace by the abolition of war between nations and such friction as may impair "the prog- ress and happiness of man."

When wars between nations shall have ceased, the fund is to be applied to such altruistic purposes as will "best help man in his glorious ascent onward and upward," by the banish- ment of the "most degrading evil or evils" then harassing mankind.

WHITES AND NEGROES FIGHT

Night Riders at Milner, Georgia, Have Been Whipping Blacks.

Barnesville, Ga.—Grave trouble be- tween the races is reported in the vi- cinity of Milner, a small town about five miles north of here.

For some weeks, it is alleged that night riders have been going about in that section whipping negroes. It is alleged that many negroes have been maltreated, and the feeling on the part of the negroes became very bit- ter. It is said the negroes organized for defense when the night riders vis- ited the home of Will Atwater, a ne- gro, for the purpose of whpping him, they met with resistance. A fight en- sued, in which many shots were fired, Will Atwater being fatally wounded, and a white man, who was with the night riders, also being probably fa- tally shot.

CHURCH GETS EDDY FORTUNE

George W. Glover and Children Get $10,000 Each.

Concord, N. H.—"For the purpose of more effectually promoting and ex- tending the religion of Christian Sci- ence as taught by me," Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, in her will filed here, made the mother church of Boston her residuary legatee, after various other bequests are paid.

Among these other bequests is one of $10,000 to the Christian Science board of directors, to be held in trust to provide free instructions for indi- gent Christian Scientists.

Boll Weevil Heads for Georgia.

Montgomery, Ala.—Thorough in- spection of territory in southeast Ala- bama by bool weevil experts and dem- onstration agents has shown the pest to have gained a much firmer foothold than at first supposed. Reports re- ceived by B. L. Moss, state agent of the government's demonstration farm work, led by Mr. Moss to predict that the weevil may reach the Georgia line by next year.

Confederate Monuments Discussed.

Washington.—To meet the objec- tions raised by many cemetery asso- ciations in the North against the erecting of small individual headstones to mark the graves of Confederate soldiers who died in Northern prisons, the senate committee on military af- fairs has indorsed a bill giving author- ity for the construction of large ma- sonry monuments, bearing bronze tab- lets with the names of the soldiers upon them. The committee recom- mends that the time allotted for mark- ing the graves be extended two years.

CHAMPION BOY CORN GROWERS OF SOUTH

ELEVEN SOUTHERN BOYS PRE- SENTED WITH DIPLOMAS IN WASHINGTON.

228 BUSHELS TO THE ACRE

The Boys Have Shown Old Farmers of the South How to Grow Corn.

Washington. — Eleven Southern boys, the champion corn growers out of 46,225 contestants, none of them over 16 years of age, were presented diplomas of merit by the secretary of agriculture, and shook hands with the president of the United States. They have demonstrated that from 83 to 228 bushels of corn can be grown per acre in the South, whereas the average is now 14 to 20 bushels.

These eleven state prize winners posed for their photographs, each with an ear of corn in his hands. In the group was Joseph Stone of Centre, Jackson county, Georgia, who raised 102 5-8 bushels on his measur- ed acre at an expense of 29 cents a bushel. The champion of the group was a South Carolina boy, Jerry H. Moore of Winona, who raised 228 3-4 bushels at a cost of 43 cents per bushel. But the real first prize win- ner was Ira Smith of Silver, Ark., who raised 119 bushels at an outlay of 8 cents a bushel.

The lesson of seed selection, proper cultivation of the soil and proof that the present average per acre corn pro- duction in the South is unreasonably low was the object sought in the corn contest. The present trip of the state winners to Wasnington is the culmina- tion of their year's work. They are in charge of Prof. O. B. Martin, assistant to Dr. Seaman A. Knapp of the divis- ion of farm demonstration work.

Besides the trip to Washington for the state winners this year, prizes totalling $40,000 were given. This was not government money. Merchants, bankers and other public-spirited men in the South offered all sorts of things —cash, farm implements, trips, ponies, pigs, bicycles, watches and many oth- er things such as boys would work hardest for.

The boys studied seed selection in the winter, soil composition, fertil- izers and the circulars on the prepara- tion of the seed bed and subsequent cultivation which were mailed from the department. They plowed their ground from 8 to 16 inches deep, and cleaned stables and chicken houses for manure, and cleaned up the farm for wood ash and humus.

DIRECT VOTE FOR SENATORS

Constitutional Amendment is Favored by Senate Committee.

Washington.—By a vote of 2 to 1, a subcommittee of the senate commit- tee on judiciary authorized a favora- ble report on a resolution for a con- stitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

Southern senators in their discus- sion and votes will seek to guard the states in their right to restrict the suffrage as they choose within the limitations of the fifteenth amend- ment. A citizen's right to vote comes from the state, but if congress pro- vides for the election of United States senators, it may say who is entitled to vote in such elections.

This introduces elements of danger which will be readily recognized by those Southern states which have passed disfranchisement laws.

COTTON GINNERS REPORT.

Reports Indicate 99 Per Cent. of the Cotton Crop Ginned.

Memphis, Tenn.—According to the report of the National Ginners' asso- ciation, about 477,000 bales of cotton were ginned during the period from December 1 to December 13, compar- ed with 481,000 bales in 1909. The re- port states that the crop is 99 per cent. picked and 96 per cent. ginned.

The reports from ginners show that the ginning will be completed by Jan- uary 5. The report by states was:

Alabama 1,114,000, Arkansas 673,- 000, Florida 60,000, Oklahoma 861,000, South Carolina 1,089,000, Tennessee 265,000, Texas 3,863,000, various 64,- 000. Total 10,617,000.

Mine Explosion Kills 12.

Norton, Va.—As a result of an ex- plosion in the mines of the Bond Coal company at Greep, twelve men lost their lives. Thirteen were in the mines at the time of the explosion, and only two escaped, one of whom died shortly after being taken out. The explosion came without warning, and it is believed to have been caused by an accumulation of gas set off by "blowing" coal. The same mine, how- ever, had a similar explosion three years ago, in which six men were killed.

Death of Mrs. Oden.

On last Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock occurred the death of Mrs. Oden, the beloved wife of our fellow countryman, W. M. Oden.

Her death, though not unexpected, was none the less shocking and pain- ful to her loved ones.

Mrs. Oden was in the 47th year of her age, and for some years has been in wretched health. Though a great sufferer, she was a patient and hope- ful one.

The funeral services took place Wednesday morning at Mulberry, the old family burial ground. Mrs. Oden was a sister of our sheriff-elect, Hon. B. L. Jones, and of Messrs. B. E. and Crit Jones; besides these, a devoted husband and several children, Mrs. Oden leaves a host of relatives and friends to mourn her untimely death.

To the bereaved ones The Press extends heartfelt sympathy in this their sad hour.

SLINGING RED HOT RIVETS

Daily Show in Skyscraper That Is Be- ing Erected Attracts Crowds in New York.

At the northwest corner of Broad- way and Reads street, New York, they are erecting a new skyscraper. The ironworkers who are putting up the steel framework give a free show every day to people on Broadway by slinging red hot rivets.

The rivets are red hot when the slingers throw them and they can easily be followed by the eye, even though the ironworkers are working five or six stories in the air. The men who tend the furnace and heat the rivets have to keep moving lively to keep the riveters supplied with rivets. As soon as a rivet is red hot one of the furnace tenders removes it with a pair of long handled tongs. With a quick underhand sling he sends it flying through the air to another iron- worker 25 or 30 feet away, who catches it in a small keg. Then the receiver takes the rivet out with a pair of tongs and passes it over to the ironworker, who hammers it into place with the compressed air riveter.

From constant practise the men who sling the rivets are able to throw them from any position or to any reasonable distance or height without missing. They cannot afford to miss or the red hot rivets might drop down on some- body's head. It requires skill to sling the rivets. The man on the receiving end must be quick too if he wants to catch the rivets and he must have his nerve with him all the time, for usually he is sitting astride a steel beam perhaps 100 feet above the ground.

The Vociferated Phrase.

"You do not seem much impressed by fervent oratory."

"Nope," replied Farmer Corntossel. "Did you ever notice a poll parrot's vocabulary?"

"What has that to do with it?"

"The words a poll parrot picks up show that it's human nature to fre- quently be most emphatic when you're sayin' the wrong thing."

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.

In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.

In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.

In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.

We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.

But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.

The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.

Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.

Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.

They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries, Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

Good Jokes

INSPIRATION.

There were sounds of some one tramping over tin.

"Billy," called the wife of the popular author, "Billy, there is a burglar on the roof."

"Burglar on the roof?" repeated her husband, as he jumped out of bed. "Quick, Lucy, my pen and paper."

"What are you going to write, Billy? Don't you think you had better take your revolver and shoot the burglar?"

"Not until I run off a chapter entitled: 'Artless Archibald, the Aerial Appropriator.' Ten chances to one that burglar came in an airship, as there is no other way of getting on the roof. Business before pleasure, Lucy."

National Shortsightedness.

"In this country," said the sociologist, "everything possible is done to discourage people from marrying."

"How so?" inquired one of the listeners.

"You have to buy the marriage license, fee the preacher, the boys give you what they call a 'shivaree,' your friends throw old shoes at you, the newspapers print caricatures of you, life insurance agents hound you, you bump right up against the cost of living, and if you find you've made a mistake you have to go to no end of trouble to get a divorce."

A Last Year's One.

"Well, the oyster stew given at our church festival has been vindicated."

"How?"

"A man who ate some of it is dead of ptomaine poisoning, caused from eating oysters, according to the doctor."

"Well, good heavens, how does that vindicate the stew?"

"It proves that there was an oyster in it."

Pa's Ultimatum.

"Our Thursday, Saturday and Monday mornings' papers have checked up shy for the last three weks regularly."

"Do you suppose they are being stolen, pa?"

"I know Kitty's beau calls Wednesday, Friday and Sunday nights. I want him to go home earlier or to stop taking our paper with him."

NOBLE WOMAN.

Mrs. Brown—Only think, John! Mrs. Jones has left her drunken husband and gone home to her mother!

Mr. Brown (sighing)—Ah! A woman will do anything for a man who drinks.

Something to Live For.

Remarked a cheerful epicure,
"I sure would hate to die,
Before I'd fully fletcherized
This piece of pumpkin pie."

A Sure Way.

"How can we induce more women to wear hobble skirts?" queried the fashionable dressmaker.

"By inducing the legislature to pass a law prohibiting them," answered the mere man.

A Slight Elevation.

"He is very proud of his ancestors; in fact, says one of his ancestors was looked up to by a great many people."

"No doubt. I guess that happened on the day he was hanged."

Dangerous.

"Here, have a drink, old boy."

"Not today, thanks; I'm not armed."

"What has that to do with it?"

"You don't know what kind of animals chased me the last time I took a drink out of your flask."

How It Happened.

"He was certainly brave to crawl under the bed and engage in a life and death struggle with that burglar."

"When he crawled under the bed he thought the burglar was in the basement.'

Its Office.

"This cork is very tight in your brandy bottle. I can't budge it."

"Yes, that's the nature of cork. It was put there to keep the bottle's spirits from going down."

Evidently Not.

"I guess there are no milk wagons in Corea."

"Why not?"

"Because it is called 'The Land of the Morning Calm.'"

In the Backwoods.

"I see where a feller in Paris has writ a play all about chickens."

"Guess he's writ it for one of them barnstormin' towers you read about."

THE OUTLOOK.

He won a wager which was small,
The joy of triumph filled him then;
He could not understand at all
Why failure saddened other men.

A pretty woman gave him praise,
To him the future seemed aglow;
He could not understand the ways
Of men who clung to borrowed woe.

Lo, what a change is often wrought
Within a moment, O my friend;
He burned his finger and he thought
The world was coming to an end.

SEEKING REVENGE.

Weary—Oh! if I could only git me hands on de hobo dat put de "Timid invalid lady" sign on dis gate post!

Vain Girl.

Mary had a pretty foot
And Mary seemed to know it.
'Cause everywhere that Mary went
She tried her best to show it.

Blew Too Hard.

"Do you remember the fat man who used to live across the way and practise on a trombone every morning?"

"Yes."

"He's dead."

"Serves him right!"

"Oh, he wasn't murdered. He ruptured a blood vessel."

Duly Informed.

Child—Mamma, what is a common person?

Mother—Why, child, a common person it—is—well, it's a person that we do not associate with. Why do you ask?

Child—'Cause Mrs. Nextdoor said you was a common person.

No Venus.

Little Pitchers—I say, Miss Oldgirl, you ain't in the fire department, are you?

Miss Oldgirl—Certainly not, Tommy. What makes you ask such a question?

Little Pitchers—Because I heard brother Will say you was a false alarm.

Going the Pace.

"I understand they are up-to-date people?"

"Decidedly so. They stand off the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, so they can live continuously in an atmosphere of dust and gasoline."

Dodging.

"That fellow is a most remarkable runner."

"Who? Burroughs?"

"Yes. He's always running into debt and yet he's forever running away from the people to whom he is in debt."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Present Need.

"Ah!" said an enthusiastic admirer, "you will live in the hearts of your countrymen."

"Maybe so," answered the father of a new idea, "but the problem that confronts me now is how to pay the rent of a flat."

Quite Proper.

"I know a man highly respected in the community who married three women in one week."

"Good gracious! Who is he?"

"A minister."

SOMETHING COMING.

"Ah! the 'Black Hand!' That means somepin' orful's goin' to happen to me!"

There With the Goods.

Typhoid and pig-pens. They go together!

Talk waterworks and sewerage. Cry down pig pens and typhoid.

We have heard of a number of democrats who have paid poll taxes. Have you?

Cotton still holds is own despite the rear approach of the time when Miss Democracy takes the lead.

Clanton is soon to be visited by an expert veterinarian. Read his advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

Sewerage and waterworks would save the lives of at least five citizens annually in Clanton. Is it worth it?

Senator Johnston has introduced a bill looking to the settlement of this land and it has bright prospects of being passed.

Remember that Christmas is intended to commemorate the birth of the Christ. On that day be sober, charitable and kind, even as He was.

With Beveridge a back number in Indiana and Foss after Lodge with a sharp stick in the Bay State it looks rather gloomy for the Repubs of the leader class.

The Press Company is sending out this week to its shareholders certicates of stock that are beauties. Do you own any stock in Chilton's only newspaper?

The throwing open for settlement of seventy thousand or more acres of government land in the seventh and eighth districts of Alabama will give several hundred more young men an opportunity to become prize corn raisers.

We feel somewhat chesty over our last and the present edition of The Press. The many compliments we have received about those full-page advertisements and the reading matter in the paper has swelled our noggin somewhat.

If Uncle Sam and his navy grows into the next ten years proportionately to what he has accomplished in the past ten years the mother country will scarcely recognize her son as the youngster to whom, in 1776, she bade a heart-breaking adieu.

The legislature will have sufficient work to keep it busy and no time for indulging in frivolities. There's the educational bill, the bill to re-district the state, the convict bill and the liquor bill; all of these are going to call for sober, serious consideration.

Circumstantial evidence, when well "circumstanced," is convincing to a degree, but one little link in the chain weakens the entire testimony. An alibi not proven and circumstantial evidence not substantiated are tricky things in the hands of skillful attorneys when dealing with prejudiced people.

A little firecracker fired at random last Christmas broke a $20 plate-glass. A little firecracker fired at random this Christmas MAY break a $20,000 merchant, burn a sawmill plant, consume a school house, destroy a dwelling. We have no waterworks, boys; no fire company; no surplus merchants; no extra sawmills. Be careful!

The new political diversions of the state as proposed by Col. Sam Will John of Birmingham, while they may meet with the hearty approval of Jefferson county and some other favored sections, will not, we believe, be accepted to the rank and file of the voters of the state. Certain it is that Chilton county democrats will utter a vigorous protest. For years Chilton felt as if it had no inherent right to speak out in party councils, but that days has passed. Chilton "came back;" it demonstrated to the world the stuff of which it was made and just as she plumes herself for greater and grander things some of our political wise ones come along and attempt to clip her wings. And, not satisfied with merely clipping our wings, they propose to cut them to the quick. If we understand the game or the science or the sport of politics—put it as you please—it means a fair chance for all. At least democratic politics stand, or should stand, for that. Yet with the proposed classification Chilton county would have about as much change as the proverbial snow-ball.

We'd furnish the votes and dollars and Dallas or Lowndes or Perry would furnish the men to receive those votes. Come, Mr. Sam Will John, and run your lines again.

Put Chilton where geographically she belongs.

Give us a showing; infuse some hope into our tired hearts, check not our enthusiasm. The moment we begin to see the distant lights in the land of promise; send us not back into Egypt to feed upon locusts and husks.

Our representative, being a republican, can not do much for us, and probably will not care to help democrats, but we entertain the hope that there are democrats all over the state who will not take a hand in throttling a lusty youngster, who though he worshipped but little in the temple was all the while praying behind the pines and keeping his faith untarnished.

What seems to be careless indifference has taken hold of the citizenship of Clanton. Our people do not appear to realize what a fine town we have and what possibilities await us. We, apparently, are willing to "drift with the tide' or go into the eddies as the winds of good or evil fortune blow. To an outsider this has the earmarks of an aimless, happy-go-lucky existence—and it has that appearance to an insider also, if that insider would but stop and examine the condition which surround us. Some weeks ago our mayor resigned his office because of the fact that his personal affairs required all his time; since then the Press has called unceasingly for some one to announce for the office and outline a platform upon which he would go before the people.

The job seems to be one which no one will have. We realize that it is a thankless position; one which requires some skill to fill acceptably.

The position, at best, from a money point of view is worse than desirable, and, if that were the only thing to be taken into consideration the Press would utter no word of complaint, but there are many other things to be reckoned—things of vital importance to every citizen and especially to the property holders. Several names have been mentioned and for some reason fault has been found with each of them; yet the fault finders suggest no other names.

It looks as if they feel at perfect liberty to criticise those who are striving, to suggest what should, and what should not, be done and to assign motives to every one who undertakes the entanglement or improvement of public facilities or utilities. Nevertheless, when requested to mention the name of some one who will measure up to their ideals they back out with oh "'Anybody will suit me; I can stand it if the others can."

Now, we submit at the risk of unkind criticism, that this is not an evidence of good citizenship but a positive proof of selfish indifference.

If personal ends only were to be considered the Press would remain quiet, for with the others, we might manage to get along with anybody; that is, however, or ought to be, not only a secondary consideration but it should be the last of the secondary considerations.

If men were manufactured instead of made; if communities sprung up at the command of some goddess instead of by concert of action; if towns were builded on the initiative of one or two rather than by the co-operation of the many; if the women and children were not to be taken into consideration; if health and happiness, progress and prosperity counted for nothing; if the well favored are to take no account of the unfortunate; if every man is to live in his own castle as in feudal times—and care not for his more helpless neighbor—if in fact, Clantonites are to live, figuratively speaking, in a quart cup, when for the striving they might enjoy life in a bushel measure—then we are writing to no purpose.

But, we entirely mistake the philosophy of life, the path of happiness and the road to industrial and community wealth if this theory be true.

Towns sometimes profit by great conflagrations; they rise because of extreme epidemics, they flourish upon the death of its most esteemed.

We need not cite instances; they are too numerous to require citation to the student of history.

Many towns have grown into cities upon the proclamation of the death of its most prominent citizen. Supreme indifference never begot happiness, honor or thrift; careless citizenship never builded a town or erected a monument—except over self.

Clanton Needs.

A system of sewerage in keeping with the size of our town; she needs water works such as will not only protect our property, reduce our insurance tolls, but will safeguard the lives of our women and children by obviating the necessity for surface closets—breeding dens for typhus germs—she needs better school facilities. We have progressed wonderfully along this line, yet there is much room for improvement; she ought to have a town hall and a city jail; she should have better cemetery regulations. A people who do not care for and revere the Silent City of the Dead should remember that they, too, will some day be sojourners in that city. Clanton should have laws to make the tyrannical railroad recognize the sovereign voice of the people, notwithstanding the huge pile of capital stacked up behind it. And having these laws she should, like other towns, dare to enforce them by the election of men to office who will undertake to bring even the rich and the mighty to recognize those laws.

Clanton needs the enforcement of her sanitary and health laws, prohibiting the keeping of pig-pens in the city.

It is SOMEBODY'S duty to look after these things we are sure.

Clanton needs these things and then she needs

An Effective Vagrant Law

well enforced. A town hall and city jail would prove an effective and wholesome remedy for the vagrant evil.

A refusal to accept bond, by whomsoidlers at work during the day and furnish them a bunk in the jail at night would work wonders among the "depot gang." They are always there, but never busy; you can not hire one of them. They are always "just going to do a little job for another gentleman." A refusel to accept bond, by whomsoever made, would be found effective, also.

One reason—and its a potent reason too—why our business men will not assume the leadership, is that they get no encouragement, they get no salary, they get no thanks. Whatever is done is charged to personal aggrandizement, political preferment or local favoritism.

Each citizen feels that the macadamized road, the big water main, should start immediately in front of "his" place and unless the program is so devised and the plans so constructed he forthwith feels that ihs dignity is insulted and his importance overlooked.

The Press has three remedies to suggest, nay four. A gettogetherism is paramount. a willingness to concede that a starting point without regard to special locality or exalted personality is necessary; a desire for and willingness to co-operate and an insistent observance of formulated plans.

Along this line we would suggest: The placing of the salary of our mayor at a figure in keeping with the dignity of the office. This can consistently be done without the increase of license or tax burdens. The fixing of the marshal's salary at living wages and requiring him to attend to the duties of that office without the additional duty of becoming street builder and garbage remover.

The imposition (and collection) of a street tax. The clearing of the city of "loafers" or their enforced labor for the upbuilding of streets, sewerage, and water plants.

A drone is a hinderance in an active hive.

Clanton has forty "drones" at or near the depot thirty days each month. Some are white drones, some black and some opaque.

A Quietus

upon these, a place to stay at night that does not savor of home, a demonstration of the fact, without fear or favoritism, that Clanton is a "live hive" would make them depart or "get busy."

We have lived long enough under old principles. The world owes no man a living who will not work for it.

The fig tree was condemned not because it was not green and growing but because it bore no fruit. The man who uses our streets, spits upon our pavements, sulphurizes our atmosphere and lolls around, does nothing for the public good further than increase the census spasmodically and add to incentives for backward progressivenes is entitled to nothing.

The mayor, the marshal, the council are not to be blamed if these conditions obtain—the citizenship, as a whole is to be censured. Create the sentiment and the results will follow.

Again we say: We want a MAYOR!

EVERGREEN.

Dear Editor:

Just a few words, please.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. We have recently organized our classes; have the home department and cradle roll, and in a short time hope to have a teachers' training class.

Mr. W. T. Johnson returned Friday from a visit to relatives in Chambers county, where he went to be at the bedside of his brother, who is seriously ill.

Mr. J. G. Wood and daughter, Miss Margaret, and Mr. R. L. Duffey attended the teachers' institute at Mt. Nebo last week.

The wedding bells have been ringing about here, and from all indications will continue to ring.

Oh! Christmas is almost here, and I suppose every one is expecting a good time. I sincerely hope there will not be a sad heart in the county on that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Alston and family were visitors here last Sunday. While here they attended religious services and contributed greatly to the music on that occasion.

Our Literary Society is in a flourishing condition. Last week we held a most enjoyable meeting. The new officers elected for the ensuing year are: Mr. R. L. Duffey, president; Miss Bettie Gardner, secretary; Mr. Hiram Moore, treasurer; Misses Pearl Wood, Hilda Mae Johnson and Mr. Clifford Driver, program committee.

Our good friend, Mr. J. G. Woods, continues to suffer from a severe attack of rheumatism.

Mr. T. J. Williams and family have moved back to their home in our community.

Best wishes to The Press and its readers.

S. S. K.

COOPER'S CROSS-ROADS.

We wish in the beginning to thank you for the space in your last issue and to congratulate you upon the extraordinary edition which you sent out. We have heard many favorable comments in these parts.

Everything has been moving along nicely in our midst for the past week, though some have been annoyed by an unwelcome visitor in the person of Mr. Bad Cold. Hope Santa Claus will bring us all a cold extinguisher.

We regret to announce that Mrs. Luther Grant and son, Ralph, are quite ill. We seriously hope both will soon regain their health and strength.

Mrs. Tom Rockett has been quite ill recently, but is now fast recovering.

Mr. P. O. Barrett has been suffering quite a little the past few days with a bad tooth. He has had an attack of the big head for a short while, but we are glad to report that he has now gotten over that.

The Sunday school at Chestnut was not so well attended last Sunday as usual, owing to bad weather. However, those who were there enjoyed being present. The superintendent requests all to be present next Sunday.

The teachers' meeting last Friday night was enjoyed by all the teachers. Regrets are expressed that they had not organized before. The next meeting takes place Wednesday night at the home of Mr. Dock Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Connell were visitors to our community last Sunday, having spent the day with the family of Mr. W. F. Jones.

Mr. Abner Cox spent a few days last week with relatives in Autauga county.

ELIAS BURK.

MACEDONIA.

Our little corner over here seems to be joyously moving along.

Court is passed, and no one was molested.

We are sorry of the intelligence of Mrs. J. D. Smith being quite sick.

Miss Beulah Parrish, of Rockford, is the charming guest of Miss Della Gandy this week.

Miss Lishie Traywick, of this place, and Mr. J. M. Cooper, of Marble Valley, were happily married on the 14th inst. Our best wishes attend them through life.

Prof. C. C. King visited Union Grove last week, and reported the time well spent.

The writer, Mrs. Smith and the children spent last week near Rockford, Ala., viewing the scenes of childhood days of the former.

Mr. R. F. Bates has moved his family to Clanton, where he means to educate his children. We regret to lose them.

Look out, boys! Wedding garments are being tacked together. There will be something doing.

E. L. S.

NEWS OF MOUNTAIN CREEK.

A party of young people of this place and Marbury were royally entertained by Miss Mary Henderson Thursday night. The hostess was never more charming than on this enjoyable occasion. Games were played, after which delightful refreshments were daintily served by Miss Irma Henderson. Those present were: Misses Kathleen Snyder, Estelle Southworth, Law, Avison, Coburn, Mary Henderson, Irma Henderson, and Messrs. Barney M. Roberts, Guy A. Ligon, Lawrence Z. Chestnut, W. F. Woodley, Howard Laney, Tom Snyder and P. P. Rudder.

Mr. Will Henderson, of Jemison, spent Sunday visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. Tunney Maddox, our popular druggist, made a flying trip to Montgomery last week.

Mrs. E. V. Speer has returned from a visit to Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. McSwain have moved to Clanton.

Beaucat Wilson spent Sunday with relatives about three miles from here.

Mr. Jim Harris, of Harris Bros., returned last week from Montgomery, where he bought an extensive line of Christmas goods.

Mr. F. S. Snyder, of Montgomery, is spending several weeks with his relatives at Marbury.

Mr. Howard Laney, of Union Springs, is here on a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. E. S. Thornton was in Montgomery last week.

A movement is on foot to incorporate Mountain Creek. It is meeting with hearty approval from all our citizens, and it seems to be very evident that it will be put through.

The Mountain Creekers anticipate a quiet, but very enjoyable Christmas, and hope the same for The Press and its staff.

MAPLESVILLE.

I must say it is most as hard for me to make this attempt as it was when Mr. T. C. Perry proposed to his dress shop girl.

Miss Annie May Friday has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Perry.

Mr. David Goff, of Plantersville, was a visitor to our town Sunday.

The entertainment at Miss Sallie Ramsey's Saturday night was much enjoyed by those present. One young man especially had a delightful time on his way to Mr. Foshee's, from what the writer learns.

Mr. Clyde Culver and his best girl were all smiles Sunday night.

Mr. Howard Tucker says he is expecting Santa this year, but I guess he will be disappointed, as Santa does not visit boys over 18.

We are sorry to say that Mrs. Foshee does not improve. We all hope she will soon regain her strength.

Mr. J. J. Atchison called upon a certain young lady Sunday night, and we all know that she was highly entertained.

Wishing all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year,

VIOLET.

ANOTHER CHILTON COUNTY CITIZEN CONVINCED.

Another of our citizens was convinced that Dr. Higgins, of Clanton, understands thoroughly the human eye. A few days since a certain citizen came into Dr. Higgins to have his eyes examined, and upon examination Dr. Higgins diagnosed the case as an excessive use of tobacco or other toxicants (Toxic Ampliopia), destroying the eyesight.

This patient was somewhat dissatisfied with Dr. Higgins' diagnosis, and so went to Atlanta to consult Dr. Calhoun, Georgia's famous eye specialist. After paying his fare to Atlanta and other incidental expenses, this same citizen returned to Clanton and, walking into Dr. Higgins' office, was asked by the doctor what could be done for him. "Nothing," said the gentleman. "I merely called to congratulate you upon your perfect understanding of my case and of the human eye generally. I went to Atlanta and consulted with Dr. Calhoun; he told me that your diagnosis of my case was entirely correct, and I thought that, being a young man, you would appreciate knowing that your understanding of the science of the eye is equally as great as that of the noted specialists elsewhere. You are on the right road, and I wish to add my endorsement and encouragement to those you have already received."

Now, after reading the above and many other congratulations extended to Dr. Higgins, such as the kindly remarks of Mrs. J. M. Pool near Montevallo, who says she would not take $50 for a pair of $4 glasses fitted by Dr. Higgins; the letter of recommendation by Judge Reynolds, recently published; the letter of Mr. Moore, Verbena, Route 2, and of Mr. Wells, Verbena, Route 2, can there be any doubt as to the ability of Dr. Higgins to fit glasses to any eye? By calling at Dr. Higgins' office you can get the address of more than 140 others who have been fitted with glasses, and who are entirely satisfied with the treatment Dr. Higgins has given them, feeling that they have been greatly benefited.

If, however, you are not satisfied then, pay your fare to Atlanta and consult Georgia's great specialist, and after returning let Dr. Higgins make the examination, and you will be convinced that he understands the human eye equally as well as do the others.

The railroad will be glad to receive your pocket change, but by consulting Dr. Higgins first you will be enabled to save that change to put into glasses or buy a useful present for your ones. Respectfully,

DR. J. V. HIGGINS

State papers announce the engagement and early marriage of our popular young townsman, Mr. Ross Mullins, to Miss Nell Gowan at the home of the bride in Kosciusko, Miss., on Christmas day.

Mr. Mullins is one of Clanton's progressive young business men, and by his generous-heartedness, strict attention to business and genial nature, has forged to the front ranks in commercial life. He is a partner of the well-known Mr. J. C. Jones in the wholesale and retail mercantile business, having recently acquired an interest in that well established house.

Miss Gowan is a popular young lady of Mississippi, who has frequently visited Clanton, and by her gentlemanners and womanly qualities has become a general favorite among our people. She is a sister of our Messrs. Earl and Amzi Gowan, the well-known dentists.

We extend congratulations to you in advance, Mr. Mullins, and wish for you many happy days of wedded life.

The editor was presented this week by Santa Dudley with a handsome hammered brass ash tray. Thanks, old man. Who next?

One of the notable hits of the Glee Club program this season is the "Grasshopper," a remarkably clever take-off on grand opera. "The Grasshopper" has for its theme the old story of the ill-fated grasshopper which sat upon a sweet potato vine. The choruses and solos on the various fortunes and misfortunes of the grasshopper are clever and pleasing. As a matter of fact, while the whole thing is a burlesque, the music is of a high order. There are several selections from the German and the English forms, and the closing chorus is taken bodily from Verdi's "Ernani," being a version of the noted chorus, "O, Hail Us, Ye Free!" These various stunts are rendered in a very interesting manner by these genuine college boys, who, while they have not the voices of a Caruso or De Reszke, are nevertheless possessed of sweet and pleasing tenors and basses, and they sing with a verve and swing that cannot be found outside of genuine college life.

A FEARFUL ACCIDENT.

News was received here about noon Tuesday of a disastrous accident which happened at Latham's sawmill, near Strassburg, during the morning. The mill was running at full speed, when, without warning, the fly wheel was broken.

Parts of the wheel struck Mr. Obie Mahan, the sawyer, fracturing the skull. As soon as the news of the accident was received Drs. Hayes and Johnson went immediately to the scene in the hope of relieving the sufferings of the young man.

Mr. Mahan was the son of Mr. H. M. Mahan, acting mayor of Clanton, and a brother of Messrs. J. Arkie, Park, Ted, Ernest and Henry Mahan.

Late in the afternoon Mr. Mahan, accompanied by his father and brothers, was brought to Clanton, and from here was carried to Montgomery in the hope of saving his life. The skull was badly fractured and quantities of brain removed by attending physicians. Little if any hope is entertained for his recovery.

LATER.—He died in Montgomery Tuesday night at 10 o'clock, shortly after reaching Hill's Infirmary, and his body was brought to Clanton Wednesday mornin gfor interment.

QUICK WORK.

Postmaster Dudley received last Wednesday week his notice of appointment as Postmaster at Clanton for the succeeding four years. On Sunday morning he received a blank bond from the department, to be executed in the sum of five thousand dollars.

On Monday at noon he mailed the bond to the department with signatures attached which makes it easily worth thirty times the amount of the required bond.

In this connection we might add that Miss Florence Hopkins has also received her commission as assistant postmaster.

IN MEMORY OF MR. WILEY T. VEAZEY.

On December 1st God in His infinite goodness and mercy saw fit to visit the home of Mr. Wiley T. Veazey and with his unfaltering spirit into eternity. Mr. Veazey had typhoid fever and had been sick about three weeks. All that a skilled physician, a trained nurse, and many loving friends could do proved to be in vain.

Mr. Veazey bore his sufferings very patiently. You could never hear a complaint or a sigh, which is good evidence that he was willing to submit to an Alwise Creator.

Mr. Veazey was only thirty-two years of age, just in the prime of life. He had been a member of the Missionary Baptist church at Mulberry about six years. It is somewhat mysterious why God would call a comparatively young man, but surely God had a noble purpose in calling him.

Mr. Veazey had spent a greater part of his life in Mulberry community, where he had many friends and relatives who sadly miss him. He leaves a loving wife, a dear old mother, five brothers, one sister and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

Dear friends, we should not grieve at the loss of this estimable citizen and friend. It is exceedingly sad to part with loved ones, but it is for the best, and we commend you to the Dear Saviour who giveth and taketh. May we be ready when God sends His summons to say: "It is well and I am ready." The remains were interred in the Isabella cemetery, there to await the great resurrection.

Oh, be ready and be willing,
For the summons from on high,
And we'll meet this loving brother,
In that home beyond the sky.

Extending to the bereaved family and connection my deep sympathy, I am, Very truly,

B. H. WALLACE.

A COMBINATION.

An Opportunity to Get Two Fine Papers at the Price of One.

The Press, always looking toward the interests of its patrons, has perfected arrangements whereby it is enabled to offer the Birmingham Ledger and The Press for one year at the astonishingly low price of three and a half dollars.

This is less than the usual price of The Ledger alone. In order to secure this concession, however, subscribers must send in their names, addresses and money before January 20, as on that date the proposition closes. The Ledger is one of our very best daily papers. It is ably edited, handsomely illustrated, clean, moral, newsy. It comes every day to your home and brings you the news of the world.

You know what The Press is—the only NEWSPAPER in Chilton county.

See the proposition set out in detail in another column and act TODAY.

Presbyterians to Organize.

For the past week or ten days Rev. Mr. Witherspoon, of Huntsville, has been in Clanton with a view to organizing a congregation of Presbyterians. On last Sunday morning Mr. Witherspoon preached a most forceful sermon to an appreciative audience at the Baptist church.

With what success the Presbyterians are meeting in their efforts we are unable to say, but one thing is certain—if they do not accomplish more than the two religious organizations now in Clanton, the path of the minister will not be scented with roses.

Mistake Corrected.

Last week, by request, we copied a section from the code in reference to stock law elections, in which the qualification of voters was fixed.

In our haste—for the request was made at a late hour—we neglected to investigate farther or to inquire if the quoted section had been amended.

Since then we have discovered that Section 5885 has been amended, and in order to correct the impression which might have been created, we quote the amended law as found on page 231 of the General and Local Acts (1909) of the special session:

To Amend Section 5885 of the Code.

Who are Qualified to Vote: All qualified electors who are bona fide residents in the precinct, or precincts, where the election is held shall be entitled to vote, and none others.

An Unfortunate Mishap.

Last Saturday Mr. Will Roper came to Clanton for the purpose of taking to his home the handsome piano awarded to his daughter, Miss Eula Roper, in The Press Piano Contest. At the same time he decided to take with him a load of bricks to complete the chimney to the addition he is now making to his residence. The piano was boxed and loaded on the wagon, the bricks being in the bed of the wagon. Unfortunately, Mr. Roper failed to secure the piano by roping or otherwise, and when about five miles from town one of the wagon wheels sunk into a mudhole. As the wagon wheel went down, the piano went up like a bullfrog plunging from a lily leaf.

The net result was that the piano toppled to the side of the road, striking squarely upon its head, and emitting a dismal, discordant mourn like the dying wail of a once, tuneful, strawberry-blonde calf.

Three or four keys were broken, the case somewhat scratched, and the harmony of the instrument, for the time being, put out of business.

Mowever, the piano will soon be re-tuned and the fortunate contestant will be made glad because of her handsome trophy of a hard-fought battle.

IF YOU ARE WANTING A MONUMENT
READ THIS.

In buying a monument to mark the last resting place of your dear one, you want to know that it will stand exposure to the elements; that it will not discolor, disintergrate or decay.

North Georgia marble meets these requirements.

Under examination with powerful glasses magnifying 150 diameters. this stone is seen to be composed entirely of crystals, with no openings for the absorption or retention of moisture.

This agrees with the results from the tests made by eminent chemists; therefore, for strength, durability, brilliancy and permanency of color, it stands second to none.

Close attention to details; the cutting, carving, polishing and clean, clear-cut lettering distinguishes our work at a glance.

We have in stock, or can build anything you want on short notice.

A suitable footstone is sent with each monument, but for a limited time we will send a marble vase eight inches by eight inches, and a marble pedestal with the initial letters or the word "Father" or "Mother" in place of ordinary foot stone with each single order for $100.00.

You will find our prices right. Drop me a card which will bring me to your home when you can see and compare our goods and prices with others, or when in town call at the White Barber Shop.

I have just erected one for the Clanton Camp W. O. W. in the Clanton cemetery. Stop and see it.

Remember "procastination is the thief of time."

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

The Physical Bigness of Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON.—How many Americans realize the huge bulk of the population of their country, in the same sense that coal is heavy or the hay crop is immense in cubic feet? Just as a matter of physical bigness, this is a great nation, not in possessions but in people.

If all of the inhabitants of the United States, grownups and children, were to lie down in a long line, one person's head touching the feet of the one in front, there would be about 75,000 miles of such a human chain.

If every American stood up to be counted, in a long row of men, women and children, even if they stood so close together that they occupied only a foot and a half apiece, the file would be more than 25,000 miles long. It would girdle the earth at the equator.

Averaging the 93,000,000 people in the United States, young and old, adults and babies, at 100 pounds apiece, the American nation weighs 4,500,000 tons. That is enough to load 1,000 good-sized steamships with human freight, if it were piled in like coal or grain, with no regard whatever for space or air.

If the 93,000,000 Americans, babies included, drink, on the average, a pint of some liquid every day, which is an extremely modest estimate, the people of the United States consume about 45,000 tons of water, beer, milk, coffee, tea, etc., daily. The quantity may be twice as great, or even more. But 45,000 tons would load 900 freight cars of the largest size. That means about 25 long trains.

The physical bigness of Uncle Sam is impressive if viewed from any direction or calculated upon any basis. If the average consumption of solid food—bread, meat, potatoes and other vegetables, cake, pie, fruits, etc.—is only a pound and a half a day that means 135,000,000 pounds, or 67,500 tons, every 24 hours.

On the strength gained by such inroads upon the food stores of the world the people of the United States can easily lift 4,500,000 tons at the same instant. If they walk only a mile apiece in a day, which is certainly too low an estimate, the total is equal to walking three times around the earth at the equator, and more than half way around the fourth time.

If the clothing worn by the people of this country averages five pounds weight, shoes and hats included, of course, it follows that when everybody is ready to go outdoors the nation is about 225,000 tons heavier than it is when ready for bed. When Uncle Sam puts on his collar he uses more than 5,000 miles of cloth bands, without taking Mrs. Sam into account at all.

Truly we are a big nation. We bulk tremendously on the scales and under the tape measure. American quantity will evidently care for itself. Quality requires more attention in all countries.

Expert Offers Criticism of the Army

THAT the United States army is inferior in military organization to the armies of every other large nation of the world is the sentiment of H. Lee Clotworthy, military expert, associate editor of the United States Infantry Journal, and formerly a captain in the army. He asserts that Uncle Sam's military department is inefficient as a fighting machine, and that any one of the big powers—notably Japan—could "whip the daylights out of us without half trying."

"There are 30 regiments of infantry in the army," he says, "but hardly any one of them has been mobilized together in order to give the men the proper training. They are scattered all over the country at various needless military posts. Consequently, both officers and men suffer for lack of adequate drill, and would be absolutely unprepared to fight an army of real soldiers.

"There are a great many needless military posts. Of course, it is necessary to keep men in the Philippines and Alaska, but not in small towns. The latter type—known to military men as 'hitching posts'—were established years ago and small towns have grown up around them.

"These posts also are one of the principal causes of desertion. A recruit enlists because of visions about how grand it is to be a soldier. On arriving at some post, however, he finds he must be a carpenter, a gardener, or a telephone operator. At some stations half of the men are employed in this way rather than occupying their time in learning to be soldiers.

"Instead of useless military posts, the army should be divided into large divisions, located at large central points. There are only 3,000 infantrymen along the Pacific coast, where the present situation demands that a strong force be concentrated.

"If the trouble in Mexico, on our own frontier, had necessitated our men getting into action, we could not mobilize a full division there within a month. Even Mexico could teach us a severe lesson.

"The war department, however—has recognized the inefficiency of the army, and is taking steps to make it the institution our navy is getting to be."

Waste of Death Is Greatly Lessened

LAST year the death rate in the United States was probably the lowest ever known. It certainly was less than the mortality of any other year since vital statistics have been collected in a sufficiently large part of the country to indicate clearly the general state of the public health.

In 1909 the death rate in states and cities which contain more than half of the population of the United States was almost exactly 15 to every thousand persons living. It was not quite one in the thousand below the average mortality rate of the preceding five years. The fraction was nine-tenths. That means nine lives in every 10,000 of the population. It is 900 in every million inhabitants, or 81,000 in 90,000,000.

The cutting down of the death rate enough to save 81,000 lives in a year is like stopping the waste of life in a great war. It is equivalent to warding off death 6,750 times every month, 1,687 every week, 241 times a day. It averts ten deaths every hour, one every six minutes day and night, from one year's end to the next.

If the economic value of the lives saved by lowering the death rate in the United States—the results of better and more careful living—is placed at no more than an average of $1,000 apiece, the effect of cutting down the mortality 81,000 in a year is much the same as preventing the waste of $81,000,000 dealing with this great economy in human life on the hardest and narrowest industrial and commercial basis.

The gradual change for the better in respect to saving life and warding off death is not confined to the United States. It is going on in other countries, also Throughout the civilized world, there is a general change for the better in the conditions of living and in the chances for life itself. The conservation of human life is one of the great interests and one of the best signs of the times.

Soldier Serves His Country 56 Years

GOVERNOR'S ISLAND is to lose its oldest soldier. He is Sergt. David Robertson of the Hospital corps of the army, who has spent 56 years in the service and now, at the mature age of seventy-eight, has been recommended for retirement upon full pay and allowances. It will take a special bill, of course, to thus recognize the services of Robertson and major generals and brigadier generals have recommended to the secretary of war that he present to congress such a bill.

An interesting thing about the long and faithful service of Sergeant Robertson is that it has been almost continually spent on Governor's Island. He has seen generals and colonels come and go. He was a veteran when "Hancock's Superb" came to take command of the department of the east and the military division of the Atlantic. On Governor's Island he married and raised his family, and, looking northward from his island home, Robertson has seen the skies over Manhattan red with the fires of the draft riots and watched the transports which in later days sailed out laden with troops for distant possessions of the United States. He has seen the island upon which he lived grow from the small, unwalled spot which it was when he enlisted to the great military depot which it now is.

On Governor's Island there still exists a little graveyard where those who died in the great cholera epidemic of 1854 are buried. Robertson was a young man then and stuck, quietly and faithfully, to his post.

Mistletoe Is Dangerous.

Few people who know mistletoe only as a desirable feature of Christmas decorations understand that the plant is a parasite dangerous to the life of trees in the regions in which it grows. It is only a question of time, after mistletoe once begins to grow upon a tree before the tree itself will be killed. The parasite saps the life of the infected branches. Fortunately, it is of slow growth, taking years to develop to large proportions, but when neglected, it invariably ruins all trees it reaches.

English Women Smoke Pipes.

The latest fancy of the woman-smoker is a pipe—not the tiny affair that suffices for the Japanese, but a good-sized brier or a neat meerschaum. The pipe is boldly carried along with a gold card case and chain-purse. For some time now the cigarette has given place to a cigar, small in size and mild in quality. Women said they were tired of the cigarette, and wanted a bigger smoke.—London Mail.

Cripple Rides Bicycle.

George Anstey, aged 12, a cripple, of Leicester, England, is one of the most remarkable cyclists in the country. Both his legs are withered and useless, but the Leicester Cripples' Guild has provided him with a two-wheeled pedalless machine, with a padded tube covering the axle bar. Across this he lies face foremost, and with wooden clogs strapped to his hands he propels himself along the streets and roads in a marvelously rapid manner. He has complete control of the machine, his hands acting as pedals, steering gear, and brake combined.

Pretty Good Definition.

We hear some funny things in Fleet street sometimes, and the following definition of the height of aggravation, by a gentleman in rather shaky boots, whom we encountered in a well-known hostelry the other day, struck us as being particularly choice.

"The 'eight of haggravation, gentlemen," said this pothouse humorist, setting his pewter on the counter and looking round proudly, with the air of one about to let off a good thing, "the 'eight of haggravation—why, trying to ketch a flea out o' yer ear with a pair of boxin' gloves."—London Tit-Bits.

An Alaskan Luncheon.

Runners of woven Indian basketry, with white drawnwork doilies at each of the 12 covers, were used on an oval mahogany table. The doilies were made at Sitka. In the middle of the table a mirror held a tall central vase of frosted glass, surrounded by four smaller vases, all filled with white spring blossoms. The edge of the mirror was banked with the same flowers. Four totem poles were placed on doilies in the angles made by the runners.

Place cards were water colors of Alaskan scenery. Abalone shells held salted nuts, and tiny Indian baskets held bonbons. The soup spoons were of horn, several of the dishes used were made by Alaskan Indians, and the cakes were served on baskets.

The menu was as follows: Poisson a la Bering Sea (halibut chowder), Yukon climbers (broiled salmon, potatoes Julienne), snowbirds avec auroraborealis (roast duck with jelly), Shungnak river turnips, Tanana beets, Skagway hash (salad), Fairbanks nuggets (ripe strawberries arranged on individual dishes around a central mound of powdered sugar), arctic slices (brick ice cream), Circle City delights (small cakes), Klondike nuggets (yellow cheese in round balls on crackers), Nome firewater (coffee).—Woman's Home Companion.

Acknowledgment.

Him—A professional?

Her—Yes. He's employed in the government bureau, you know.

Lightning Change.

The Manager—Can you make quick changes and double in a few parts?

The Actor—Can I? Say, you know the scene in "Love and Lobsters," where the hero and the villain are fighting, and a friend rushes in and separates 'em? Well, I played all three parts one night when the other two fellows were ill.

Not Altogether Dead.

Mr. Robert Butler of Marlborough, England, has had the peculiar experience of hearing his death announced. He was attending the poor law conference at Exeter when one of the delegates moved that, in consequence of the death of Mr. Butler, which they all regretted, another gentleman, whom he named, should be appointed to fill his place as one of the representatives of Wiltshire on the central committee. Mr. Butler rose from his place on the platform and announced to the conference, amid much amusement, that, so far as he was aware, he was still alive and in good health, and would be pleased to continue in the office if the conference desired.

Bankers and Bank Notes.

Four men, three of whom were connected with brokerage concerns in the Wall street district, were discussing United States paper currency and the disappearance of counterfeits. "We are so sure nowadays," said one of the party, "as to the genuineness of bills that little attention is paid to them in handling, except as to denomination." To prove his assertion he took a $10 yellowback from his pocket, and, holding it up, asked who could tell whose portrait it bore. No one knew, and by way of coaching the broker said it was the first treasurer of the United States. Again no one knew the name. "Why, It's Michael Hillegas," said the man proudly. "But in confidence, I'll tell you, I didn't know it five minutes ago."—New York Tribune.

Vivid at Least.

Dr. Hiram C. Cortlandt, the well-known theologian of Des Moines, said in a recent address:

"Thomas A. Edison tells us that he thinks the soul is not immortal; but, after all, what does this great wizard know about souls? His forte is electricity and machinery, and when he talks of souls he reminds me irresistibly of the young lady who visited the Baldwin locomotive works and then told how a locomotive is made.

"'You pour,' she said, 'a lot of sand into a lot of boxes, and you throw old stove lids and things into a furnace, and they you empty the molten stream into a hole in the sand, and everybody yells and swears. Then you pour it out and let it cool and pound it, and then you put it in a thing that bores holes in it. Then you screw it together, and paint it, and put steam in it, and it goes splendidly; and they take it to a drafting room and make a bluep rint of it. But one thing I forgot—they have to make a boiler. One man gets inside and one gets outside, and they pound frightfully; and then they tie it to the other thing, and you ought to see it go!'"

Echoes of Munchausen.

It was an absent-minded traveler who had lately taken to ballooning.

"Yes," he observed impressively. "It was a fearful journey. The machine, a thousand feet up, and no more ballast, headed straight for Siberia, and the rarefied air—well, you know as well as I do what effect that has on a balloon. Yes, the peril was terrible." Then the old habit was too strong for him. "The wolves detected our presence. A desperate race ensued. We felt their hot breath on the nape of our necks."—London Globe.

Largest of Whales.

The largest whale of its type of which there is scientific record was captured recently off Port Arthur, Tex. He measured sixty-three feet in length, and was estimated to be about three hundred years old. Captain Cob Plummer, mate of a United States pilot boat, sighted the monster in the shoals off the jetties, and the crew of his vessel captured the mammal. The huge body was towed ashore, exhibited and much photographed before being cut up.

Rat Bounty Excites Merriment.

Seattle, fearing the introduction of bubonic plague by rats, has offered a bounty of ten cents a rat. This moves Tacoma, safe from infection from the sea, to raucous laughter, and the Ledger says that the bounty, "though not intended for rodents of Tacoma, Everett, Bellingham and other populous and busy centers, has been finding its way into the pockets of non-residents of Seattle for non-resident rats. But the joke would be on us if it were found that our rat population had found its way into the Seattle census."

Two Very Old Ladies.

We have heard a great deal lately about long-lived people, but it is probable that the oldest two people in the world today are Frau Dutkievitz and another old lady named Babavaslika.

The former lives at Posem, in Prussian Poland, and was born on February 21, 1785. She is therefore one hundred and twenty-five years old. The latter, however, is nine months her senior, having been born in May, 1784.

She is still a fairly hale old woman, and for nearly one hundred years worked in the fields. Her descendants number close on 100, and these now make her a joint allowance. She lives at the village of Bavelsko, whose neighborhood she has never quitted during the whole of her long life. She remembers events which happened at the beginning of last century much more clearly than those of the last 40 years.—Dundee Advertiser.

Too Ardent a Lover.

Georgotto Fontano, an embroiderer who lives in the Rue Sevres in Paris, has found herself condemned to a month's imprisonment for what seems to her a harmless act.

She was going home from a concert a few evenings ago when she decided she would like to see her fiance. As he happens to be a fireman whose station is in her own neighborhood it occurred to her it would be very easy to summon him to her side by breaking the glass of the fire alarm and sounding a call.

She did so anr in a few moments fire engines came from several directions, all laden with firemen, of course, but alas! her fiance was not among them, and more than that all the firemen were angry, and before she knew what had happened she was taken to a magistrate, who proceeded to make the course of true love run unsmoothly by sending her to prison for a month in spite of her tears and protests that she thought it would be a simple way of bringing her fiance to her side.

An Unnecessary Confession.

A hearty laugh was occasioned in the Birmingham police court by a prisoner who gave himself away in a most delightful manner. The man was charged first on the list, and the charge against him was merely one of being drunk and disorderly. He stepped into the dock, however, just at the moment when the dock officer was reading out a few of the cases which were to be heard before the court that morning. His guilty conscience apparently led him to mistake these items for a list of his previous convictions.

He stood passive enough while the officer read out about a dozen cases of drunk and disorderlies, but when he came to the one "shopbreaking" the prisoner loudly claimed excitedly, "That was fifteen years ago, your honor," Everyone began to laugh, and the prisoner, realizing the blunder he had made, looked very black indeed, but soon saw the humorous side of the matter and a broad smile spread over his face. His blunder did not cost anything.—Birmingham Mail.

That Suit for Libel

Against the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Gave a Splendid Chance to Bring Out Facts

A disagreement about advertising arose with a "weekly" Journal.

Following it, an attack on us appeared in their editorial columns; sneering at the claims we made particularly regarding Appendicitis.

We replied through the regular papers and the "weekly" thought we hit back rather too hard and thereupon sued for libel.

The advertisement the "weekly" attacked us about claimed that in many cases of appendicitis an operation could be avoided by discontinuing indigestible food, washing out the bowels and taking a predigested food Grape-Nuts.

Observe we said MANY cases not all.

Wouldn't that knowledge be a comfort to those who fear a surgeon's knife as they fear death?

The "weekly" writer said that was a lie.

We replied that he was ignorant of the facts.

He was put on the stand and compelled to admit he was not a Dr. and had no medical knowledge of appendicitis and never investigated to find out if the testimonal letters to our Co. were genuine.

A famous surgeon testified that when an operation was required Grape-Nuts would not obviate it. True.

We never claimed that when an operation was required Grape-Nuts would prevent it.

The surgeon testified bacteria [germs] helped to bring on an attack and bacteria was grown by undigested food frequently.

We claimed, and proved by other famous experts that undigested food was largely responsible for appendicitis.

We showed by expert testimony that many cases are healed without a knife, but by stopping the use of food which did not digest, and when food was required again it was helpful to use a predigested food which did not overtax the weakened organs of digestion.

When a pain in the right side appears it is not always necessary to be rushed off to a hospital and at the risk of death be cut.

Plain common sense shows the better way is to stop food that evidently has not been digested.

Then, when food is required, use an easily digested food. Grape-Nuts or any other if you know it to be predigested (partly digested before taking).

We brought to Court analytical chemists from New York, Chicago and Mishawaka, Ind., who swore to the analysis of Grape-Nuts and that part of the starchy part of the wheat and barley had been transformed into sugar, the kind of sugar produced in the human body by digesting starch (the large part of food).

Some of the State chemists brought on by the "weekly" said Grape-Nuts could not be called a "predigested" food because not all of it was digested outside the body.

The other chemists said any food which had been partly or half digested outside the body was commonly known as "predigested."

Splitting hairs about the meaning of a word.

It is sufficient that if only one-half of the food is "predigested," it is easier on weakened stomach and bowels than food in which no part is predigested.

To show the facts we introduce Dr. Thos. Darlington, former chief of the N. Y. Board of Health, Dr. Ralph W. Webster, chief of the Chicago Laboratories, and Dr. B. Sachs, N. Y.

If we were a little severe in our denunciation of a writer, self-confessed ignorant about appendicitis and its cause, it is possible the public will excuse us, in view of the fact that our head, Mr. C. W. Post, has made a lifetime study of food, food digestion and effects, and the conclusions are indorsed by many of the best medical authorities of the day.

Is it possible that we are at fault for suggesting, as a Father and Mother might, to one of the family who announced a pain in the side: "Stop using the food, greasy meats, gravies, mince pie, cheese, too much starchy food, etc., etc., which has not been digested, then when again ready for food use Grape-Nuts because it is easy of digestion?"

Or should the child be at once carted off to a hospital and cut?

We have known of many cases wherein the approaching signs of appendicitis have disappeared by the suggestion being followed.

No one better appreciates the value of a skilful physician when a person is in the awful throes of acute appendicitis, but "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Just plain old common sense is helpful even nowadays.

This trial demonstrated Grape-Nuts food is pure beyond question.

It is partly predigested.

Appendicitis generally has rise from undigested food.

It is not always necessary to operate.

It is best to stop all food.

When ready to begin feeding use a predigested food.

It is palatable and strong in Nourishment.

It will pay fine returns in health to quit the heavy breakfasts and lunches and use less food but select food certainly known to contain the elements nature requires to sustain the body. May we be permitted to suggest a breakfast of fruit, Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs, and some hot toast and cocoa, milk or Postum?

The question of whether Grape-Nuts does or does not contain the elements which nature requires for the nourishment of the brain, also of its purity, will be treated in later newspaper articles.

Good food is important and its effect on the body is also important.

The ONLOOKER
by WILBUR D. NESBIT

Robbed of Santa Claus

Somebody robbed the little boy
Of what he treasured most of all,
Somebody changed his eager joy
Into a heavy, gloomy pall;
Some one with ruthless, brutal hand
Has ripped the film of fancy's gauze—
Some one has bade him understand
There is not any Santa Claus!

But yesterday the boy was glad
And he went singing down the street
Because of this old dream he had
That made his Christmas fair and sweet
But some one, eager to destroy
His gladness, counseled him to pause;
Somebody told the little boy:
"There isn't any Santa Claus."

And he came home, and softly wept
With this great sorrow of his years,
And when at last he sighed and slept
His cheeks bore traces of his tears—
No gallant dreams of Santa's sleigh
Came galloping to him, because
Somebody talked with him, to say:
"There isn't any Santa Claus!"

The Christmas tree will only be
A common tree whose bark is rough,
The golden strands he used to see
Will now be only tinsled stuff,
The wonder-toys of mystic source
Will now disclose a thousand flaws
Since some one said to him: "Of course
There isn't any Santa Claus!"

O, selfish man who told him this!
How could you blight the dream of youth,
And sacrifice his childish bliss
Upon the stone of miscalled truth!
The Spirit of the Christmastide
The gentler heart to kindness draws,
But with that olden faith denied,
Truly, there is no Santa Claus.

He Bobs Up Serenely.

The man with the glittering whiskers comes in busily, hastens to the desk of the pale hireling with the discouraged hair, and observes:

"I've got a new one for you, and you are welcome to use it whenever you like. I know there are dull days in all trades, and once in a while a suggestion is—"

"What is the difference between the actor and the curtain?" inquired the lantern-jawed hireling.

"One plays the part and the other parts the play," answers the man with the glittering whiskers, right off the reel, and continues: "My conundrum is, why is a man who has practised medicine for several years and then has retired to go into the cold storage egg business like the ancient Roman method of writing ten thousand five hundred?"

"Because he is an XMD," growls the hungry hireling.

And the low wind moans like a living thing through the bare boughs of the blossom-bereft orchards.

Had No Fears.

At the height of Washington's fame there were those who carped and criticized to some extent, warning him that being a celebrity was a precarious thing and that he should be careful, lest he do or say something that would turn the tide of popular favor against him. To these admonitions Washington merely smiled.

"There is just one thing that might be done," he said, "and that is something that will not be done until long after I am dead. By that time my fame will be so solidified that nothing can shake it. If we were sufficiently advanced in commerce for this one thing to happen then, indeed, I should be careful."

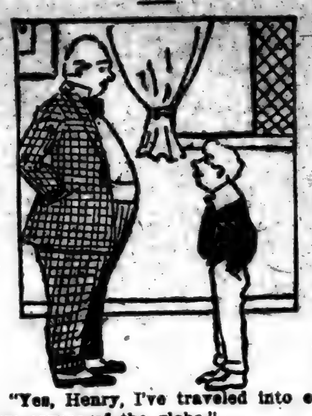
"What is that one thing?" inquire the others. "Put you in a historical novel?"

"No; name a five-cent cigar for me."

A Warning.

Old Santa Claus stopped all the noise
Within his shop. Said he:
"I hear there are some little boys
Who don't believe in me.

"They shan't have any Christmas toys,
They shan't have any tree—
I don't believe in little boys
Who don't believe in me."



Offended Her.

"Ah," sighed the enraptured swain, holding her lily-white hand and looking up at the refulgent orb of night, "see yonder moon! And think how often it has looked down upon a scene like this and listened to soft words such as these."

"Sir!" she exclaimed, jerking her hand away. "I want you to understand that I was not in earnest with all the others."

When It Was Rougher.

Paul Withington, the Harvard coach, was praising the milder football of 1910.

"Football in the '90s was a terrible game," said Mr. Withington. "Bourget, you know, devoted a whole chapter of 'Outre Mer' to its horrors. Some of the stories of the football of '90 or '91 are, in fact, almost incredible.

"A Philadelphia sporting editor returned one November Saturday from West Philadelphia with a pale, frightened face.

"'One frightful accident,' replied the sporting editor. 'A powerful mule from a neighboring coal dealer's entered the field, blundered into one of the hottest scrimmages and got killed.'"

Would Avoid Him.

FIGHTING THE WHITE PLAGUE

Number of State Institutions Is Double During the Past Two Years.

Sixteen state sanatoria, 28 county hospitals and 21 municipal hospitals for tuberculosis have been erected and provided for since January 1, 1909, says a recent bulletin of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Within the last two years the number of state institutions for tuberculosis has doubled, and the number of county and municipal institutions has increased from about 30 to 80. The expenditures of public money for the treatment of tuberculosis also has more than doubled. Not less than $3,000,000 of state money was appropriated for tuberculosis institutions in over $600,000 in 1910, when only 11 legislatures were in session. The appropriations of counties and cities for tuberculosis hospitals and sanatoria in the last two years will aggregate fully $2,500,000, bringing the total of official appropriations for tuberculosis hospitals up to over $6,000,000 in the past two years.

In spite, however, of this good showing, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis states that not one-tenth of the public provision for tuberculosis that is needed has been made. More than 250,000 tuberculosis patients are constantly without proper institutional treatment.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures those weaknesses so peculiar to women. It tranquillizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just smile and shake your head! Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cures liver ills.

THE MALARIA MONSTER

If the mosquito were as big as it is bad, it would darken the air like a gigantic death-breathing dragon. Each sting of a mosquito sows the germs of malaria. These germs multiply with wonderful rapidity. Then come chills and fever with other forms of malaria that undermine the health and sap the strength.

OXIDINE

—a bottle proves.

It is the modern malaria medicine and the one sure antidote for malaria poisoning. It kills the chills. It quenches the fever fires. It stamps out the cause and consequences of the disease. That's only the beginning of helpful healing work of OXIDINE. It builds up the body, revitalizes the system, enriches the blood, tones up the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. OXIDINE puts the body on a fighting footing of superb health.

The tonic qualities of OXIDINE make it the best medicine for all weak, run down, thin, pale persons. It is the best body-building tonic money can buy.

Fresh Air in Winter

In winter, it is hard to get fresh air in certain rooms. Some rooms in a house are usually colder than others, and if you open the windows it is hard again to heat the room properly.

If you keep the windows closed you don't get fresh air; if you keep them open you cannot quickly reheat the room. The solves the difficulty. You can leave the windows in a room open all day in winter, and when you close them apply a match to a Perfection Oil Heater and heat the room to any temperature you desire in a few minutes.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It burns for nine hours. It has a cool handle and a damper top. It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be quickly cleaned. An indicator always shows amount of oil in the font.

The filler-cap does not need to be screwed down. It is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. The Perfection Oil Heater is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

Alabama Corn Scarce Here.

R. M. Hobbie, operating the largest grist mill in Alabama, stated Wednesday that there was practically no Alabama corn coming to Montgomery. He explained the matter by a reference to Western prices. These have been cut very low, many local people believe, in an effort to so undersell Alabama farmers that they will not compete. However, the Alabama corn is superior to the Western variety and brings higher prices. The effort produced is exactly what the advocates of more corn for Alabama want. It is making the farmers utilize their corn in meat production and they are feeding it to hogs in large quantities. The presence of so much corn for hog feed has given the hog business added impetus and many orders have been placed by Alabama farmers for fancy breeding stock Had the present condition been planned to accelerate interest in meat production it could not have been more perfect. Local meat handlers say that although this is "hog killing time," and therefore the dull season in the sati meat businessfi the orders they are receiving are far below normal for the time of year.

Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

Members of the board having in charge the location of a site whereon is to be established a sanitarium for tubercular patients of Alabama, met at the capitol with Governor B. B. Comer and thoroughly went into details regarding the proposed hospital. Besides discussing various sites, no action was taken by the members. Members of the board are Dr. W H. Sanders and Governor Comer, the officials; Dr. Glenn Andrews, Montgomery; Dr. B. L. Wyman, Birmingham; Dr. George T. McWhorter, Riverton; D. A. Marbury, Birmingham; Senator Henry S. Reese, Selma. Understanding it that the site for the hospital will be chosen early next week.

Prize Farmer.

W. F. Dahike, who lives two miles east from Cullman, has been a lucky man and has proved himself to be the most scientific farmer in the county. He has recently received two checks from Commissioner of Agriculture Wilkinson as prizes offered for the man having the greatest success in his line of farming. Mr. Dahike entered the contest last spring and planted one acre of corn on which he gathered 113 bushels of well-developed corn; another acre was planted in oats from which he gathered 72 bushels, and from the same amount of ground he gathered 89 barrels of sweet potatoes. On the ground from which he harvested the corn 1220 pounds of fertilizer was used.

Bailey, of Wetumpka, Alive.

The "sea" has given up one of its dead according to dispatches received from Crockett, Texas, which state that Joseph Leslie Bailey, of Wetumpka, supposed to have been drowned in the Tallapoosa river Tuesday night, September 12, has been found in Texas, alive and well. Bailey was arrested in Crockett county, Texas on a warrant charging conspiracy to defraud insurance companies of $16,000.

Mrs. Esther Deas of Montgomery will celebrate her 104th birthday on Christmas day. She was born in North Carolina, on Big Cold Water creek, December 25, 1805, and is the oldest person in this section as far as is known. She has been a resident of Montgomery for 42 years and has a daughter living who is 85 years old.

A call was issued by the Board of Revenue and Road Commissioners of Mobile for a meeting on December 29 at noon of those designated with that body from the city and county to take up the matter of the half million dollars bond issue for good roads. The issue was ordered at a recently held election. The city and county members of the conference have been equip 100 miles of roadway with the issue and the method of handling the fund after the bonds will have been disposed of will be taken up at this meeting.

Laird in Louisville.

Deputy Insurance Commisisoner Hervey W. Laird has again gone to Louisville in interest of the Alabama stockholders in the Citizen's National Life Insurance Company of that place, but this time for the purpose of receiving a report of the secretary on the financial strength of the insurance organization. All differences in the company have been settled, and smooth sailing is the expectation from now on. The company's financial strength, in an unofficial way, is declared to be unexcelled.

Section 2. Be it further ordained, That, before any person, firm or corporation shall engage in or carry on any business or do any act or thing for which a license is required by the Ordinances of the Town of Clanton, he or they shall pay to the Clerk of the Town of Clanton the amount required for such license. And upon the payment of such amount and a fee of 50 cents to the said Clerk for the issuing of the said license, a license shall issue to such person, firm or corporation, signed by the said Clerk, which shall set forth the name of the person, firm or corporation applying therefor, the business or acts which it is proposed to carry on or do thereunder, the amount paid for such license, and the time at which said license shall expire, and such license shall not be transferable except by written consent of the Mayor of the Town of Clanton.

Section 3. Be it further ordained, That it shall be the duty of the Mayor of the Town of Clanton to prepare and have printed suitable forms of licenses, and furnish the same to the Clerk of the said town. Each such blank shall have a stub attached thereto, on which shall be printed such matter as the said Mayor shall prescribe, with appropriate blank spaces to be filled in by the said Clerk upon the issuance of any license. And upon the issuance of any license the said Clerk must, before detaching the license from the stub, fill up the blank spaces in the stub to correspond in all respects to the license as issued, and sign his name thereto.

Section 4. Be it further ordained, That the Clerk of the Town of Clanton shall keep an account of all the licenses received by him of the Mayor of the said town and of the disposition made of them, and of all money received by license by him issued, and to each regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Council of the Town of Clanton make a full report thereof.

Section 5. Be it further ordained, That all licenses of the Town of Clanton shall expire on the 31st day of December of each and every year, and shall be for one year, unless the business or act licensed shall commence after the first day of July, in which case the price of the license shall be one-half of the amount of the year's license.

Section 6. Be it further ordained, That any person, firm or corporation who shall engage in any business vocation, occupation or profession for which a license is required by the Ordinances of the Town of Clanton without having first obtained such license, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than twice the amount of such license, nor more than three times the amount of such license, for each offense.

Section 7. Be it further ordained, That all ordinances and parts of ordinances of the Town of Clanton in conflict with this ordinance be, and the same is, hereby repealed.

Passed this, the 27th day of December, 1910.

H. M. MAHAN,
Acting Mayor.

Countersigned:
JOS. E. ROBINSON, JR.,
Town Clerk.

SOME FAKES OF CHINATOWN

"Heiress to Enormous Fortune" Talks Freely of the Way in Which Gullible Tourists Are Fooled.

The "heiress to an enormous fortune" walked out of the dive in Chinatown, New York, the other night, and stretched her arms widely. She had scrubbed the painted lines off her face, and had abandoned the kimono of histrionics for the close-fitting tailor-made of Broadway. She looked like what she is—a "wise" person, but neither degraded nor depraved. Once she was an actress in a burlesque show, and, because of illness, failed to get an engagement. So she posed as the "lost heiress" in one of the side shows put on in Chinatown for the delectation of gullible tourists.

"On the level," she said frankly, over a scuttle in what used to be "Nigger Mike's," "I'm glad the cops have closed this Chinatown dump to the come-ons. I'm a sort of an actress, all right, and I played my part the best I knew how. But I got mighty tired pretending to smoke opium, and handing out that talk about being the daughter of wealthy parents, who had fallen for life in the Chink village. It was two-a-day for me for the past year, and I've made money at it. What's more, I've saved it. These heathen Chinese, that the yaps come down here to see, aren't the worst in the world. When they found I was on the level they sure treated me white. I'm going to take a trip to Europe before I go back to work. I've got the glitter all packed away."

"No doubt," said the man who bought the beer, "your surroundings during the year have been unpleasant."

"I didn't mind that," said the "heiress," candidly. "I was brought up in an alley. What made me sick was to see these rubes stand for the hot air the guides shove at 'em. Honest, I want to get out where I can see 'wise' people—if I have to go to the island."

ONLY ABOUT COLLAR BUTTON

Spaniards Become So Excited and Angry Over Every Small Topic of Conversation.

Two Spaniards were conversing earnestly, then excitedly, at last angrily. The young American woman who passed them looked with frightened eyes toward her Spanish guide.

"What are they talking about, Senor Jose?" she asked timidly. "Do you think they will fight—or, maybe kill?"

"Ah, no, Senorita Marie," replied Jose, smiling and showing his pretty teeth. "One man—that one, you see, Senorita, with the long mustachios—he is saying: 'Me, I prefer much the collaire button which is steel,' and the other one—look, Senorita—he is running his fingers through his hair now, and his sombrero has a gold cord—he is saying: 'Ah, no, Senor, the button which is of gold—si, Senor, that is the button for me.'

"But as for myself, Senorita—the bone collaire button—that I prefer above all the others.

"Do I not speak with good sense, Senorita? Listen. If the button is of steel, it will cut; if it is of gold, one cannot afford to lose it; but if it of bone—it does not cut, and if it goes, what matter? I have a dozen at home in my little top drawer."

"You speak with great sense, Don Jose, but tell me—were the men really angry?"

"Oh, not at all, Senorita; it is only our southern way of being interested in what we discuss. If it had been two Germans, Senorita, or maybe two Englishmen, you would never have heard them."

NEW YEARS IN JAPAN

NEW YEAR'S day among the Japanese is not only the day that begins a year, but it is, in the highest sense of the words, le jour de l'an—their "day of the year." Preparation for it begins early in December. The American Christmas shopper, if landed in Tokyo in mid-December, would find crowds of her brothers and sisters in spirit thronging in shops decorated with the most attractive symbolic ornamentations and displaying with great skill the things most requisite for the coming holiday time. At night, along the thoroughfares, the stranger would see multitudes crowded about street booths to purchase the wares exposed there, all which are significant of the New Year festival, and nothing else. Everywhere the avenue and by-ways would be illuminated with rows of shining lanterns, bearing trade devices and family crests, all suspended from the low eaves of stores and houses. Never are the streets of Japanese cities and towns so enlivened with gayly dressed crowds and busy traffickers as during the time of our own alien, yet kindred, Christmas excitement.

The specific preparations for the New Year begin about the thirteenth of the last month. Then, within every house in the empire, a general cleaning up takes place. A fresh, green branch of the bamboo tree, with its leaves and twigs to symbolize good fortune, is used as a duster in completing the thorough sweeping. At this time the soft rice mats of which the flooring in Japanese homes is made are renewed in order that the callers at the New Year may be received where they can enjoy a spotless footing. At this time, too, all matrons and maids are busy getting ready for wear on New Year's day kimonos that shall have no trace in them of the vanished past. To old and young the daily theme of thought and talk is the coming "New Year," full as much as "Christmas" is to us.

Outside the houses symbolic decoration has full sway, and transforms the thoroughfares into gayly colored and evergreen avenues. The treeless streets are turned, for the time being, into vistas of swaying bamboo and pine trees. Before each house entrance, according to the tenants' purses and taste, stands a kind of archway. Its pine branches, supposedly male and female, on the right and left, and the tall triple bamboo shafts (both trees symbolic of longevity that is of a hardiness that has borne the storms and struggles of long life into a rugged old age) welcome the visitor. Over head, spanning the space between these uprights of the arch, is a decorated rope always of rice straw, having on it various pendants arranged in series of seven, five and three (lucky numbers). The rope recalls one of the most revered and poetic traditions of the Japanese past. The sun goddess, the ancestress of the imperial house of the empire, was angered with her brother in the ancient days, and in revenge hid herself in a cave. Darkness then prevailed in heaven and over the earth. The gods, in their perplexity, tried to induce her to come out of her hiding place. But in vain did they appear, until, in a dance they had arranged, she was induced by a taunt that touched her vanity to open the door of her self-chosen dungeon. One of the gods then drew her forth, and, to prevent her running back into the cave, stretched a straw rope across the entrance. The perpetual shining of the sun, secured thereby, remains memorialized in the garlanded barrier hanging above each Japanese portal at New Year's time.

Among the most noticeable and significant objects ornamenting these doorway arches is a scarlet lobster, embedded among some branches of a bush whose old leaves remain unshed until after the young leaves have budded. The lobster's crooked body tells of old age bent with years, while the bush branches around it show how parents remain even while children and children's children may come into being. In the same decoration fronds of fern are placed, whose pairs of leaves symbolize wedded life. The orange, whose color brightens the clustered symbols, bears a name which, as a pun, means "generations," and tells of family perpetuity. Seaweed is there, too, as a memorial of good fortune, commemorating also the prehistoric conquest of Korea by the Empress Jingo. Her troops were in danger of defeat because their horses on the Korean seashore were starving from lack of food. But, by inspiration, she ordered seaweed to be plucked from the waters of the beach and given to the horses, who then were so invigorated that they carried their riders to glorious victory. Gohei white bands of paper wave over the garlands of the doorway arches symbolic of the ancient offerings that have won the favor of "the myriad gods."

After busy weeks of preparation at last the closing day of the year comes. On New Year's eve the whole country is astir and every place that needs a light for use or beauty is brightened. All through that night the people stay out of bed to see the old year pass and to welcome the new. Merchants do not go to bed until the dawn of New Year's day. All the business accounts of the closing year must be settled that night, and in every sense of the word the year be begun afresh among those Japanese who are guided by the old social order. All things are made new. Bad luck, bad feelings, unsettled debts, are all to be done away with and a new chapter of life opened, filled with happy prospects. The complete renewal of old-fashioned Japanese life at the New Year is well shown in one of the names that the day bears, San Gan, "The Three Beginnings," that is, of "year," of "month" and of "day."

When the household awakens on January 1 every member of the family seeks the others to say "Omedeto" (Congratulation). And then an exchange of presents like our Christmas giving begins. The New Year breakfast is a feast of symbolism and of good wishes. The New Year's wine, too, is passed around, with the wish that everyone may drink along with the cup a long, long life. A soup containing a peculiar rice paste, mochi, is eaten by all, each one wishing the others ten thousand years of pleasure and prosperity. Then the household prepare for a day of festivity. The busy broom and bamboo duster are left idle all the day, for fear that they might sweep out of the house the divine freshness that has come into it. All the shops remain closed from dawn until the next day. It is the day of the home and of social happiness. There is no "Christmas tree" as the center of the Japanese New Year celebration inside the house, but there is the Kagami mochi or "mirror rice cakes" that are made as conspicuous as the "tree." These cakes represent the round mirror, in which the sight of her face enticed the sun goddess out of her cave in the olden time. For eleven days these cakes remain decorated with fruits and flowers, elevated on whitewood trays. Then they form part of a family feasting.

Throughout Japan the New Year's day is the one complete holiday of the year. Soon after breakfast all the members of the families, dressed in their newest clothes, take to the gardens, parks and streets for characteristic pleasurings. Universal visiting is a social law—calling on friends and relatives in person or by card. Universal gift making is indulged in, messengers being sent bearing presents all around the household and friendly circles. Distinctive and exclusive games also belong to the New Year time. Battledore and shuttlecock is probably chief among them. In certain parts of Tokyo, for example, streets are almost impassable because of the hosts of the players of this game. As far as one can see, the scene is one of bewildering color from the stir of the dresses of the girls, who are as active in their sport as so many of our tennis players. Gayly ornamented battledores flash everywhere, and the air is full of the bright, fluttering toys that are struck from one to another player. Penalty for defeat usually means grotesque markings of the face with strokes of charcoal ink. One may see thousands of children merry under the comical markings imposed upon their foreheads and cheeks.

Kite flying is another peculiar New Year pastime. And kite flying in Japan is a sight well worth going far to see. The variety of shape, the gorgeousness of coloring, the extraordinary size of many of these toys, is something peculiar to the Japanese. Then the skill shown in maneuvering the kites is marvelous. They hum as they sway in the January breeze with a sort of organ-pipe volume of sound, and, at times, they swoop down upon antagonist fliers, like hawks, and, with their glass-dust-covered cords cut their enemies free, thus making them the property of their own masters. There is hardly a more fascinating spectacle than one of these friendly battles in the air of Japanese kites, under the guidance of the skilled men who manage them.

Another distinctive entertainment for the New Year celebration is furnished by groups of masked performers who go about the streets led by a curious animal-like creature, whose grotesque lion-head excites much mock terror among children. The antics of these motley crowds are supposed to exorcise evil spirits from the Japanese homes, as well as to add gayety to the doings of the day. Many other unique ceremonies take place on the first day; too many for an attempt to describe them here.

But we may not pass by the old card parties of the New Year evenings; the matchings of the beginnings and ends of the "hundred songs of a hundred singers." From one January to another this game is not indulged in, but at the opening of the year it is the chief sport for the evenings, whole families becoming absorbed in it. It is a contest of memory and of quickness in discovering in cards laid out before a group of players the end of a poem whose opening lines have been read by a leader. It is astonishing to see the mental skill that many of the players have acquired.

One more exciting New Year game deserves mention, the fortune lotteries. In these home lotteries one takes hold of the end of a rope and casts the other end over a screen. Hidden players attach some gift to the free end of the rope, whereby often the best of fun comes, because of the prizes drawn.

But this great day of beginnings for Japan, with its idling and many pleasures, at last comes to a close. On the second day of the year the duty of work is celebrated. In the home the children strive to show to their parents the best they can do in penmanship or in memory of things to be learned. Girls try their first ornamental needlework or piece of music; merchants open their shops with a show of receiving their first goods for the year. On the street many processions of coolies are seen bearing beautifully ornamented specimens of the trades of their masters. Heavily loaded wagons, brilliantly decorated with lanterns, flags and advertisements, drawn by oxen covered with many colored cloths, pass from district to district, accompanied by singing and dancing workmen.

Toward the evening of the second day street peddlers, crying "Treasure ships for sale!" go about among the crowds. They sell rough drawings of the "Seven Gods of Happiness," afloat in a boat. Multitudes buy these caricatures of an ancient sacred group, much as we might buy a pictured Santa Claus. That night the "treasure ship" must lie under one's pillow. The dreams that come then mean much for the rest of the opening year.

On the third day of the New Year the firemen of the towns have their annual parade and give public exhibitions of acrobatic skill in many places. These exhibitions are no mean shows. Some of the performers display an agile ability in climbing, balancing and leaping that is of an extraordinarily high order.

Indeed, all the days of the first fortnight of the new year are red letter days, until the fifteenth day comes, when seemingly a most comical ending of the whole festal season takes place. The people after that settle down to the commonplace order of regular daily labor. The Japanese people at the present time do not take this closing event more seriously to heart than we of this land now regard the ride of Tam O'Shanter; but, theoretically, the inhabitants of the infernal regions during the first fortnight of the new year have as merry a good time as the people of this world. On the fifteenth day, however, the instruments of torture in hell begin to work again. On this day it is that the temples consecrated to Emma O, the king of Hades, are crammed with devotees and gather large sums of offerings from fearful sinners. It is a wonderful sight, a temple of Emma O in mid-January, in one of the great cities. A Roman carnival could not be more jostling, jolly or absurdly funny. Japanese fun making is at its freest there, and all that is done seems to be forgiven the worshipers, if their contributions to the treasure boxes of his majesty, the regent of the inferno, are generous. With the festival of this god the new year on earth and under the earth has for the Japanese passed away as a feast, and life's duties fairly begun again.

Of course the Japanese New Year is today fast losing some of its old-time characteristic fascinations, but enough of its unique quaintness and charm remain to give it distinctiveness among the festivals of the nations, and to keep it an object for foreign tourists to enjoy.

To the New Year

Oh child New Year, on whom the mantle falls
Of the departing year, who leaves to thee,
The labors, tasks, the duties and the calls
Which are the heirlooms of the past, to be
A precious trust the heritage of time,
How will thou face the future all alone?
How front the foes of sin, and vice, and crime,
Which muster round with force and might unknown?
Take courage, child of time, be not dismayed,
Equip thyself with faith and hope and love,
And seek for strength and wisdom from above;
With these to help thee, never be afraid.
Go forth with gladness on thine untrod way,
And strength will come to thee from day to day.

E. D. NALDER.

To the New Year and the Old Friends

The moon wanes pale in the sky,
And the stars all blink for morn;
The old year is to die,
And the new year to be born.
We have passed through the vale of tears
We have trod the journey long,
We have shared our hopes and fears,
We have shared our grief and song;
And we've shared them all with our old friends,
Our true friends, our few friends,
And we'll drain anew to our old friends,
The friends that are always true.

CURRENCY BILL HAS SMALL SHOW

Monetary Commission Appointed Several Years Ago Is Not Yet Ready to Report.

GRAVES INVITES CRITICISM

Chief Forester Takes Pinchot's Position on Forests and Water Flow—Republican Factions Unite in Favor of Commission Bill.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—It is known from men who stand close to the administration that President Taft is becoming fearful lest nothing of great and lasting value shall come out of the movement for currency reform. Immediately after the business disturbance of 1907 congress passed a temporary currency measure which it was hoped would make in part for stability in time of monetary stress. The act was passed only as a temporary safeguard and it was not deemed by members of either party to be at all sufficient to the matter in hand.

Congress with the advice of the president appointed a national monetary commission with representatives of house and senate in its membership. The commission has been studying currency matters for upwards of two years and it was believed that the report would be made at the present session so that the recommended legislation could be passed.

There is no chance now that the currency bill will be passed this winter. The committee is not yet ready to report and the explanation is that the subject was so great and that so many differences of opinion existed among the representatives of financial interests that it was difficult to get at the exact truth and thus early to frame a bill which would be generally satisfactory.

Chief Members Leaving Senate.

Senator Aldrich is the chairman of the commission. He will leave the senate in March and of course will not be present on the floor to explain and defend the currency bill when it is finally introduced. Senator Burrows of Michigan, the second ranking member of the commission, also will leave the senate in March. Philander C. Knox, who was a senator when the commission was appointed and who still is connected with it, left the senate to become secretary of state. Henry M. Teller of Colorado, who was also a senator when appointed to the commission, is now in private life, although still holding his place on the monetary board. Hernando D. Money of Mississippi, another commission member, will lose his senate office in the spring.

The only Republican senator who also is a member of the commission and who will continue in senatorial office is Theodore E. Burton of Ohio. On him will fall the entire burden of presenting the views of the commission majority when the time comes to press for action a bill based on the body's report.

In the house there will be several Republican members of the commission still in office, but it must be remembered that the Democrats at the next congress will have control of the house and it is more than possible that their currency reform views will not be those of the Republican majority of the commission. All these things make the administration fear that a part at least of the work of the commission will go for naught. There is said to be one hope left that the commission's findings will be sanctioned in bill form by house and senate no matter what the political majority may be. Commercial interests all over the country are urging that something like stable monetary legislation shall be enacted and be enacted quickly.

To Celebrate Battle of Lake Erie.

General Warren Keifer of Ohio, a member of the house of representatives, has introduced a bill appropriating $250,000 to be used for the purpose of a celebration during the summer of 1913 in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the Battle of Lake Erie. It is said that congress, even in this time of striving for rigid economy, looks with considerable approval upon General Keifer's proposition. It is altogether too early, however, to judge of the chances of the appropriation's success for there is a feeling in some quarters that a stop ought to be put to the practice of voting money for celebrations that take on in any way the form of great expositions or fairs.

The Battle of Lake Erie was fought by Commodore Perry in small vessels, some of them little more than barges, but the victory that he won was of great importance and, like the battle between the Chesapeake and Shannon, it gave a watchword to the American navy.

Henry S. Graves, the chief forester of the United States, who succeeded Gifford Pinchot, has just given [illegible] gress sharp evidence that he [illegible] in certain matters just where [illegible] predecessor in office stood. The [illegible] forester seems to have the same [illegible] tant intent that characterised the [illegible] like Pinchot.

For years the men who [illegible] save the forests of the country [illegible] been trying to get congress to [illegible] tion a bill which would set [illegible] great woodland reserve in the [illegible] ern Appalachian mountains, and [illegible] the White mountains of New [illegible] shire. There was opposition [illegible] in the senate and when this was [illegible] come opposition developed in [illegible] house. It was charged at times [illegible] one house was being played [illegible] against the other house in a way [illegible] would be sure to kill the [illegible] without having blame attached [illegible] congress as a whole. The senate [illegible] fore long will vote on an Appalachian [illegible] forest reserve bill, which was passed [illegible] by the house at the last session.

When the house committee on [illegible] culture was holding its hearings [illegible] the forest reserve proposition one [illegible] two government officials who, it was [illegible] charged, were moved by motives [illegible] antagonism to Mr. Pinchot, [illegible] the charge never was proved definitely, said that the forests had little [illegible] no effect on climatic conditions [illegible] that alternate droughts and floods [illegible] were not the result of the denudation [illegible] of the mountain tops of their growth [illegible] of trees. This testimony caused [illegible] surprise in scientific circles and [illegible] was derided by Mr. Pinchot and [illegible] of his mind.

Graves Takes Pinchot's Position.

Now Mr. Pinchot's successor [illegible] chief forester has sanctioned a [illegible] ernment publication prepared [illegible] Raphael Zon, which makes light [illegible] the contention of the anti-Pinchot [illegible] forces that forests have no effect [illegible] climatic conditions and on water [illegible] In other words, Mr. Graves by the [illegible] sanction of the articles takes [illegible] position that Mr. Pinchot took, and [illegible] therefore invites the same criticism [illegible] from other government officials who [illegible] was directed at his predecessor in [illegible] fice.

There are no forest reserves [illegible] worthy the name in the east. It is [illegible] said by a forester of the same [illegible] unless the forests of the southern [illegible] palachians and of the White mountains are saved disaster will come [illegible] the manufacturing interests in the [illegible] slope countries which depend upon an [illegible] even flow of water. The bill providing these forests was reported favorably by the committee on agriculture in the face of strong opposition but it went through the house. Instantly opposition developed in the senate, but an agreement was reached to vote on the measure at this session.

Will Favor Tariff Commission.

Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island has given his sanction to a tariff commission bill. If an agreement of this kind could have been made truthfully a year ago the country would have been staggered at the news."

Ever since congress convened [illegible] in the month there have been intimations that the two factions in the Republican party were likely to join hands in an effort to create a real tariff commission by legislative act. President Taft practically demanded such a commission in his annual message to congress and the regular and insurgent Republicans now seem to think that if they do as the president wishes there will be a better opportunity for harmony in the party when the next presidential campaign opens.

The Republicans are not thinking wholly of harmony in their ranks in making up their minds to create a new tariff commission which shall have ample power to study conditions and to report to congress with recommendations for future tariff legislation. They think also that if the commission approves of the work of the commission, the Democrats in the next congress, controlling as they will the house of representatives, will [illegible] twice before they pass a bill providing for "a tariff for revenue only." In other words, as the Republicans [illegible] matters they hope the country will demand that the commission be allowed to prove either its usefulness or its uselessness before any tariff legislation is demanded.

Lodge Worried About His Seat.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, known as the "[illegible] in the senate," admittedly is worried lest opposition of some of the Republican legislators in the home state [illegible] prevent his return to the upper house. Massachusetts men say that Senator Lodge does more for his individual constituents than any other man in the United States senate and that the chief difficulty lies in the fact that his constituents think he is cold and unresponsive. Coldness of demeanor has defeated more than one candidate for office, but Mr. Lodge has held office many years. Eschewing politics in all arguments concerning legislative matters, it can be said at least in favor of the Bay State senator that he is a hard student and that his scholarship has lent dignity to a body which only a few of the members rightly can lay claim to the name scholar.

Fighting K. of P. Insurance.

Albany, N. Y.—Attorney General O'Malley received a communication from Milton Bucky, a lawyer of New York, asking him to begin an action against the Knights of Pythias to cancel its certificate to conduct a life insurance business in this state and appoint a receiver of all assets. Mr. Bucky alleges that information furnished by the supreme lodge of the order shows that it is carrying insurance of the fourth class amounting to [illegible] with cash on hand to pay [illegible]

Mine Explosion Kills 12.

Norton, Va.—As a result of an explosion in the mines of the Read Coal company at Green, twelve men lost their lives. Thirteen were in the mines at the time of the explosion and only two escaped, one of whom died shortly after being taken out. The explosion came without warning and it is believed to have been caused by an accumulation of gas and of "blowing" coal. The same mine, however, had a similar explosion [illegible] years ago, in which six men were killed.

Plain Talk In A Conversational Way.

Perfection is said to be made up of trifles, and yet perfection itself is no trifle. It is the highest and final achievement in any branch of human endeavor.
In the mercantile business, it means a combination of wisdom, energy, good will, judgment, sagacity and finances.
In society it includes good manners, attractiveness, culture, refinement and address.
In sporting life it comprehends a fine gun, an excellent bird dog, a fishing kit, a thorough knowledge of race horses and an acquaintance with base ball magnates of the first magnitude.
We are neither in Society life nor in sporting life and therefore we make no pretensions to perfection in these lines; we are content not to be perfect.
But in mercantile life; in that sphere of activity wherein we move, we come about as near the AAA mark as most merchants ever attain. We do not say it boastingly, but proudly, that ours is the busiest, best and brightest of all the activity centers in Clanton.

Why? Because we use judgment in buying; we are chock full of energy at our place; we entertain nothing but the kindest of sentiments toward all people; we try to be discreet in all our business relations, and, then, knowing our people to be judicious buyers, we expend our finances in such a manner as to meet their wishes and demands.
The time has come when our people will not have shoddy goods at any price; therefore, we have tabooed all shoddies; they have no place on our shelves.
Dame Fashion is far-reaching in her demands and insists that "My Lady of Style" must wear the latest fabrics. We bow to Dame Fashion's decree and in accordance therewith have purchased the most recent of her choice productions. We can satisfy "My Lady" whatever her wants.
Yet we have not overlooked "The Old Man" or the children.
They were in our minds when we went to market.

Here you find assembled in varied style and abundant quality every article that goes to make the whole family glad; the parlor, the sitting room, the bed room, the dining room, the library, the hallway, the kitchen, the attic and the basement were all taken into consideration when we placed our orders for the mammoth stock we now display at our store.

Furniture and Feed Stuffs, Clothing and Groceries, Shoes and Hats, Hardware and Provisions

All enter into the combination that spells perfection at our place.
Then too, our cotton department is equipped as never before.
Our arrangements are complete; our prices reach the topmost round and our facilities for handling your business cannot be surpassed by any house in these parts.
We are here to buy what you have to sell.
We will sell you anything you want to buy.
If you have tried us you KNOW.
If you have never tried us, it's up to you to do so NOW.
We know, that's why we tell you.

Couldn't have had better weather for Christmas, even if it had been made to order with hammer and hatchet.

From the way these flying men are mounting the sky, it won't be long before one of them will try to talk to the man in the moon.

This be the time for turkey hash and waffles. A careful housewife will not turn the old Christmas turkey loose for several days yet to come.

We've been watching the trees and poles for the past few days, but up to this time have seen no notices of a mayoralty election posted.

Surely we are not going along much longer without an executive head?

We have heard several kindly remarks about that proposition of the Press to start the new year off with a determination to secure a town hall and city jail. Clanton needs both, or rather the two combined into one.

We were promised a "platform" by one of our prospective candidates for mayor, which we hoped to publish this week, but for some reason the promise did not materialize. No doubt the press of business was too great for political doings this week. Next week look out for it.

The movement on foot in some parts of Jefferson county to divide that county may result in depriving the county of a congressman "all to herself." Somehow or other, we like the name of Pettus—the name for the proposed new county—and we believe it is going to be a winner.

The police department and the sheriff's force are still busily engaged in trying to ferret out the party who sent poisoned whiskey to Guy Coleman, the drinking of which terminated in the death of two prominent young men of Birmingham. Of all dastardly deeds, that performance is the climax.

The Rockford Chronicle put on extra airs last week and published a handsomely illustrated Christmas edition. Besides the attractive outside, there were cuts of many prominent citizens of Rockford and Coosa county.

Well, we'll soon have our new press, and then we are going to do that stunt ourselves.

We congratulate the Chronicle upon its handsome Christmas edition.

The frequent dynamiting of public buildings in Los Angeles proves conclusively that should the guilty parties be apprehended a severe lesson should be taught to others so inclined by the administration of absolutely strict justice without being tempered with mercy. A person who would undertake to destroy a building where many people are engaged in honest toil would not hesitate to take life in any other way should the opportunity be presented.

The democratic executive committee meets on January 6th. There is considerable business to come before the committee, and it is hoped that every member will be present.

Some of the members do not subscribe for the ONLY democratic paper in the county, and it may be that they will not see the notice which has been published in The Press for several weeks.

Should you meet up with one of that kind ask him if he cannot come to the committee meeting for the sake of the party.

The Press is in receipt of a map showing the outlines of the proposed new county of Pettus. The prospectus states that no territory will be taken from any of the old counties of the State except Jefferson, and that even then Jefferson will be left with a larg territory and exceedingly large taxable values. Jefferson as it now stands is becomingly exceedingly great. She has eleven members of the lower house, and wants a congressman all to herself. When counties grow so great as to require such representation, and there is no good reason to the contrary, they should be divided, if it can be done without serious injury to those most interested.

Again our county correspondents have gone back on us—just why, we do not, of course, understand. But one sent in a letter this week. Suppose we will have to lay it to the same excuse we have made for ourselves—Christmas.

We are printing elsewhere in this issue a copy of an ordinance adopted last Tuesday by the Town Council in reference to licenses. It will be seen, by glancing over the schedule of licenses, that many have been raised considerably—some, we think, unreasonably. Nevertheless, it is the law of the town now, and The Press indulges the hope that none will utter a protest. If there's kicking to be done, let it be done next year in due time, but do not begin the good year 1911 by "jumping on the administration."

There is also another ordinance copied in our columns this week which we had hoped would be delayed for a few days—not that we have any objection to its passage ultimately, but we think that in matters of this kind the people of the district to be affected should have a right to know what is being done. Their knowledge of the facts would take no power away from the council to pass the ordinance if they saw fit to do so, but it might save considerable discussion in the future; and then, too, the "hoi-polloi" might be able to give our town fathers some information which they do not now possess. A franchise these days is looked upon as a valuable thing, and is not to be thrown at a fellow's head just for the asking.

The Glee Club.

One of the most enjoyable entertainments given in Clanton in many days was that of the University Glee Club last Tuesday night.

These young men, students at the State University, represent prominent families in every section of the state. They are under the management and direction of Mr. Garner, an editor of Tuscaloosa, and magnificently indeed has he trained them.

The Court House Auditorium was comfortably crowded long before the performance was to begin, and not an auditor in the large assembly went away disappointed in the least. In fact, every one said that it was a "perfect gem" of an entertainment.

Every number from start to finish was good. There was not a dull moment during the entire two hours' entertainment. Each number was well rendered and enthusiastically received. Many hearty encores were given response by the obliging young singers, and at the conclusion the verdict was that Clanton had been extremely fortunate in securing the Glee Club.

This was the first public entertainment given by the young men this year, and Clanton was selected as the meeting place from which they are to begin a tour of some days over the state.

It is impossible for us to give personal mention or to particularize at this time, and that is scarcely necessary, for each piece rendered seemed at the time to be the best; however, in our opinion, Mr. Sepsalon was perhaps the favorite. His rendition of "The Roman" was especially good; his recall to this was catchy, and took well, but when at his second appearance he rendered "Sweet Italian Love," the house fairly roared. Mr. Sepsalon is a born mimic and a minstrel of the first magnitude.

Nevertheless, others came in for much applause. The warbling of Mr. Bradley was the best ever heard here, and doubtless as good as was ever heard in the state. The rendition of "Alphonse and Gaston" by Messrs. Bradley and Yates convulsed the house, one being something over six feet, while Gaston was less than five.

Come again, young men, and when you do come give us sufficient notice, for we'll have to have that town hall to accommodate the crowd that will greet you.

Mrs. Pinckard Entertains.

Immediately after the entertainment at the court house last Tuesday night Mrs. Pinckard acted as gracious hostess to a large and enthusiastic gathering of Clanton's society set in honor of the young gentlemen composing the Glee Club. The entire first floor of this spacious and well appointed home was thrown open to the guests, numbering perhaps 200 during the evening. The affair was entirely informal; there was none of the staid stiffness of the drawing room, but a hearty commingling of friends and visitors on terms of cordiality that was good to see.

Mrs. Pinckard is an ideal hostess. She possesses in an eminent degree that quality which makes her guests feel perfectly at ease all the while, and at the same time remember that they are being entertained by one who knows all the amenities of polite life. There was no long receiving line, no ducal introductions, no conventional conversations. It was all bright and cheery from beginning to end, and every one present felt that it was good to be there. In the dining room handsome cut-glass punch-bowls adorned the table filled with tempting fruit punch, which was served to the guests by handsome young ladies. The young men of the Glee Club and their attendant friends seemed especially delighted with the honor conferred upon them by Mrs. Pinckard.

All in all, this reception was perhaps the most numerously attended of any given in Clanton for some time, and it was one of the most charming.

FOR SALE.

The Mysterious Luncheon

When Mrs. Kimball received the invitation from Mrs. Carter, whose husband was a business acquaintance of Kimball's and therefore had to be treated somewhat delicately, she made a number of sputtering, inarticulate noises which ended in a quite articulate assertion that she would not go.

After she had proclaimed positively at least a dozen times that she would not go and nothing could induce her to go, she sat down and meekly informed the abhorred Mrs. Carter, per post, that she would be delighted to accept her very kind and welcome invitation.

The morning of the luncheon dawned stormy and unpleasant. Mrs. Kimball protested at every stage of her toilet that she could not and would not go. When she eventually did get started it was somewhat late, and the long trip from her north shore suburban home to the South side, punctuated by delays to trains and cars, was torture to her. She breathed a sigh of relief as, after glancing at her watch and noting that she was only five minutes behind the hour appointed, she pressed the electric bell.

To her surprise no one opened the door. She waited a few minutes and rang again. There was still no response. In some doubt, she rang again. This time the door was opened about two inches by a maid with a dismal countenance. An odor as of fried potatoes and other viands which are usually reserved for purely family occasions slipped past her and faded away into the street. Mrs. Kimball took a hesitating step forward.

"Is Mrs. Carter at home?" she ventured.

"Don't know," snapped the maid, "but I can go and look if you've a mind to come in."

Mrs. Kimball stepped inside the door and the maid disappeared, leaving the guest a prey to disquieting surmises. Was it possible, she asked herself, that she had mistaken the day? She put this possibility aside as absurd, as she had a distinct recollection of the wording of the invitation. Filled with uneasy thoughts, she heard excited voices in the rear of the house, but these were quickly drowned by the closing of a door. After what seemed an interminable time another door upstairs opened and her hostess came rustling down.

"Oh, my dear," she gushed, "I was beginning to be afraid you weren't coming. Come right upstairs with me and take off your hat, so that we can be perfectly informal and comfortable."

She rustled up in front of Mrs. Kimball and pushed her affectionately into a bedroom.

"Now, make yourself perfectly at home," she urged, "while I run down and take a peep into the kitchen. You know how a housekeeper feels about seeing to things personally." Then she disappeared.

"I'm sorry to say there is a disappointment in store for you," she began apologetically when she reappeared after a long absence.

"Mrs. Tribler, whom I asked you to meet, has been taken ill and was unable to come." She pushed a caressing arm through her guest's before she continued: "But I just couldn't let myself be disappointed of you and I thought you and I could have a nice little home luncheon together."

Arm in arm they descended the stairs, and were just about to turn into the living room when they were halted by the sound of a loud, truculent voice.

"Say, Mrs. Carter," called the voice, "didn't I better get three pounds of steak? With company and the children no two pounds won't go round, hardly."

Mrs. Carter turned a brilliant crimson and dropped her guest's arm.

"Excuse me just a minute," she said. "There seem to be domestic complications."

Mrs. Kimball wandered into the living room and once more waited. Nearly an hour later, when the guest was almost in the last throes of hunger, luncheon was served.

It consisted of steak, baked potatoes, beans which had evidently been summoned from a can, shrimp salad bearing the same impress, canned peaches and bakery cake. There were no children present. Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Kimball lunched in solitary state, waited upon by an evidently much aggrieved maid.

After a short and somewhat feverish "visit" with her hostess, Mrs. Kimball took her departure.

All the way home she wondered what it all meant. She knew she hadn't been mistaken in the day. Since she was expected, what possible explanation was there of her peculiar reception?

At her own door she was met by Caroline, her own maid, with a telegram. "This came just after you left, ma'am," Caroline explained.

Mrs. Kimball, opening it, found it was from Mrs. Carter. She read:

"Mrs. Tribler unable to come Thursday. Can you come Monday?"

Mrs. Kimball sat down upon the nearest chair and pitched her handbag across the room.

"There!" she ejaculated as it fell with a crash. "That may not be ladylike, but it's a great relief. And what's more," she added vindictively, after a moment's pause, "I just know they had finished lunch before I got there and had to do it all over again. And that's more, I'm glad she had all that trouble. I do hate a fool!"

JEMISON.

Christmas has come, and is about gone, and it reminds us of the song, "After the Ball." It brings sadness and sorrow to a great many and joy to but few.

Rev. S. M. Adams preached us two excellent sermons Sunday, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. He leaves in a day or two for a two-months' vacation in Florida, where he hopes to regain his health and to have some degree of pleasure frolicking. We trust that he will return to us greatly benefited.

Mrs. Jennie McLand, of Bay Minette, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Hands.

Miss Silsbee Bristow, a charming young lady of Bay Minette, is visiting friends and relatives here.

Miss Maylene Burnes, who is teaching at Anniston; Rose Burnes, of Avondale, and Mr. A. E. Burnes, of Edgefield, S. C., are spending the holidays with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hunt.

Misses Nelia Johnson and Bonnie Jenkins, who are teaching at Riderville, are spending the holidays with relatives here.

The Old Maids held their annual convention Monday night, and but a small crowd greeted them, there being but two old bachelors present.

Mr. and Mrs. Devore gave the young people of Jemison a delightful entertainment Tuesday night, which was greatly enjoyed by all present. The string band furnished music for the occasion, and after indulging in many exciting and entertaining games, elegant refreshments were served.

We regret to say that Jemison is soon to lose one of its prominent families, and Thorsby is to be the gainer. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Williams and their charming daughters are to reside hereafter in Thorsby. We wish them much happiness in their new home.

Mrs. Leila Riddle and daughter are visiting the father of the former, Mr. A. J. Atkinson.

Several of the Jemison boys left to spend the holidays at their old homes. Among them are Messrs. Cross, Lowery, Adams, Hunt and McCreless.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davidson are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lowery.

A number of our citizens have had an opportunity this week to spend a few days in the Capital City attending court.

Miss Payne is at home from her school duties to spend the holidays with relatives.

On Tuesday just at noon the Thorsby cavalrymen, attired in fantastic costume, appeared in our midst, and to the strains of martial music executed quite a number of military movements. We appreciate being remembered by the Thorsby cavalrymen in this pleasant manner.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fatton on Monday afternoon last the spacious parlors were thrown open to the many friends of their daughter, Miss Mattie. The evening was pleasantly spent with many amusing games and most classical music. Those present were: Mrs. J. C. McLeod, of Bay Minette; Misses Mattie Hand, Silsbee Bristow, Maline and Rosalie Burns, Bertha and Nelia Johnson, Elizabeth McNeill and Rosa Adams; Messrs. R. B. McNeill, N. W. Henson, P. D. Wilson, J. W. Patton, J. E. Lowery, Oscar McNeill and J. K. Thompson. A game of initials was played, the winner of the first prize, a beautiful book, being Dr. McNeill; the second prize (booby), a set of A B C blocks, was triumphantly carried off by Mr. P. D. Wilson. Delicious refreshments were served during the evening, and all too soon we had to bid our fair hostess adieu, wishing her many such pleasant occasions.

Boy's Marvelous Nerve.

At a sugar mill on the island of Barbadoes the men in attendance were shortening sail, when a native boy, who did not let go soon enough, was carried aloft by the great 45-foot sail. He fortunately had all his wits about him and managed to get his feet around a bar of the sail and to hold on to the one above. In this position he was carried around, the mill revolving with increased rapidity, as the man whose duty it was to feed it had rushed out at the first alarm. A cry was raised to choke the rollers with cane and thus stop the mill, and this was done at the imminent risk of breaking some of the machinery and so releasing the sails altogether; but after six complete revolutions, the mill was stopped, fairly choked by the bundles of cane thrust into its jaws, leaving the sail, to which the boy still clung, uppermost, and he 90 feet from the ground. With marvelous nerve he proceeded to climb down that perilous ladder and reached the ground. It is estimated that he traveled nearly 1,500 feet in his aerial journey, and half that distance with his head downward.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruffin are expected to return to Clanton today, and a warm reception awaits them here, for no more popular young man lives in Clanton than genial Jeff Ruffin. Jeff, old fellow, we congratulate you; may your every dream of perfect happiness be realized.

At a recent meeting of the stockholders of the Peoples' Telephone Exchange all the old officers were relected for the ensuing year except Mr. Arkie Mahan, who declined re-election. Mr. J. W. Dennis was made secretary in the place of Mr. Mahan.

If the paper does not come up to your expectations this week, we respectfully request you to remember that Christmas was here in the early part of the week, and it had been some time since we had seen our old friend, Santa Claus.

On last Tuesday evening Mrs. E. M. Pinckard tendered to a few friends a delightful dinner party in compliment to Mr. Garner, the director and manager of the University Glee Club. To say that the occasion was one of rare pleasure, and that the hostess proved herself to be an exceptionally talented entertainer, would be but slightly expressing it.

We call the attention of our readers this week to the new advertisement of T. G. Mackey & Son. These gentlemen have on a shoe sale, and from what they have to say about it The Press is confident that they will soon have the room they are seeking, for with them a special sale means special prices, and that usually moves the goods.

Professor Monroe left last Friday to spend the Christmas holidays with his wife at her old home in Fayette.

The town council will meet on next Monday night to transact such business as may come before it. All those interested will please take notice.

Hon. Wm. M. Adams returned last Friday from a prolonged stay at Hot Springs, where he has been recuperating. Mr. Adams reports that he has entirely regained his lost strength and is now ready for a strenuous time during the New Year.

Miss Ruth Leslie, a charming young lady of Birmingham, spent the Christmas holidays with her friend, Miss Mary Estelle Dismukes at Verbena.

Mr. J. Claude Jones, of Greenville, came to Clandon to spend the Christmas season with friends and relatives.

Mrs. E. M. Pinckard has as her guest during the holidays Miss Dupree of Union Springs, a most charming and cultured young lady.

Rev. J. S. F. Stephens, who was once pastor of the Methodist church at this place came down last Monday night to spend several days with old friends. As noted in these colmns Mr. Stephens had the misfortune to lose his wife some weeks ago and he has brought his children to be with Mrs. Belle George for some time.

HORSE HEAVEN.

Some days since W. J. Ruffin and Sons had the misfortune to lose by death their delivery horse. The horse was put in the stable at the family home as usual but some hours afterward it was discovered that it was suffering fearfully. All that could be done for the poor dumb brute was done but to no purpose, it died before the coming of the day.

SOLD OUT.

Several days ago a deal was consumated whereby Mr. J. Wiley Littlejohn sold out his general merchandise business to Mr. T. G. Taylor, who has already taken active possession of the establishment.

Mr. Littlejohn retires in order that he may devote his entire time to the duties of his office.

A SNEAK THIEF.

Some time ago Mr. Crichton, who edits the Clanton Banner, engaged the services of a tramp printer to work in his shop. The printer proved to be one well up in the art of setting type and Mr. Chichton was highly pleased with his new find. After working in the Banner office some days the printer felt that he was entitled to the run of the shop and assumed that privilege. Several days before the holidays begun the aforesaid printer spyed a satchel belonging to Mr. Crichton which was left in the printing office. The temptation was too great and so at an hour when Mr. Crichton and the others were out of the office he appropriated this satchel and an overcoat to his own use. Before leaving, however, he purchased a Post Office order and sent it off to the typographical union of which he was a member, to keep himself in "good standing." As soon as Mr. Crichton discovered the theft he wired Birmingham and Montgomery hoping that the thief might be apprehended. In his haste to get away the man left the overcoat, deciding, perhaps, that it would serve as a clue and enable the officers to locate him. Up to this time neither the thief or the satchel has been located.

MR. MAHAN'S FUNERAL.

Last week the PRESS made hurried mention of the fearful accident which befell Mr. Obie Mahan, third son of our acting Mayor, H. M. Mahan, and of his subsequent death. The young man was carried to Montgomery in hope that under the constant care of physicians he might be restored to health, but almost before preparations were made for an operation the end came. Mr. Obie Mahan was about twenty-five years of age; a young man of exemplary habits. His death occurring at this time is particularly sad. Just as he was entering into young manhood, with a bright future, hopes high and ambition pulsing in every vein he was stricken in death.

Mr. Mahan was a member of the Order of Woodmen which lodge conducted the funeral services.

Besides a father and three brothers living here, Mr. Mahan leaves a brother who resides in Dallas, Texas. This brother was apprised of the accident which befell Obie but death following so soon after the accident he found it impossible to reach here in time for the funeral.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather a large concourse of friends and relatives met with the Woodmen to pay the last tribute of respect to the departed young man. Tenderly and lovingly he was laid to rest in the Clanton cemetery according to the ritual of the Order which he loved so well and the tear-filled eyes that stood about the open grave attested the esteem in which Obie Mahan was held.

ATTENTION LADIES.

The Cemetery Improvement Association meets at the Methodist Church on next Tuesday afternoon January 3d, at three o'clock.

The collecting committees are urged to get in all money due up to that time, and it is hoped that as many members will attend as possibly can, because new officers will be elected and new committees appointed for coming year.

ANOTHER NEW FIRM.

On January 1st, Mr. Harmon Headley takes possession of the soft drink place heretofore conducted by Mr. Harvey Chandler and Mr. J. S. Hand becomes the manager of the place recently conducted by Mr. Headley.

The two changes will make no particular difference in the conduct of the two houses, as they will both be run along the same lines as formerly. Mr. Headley, however, expects to put in his new place a line of fine confections and fancy groceries and cater entirely to the fancy retail trade.

WILLIAMSON AND HIS WHISKY

Implied Accusation of Cheapness Was Too Much for Charitable Bartender.

George Williamson, who mixes drinks fit for the gods at Shoomaker's, where the politicians and diplomats foregather for a little nip now and then, is so polite and urbane that he would make the lamented Mr. Chesterfield seem uncouth and coarse. George is also possessed of a kind and charitable heart.

One afternoon, in the rush hour, a well-dressed stranger entered Shoomaker's and, leaning across the bar, said to George in a low tone:

"I'm a little short of money. Would you give me a drink of whisky for ten cents?"

"Certainly," said Williamson, and put on the bar a bottle of his finest.

The stranger fingered the bottle and the glass for a few moments. Then he said:

"I beg your pardon, but is this ten cent whisky?"

The implied accusation of cheapness against the establishment was too much even for Williamson.

"Did you ever get any five-cent whisky in this place?" he asked hotly.

The stranger admitted he never had.

"And you never will!" exclaimed the proprietor, and with that he snatched the bottle of the bar, and the stranger got no drink at all.—Popular Magazine.

IF YOU ARE WANTING A MONUMENT READ THIS.

In buying a monument to mark the last resting place of your dear one, you want to know that it will stand exposure to the elements; that it will not discolor, disintergrate or decay.

North Georgia marble meets these requirements.

Under examination with powerful glasses magnifying 150 diameters, this stone is seen to be composed entirely of crystals, with no openings for the absorption or retention of moisture.

This agrees with the results from the tests made by eminent chemists; therefore, for strength, durability, brilliancy and permanency of color, it stands second to none.

Close attention to details; the cutting, carving, polishing and clean, clear-cut lettering distinguishes our work at a glance.

We have in stock, or can build anything you want on short notice.

A suitable footstone is sent with each monument, but for a limited time we will send a marble vase eight inches by eight inches, and a marble pedestal with the initial letters or the word "Father" or "Mother" in place of ordinary foot stone with each single order for $100.00.

You will find our prices right. Drop me a card which will bring me to your home when you can see and compare our goods and prices with others, or when in town call at the White Barber Shop.

I have just erected one for the Clanton Camp W. O. W. in the Clanton cemetery. Stop and see it.

Remember "procastination is the thief of time."

POPWELL SCHOOLHOUSE.

Editor Press:

As we have seen nothing from the pen of "Pollywog" for some time, I will drop you a few lines to keep you from thinking we have gone to sleep.

Several of the boys went out serenading Saturday night last with brindle's bell, firecrackers and other harmless implements of Xmas serenade.

Every one seems to be imbued with the spirit of Xmas, judging from the cries of "A merry Xmas!" heard on every side and the smiling face of every one we meet.

An Xmas dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Poole on the 25th. Every one at Sunday school was invited, and nearly all accepted the kind invitation. They report having had a most delightful time, and many compliments were heard on the bounteous feast which was spread.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Y. Sims and Miss Ada Williams were visitors at Mr. J. D. Sims' Sunday last.

We are glad to know that Mrs. W. C. Roper is convalescent after a rather serious illness.

We had a very good attendance at Sunday school last Sunday. The following officers and teachers were elected for the ensuing quarter: Rev. W. S. Cox, superintendent; Miss Eula F. Roper, secretary; teacher for Bible class quarterly, Miss Sadie Belle Johnson; for advanced quarterly, Mr. Alpheus M. Deason; for junior quarterly, Mr. Houston L. Traywick. Another teacher is yet to be elected for the card class. A band of workers was organized called the Gleaners, whose purpose is to bring others into the Sunday school. May they glean many golden sheaves for our Sunday school.

Several of this community attended the marriage of Mr. Henry Klinner and Miss Ulma Roper on the 18th inst.

A small number of the young people and a few of the older ones spent a charming evening at Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Edwards Xmas eve.

Mr. J. D. Sims completed the new addition to his house in time to move in before the holidays.

The hearts of the children were made glad on Xmas morning by their well-filled stockings. Old Nick had an extra team of reindeer and brought a larger supply than usual. He had to move around in a hurry to visit each child before day. With the first faint streaks of dawn he turned his team northward and bade a fond adieu to the little folks until next Xmas.

A happy New Year to the editor of The Press and all its readers.

"BONNIE."

Impressive American Possibilities

WASHINGTON.—Census facts, tremendous as they are, fall short, as an appeal to the imagination, of the possibilities which they suggest and clearly point out. What is, however, vast, is dwarfed by what may be.

The three southern states of New England—Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island—are found to have a little more than 5,000,000 inhabitants. They do not seem to be near their limit of growth. The area of these three states is only 14,555 square miles. It is equal to less than one-half of one per cent. of the area of the United States, not including Alaska or the island possessions of the republic.

If the entire country were populated as Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island are, there would be more than 1,000,000,000 people in the United States—about two-thirds as many as there are on the earth.

It is true that Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island do not produce food enough for more than a comparatively small part of their population, but it is also clear, from conditions existing in Europe, that an equal area, more fertile and tillable, might do so.

Belgium is smaller than the three southern states of New England, and its population is at least 2,000,000 larger, and Belgium comes near enough balancing its imports of food by its exports to prove that it feeds more than 5,000,000 of its people.

France is much less heavily populated, but the French rate, in proportion to the area of the country, would make the inhabitants of the United States number not less than 550,000,000, and France almost feeds its own people. If isolated from the outside world they could all be kept in comfort, as far as food goes.

It is not necessary to make comparisons with crowded countries of Europe or with the most densely populated parts of the United States to discover in the census returns remarkable evidence of the possibilities of growth which almost daze thoughtful Americans.

From whatever point of view the census returns are studied, in the light of old world conditions and some demonstrations of the possibilities of population and production in this country, the future is rich in overwhelming visions of American greatness. The more the facts of today are looked into and weighed, the more impressive they become as indications of the growth and progress of the future.

Woman Who Counts the Burned Money

IN several of the departments of the government young women are proving more efficient than young men. In the treasury, in particular, they excel in many lines of work. Here is a story in point: Not long ago United States Treasurer McClung received a letter from the Royal Bank of Canada telling about a fire that had taken place in one of its branch offices in Cuba. The fire had destroyed, or almost destroyed, so the letter related, a large sum of money in American bank notes which were in the safe in the bank.

The charred notes were in such condition that if they were sent back to the United States they would probably fall to pieces. The bank wanted to know whether it would be possible for the treasurer to send one of his experts down to Cuba, there to examine and identity the money and supervise its shipment back to Washington.

The officers of the Royal Bank of Canada declared their willingness to pay the salary and expenses of the government expert who should be sent down. Miss Elizabeth Smith, who was selected to go, did not wish to make the trip alone and the bank also agreed to pay the expenses of her sister.

So the two young women set sail for Cuba. When they arrived at Mayari, a small village on the coast of Cuba, opposite Santiago, where the burned bank building was located, Miss Elizabeth Smith found that the officers of the bank had not touched the scorched money because of their fear that the charred remnant would fall to pieces. The safe was still lying in the ruins. The officers of the bank had only opened it once and after seeing the condition of the money had closed it hurriedly to await Miss Smith's arrival.

At the end of three weeks the work was accomplished. Miss Smith found that she had been able to identify $50,300 worth of notes. This was the exact amount which the bank had on hand in American notes, according to its books.

Signal Corps Man Not So Very Crazy

AERIAL warfare—battles between men-birds in aeroplanes, destruction of fortifications and battleships by shells and bombs dropped from dirigible balloons and aerial craft brought to earth by projectiles—was a vision of mania that took John W. Currell, soldier, sailor and inventor, to the government hospital for the insane, but today he is a free man and working almost night and day on his inventions.

Now backed, it is said, by influential men and under the guidance of army and naval officials, he is working on instruments of destruction that will mark a long stride in aerial warfare equipment, according to friends of the eccentric genius.

A year before Currell was sent to the government hospital for the insane, he had submitted to the then Secretary of the Navy Newberry his ideas and his inventions, and they were being subjected to an examination. It was on the strength of letters he had received from the navy department and the testimony of patent attorneys that he obtained his freedom.

Both in the army and navy Currell was regarded as a crank. He became convinced in the Spanish-American war, he says, that the time was not far distant when aeroplanes or dirigible balloons would be important factors in warfare, and acting on this belief he began a systematic study of the problem that led him through several branches of the army and later into the navy, and then to the United States army signal corps, and finally to the madhouse, after his discharge from the army.

Currell was released from the government hospital for the insane on October 6, and since then has bent all his energies toward perfecting his inventions in preparation for applying for patents. His inventions consist of a dirigible aerial torpedo, a detonator, and an aerial rifle, and he is now working on a time torpedo and another rifle for use in an aeroplane.

Directory of Congressmen's Wives

WIVES of representatives and senators, who have already gotten even with their lieges by establishing a congressional club, immune from masculine interference, are now engaged in an even wider departure.

Not to be outdone by the statesmen, each of whom has a chance to spread himself in the congressional directory, the women are about to start a congressional directory of their own. They have begun already to busy themselves about getting the biographies of themselves which will shortly be seen in print.

The idea of the directory was first broached to the club members last spring by Mrs. Champ Clark who stood sponsor for the venture. Her interest in the wives of her husband's associates and her faculty for collecting data about the persons she meets, gave rise to the idea. A close student of American history and genealogy, Mrs. Clark has come upon some interesting facts about congressional families.

The data already collected shows that the blood of the old Puritan stock flows in the veins of the wives of many congressmen. Whether it be that the sturdy descendants of the New Englanders have survived under the hardships of pioneer days when other strains have perished is a question about which many interesting speculations might gather.

At first the congressional women treated the request for biographical material as a joke, but soon they saw that the information they gave, if made accessible for all the members of the Congressional club, would afford mighty interesting reading. Now that the women of the present congressional circle are so closely to scatter, some of them never to return to Washington, they have taken hold of the directory idea with new vigor.

One From the Cashier.

The harmless customer leaned across the cigar counter and smiled engagingly at the new cashier. As he handed across the amount his dinner check called for he ventured a bit of aimless converse, for he was of that sort.

"Funny," said he, "how easy it is to spend money."

"Well," snapped the cashier as she fed his fare to the register, "if money was intended for you to hold on to the mint would be turning out coins with handles on 'em."

Had Money In Lumps.

Charles H. Rosenberg of Bavaria had lumps on his shoulders, elbows, and hips when he arrived here from Hamburg on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. In fact, there was a series of smaller lumps along his spine, much like a mountain range, as it is presented on a bas-relief map.

The lumps were about the size of good Oregon apples, and as Rosenberg passed before the immigration doctor for observation, the doctor said softly to himself, "See that lump." Then he asked Mr. Rosenberg to step aside.

"You seem like a healthy man," said the doctor, "but I cannot pass you until I know the origin of those lumps on your body." "Ah, it is not a sickness," laughed the man from Bavaria. "Those swellings is money."

Taking off his coat he broke open a sample lump and showed that it contained $500 in American bank notes. He informed the doctor that he had $11,000 in all, with which he was going to purchase an apple orchard in Oregon.

He was admitted to the country.—New York Tribune.

Why He Laughed.

Miss Mattie belonged to the old south, and she was entertaining a guest of distinction.

On the morning following his arrival she told Tillie, the little colored maid, to take a pitcher of fresh water to Mr. Firman's room, and to say that Miss Mattie sent him her compliments, and that if he wanted a bath, the bathroom was at his service.

When Tillie returned she said:

"I tol' him, Miss Mattie, en' he laughed fit to bus' hisself."

"Why did he laugh, Tillie?"

"I dunno."

"What did you tell him?"

"Jus' what you tol' me to."

"Tillie, tell me exactly what you said."

"I banged de doah, and I said, 'Mr. Firman, Miss Mattie sends you her lub, and she says, 'Now you can get up and wash yo'self!'"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Where He Was Queer.

The negro, on occasions, displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words.

"Who's the best white-washer in town?" inquired the new resident.

"Ale Hall am a bo'nd a'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered the colored patriarch eloquently.

"Well, tell him to come and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow."

Uncle Jacob shook his head dubiously.

"Ah don' believe, sah, ah'd engage Ale Hall to whitewash a chicken house, sah."

"Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?"

"Yes, sah, a powe'ful good whitewasher, sah; but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah, mighty queer!"—Mack's National Monthly.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND.

If you'll make up your mind to be Contented with your lot
And with the optimists agree
That trouble's soon forgot,

You'll be surprised to find, I guess,
Despite misfortune's darts,
What constant springs of happiness
Lie hid in human hearts;

What sunny gleams and golden dreams
The passing years unfold,
How soft and warm the lovelight beams
When you are growing old.

Acted Like the Genuine.

"The landlady says that new boarder is a foreign nobleman."

"Bogus, I'll bet."

"Oh, I don't know. He may be the real thing. He hasn't paid her a cent as yet."

More Human Nature.

Grouchly—By denying myself three ten-cent cigars daily for the past 20 years I figure that I have saved $2,190.

Moxley—Is that so?"

Grouchly—Yes. Say, let me have a chew of your tobacco, will you?

Thanks to Burnt Cork.

"Gosh! But the colored race is a-comin' to the front fast!" whispered innocent Uncle Hiram, at the vaudeville show, as the black-face comedian was boisterously applauded.

"Yes, indeed," smiled the city man; "anyone can see that that fellow is a self-made negro."

Lo, the Rich Indian.

The per capita wealth of the Indian is approximately $2,130, that for other Americans is only a little more than $1,300. The lands owned by the Indians are rich in oil, timber and other natural resources of all kinds. Some of the best timber land in the United States is owned by Indians.

The value of their agricultural lands runs up in the millions. The ranges which they possess support about 500,000 sheep and cattle, owned by lessees, bringing in a revenue of more than $272,000 to the various tribes besides providing feed for more than 1,500,000 head of horses, cattle, sheep and goats belonging to the Indians themselves. Practically the only asphalt deposits in the United States are on Indian lands.—Red Man.

No Slang for Her.

"Slip me a brace of cackles!" ordered the chesty-looking man with a bored air, as he perched on the first stool in the lunchroom.

"A what?" asked the waitress, as she placed a glass of water before him.

"Adam and Eve flat on their backs! A pair of sunnysiders!" said the young man in an exasperated tone.

"You got me, kid," returned the waitress. "Watcha want?"

"Eggs up," said the young man. "'E-g-g-s,' the kind that come before the ben or after, I never knew which."

"Why didn't you say so in the first place?" asked the waitress. "You'd a had 'em by this time."

"Well, of all things——" said the young man.

"I knew what he was drivin' at all the time," began the waitress as the young man departed. "But he's one of them fellers that thinks they can get by with anything. He don't know that they're using plain English now in restaurants."

The League of Politeness.

The League of Politeness has been formed in Berlin. It aims at inculcating better manners among the people of Berlin. It was founded upon the initiative of Fraulein Cecelie Meyer, who was inspired by an existing organization in Rome. In deference to the parent organization the Berlin league has chosen the Italian motto, "Pro gentilezza." This will be emblazoned upon an attractive little medal worn where Germans are accustomed to wear the insignia of orders. The idea is that a glaance at the "talisman" will annihilate any inclination to indulge in bad temper or discourteous language. "Any polite person" is eligible for membership.

The "Country Churchyard."

Those who recall Gray's "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" will remember that the peaceful spot where "the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep" is identified with St. Giles', Stoke Poges, Buckinghamshire. In the prosaic pages of a recent issue of the Gazette there appears an order in council providing that ordinary interments are henceforth forbidden in the churchyard.

How She Learned.

The mother of a family of three small children was discussing their comparative precocity with a friend. "John was very slow at everything," she said, referring to her oldest. "Tom was a little better, and Edith, the baby, is the smartest of all. She picks up everything quick as can be."

Master John, who had been listening, now contributed his share of the conversation.

"Humph!" he exclaimed. "I know why her learns so quick. It's 'cause her has us and we didn't have us."

Economy.

The late former Governor Allen D. Candler of Georgia was famous in the south for his quaint humor.

"Governor Candler," said a Gainesville man, "once abandoned cigars for a pipe at the beginning of the year. He stuck to his resolve till the year's end. Then he was heard to say:

"'By actual calculation, I have saved by smoking a pipe instead of cigars this year $208. But where is it?'"

Moslem Traditions.

Ramadan is the month exalted by Moslems above all others. In that month the Koran—according to Moslem tradition—was brought down by Gabriel from heaven, and delivered to men in small sections. In that month, Mohammed was accustomed to retire from Mecca to the cave of Hira, for prayer and meditation. In that month Abraham, Moses and other prophets received their divine revelations. In that month the "doors of heaven are always open, the passages to hell are shut, and the devils are chained." So run the traditions.—The Christian Herald.

A Medical Compromise.

"You had two doctors in consultation last night, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"What did they say?"

"Well, one recommended one thing and the other recommended something else."

"A deadlock, eh?"

"No, they finally told me to mix 'em!"

Hard on the Mare.

Twice, as the bus slowly wended its way up the steep Cumberland Gap, the door at the rear opened and slammed. At first those inside paid little heed; but the third time demanded to know why they should be disturbed in this fashion.

"Whist," cautioned the driver, doan't spake so loud; she'll overhear us."

"Who?"

"The mare. Spake low! Shure, Oi'm desavin th' crayture. Everry toime she 'ears th' door close, she thinks won o' yez is gettin' down ter walk up th' hill; an' that sort o' raises her sperrits."—Success Magazine.

Exaggeration.

On her arrival in New York Mme. Sara Bernhardt, replying to a compliment on her youthful appearance, said: "The secret of my youth? It is the good God—and then, you know, I work all the time. But I am a great-grandmother," she continued, thoughtfully, "so how can these many compliments be true? I am afraid my friends are exaggerating."

Mme. Bernhardt's laugh, spontaneous as a girl's, prompted a chorus of "No, no!"

"Yes," said the actress, "unconscious exaggeration, like the French nurse on the boulevard. Our boulevards are much more crowded than your streets, you know, and, although we have numerous accidents, things aren't quite as bad as the nurse suggested.

"Her little charge, a boy of six, begged her to stop a while in a crowd, surrounding an automobile accident. 'Please wait,' the little boy said, 'Want to see the man who was run over.' 'No; hurry,' his nurse answered. 'There will be plenty more to see further on.'"

A Retraction.

"You shouldn't have called him a pig," said the conciliator.

"That's right," replied the person. "There is no sense in calling that he's worth 40 cents a to anybody."

Blissful Ignorance.

"Were you nervous when proposed to your wife?" asked mental person.

"No," replied Mr. Meekton. I could have foreseen the years I would have been."

Economy in Art.

"Of course," said Mr. Sirius. "I want my daughter to have sort of an artistic education. I'll have her study singing."

"Why not art or literature?"

"Art spoils canvas and literature wastes reams of Singing merely produces a disturbance of the atmosphere.

Home Thought.

"It must have been frightful," Mrs. Bossim to her husband, in the earthquake. "Tell me was your first thought when awakened in your room at and heard the alarm."

Our Voices.

What About Brain Food?

This Question Came Up in the Recent Trial for Libel.

A "Weekly" printed some criticisms of the claims made for our foods. It evidently did not fancy our reply printed in various newspapers, and brought suit for libel. At the trial some interesting facts came out.

Some of the chemical and medical experts differed widely.

The following facts, however, were quite clearly established:

Analysis of brain by an unquestionable authority, Geoghegan, shows of Mineral Salts, Phosphoric Acid and Potash combined (Phosphate of Potash), 2.91 per cent of the total, 5.33 of all Mineral Salts.

This is over one-half.

Beaunis, another authority, shows "Phosphoric Acid combined" and Potash 73.44 per cent from a total of 101.07.

Considerable more than one-half of Phosphate of Potash.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows: Potassium and Phosphorus, (which join and make Phosphate of Potash), is considerable more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says: "The gray matter of the brain is characterized by the increase of the Phosphate of Potash (Phosphate of Potassium) over that found in other tissues, and by the presence of [illegible] with albumen, and by the presence of [illegible] Of course there is a [illegible] and [illegible] law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form, exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

The natural conclusion is that if Phosphate of Potash is the needed mineral element in brain and you use food which does not contain it, you have brain fag because its daily loss is not supplied.

On the contrary, if you eat food known to be rich in this element, you place before the life forces that which nature demands for brain-building.

In the trial a sneer was uttered because Mr. Post announced that he had made years of research in this country and some clinics of Europe, regarding the effect of the mind on digestion of food.

But we must be patient with those who sneer at facts they know nothing about.

Mind does not work well on a brain that is broken down by lack of nourishment.

A peaceful and evenly poised mind is necessary for good digestion.

Worry, anxiety, fear, hate, &c., &c., directly [illegible] with or stop the flow of Ptyalin, the digestive [illegible] the mouth, and also interfere with the flow of the digestive juices of [illegible] and pancreas.

[illegible] the mental state of the individual [illegible] (more than suspected) with [illegible].

This trial has demonstrated:

That Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principal Mineral Salt, added to albumen and water.

That Grape-Nuts contains that element in more than one-half of all its mineral salts.

A healthy brain is important, if one would "do things" in this world.

A man who sneers at "Mind" sneers at the best and least understood part of himself. That part which some folks believe links us to the Infinite.

Mind asks for a healthy brain upon which to act, and Nature has defined a way to make a healthy brain and renew it day by day as it is used up from work of the previous day.

Nature's way to rebuild is by the use of food which supplies the things required.

The Children

We are the children; neither voice nor vote
Have we in any counsels of the land.
None need observe us; none need to take note
Of us, while ever patiently we stand.
But the old banner high above your head
Which typifies a nation's faith and trust
One day must float as bravely where we tread
Or in disgrace be trailing in the dust.

We are the children; in the street and school
Our little lives today are formed and made;
We have no part with those who guide and rule,
By no mere words of ours are nations swayed,
Yet this broad land shall some day look to us
When we have gained our own mature estate.
Help us be Citizens; for only thus
May any people be entirely great.

We are the children. Shall the grip of toil
Filch careless laughter from our eager lips?
Shall we give up our youth as labor's spoil,
As bond slaves strive before the drivers' whips?
We charge you, with the hope high in our hearts
That you shall see the future and its good,
Shall shield us from the sapping mills and marts
And give us sturdy man and womanhood.

We are the children; small are we today;
We ask but that we keep our childishness,
For from our little hours of song and play
Must grow the mind and will to curse or bless,
Yet subtly, too, we must give you the word
That we must hold the structure that you build.
Pray that when we our swords and shields shall gird
Upon us, we have fingers fit and skilled!

Faulty System.

"My dear," said the trusting wife, "I don't think your rules of economy are any good."

"You don't?" asked the fond husband.

"No," she replied, bending anew over the column of figures in her beautifully bound expense book. "You told me the way to save money was not to buy things—that thus we could save the amount the goods would have cost us. So I have been careful to set down the exact price of everything I have wanted to buy but felt I could not afford. I find, in adding it up, it amounts to $456.88, but I only have $2.35 in cash on hand. There must be something wrong with your theory."

Help Wanted.

A swain who would a wooing go,
To court a girl named Bertha,
Asked where she lived, said: "I don't know;
I think the street is Goethe."

The car conductor smiled and said:
"'Tis plain you do not know the Right way to say that name; instead
Of Goethe it is Goethe."

A Luxury at Hand.

"And there we were," said the returned polar explorer, "with our supply of food almost exhausted, surrounded completely by the ice jam. Oh, how we longed for some of the good jellies and preserves and things like that which you folks at home were enjoying!"

"Why didn't you eat the jam?" asks the fair young thing with the lustrous eyes and the aureole of sunny hair.

And They Quarreled.

"The Tiffits had a sharp spat last night."

"What caused it?"

"She bought an advance style spring suit and wanted to wear it, and he said if she did he would rush the season and wear a straw hat and tan shoes to go walking with her."

Unfortunate.

"The worst feature of the campaigns," said the eminent politician, "is the atrocious cartoons they make of me."

"And the worst feature of the cartoons," said a sympathetic listener, "is that they resemble you so much."

ONE REDEEMING FEATURE

When Papa Hears It He Urges Only Son to Grab Girl Quick.

The only son had just announced to the family his engagement.

"What, that girl!" remarked his mother. "Why, she squints."

"She has absolutely no style," commented his sister.

"Red-headed, isn't she?" asked auntie.

"I'm afraid she's flighty," was grandma's opinion.

"She hasn't any money," said uncle.

"And she doesn't look strong," chimed in the first cousin.

"She's stuck up, in my opinion," asseverated the second cousin.

"She's extravagant," was the opinion given by the third cousin.

"Well, she's got one redeeming feature, at any rate," remarked the only son, thoughtfully.

"What's that?" chorused the charitable band.

"She hasn't a relative on earth."

Papa had not yet spoken, but now he did.

"Grab her, my boy, grab her," he said.

HIRAM CARPENTER'S WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

"I have been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. D.'s. psoriasis, and others leprosy, commencing on my scalp; and in spite of all I could do, with the help of the most skilful doctors, it slowly but surely extended until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in the form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there would be nearly a dustpanful of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything, almost, that could be thought of, without any relief. The 12th of June I started West, in hopes I could reach the Hot Springs. I reached Detroit and was so low I thought I should have to go to the hospital, but finally got as far as Lansing, Mich., where I had a sister living. One Dr. —— treated me about two weeks, but did me no good. All thought I had but a short time to live. I earnestly prayed to die. Cracked through the skin all over my back, across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs; feet badly swollen; toe-nails came off; finger-nails dead and hard as a bone; hair dead, dry and lifeless as old straw. O my God! how I did suffer.

"My sister wouldn't give up; said, 'We will try Cuticura.' Some was applied to one hand and arm. Eureka! there was relief; stopped the terrible burning sensation from the word go. They immediately got Cuticura Resolvent, Ointment and Soap. I commenced by taking Cuticura Resolvent three time a day after meals; had a bath once a day, water about blood heat; used Cuticura Soap freely; applied Cuticura Ointment morning and evening. Result: returned to my home in just six weeks from the time I left, and my skin as smooth as this sheet of paper. Hiram E. Carpenter, Henderson, N. Y."

The above remarkable testimonial was written January 19, 1880, and is republished because of the permanency of the cure. Under date of April 22, 1910, Mr. Carpenter wrote from his present home, 610 Walnut St. So., Lansing, Mich.: "I have never suffered a return of the psoriasis and although many years have passed I have not forgotten the terrible suffering I endured before using the Cuticura Remedies."

Breaking It by Degrees.

Edmund Yates used to tell this anecdote of a physician who was a personal friend. As the story went, Yates once saw the doctor operate upon a man afflicted with blood poisoning, when he amputated the patient's leg.

"Do you think he'll recover, now?" asked Yates, after the operation was over.

"Recover!" exclaimed the physician. "Why, he never had a chance to get well."

"Then why in the world did you amputate that leg?"

"Why," said the surgeon, calmly, "you must not tell a patient the truth all at once, you know; you must first amuse him a little."

He Won.

Ex-Gov. Bob Taylor of Tennessee was once entertaining a northern guest, who was rather skeptical about the prevailing dialect in stories of southern negroes. He thought it overdrawn. To disprove the contention, Mr. Taylor laughingly made a wager with his guest that the northerner would be unable to interpret the language of the first negro they met. Accordingly, they set out and presently came upon a black man basking indolently in the sun. Telling his friend to pay close heed, Mr. Taylor stepped up to the negro and demanded, suddenly:

"Weh he?"

The negro blinked his eyes stolidly, and then answered in a guttural voice:

Wah who?"—Everybody's.

"Well," said Child, "here it is. Here's the dome." The hotel man took one look forward. Then he turned to Child and asked: "How much did that man in London say he wanted for them hams?"

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

GETS A BROKEN ARM IN POOL BALL DUEL

ATMOSPHERE FOR A FEW MINUTES IS FILLED WITH FLYING IVORY.

A shining pool ball, thrown with the accuracy of Mathewson "putting one over," put an end to a fight in a Pittsburg pool room the other night. The well-aimed shot broke the right forearm of Julius Roseberg, aged 23, of 1164 Vickroy street, and landed William Kelsky, aged 18, of 707 Wylie avenue, in the Center Avenue police station. Detectives Dillon and Morgan were the arresting officers.

The pool ball that placed Rosenberg hors de combat was not the only one that left the table in the billiard hall. For a few minutes the air was crowded with them and the manager of the place spent nearly an hour searching for a "fifteen ball" after the fight was over. It was finally recovered from a cuspidor into which it had tromed during the argument.

Duel With Pool Balls.

No person seemed to know what caused the scrap. Rosenberg and Kelsky, who were believed to be friends, were watching a game of pool when one hit the other. Who struck the first blow nobody seemed to know, and they didn't want to see who scored next. All the pool balls available were seized by the combatants, and, placing several tables between them, they opened fire. From the street the crowd gazed in through a window at the unique battle. According to witnesses, neither fighter scored until Kelsky, who is said to have some reputation as a diamond star, threw an inshoot which caught Roseberg in the right forearm. Roseberg took the count, and the crowd followed the detectives back to the pool room and helped the manager gather up the balls.

KNOCKS OFF GIRL'S BIG HAT

Offending Headgear Obstructed Nebraskan's View of the Stage and He Lands on the "Lid."

Omaha.—Judge Bryce Crawford of the Omaha police court has suddenly jumped into popularity by reason of one of his decisions. Harry Buckley, a young man about town, was at one of the theaters and occupied a seat directly behind a young woman, who wore a hat that carried a brim fully two feet wide, hiding the stage from Buckley and the persons to his right and left. Leaning over, Buckley said:

"Will you please remove your hat, so that I can see the play?"

The girl answered back that she had "paid for seeing the show and didn't propose to be insulted."

Instead of calling an usher, Buckley struck the hat and sent it spinning several feet away. Buckley was placed under arrest, charged with disturbing the peace.

Off Went Her "Lid."

When the case came to trial Judge Crawford held that if there was any disturbance it was caused by the owner of the hat and that her big "lid" was out of place in the theater. Buckley was discharged.

Pig "Kidnaps" Bear Cubs.

Selins Grove, Pa.—When John Weller, a farmer of Summit Village, near here, entered his barnyard in the morning he was surprised to discover that his prize sow had adopted two bear cubs. Near by was the mother bear, apparently indifferent over the fact that the cubs had forsaken her for a sow.

GYPSY QUEEN THE CHILD OF BANKER

JESSIE HABERSHAM MITCHELL WAS SCION OF DISTINGUISHED BALTIMORE FAMILY.

PASSES AWAY IN CINCINNATI

Remarkable Story of Her Life With the Nomadic Band Whose King She Married—Was a Descendant of Francis Scott Key.

Cincinnati, O.—Jessie Habersham Mitchell, wife of J. H. Mitchell, king of the Romany gypsies, who, it became known, was the daughter of H. G. Habersham, a wealthy Baltimore banker, and a great-great-granddaughter of Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner," died here recently.

The discovery that the gypsy queen was a scion of one of the oldest families in Maryland created a sensation in St. Louis some time ago. Detectives and agents who were sent by the woman's relatives and who tried to get her to return to a life of luxury and ease, failed to impress her. She said she preferred the life of a nomad.

According to the death-bed story, told by Mrs. Mitchell at the hospital in Cincinnati, she was stolen from her home five years ago by a band of gypsies and sold to one of the tribe for $900.

During all this time her father spent several fortunes in searching for his daughter. Last April she was located in St. Louis, but the search was all in vain. Jessie had become innured to the life of the nomad and refused to shake off its fascination and lure, despite the prayers of her relatives. Her mother died several months after her abduction.

During the first few years she was held in bondage and not allowed to communicate with her father. The tribe would quietly leave a neighborhood whenever she was suspected of having made any attempt to get in touch with her own world. Accounts of her abduction and the endeavors of her parents to trace her, which appeared in the newspapers, she was compelled to read to all the gypsies.

Later she was wooed and won by King John H. Mitchell and married him. While in camp with her band of rovers south of St. Louis she made a small fortune from the curious society girls who took the long journey to the gypsy tent to see the white queen. Like the women of her band, she was learned in the art of telling fortunes.

Cincinnati folks were apprised of the strange life of the American gypsy queen only after her death. Her confession of her career to the Sister Superior of the Seton hospital was the channel through which her story became public. She told the sister that she was not allowed her freedom until she really became infatuated with the life led by the roving people.

Mrs. Mitchell was a great-granddaughter of Mrs. Marie Lloyd Key, one of the most famous beauties of the South; grand-niece of Roger B. Taney, the Justice of the Supreme court; cousin of Lloyd Lowndes, a former governor of Maryland; great-great-grandniece of the first postmaster general of the United States, and niece of a commander in the United States Navy.

Gets $10,000 if Sober Three Years.

New York.—If Andrew L. Colvin of Brooklyn takes a seat on the "water wagon" and is still there when he reaches the age of forty, which means abstinence for at least three years, he will become the sole owner of a $10,000 estate left by his mother, Mrs. Susan Colvin. If he falls he will get only the interest on the estate during his lifetime.

Mrs. Colvin's will was filed in the Kings county surrogate's office and it contains a long clause providing for her son to inherit her estate if he is leading a life of sobriety at the age of forty and has not been under the influence of intoxicants for the previous three years.

MINNESOTA PAIR WHO ELOPE ON A 'CYCLE'

DAUGHTER OF A FARMER SPEEDS AWAY WITH HER LOVER IN LATEST FASHION.

Lesueur, Minn.—There was an elopement extraordinary from the home of Wilbur Methmen, a rich farmer of Cleveland township, when his twenty-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, sped away with her lover, George Hetting. She was seated in front of Hetting on the handlebars of a motorcycle, which was exceeding the speed limit at the rate of 30 miles an hour over none too good country roads. They were pursued by the wrathful parents in an automobile. The route was along the devious windings of the old Dodd road, and Methmen kept up the chase, never more than a half mile behind, across Cordova and into Waterville township, until a blowout of a front tire landed him and his machine in a ditch.

Eloping on a Motorcycle.

George, with the race and the bride both won, sped on across the county line and down to Waseca, where the couple were married and soon after forgiven by telegraph by the defeated father.

BANK NOTE IN AN OLD BIBLE

Currency of Ninety Years Ago Is in the Form of Personal Notes of Today.

Jeffersonville, Ind.—A bank note for $5, more than 90 years old, was discovered a few days ago by Gray Morrison, but it is doubtful whether the note has any value except to a collector.

Recently Mrs. Edward Bradley of Newport, Ky., presented an old Bible to Morrison, her grandson. Mrs. Bailey is past eighty and the book had belonged to her parents. While turning the leaves of the volume, Morrison found the bank note. The local banks said they did not believe it could be cashed, as it was not national currency.

Part of the writing is so faint as to be undecipherable, but the president's name stands out as clearly as writing only a few days old. The note reads as follows, as far as it can be read at all.

"No. 861. ——— months afterdate (number is torn off) the President, Directors and Co. of the Bank of Vincennes, the State Bank of Indiana, promise to pay on demand at their Branch (this is written and is barely decipherable) Bank, at ———. Five Dollars to the Bearer. Vincennes, April 7, 1819. Nathl. Ewing, President, ———, Cashier."

The place where it is payable and the cashier's name cannot be read.

The back is blank and the paper was apparently white with black lettering, and it bears a picture presumably of Vincennes and its bank, but resembling a small cross-roads settlement. It appears to have been printed from a wooden block.

KNOWS HIS MASTER'S VOICE

Pet Hidden in Cellar Squawks Loudly When He Hears Owner Shout "Bill!"

Allentown, Pa.—"Bill," a pet gander, knew his master's voice, and Gustav Conrad, of this city, recovered a flock of geese that had been stolen from his poultry yard.

Conrad began a house-to-house search on discovering that his geese were missing, constantly yelling "Bill! Bill!" At last there was an answering squawk from a cellar, which he recognized as the note of his gander.

Conrad went into the house and began to ask questions. The woman admitted she had a number of geese in the cellar, which she said she had bought from a man in a neighboring house, who said he had won them at a raffle in the country. She returned the geese to the owner.

Says Cat Meat Is Fine.

Cleveland, O.—Recently Edward Sanders bought a big black Tom cat for 25 cents. Today Sanders would have to pay $1 for the same cat. Some men of the neighborhood of East Thirteenth street and Hinds avenue organized a secret society called the Cats' Jammers. According to members, cat meat has a certain piquant flavor found in no other animal.

"Our motto is 'Economize,' and we eat cats," quoth one. "They are native and domestic animals, so the meat can not be tainted by foreign germs, as can meat from animals that roam the streets."
